A lecture tour stressing the importance of reforestation and conservation will be conducted in the various public schools of the Moira Watershed, it was stated today by Don T. Bell, fieldman for the Moira River Conservation Authority. The lectures will be sponsored jointly by the Authority and the Ontario branch of the Canadian Forestry Association.

Murray Dixon, representative of the Canadian Forestry Association, will spend two weeks in the area and with Mr. Bell will visit as many schools as possible commencing January 24th. The lecture will include a conservation film and a questionnaire. The program will be of one hour's length in each school.

School teachers report that such lectures are of benefit in the teaching of forestry in the schools. There are 56 schools in the Authority and as many of these as possible will be visited in the two weeks' period with Mr. Bell to continue the lectures during the weeks following. 90 sets of conservation pictures have been forwarded to schools in the area by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Mr. Bell and Russell K. West were named by the warden as a nominating committee to bring in slates for the various council committees.

Management, Labor, Public Need Better Understanding of Enterprise

Failure to realize the role of modern industrial enterprise was blamed as a major factor of industrial and economical troubles by Anthony Cekota, research director Western Bata Organization.

Speaking to the Kiyanis Club on Tuesday, Mr. Cekota said that all hopes for improved working conditions and overall progress in industry could be realized "only to the extent of our understanding of life and need of an industrial enterprise."

"This, possibly, is the greatest job facing business and public executives," he said.

Labor can never rule industry, and, if it tries, the results would be akin to those in Russia or in nationalized coal and railways, he claimed. However, although labor cannot rule the enterprise it certainly can wreck it.

"Examples of such wrecking are plenty," he said. "It is really difficult to say whose responsibility for an enterprise is greater nowadays, whether it is management or that of labor. Certainly both are responsible in their own way."

Management must be continuously aware of its workers' lives as well as its business and assets.

"It must manage the lives of men and it can have success only to the extent by which it succeeds to make individual lives of men useful to themselves and to the enterprise.

Mr. Cekota also scored the attitude of dealing with industrial problems en masse. By doing so the individual is robbed of his initiative.

"It is our mutual duty to drive Home to every individual that it is he who must constantly improve himself to be able to give more to the enterprise in order to get more out of it."

Labor, management and public should realize that they must aid the individual in the factories in his efforts for self improvement and through it to higher productivity.

Mr. Cekota was introduced by Hal Emerson and thanked by Bob Chipman.

LIBERAL REVIVAL IN BRITAIN

The British Liberal party, in a recent by-election in Inverness, showed an amazing resurgence of power. In 1950 the Liberals ran third, 8,033 behind the winning Conservative candidate. In 1951 the party did not contest the riding. But in the most recent voting the Liberals came within 1,332 votes of winning the seat and moved into second place.

"The many Conservatives who declare that it is useless to contemplate forming an anti-Socialist front with the Liberals because their party is dead have received a rapid answer," writes Edward Martell in "The Recorder" of London. "Inverness result proves case for anti-Socialist front" reads the heading over the article.

A similar argument has been heard in Canada, but not so frequently because the CCF has never attained the stature of the British Labor Party.

At first glance, the argument against splitting the anti-Socialist vote between two parties appears sound. It has, however, one great weakness.

If anti-Socialists combine in one party, there becomes no alternative to this anti-Socialist party except the Socialists.

The electors are thus faced with the choice of maintaining the anti-Socialist bloc perpetually in power or of substituting for it a Socialist government.

Neither alternative gives our present parliamentary system a fair chance to operate efficiently.

There must be some acceptable substitute for the party in power for our system of government to function properly.

It is questionable whether a Socialist party can be considered an acceptable substitute for a party believing in private enterprise, or vice versa, because such a change in parties entails not merely a change in the personnel of the government but a reversal of policies, a sweeping change in the economy of the nation.

Britain has had two such changes since the war, from a wartime coalition government to a future government pledged to socialism and then back to a private enterprise regime under the Conservatives. It has experienced these two changes and come through in fine style. This nation is thus adequate proof that the country can continue to survive a succession of such changes.

Far from calling for a union of Conservatives and Liberals in Canada, Britain's experience with Socialism might well consider the desirability of re-establishing the Liberals as a major political party. If that were accomplished, British electors would not be forced to return the Socialists to power when the day comes, as it certainly will, when they consider a change in government necessary.

As for the Labor Party, the worst thing that could happen to it would be for it to be given power without confidence, for it to have the reins of government thrust in its hands because it was the only possible substitute for the Conservatives. Instead of because the electors had real confidence in its policies.

NEW COLD WAR?

What may develop into another "cold war" has started —this time in Antarctica.

Recently Britain warned Chile that the Royal Navy would protect the sanctuary of any British whalers molested in Antarctic waters. Chile claims jurisdiction over the seas extending as far as 200 miles from her coast.

Now a reporter aboard the U.S.S. Atka, en route to Antarctica to spend a cold and lonely winter for large-scale U.S. operations in 1956 to 1958, reports a new complication in the deep, deep South.

French Jean Pierre of Argentina has sent a large naval expedition into Antarctic waters. About a thousand men are participating, using surface ships, planes and helicopters. Attention is centred on a particular area that is claimed by Britain and Chile as well as by Argentina. Not only do they dispute possession, but they cannot agree on its name. The United States, as a neutral, can be of no help in settling the difference of opinion over the name. It discards the Argentine, Chilean and British designations and uses one of its own invention.

On the U.S. charts the peninsula in dispute is named Palmer Peninsula, after Nathaniel B. Palmer who, the U.S. contends, discovered it in 1820. The U.S. however, is apparently not interested in claiming it, having selected a different site for another base. The Argentine call it San Martin Land, after the liberator of Argentina, Gen. Jose de San Martin, (1778-1850). To the Chileans it is O'Higgins Land, honoring the name of their national hero, Bernard O'Higgins. Britons call the disputed territory Graham Land in honor of Sir James R. G. Graham who was First Lord of the Admiralty when British ships under Capt. John Briscoe explored the region in 1830-32, or a decade after Nathaniel N. B. Palmer is said to have discovered it.

Interest in territorial rights in the Arctic is understandable, because over these northern wastes lie the shortest air routes between the United States and Russia. No comparable situation exists in the Antarctic. If the nations of the world manage to work up a full-sized squabble over the ownership of various slices of the world's biggest ice cube, it will be new and impressive evidence of man's genius for picking a quarrel, on almost any pretext.

EARLY SONGBIRD

UNSPOILED

He chuckled over this and that.
He told a joke or two.
He hadn't changed his size of hat
Or vest as some men do.
He knew, regardless of his fame,
Life's joys and griefs would be the same.

With smiles an old-time friend he met
And shouted: "Hello, Jim!"
Then said: "Life's cow I won't forget.

I went to school with him.
It's heartening to think that he,
Now we've grown old, remembers me."

No mention of his own renown
To those nearby he made.
He told his memories of the town,
The streets on which he played,
Fame, which sets many men apart,
Had damaged neither mind nor heart.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

TAKE FAITH—AND SEE

It isn't until we begin to see things with a new light that things change. This takes vision, but behind all vision is Faith—and behind Faith is God. Take Faith—and see! Read the Bible and see! Pray—and you will discover that they have always been sources of Faith, for without it they could not have accomplished what they did.

Great men in the inventive and industrial world, like the late Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison, were strong and solid men of Faith. Both were simple in their tastes and manner of life. Both were religious men. Nothing ever seemed to stagger either of them. Each had admiration for the other.

Not very long ago a friend took me to visit the grave of Henry Ford. It is a most quiet, intimate cemetery, just a little way out from the suburbs of Detroit, near to where he was born,and built his magic empire. Mr. and Mrs. Ford lie side by side with a slab of marble covering each grave, and with a simple inscription on the stone. Before Mrs. Ford's death she had arranged to have built a beautiful chapel on the adjoining grounds. It is nearly completed when I was there. There two persons are at rest!

I have travelled back and forth over my country and every time I marvel at what has been achieved in hardly more than a hundred and fifty years. Nations with grey heads, and with centuries behind them, never reached what America has demonstrated. Why? Well, in the first place this nation has been built by free men, unfettered, from the simple to the complex, never wavering. Men and women of Faith. Men and women of God. That has been the secret. They thought and lived by faith. It is our rare privilege to follow in their trails!

Womanly Weakness
(Tribune St Geneva, Geneva) Switzerland

An 18th century French thinker, Senac de Meilhan, foresaw why women would never be too successful in politics:

"For the women," he said, "the finest element in history is when Antony abandons his army to join Cleopatra."

A Senator's Plea

(By Senator Nancy Hodges of Victoria, B.C., speaking in the Canadian Senate)

I want to point out to honorable senators that a psychological problem is involved here. We are gradually getting to the point of generally accepting, unintentionally perhaps, the dogma "You old at 45" and "Get out at 65". I feel I am speaking to a sympathetic audience here when I bring this up, for I am facing arbitrary retirement at 65 in the Senate this house would be robbed of many men and women—including, of course, myself. So I know whereof I speak. It is time we realized that the chronological yardstick for measuring the soaring ability, capacity and powers of men and women should be changed. Some people are too old at 35, while others can go on doing a good job until they are 70. When our world has done had Sir Winston been told to get out at the age of 65? I can mention many men and women in Canada who have made their greatest contribution to the nation's slim life after having reached the age of 65. We are very arbitrarily to civil servants and people in industry that they must get out at 65. This is unfortunately, also, if any of them have their health at 65—what then may happen through no fault of their own—and try to obtain other employment, they are faced with the objection: "You are too old". Some people live to the full length of time in which men and women can earn enough with which to live. Their usefulness in their old age is shortened. I have seen this happen many times.

It is a tragic thing to me that a man at 65 is told he is just at the peak of his earning power and faced with a family responsibilities, when his children are growing up and looking for higher education, he should be summarily told by the labor market that he is no longer of use. He shall have to change our thinking altogether, and I think the honorable senator from Toronto (Mr. Haig) is very right in psychologically to tell people of 60 or 65 years of age that they are not to be put out on the labor market. I have known cases, as I am sure honorable senators have, of men being compelled to leave their jobs at 65, probably at the height of their experience and skill, and suddenly feeling so frustrated and lost that they have not lived very long afterwards. Also, such people tend to become a burden to themselves and the community. It seems to me ridiculous that we should insist on men retiring at 65, when do not grant them the old age pensions until 70. The two things do not jibe. We must reconstitute our whole thinking on this subject.

I spoke of the application of the science of geriatrics and of medical science increasing the span of life, but apparently other things also contribute to longevity. I was amused to read in a newspaper the other day accounts of various people who had attained 100 years of age. There were some recipes for longevity that were quite unorthodox. The recipe of the old lady, in Missouri, was this:

Drink a nightly glass of beer and a cocktail now and then—but don't worry, and keep calm!

Another recipe, that of Lord Iin, 107, of London, England, gave this advice:

Every night before going to bed, wash yourself all over with cold water. This recipe, in the ordinary business suit and climb into bed.

Even what I know of a great many men, they would think that a little whisky would be good brandy!

A Toronto man of 100 advised three steaks a day to live to a good old age. He did not state whether he was a millionaire, but I think he must be if he can afford three steaks a day. One a day is the height of opulence for most of us.

Honorable senators, I have got to face the serious problem of retirement myself. At the present time nothing is being done about it. True, we have established a few old people's homes. The other day I discovered that there is a home, with branches and phases, amounted to $60 million dollars. It is somewhere in the region of one billion dollars. So we are doing something in this matter, but in the general direction of caring for the aged. We are not doing all that we might particularly for the aged, and I am getting up to bat at 45, and have to get out of their jobs at 65.

It was said in the United States the other day that by 1980 there will be in the working force of the United States would be 60 million people, and the problem is not confined to Canada. Indeed, it is right in the industries of the world will have to look into this problem. It is very important. Unless we want to become nations of overpopulated people of folks, so-called, at 40 years and over, we shall have to challenge the present day estimate of old age.

Boy Driver Gets Advice

(By Sidney J. Harris in the Chicago Daily News).

This is an open letter to a boy, about 18, who forced me off the road within an inch of my life and passing me on a hill on a recent afternoon.

Dear Son:

You may think you are a good driver, and perhaps you are. But I'd like you to keep in mind that statistics show that "good" driving is due to other motorists.

Anybody can whip along the road and do certain things when you were doing. There's no trick to that. Anyone can race and leap with power and pickup—too much so, I'm afraid.

But remember that it was my alertness that prevented an accident from taking place. And the driver who was approaching us also had to brake suddenly and swerve in order to save your life and his.

That is not your courage or dexterity that has kept you alive as long as this, but the prudence and patience of other motorists who have been trading on our good nature and self-preservation.

I wish it were possible to point out to you that your kind of driving is nothing but bad manners — bad form. It is not courageous or manly.

Sometimes you run down a crowded street, pushing people out of your way, knocking packages out of ladies' hands and kicking children into the gutter. What would be heroic or manly about that?

Nothing of course. Then why do you suppose that having 2,000 pounds of steel under you makes it any better? There's nothing to be proud of in driving fast—any fool can do that. It's a form of cowardice to threaten other drivers, not courage.

Suppose you cheat me at the bridge table. Or "fix" the race. Does that prove? Nothing except that the car you bought is faster. You merely compelled to learn their jobs at 65 and probably at less than their experience and skill, and suddenly feeling so frustrated and lost that they have not lived very long afterwards. Also, such people tend to become a burden to themselves and the community. It seems to me ridiculous that we should insist on men retiring at 65, when do not grant them the old age pensions until 70. The two things do not jibe. We must reconstitute our whole thinking on this subject.

Personal Health Talks
By DR. WM. BRADY

THE SELF-STYLED MEDICAL AUTHORITIES DO NOT CHOOSE TO ANSWER

Avowedly I am no great shakes as an authority on anything. Nevertheless a good many people, even those who I assume doctors won't exalt themselves specialists are more competent than ordinary doctors, think there must be some truth in my teachings if I keep repeating things here that no qualified physician openly denies.

Dr. Brady

There are good reasons why real doctors hesitate to answer in print teachings of mine which they believe are wrong. In the first place, it imperils a physician's standing in the profession and in the community to break into print even to chastise a person. In the next place, there is, after all, some foundation in fact for what I teach — say about the treatment of hernia — and every doctor knows it.

Not more than 40 years ago I repeatedly asserted in this column that radical surgery was the only cure for hernia (otherwise called rupture or truss). That was what I had been taught in medical school, indeed it was taught in all medical schools.

But, as every honest doctor must admit, not everything taught in medical schools 25 or 50 years ago was so. The "vast strides" of medicine were not made by marking time.

First I learned from numerous readers that a mid-western physician of good professional standing was accomplishing amazing results in his office, without hospitalization and without detaining the patient from his regular work, play or social activities for more than a few minutes at each session.

Unhesitatingly I branded the doctor as a charlatan and assured the readers who described their experiences that every bit of such treatment was utter humbug. Why, I ascertained, it had been tried by various old timers and discarded as worthless or dangerous. Maybe, to the relief of the readers, "All I know is that my hernia is cured."

This is exasperating. When a doctor pronounces something so or not so, the least a mere layman can do is to take the doctor's verdict as final.

While I was mulling the situation in my unexcited manner, I learned of some experimental investigation of a young doctor an hour from home was conducting, pertaining to the effects on various chemical solutions on animal tissues. I followed his work until he determined precisely what formula to use (after much preliminary laboratory) treatment of hernia.

Then I watched him and other doctors administering the treatment, and observed the effects on human tissues.

Ultimately I plunked for amateur hernia injection treatment of hernia.

For doing so I was branded as a "quack" and "charlatan" — the poor geeks can't thing for themselves are "radical," "dangerous" "a menace" etc.

But ask these plaster minds one question:

How come the best textbook on hernia (often called the A.M.A. expert), Watson's—Hernia, 3rd ed., Mosby, St. Louis, '46, devotes five of its 43 chapters to injection treatment?

Strength for the Day

HANDICAPS NEED NOT BIND

A few weeks ago a minister told his congregation of an ancestor who had served as a midshipman fleet at Trafalgar. He received a wound in battle which permanently blinded him.

For most men this would have been a tragedy. Fortunately there were no organizations then to help the blind and no technique for teaching them how to be happy. This man had to learn the hard way—and learn it. Before he lost his eyesight he had been wordly-living and cynical; after he became blind he found comfort into his Christian love and benevolence. He began to realize that although he had lost his sight, he had much to be thankful for, and his life became conspicuous for its praise. Then in spite of his handicap he set himself to being useful and was soon the center of a helpful person in the circle in which he moved. He began to write poetry and hymns of consecration. When the end of his life came, he was everywhere spoken of as a man of the utmost distinction, as a happy man, and as one whose usefulness and Christ-ligious.

How to do the truly brave rise above their handicaps. It takes courage to do this; it takes somewhat more—religious faith—to enable one to make handicaps the source of strength and power. True heroism—not in spite of their handicaps but often because of them.

THE PACKSAK
By GREGORY CLARK

The lady ahead of me in the cashier's line up in the supermarket was well dressed, smart, bright. She certainly did not look as if she had quit school in Grade Seven. Indeed, she had the poise and appearance of a college graduate. "Is that a poke, ma'am," said the cashier, "put pudsytas in a separate bag please?"

"Poke, ma'am," said the cashier.

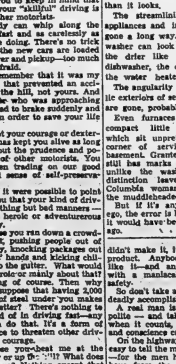
And she put the pudsytas in a separate bag.

"Would you pahlez a carn't," asked the cashier, "instieads a bag" for the resta the stuff?"

The lady replied he agreed the lady. "Howja arrange 'to get sumbuddy to kerry the stuff out'a me car?"

"I'll buzz for a boy, ma'am," said the cashier, "it'll only be a minnit."

A tall youth came. He never opened his mouth. So my lesson in Canadian dialect came to an end.



There definitely is growing a Canadian dialect. It is as distinct from English and American dialects as they are from each other. The Canadian dialect consists first of all of elision. Vowels are dropped wherever possible. Nobody says "Ahm-erica" any more. They pronounce it Ham'r'ica. The r comes to be bind one syllable, instead of three. Not a bark or snort, exactly, but a sort of bark might be made if the mouth were full of warm pancakes and maple syrup, and the letter T is changed to D. whchever, as in pudsyta, bedder for better, and bedder or bod dog, wader for waiter and dozend for dozen. You can hear it around you in the next half hour, if you listen.

We elide, we soften, we choose the laziest sound offered. We drop the G's. I ought to know. A. P. called me on the phone a few minutes ago.

"I heard you," she said, "on the radio last night. I am a school teacher. I try to teach my children how to enunciate English. You referred to the Arctic as the Arctic. You should use more than sixty percent of your G's."

Cashing Second Forged Paybook Led to Arrest

TORONTO (CP) — The mistake of cashing a second forged vacation paybook at the same bank last November prevented the swindle that has duped eastern banks of an estimated $150,000 from spreading to western Canada, police said Tuesday.

Frank Desbevy, 33, was sentenced to six months when he pleaded guilty to cashing a paybook last Nov. 26 at a westend bank. The teller recognized Desbevy as the man who had cashed a book earlier and notified police.

Desbevy's arrest brought the swindle into the open, police said. Two of those charged were arrested in Winnipeg, just as they were believed to be "setting up a market for western Canada."

Four other men were sentenced Tuesday bringing the total convicted in connection with the case to 14. Sentenced: Tom Sophia, 42, and John J. Sullivan, 30, one year; John Little, 36, and Earl Skinner, six months.

Eight others, five alleged to be the leaders of the operation, were remanded for trial.

Aussies Build Nuclear Reactor Near Sydney

SYDNEY (CP)—Australia will build her nuclear reactor on a site about 25 miles from Sydney.

The Commonwealth atomic energy commission has chosen the site, which is on the coast, two miles from habitation. The Australian government will spend £2,500,000 on the reactor within the next five years.

The site is on good building ground with clear drainage to the sea. Although the nearest habitation is two miles away the commission is taking special precautions to protect nearby residents from radiation. The precautions will be so thorough that even nearby radios will not be affected.

The reactor is about the size of a tennis court. A concrete barrier 20 feet wide will protect workers from radiation. The reactor will use highly-enriched uranium-235 as a fuel and will produce plutonium for research purposes.

Calgary Boys Steal Bombs

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary schoolboys are playing with death in the form of stolen drill defence practice incendiary bombs.

Fire prevention bureau officials said Tuesday that three or more of the deadly weapons, taken recently from a shed in Vulcan, Alta., by a Calgary youth, are in the hands of junior high school students or their friends.

"We are making an earnest appeal to look out for these deadly bombs," said chief Douglas MacDougall.

If lit, the bomb's magnesium core burns at 4,500 degrees Fahrenheit with a blinding glare, eating through floors, metal shovels and pails.

One of the bombs turned up at a junior high school Friday. Officials located a young boy who visited Vulcan last month and found the seven-inch tall "giant firecrackers" in the shed.

Doukhobor Children Taken Into Custody

KRESTOVA, B. C. (CP)— The iron of the law reached into this mountain retreat Tuesday and parents stood by while 40 Sons of Freedom Doukhobor children were taken into custody because their parents violated the School Act.

Fifty RCMP officers and government welfare workers were massed for the early morning raid and converged on the village one hour before school bells called children to classes throughout the valley.

The children, 22 boys and 18 girls, all between seven and 12 years, will be sent to school with 34 other Freedomite youngsters taken from their parents in previous police actions.

FREE HITLER MINISTER

BERLIN (Reuters) — The Russians have released former field marshal Ferdinand Schoerner, Hitler war minister in the last days of the Second World War, the East German news agency ADN said Tuesday.

Boy Aged 15, Held Forty Days, Denied Counsel

TORONTO (CP)—A judge's order to have a 15-year-old boy tried in police court on a charge of armed robbery with violence was quashed by a Supreme Court justice Tuesday because the boy had been denied the right to counsel.

Mr. Justice E. G. Moorehouse of the Ontario Supreme Court said:

"No man, especially a juvenile, should be deprived of the right to counsel."

He ruled that the boy, a native of Glace Bay, N. S., be returned to juvenile court for trial.

The boy was arrested Dec. 10 after police received complaints he has stolen a billfold containing $40 and a wristwatch valued at $60. He has been in jail for 40 days and has appeared without counsel in both juvenile and adult courts.

Pennilless, he asked a friend for help. Lawyer Harry B. Ross was consulted. He discovered the boy was only 15 and not 18 as court records showed.

Crown counsel Harold A. Sanders then agreed to have the accused tried in juvenile court Dec. 21. Mr. Ross notified Mr. Sanders by letter that he could not be in court on the trial date and asked for a remand.

WITHOUT COUNSEL

There was no remand and the trial was held without counsel for the boy. The boy, after twice declaring he was not guilty, pleaded guilty because, he said, he wanted to "get it over with." The complainant was not present.

Judge Douglas Webster subsequently ordered that the accused "be declared an adult and be dealt with in the police court."

Under the Juvenile Delinquency Act a judge has the authority to declare a person under 18 years of age an adult if because of the circumstances of the case he believes it to be for the protection of the community.

Mr. Ross appealed this ruling before Mr. Justice Moorehouse who said: "This matter before Judge Webster should not have been proceeded with in the absence of counsel and the accused has been deprived of natural justice."

St. Joseph's PTA Hears Father Buckley

The January meeting of the Parent Teacher Association of St. Joseph's was held in the school auditorium on Thursday evening. Mrs. William Meagher presided. Mrs. R. Morrell read the minutes of the December meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Mr. C. Ford.

Correspondence read by Mrs. J. Healey included a letter from the Medical Officer of Health stating that no arrangements have been made yet for the health visit to the schools.

A donation was given by the association to Mrs. McGarvey to assist in the purchase of school supplies.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. J. J. Buckley spoke on "Teaching Religion." Father Buckley strongly urged the parents to teach their children to work to their full ability so that when greater challenges are met in later life they will be prepared to do well. Several boys were shown to the parents and Father Buckley suggested that they would be most helpful to parents and teachers in giving intelligent instruction. Parents are the first and foremost teachers of religion and should set good examples to their children at all times.

Mr. R. Smith expressed the appreciation of the members to Father Buckley for his talk.

Rev. Sister Mary Noreen's room won the attendance prize.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Room 4 under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. Casey.

3. Make sure shoes are wide enough when baby is standing.

4. Soles should be flexible, especially for little beginners.

Theatre Guild Gives Outstanding Performance in Anderson Play

LINTON D. READ

Unquestionably the finest production to date of our Belleville Theatre Guild was presented last evening in the Collegiate auditorium. Maxwell Anderson's classic "Joan of Lorraine," a play never intended for amateur production, was so expertly interpreted by a superb cast that one must beware of effusion in his enthusiasm and praise. Even the past several years Bellevillians could not help but be amazed, in the steady, continued growth of the theatre guild, by the dauntless courage of its directors, attempts and in general by the gratifying degree of success attained. In this, remember production, at any rate, "Joan of Lorraine" is its crowning achievement.

Here once again is told the story of Joan of Arc, but told in a way that is fresh and stimulating. You are watching a group of actors rehearsing a Joan of Arc play. This "play-within-a-play" is unfolded in such a way that the problems faced by Joan are related to the problems of all the Joans of history and of civilized humanity today.

The unusual dramatic format of the play is intriguing to say the least, especially to those viewers who have never seen a play in rehearsal before. The opening was extremely effective (including the "frozen actors" during the National Anthem) and many of the director's touches were marks of true artistry. When Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times reviewed the first presentation of the play he had this to say: "The direction is sufficiently genuine, theatre as make-believe is infinitely more evocative than theatre as realism."

PERFECT TRANSITION

Surely the greatest tribute we can pay both director Rose and his cast is this: The transition for the audience, from 20th century rehearsal stage to 15th century France was always immediate, complete and unconscious. Only this ever-compelling power, someone in a part the end-all of all true drama, what more could be achieved?

There could be but one true star in "Joan of Lorraine" despite the outstanding performances of almost all members of the cast. Peggy Wonnacott as "The Maid" rose to the onerous demands of her role with such overall excellence and occasional moments of incredible brilliance that one was truly awed that a first appearance could be so successful. Except for the profoundly moving scenes in the prison, Mrs. Wonnacott was more satisfactory in the interlude parts than as Joan, particularly in Act I. But as her voice gained strength, stronger, as her original stridency and somewhat harsh intrepretation gave way to a gentler Joan, this fine actress played strongly upon audience emotions. More than one tear was surreptitiously wiped away. In Act I Mrs. Wonnacott was more satisfactory in the interlude parts than as Joan, particularly in Act I. But as her voice gained strength, stronger, as her original stridency and somewhat harsh intrepretation gave way to a gentler Joan, this fine actress played strongly upon audience emotions. More than one tear was surreptitiously wiped away. In Act I Mrs. Wonnacott was more satisfactory in the interlude parts than as Joan, particularly in Act I. But as her voice gained strength, stronger, as her original stridency and somewhat harsh intrepretation gave way to a gentler Joan, this fine actress played strongly upon audience emotions. More than one tear was surreptitiously wiped away.

MASTERLY PERFORMANCE

No amateur, and few professionals could have turned in a more proficient job than did Harry Mulhall as the Dauphin! He was, in brief, terrific. As the shallow, cowardly, vacillating and treacherous scrub of history whom Joan fought to have crowned, he cavorted, strutted, and alternately cringed and bullied his way through his part with sovereign effrontery that was truly remarkable. In Mr. Mulhall stature, voice, delivery and gestures were so expertly combined that this reviewer found his performance almost flawless.

Jim Masters, the director, was played by Ted Schwab. Despite his obvious sincerity, his strong voice, his poise, his many talents, Mr. Schwab, somehow, did not quite hit the mark. Perhaps his lines were a little more forced and artificial than we have come to expect of him. As "The Inquisitor" on the other hand he was most convincing and readily aloned for any little weaknesses in his major role.

Several secondary parts were well handled by Syl Quinn, Rod Ross, Lloyd Heaslip and Ray Johnson. Of the four probably Mr. Heaslip deserves first mention, for in his role as Alain Charlier, he gave a most splendid professional stature. A more convincing supercilious cynic and mocker would be hard to conceive of. As Father Massieu, he summoned a most commendable degree of kindliness and Christian gentleness.

FINE ACTING ABILITY

Syl Quinn is never anything but highly satisfactory. In this play as the anxious Jacques d'Arc and the malevolent Bishop de Beauvais he continues to maintain his reputation for serious and sympathetic interpretation.

A stentorian voice is a fine gift for an actor but only if it is under constant control. Rod Ross will do well in tone down his speaking instrument and thereby not take away from an otherwise competent performance, particularly when he is on stage with Joan.

Another whose voice is a great asset to him is Ray Johnson, well known to Guild audiences. His peculiar role as de Metz and Le Hire gave him ample scope for his fine acting ability. His work was consistently good.

Mr. Phil Flagler filled the role of the shrewd and scheming George, Duke of Tremoille. What a violent man he was in his first appearances! Once he had grasped hold of himself however, he performed with a smoothness that was most acceptable. Similarly Harold Lanktree and Jim Alexander made skilled contributions to the drama in their parts as the Archbishop of Rheims and Agnes respectively.

The two stage managers, Cath (Joan Tanner) and Tessie (Doris (Chipps) had straight roles to play and did not allow a fair display of their talents. As Aurore, the Dauphin's mother and Mme. Chipps created a delightful comic spot in the play. (Her facial expressions alone were enough to evoke laughter.)

SUPPORTING ROLES

Supporting players were Nicky Thomas as Marie, Fred Goldberg as Bertrand, Jerry Putman and Carl Rose as Joan's brothers, and Lee Jourard, Phillippa Faulkner and Sadie Rose as the voices and Don Rose as the executioner. It is at some of these people that we are tempted to direct most criticism, although their weaknesses, if any, are those of direction. For example, the two boys were extremely immature in the quality of their performance, they had moments of excellence, but too many of inadequacy. A few extra rehearsals should improve that situation. Sadie Rose's voice was most disappointing. Where were the ethereal tones one would expect of St. Michael, St. Catherine and St. Margaret? And why a voice (good as it is) that immediately takes us, not to heaven, but to 1230 on your radio dial?

TOO ARTIFICIAL

The executioner very nearly "killed" the show in the last scene. Is it necessary that these mediaeval death men always be semi-naked robots standing in ominous silence, arms folded over artificially inflated chests and looking all the world like a product of Al Capp? Again, the executioner himself is little to blame for this conventional stereotype.

One of the greatest strengths of the Guild lies in its technical staff. The formal sets were truly outstanding in their conception and execution both: the lighting, which played a significant part in the success of the play; the costumes could well have been manufactured centuries ago, so accurately were they made. The effective non-setting stiff (which for once could legitimately wander on stage and be recn) merits honest praise for its fine work.

To Syd Rose, despite the minor criticisms above one must extend congratulations for bravery bordering on the audacious in attempting so grandiose and demanding a production as "Joan of Lorraine." That the end product of months of "blood, sweat and tears" should be so outstanding a production is a tribute in itself to his indomitable enthusiasm and stolen inspired direction. Maxwell Anderson, himself, could not but be pleased last night with the results of Mr. Rose's work.

"Joan of Lorraine" will be presented again tonight. To those who have a taste for fine drama we can unhesitatingly offer a bill of fare that will please the most discriminating. Take an ever popular story, add to it able direction, mix with an extraordinary cast and you have the Belleville Theatre Guild's finest production offered to date. You will be sorry if you miss it.

Contact Club Elects Officers

Monday evening the Contact Club, Christ church, held its first meeting of the year, Florence Lennox presiding.

A number of business matters were discussed and a letter from Miss Peart, superintendent of nurses, at Belleville General Hospital, was read by the girls. Miss Peart expressed her thanks for the new toys which the club donated to the children's ward.

Cards were received during the holiday from Shirley Amos, Dorothy Halbert, and Aileen Brunton, former club members, who wished to be remembered to the girls.

Owing to the vacancy which had arisen in the 1955 slate of officers, nominations were carried out. The following were elected by acclamation: Margaret Cooke, president; Alice Wonnacott, secretary and Margaret Shapee, representative to the Vestry Council.

Lois Busby thanked former president Florence, on behalf of the club for her untiring work and tireless effort during the past two years.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Joan Ford, Win Taylor and Minnie Gaspood. The members chatted gaily, all happy to be together again after the long holiday.

Kinette Club Inducts Three New Kinettes

President Mary Lang presided at the monthly dinner meeting of the Kinette club which was held Monday evening in St. Thomas' Parish House.

Letters of thanks were read from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, acknowledging an electrobome talking book machine which is one of the six machines that the Kinette club have donated for blind persons in this district; also a letter of thanks from Women's Amalgamated Welfare Association for a donation of money and an acknowledgment from Klanex T.B. seals for a donation of $25.

Mary Hallam, who is Kinette representative to WAWA gave a resume of its work and accomplishments during the past year, and urged the club to continue to help to this worthy organization.

President Mary regretfully announced that the Kinette club is losing two of its most conscientive members in the persons of Helen Garbutt and Peg Mulvihill. Both girls are moving out of town and the club's loss will be others' gain.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

The sixth anniversary of the founding of the Kinette club was celebrated with the special induction ceremony for three new Kinettes, Elsie Smith, Marie Osterbout, and Nina Lynch.

The ceremony was performed by the four past presidents, Mesdn. Rollins, Ruth Fulwell, Marg. Hallam and Helen Wilbur.

President Mary welcomed the new members and charged that they take their obligations to the club seriously.

During the social hour, a demonstration of brushes took place after which a beautiful birthday cake was cut by the new members and all enjoyed an hour of chit-chat.

Community singing for the evening was under the direction of Barbara Ferguson. Nell Warren extracted the fine money in a lively manner.

FEELS BETTER NOW

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP)—An 18-year-old girl who literally had rocks in her head since childhood said she is feeling much better after a surprised doctor removed five pebbles from her nose cavity. Mildred Taylor remembers inhaling a handful of pebbles up her nose when she was 3. "I felt them rattle, all right," she said after the minor operation. "This is the first time I've breathed out of that side of my nose."

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

ARE YOUR FRIENDS PROUD OF YOUR MANNERS?

Any friend of yours, boy or girl, man or woman, wants to be proud of your manners. If you have good, it's a compliment to their good taste in choosing you as a friend!

DIVORCEE'S NAME-PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am just about to receive my final divorce papers, and I have a problem about the name I will, or can, use.

I know that as a divorcee I am supposed to use the combination of my maiden surname and my husband's surname. But my maiden surname was Young, and it just doesn't combine well with my husband's surname, as a matter of fact, sounds more than a little silly. On the other hand, my short middle name, which is the initial I am wondering if I could correctly use this middle name of his instead of my maiden surname. Yes? — Divorcee-to-be

No! You would have absolutely no right to do this, and you should not assume such a privilege. You continue to have the right to use his surname . . . but not his middle name, and not his middle name of his, but, if you wish, you may use a family name of yours. Occasionally under a circumstance like yours, a divorcee chooses to use her mother's maiden surname. For example: — Thompson (mother's maiden surname). Davis.

BIRTHDAY CARD TO ONE IN MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The father of my dearest friend (we are both 17) passed on this week before Christmas. She has a birthday during the last week of this month, and I am wondering if it would be the right thing for me to send her a birthday card, as I have always done. —Sue B.

It is quite proper for you to send her a birthday card if you take gentle care to choose one suitable for this circumstance . . . a card expressing loving devotion, but please not a card with the "Happy Birthday" on it. (Just as at Christmas-time, we shouldn't send a "Merry Christmas" card to a friend in mourning. If I were you, I would write this friend a note (on plain white note-paper) rather than sending her a card, telling her of my tender thought of her this day, and of my loving and abiding friendship. No mention of her sorrow . . . just two or three sentences of affectionate reassurance.

SEND INVITATION-REPLY TO BRIDE'S PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My older sister and I live in an apartment together. We have just received a formal invitation to the church wedding and reception of a dear mutual friend of ours. It was addressed to both of us, on the outside and inside envelopes. My sister thinks that we should each write a reply, and that each reply should be addressed to our friend, the bride-to-be. I think that one reply should be sent (since one invitation was sent), and that the reply should be addressed to the parents, as they are the ones who did the inviting. Which is right? — Puzzled

You and your sister may write individual replies, or either one may write the reply for both. Either form is correct. But as you said, the reply should be addressed to the bride's parents, who are the hosts of the occasion.

HOSTESS SHOULD PROVIDE ALTERNATIVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other day, at our bridge club of three tables, the hostess, after the playing, served only doughnuts and cider. Most everyone seemed to enjoy this (although I did notice that two or three didn't accept the serving), and now I am wondering if doughnuts and cider would be all right for me to serve at our house-warming we are giving soon. What is your judgment about this? — Miriam B.

In my judgment this doughnuts-and-cider service at your house warming would definitely not be "all right." Some people don't like doughnuts . . . many people don't like cider . . . some people who like doughnuts don't like cider. And when a hostess realizes the possibility (as apparently you should, from your observation at the bridge party) she should provide alternatives, no matter how simple. Coffee, if you wish, but tea and or coffee as a wise alternative. (Doughnuts, if you wish, but as an alternative, small sandwiches with simple fillings and or small cakes or cookies.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

SIGNS OF AGE

A poet wrote, "Older eyes are keen and kind; older faces wisely lined."

This is no consolation to the woman who finds little furrows have appeared on her face and her skin's gone double. It's enough to make a woman think about getting her face lifted.

If she had started beauty campaigning earlier in life, she could have avoided wrinkles. They come from loss of sleep, worry, wrong eating habits, emotional binges and facial acrobatics.

Exercise and outdoor life often acts as beauty shampoo, after years. Such activities keep the blood streams moving, and firm flesh depends upon circulation.

Wrinkles are due to a partial dissolution of the tissues and the weakening of the tiny fibers that hold the skin in place. They also come from frowning, lifting the eyebrows and squinting.

It is true that plastic surgeons can make old faces younger. Little hammocks under the eyes can be flattened, a spare chin can be removed, flabby necks can be smoothed.

The face-lift consists of making incisions beyond the hair line at the temples, drawing up the flesh and closing the wound which is hidden when the hair grows again. Some well-known actresses of the past have had this treatment. If the flesh is lacking in tone, the operation may have to be repeated in a few years.

The surgeon must not only be a plastic artist skilful, but must be able to visualize what the result will be. Some specialists, busy repairing faces that have been injured in accidents refuse to treat wrinkles, considering that their time should be given to more serious cases.

Wrinkles are not always as terrible as a woman thinks they are. If the complexion is fine, of pleasing color, and if the face is expressive, lines are no great liability.

Shed That Excess Poundage

By Mary Moore

Wyn was passing Christmas cake that tasted even better than her official 1954 cake that we had tasted on Christmas day. I asked her if she had made up two recipes. "No,—this is the same cake only a few weeks older."

Either my taste buds are slipping or I was so satiated with rich Christmas foods I was incapable of tasting anything with discrimination during the height of the season. Eating and Christmas seem to have become inseparable.

My brother turned his head away when she reached him with the cake "Keep that rich stuff away from me please—I like it too well."

Are you folks in the same frame of mind or state of stomach?

I've been on an apple and orange diet for most of each day now for two weeks and my digestive system is acting less strained —it is more in a "thank you" mood.

Did your waistlines suffer?

Did you with I'd give you some reducing menus?

I'll answer my own questions don't be silly, Mary. Certainly we need reducing menus." Okay then—here we go to throw some excess poundage overboard.

BREAKFASTS:

(1) One sectioned orange, 4 strips crisp, lean broiled bacon, 1-3 slice unbuttered whole wheat toast, clear coffee. (2) 1-2 grapefruit (no sugar), 1 egg cooked in shell, 1-2 slice unbuttered Melba toast, clear coffee. (3) 4 oz. tomato juice, 2 eggs scrambled (heat 1 tablespoon milk to moisten pan instead of butter), 1 slice unbuttered rye bread (could be underneath egg) clear coffee.

LUNCHES:

(1) 6 oz. hot consomme, hard-cooked egg sandwich on whole wheat bread (no butter) with lettuce, 1 small ripe banana, 6 oz. skim milk. (2) salad of 2 oz. lean meat or fish, 2 oz. cottage cheese, celery, sliced tomatoes on lettuce with reducing dressing (see below), 1 slice unbuttered whole wheat bread, 1 small dessert apple, 6 oz. skim milk. (3) 1 6 oz. glass vegetable or tomato juice, 1 small serving breaded salmon on whole wheat toast (unbuttered) with sliced cucumber or green pepper or tomato, (2 Ryvita wafers could be substituted for toast), 1 orange, 1 6 oz. glass skim milk.

DINNERS:

(1) 4 oz. pattie ground lean beef broiled (or equivalent in beefsteak), 1-3 cup diced beets with 1-4 pat butter, 1 small baked potato (eat skin) with 3-4 pat butter, head lettuce with cucumber and reducers' dressing (below), fruit cup of orange sections, seeded grapes and fresh pineapple, clear coffee. (2) 4 oz. broiled or boiled chicken breast, 10 Brussels sprouts, stewed tomatoes, 1 medium ripe banana or large dessert pear, clear coffee. (3) 4 oz. crumbed broiled pickerel fillet (or other non-fat fish) with lemon, 1-2 cup mashed or baked squash with 1-2 pat butter, 1-2 cup frozen baby limas with 1-2 pat butter, 4 oz. plain sherry, shredded cabbage apple sweetened with sucaryl syrup, clear coffee.

REDUCERS' DRESSING

To 1 cup thick buttermilk (fresh) add 1 sucaryl tablet, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon each lemon juice, onion salt, celery salt, horseradish, 1-4 teaspoon each mustard, curry powder and chili powder. Keep covered and chilled. Shake well before using. Delicious on tossed green salads and slaw.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"PUPPY LOVE" CAN SOMETIMES GROW INTO ADULT LOVE

An 18-year-old boy is "all mixed up" because he is being told that his feeling for the 17-year-old girl with whom he is "going steady" is only "puppy love" and won't last.

"I don't this very much," he writes, "because, while we have known each other all our lives, we have never felt about each other before as we realize we do now, and our love seems to be getting stronger every day.

"There are a couple of things bothering me, though." One is that this girl never went out with any other boy before, and many people tell me she should do so in order to find out if she really loves me. I told her to go out with other boys, but she refuses to do it. She says it is me she loves, and she won't go out with anyone else.

"Another thing is that I have three more years to go in college, and after college I will have to spend two years in service. She says that she will wait for me. Should I let her do this?

"She is a wonderful girl and I love her very much, but I'm all mixed up by people telling us we are too young to go steady and are thinking out on fun. Are we?"

Well, as a general rule, I would agree with those who feel it a mistake for a girl and a boy in their teens to give up other friends and concentrate exclusively on each other. For it is true that most young people, during this period of their lives, changes their minds more than once about "love," before they are ready to pick a mate for keeps. And this is as it should be, for it is then that they develop the judgment that brings maturity and the ability to make a wise choice of marital partners.

However, there are exceptions, especially in the case of young people who have grown up together, and these two may be one of these exceptions.

At any rate, I see no objection to their "going steady" and planning ahead for the future, providing they don't cut themselves off from the company of other young people. Instead, they should share just as many activities with as many friends as possible, and not allow themselves to make a practice of going off by themselves. If they will be part of a group, instead of just a twosome, it will also give the girl that chance to see other young men which will help her in making sure of her own feelings.

This chap should not let anything interfere with his college course, however, for it will be a very important part of his preparation for life. And, of course, he has no choice about the years in service. If his girl says she will wait for him, he should let it go at that. She will tell whether or not her feeling for him, and his feeling for her, will be as permanent as they now believe.

Finally, the young man shouldn't let anyone mix him up. It is quite possible that he and his girl may be growing together toward some thing really serious and worthwhile, and it is entirely right that they should be allowed to give themselves a chance to see if this is true.

Those enrolled were Barbara Belch, Joan Ann Low, Maureen Alyea, Sharon Potter, Lynda Tucker, Patsy Scrymgour, Wendy Brown, Sherry Cook, Gail Taylor, Janice James, Claudia Partridge, Janet Luther and Shirley Brewster.

Another exciting event was the Christmas party. Each Six put on a performance and the Brownie mothers served delicious refreshments and gave each Brownie a Christmas treat.

The 1st Brownie Pack is now meeting in the auditorium of Sir Winston Churchill school.

2ND BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL WAKINN

The Belleville Brownie pack has a registration of 29 Brownies and Tweenies this season. To date they have enrolled 13 Tweenies. Thanks to the cooperation of the Brownies and their mothers, they have passed many tests and had a successful series of fall meetings.

For their last meeting of 1954 they held a Christmas party at which time the Pack enjoyed games, carols, refreshments and exchanged gifts.

3RD BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL PRINGLE

For the fall season, the following girls have been appointed Sixers and Seconders for the 3rd Belleville Brownies. Elves—Valerie Lefevre and Lisa Scoil; Fairies—Mary Lou Hobbs and Lynn Burrows; Gnomes—Helen McArthur and Anne Bateman; and Sprites—Jacqueline Sills and Patricia Lovell.

4TH BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL VANDERVOORT

This pack opened with a registration of 24 Brownies this season and they were happy to welcome their new Tawny Owl, Mrs. Burch. Marilyn Vandervoort, a Guide, is assisting the Brownies with their semaphore training.

At their Christmas party, they had as their guest, Mrs. George Ellarby, who played the piano for the Brownies carol sing-song.

5TH BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL ADAMS

For their Christmas party, the 5th Belleville Brownies held a most successful program with each six being responsible for a song or a skit or a recitation. Gifts brought to the meeting by each Brownie were packed in a bale to be sent to the Greenfield Mission in Labrador and the Fairy Gold from this meeting was used to purchase gifts for the Mission also. Bitty Else, on behalf of the Brownies, presented Brown Owl with a cut glass cake plate and box of handkerchiefs. After the program, the Brownie mothers served cookies and ice cream and Mrs. Mc-Dougall, on behalf of the Brownies, thanked the mothers for this lovely treat.

In January, the following new folk were enrolled as Brownies, Sharon Locke, Dorothy Jacob, Gaye Scott, Barbara Maida and Patricia Baldwin.

6TH BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL CLEARY

The Brownies of this Pack are happy to report that they have been busy little people. Second year service stars have been presented to Linda Jarrell, Dianne Howe, Elizabeth Burke and Patricia Adams, while first year stars were given to Mary Walsh and Mary Courture.

The pack was pleased to have a visit from the Commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, who enrolled five Tweenies, Gilaine Delaig, Janet Patrick, Muriel Howe, Cheryl Power and Elaine Rivers. Rev. John Neary, pastor of St. Michael's school principal, Mrs. Baker from the sponsoring body, the C.W.L., and the new Brownies' mothers were honored guests and enjoyed the tea and cookies served by the Brownies.

For their Christmas "Lend a Hand" effort the pack filled four boxes with toys for a mission in Northern Ontario.

8TH BROWNIE PACK—
BROWN OWL MAUND

Mrs. Vivian closed the meeting and a social half hour was enjoyed.

90 Stewardesses Studying New Viscount Planes

TORONTO (CP)—A bevy of 90 trim Trans - Canada Air Lines stewardesses are busy studying the intricacies of new Vickers Viscount planes which will go into passenger service next month.

The new plane, fitted with four turbo-prop engines, carries 40 passengers. The girls will have to know the theory of turbo-prop engines inside out. It simply means that a jet engine has been adapted to drive propellers.

The stewardesses are learning everything a passenger with a thirst for knowledge might ask about the plane.

LOTS OF GADGETS

But the plane's galley holds the most fascination for them. It has a control panel to push buttons almost as intricate as the pilot's compartment.

The panel, a housewife's gadget dream, delivers everything from a hot cup of coffee to air conditioning with the flick of a switch.

Galley equipment was designed and manufactured in Canada and flown to Britain, where the Viscount is built, for installation. Twenty-two aircraft are on order for TCA.

So far the stewardesses have no real model for practice. Parts of the plane's equipment have been moved into a hangar classroom at nearby Malton Airport. With the aid of diagrams and photographs they are grasping the workings of their end of the big plane's operation.

The planes will go into service on the Montreal-Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie-Fort William - Winnipeg flight. New York, Chicago, Ottawa and Windsor will be added later.

Sen. Haig Says West Germany Must Join NATO to Prevent It Falling Under Red Influence

OTTAWA (CP)—The Opposition leader in the Senate says West Germany must be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to prevent it falling under Russian domination.

Senator John T. Haig (PC-Manitoba) made the statement Tuesday night during the Senate throne speech debate as he called on Parliament to ratify the Paris protocol providing for the entry of a rearmed West Germany into NATO.

Senator Haig said many Canadians who lost loved ones in two wars with Germany are bitter over the prospects of German rearmament. He understood their feelings but felt that the majority of thinking Canadians supported the move.

"BITTER CHOICE"

"I feel very strongly that we must have Germany on our side, otherwise we will see that part of Europe absorbed into the Russian family. It is a bitter choice we have to make, but I think the majority of the thinking people of this country are in favor of our backing up the treaty that we are asked to ratify."

Canadian ratification of the protocol would show leadership to other smaller nations. They would take their cue from Canada and "therefore I think we should be clear and unanimous in our support of Germany."

"As I see it, the world is in no better state today than it was a year ago, and we cannot afford to let up on our efforts to maintain peace. We in Canada should be very clear in our course of action when we face this question of ratification."

PROPOSES TAX CUTS

Senator Haig also proposed major tax cuts to increase the take-home pay of workers and enable Canada to compete for export markets.

The present tax structure placed a heavy burden on workers, resulted in demands for wage increases and made production costs higher. This was reflected in the costs of goods at home and abroad.

"The only way cuts can be cut is to reduce expenditures. If we do not cut it down we are going to be driven out of the world market. We as Canadians must realize that if we are going to fight successfully in the world markets our costs must be cut in order to compete."

Board Requests Water Supply Be Fluoridated

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto board of health Tuesday recommended that the metropolitan Toronto water supply be fluoridated as soon as possible. Car Driven 117 MPH On Barrie Highway

TORONTO (CP) — An expert driver says he raced a $7,000 sports car on the Barrie highway at 117 miles an hour but couldn't test its maximum speed because the road was icy.

Eric Stevenson, writing in the January issue of Small Torque, publication of the Toronto British Empire Motor Club, said he and Chuck Shockey, owner of the car, drove the car at speeds up to 117 miles an hour. The highway speed limit in Ontario is 50.

"Unfortunately, we were unable to test its maximum speed as the road was icy, . . . so the highest speed we achieved was 117 miles an hour," he said.

The report caused a minor explosion in the attorney-general's office.

"I would like to see a copy of that magazine," Attorney-General Dana Porter said. "They were definitely breaking the law."

"They had no right whatsoever to do it. It is a extremely dangerous practice and I was certainly not aware that it was going on."

167 Passengers Rescued By Italian Vessel

CIVITAVECCHIA, Italy (AP)—The Greek passenger ship Corinthia slammed into a reef in a howling Mediterranean storm Tuesday but brilliant seamanship by an Italian vessel rescued all 167 passengers.

Later the 3,879-ton Corinthia was able to limp toward port with water pouring through a gash in her starboard bow.

The hero of the rescue was Capt. Antonio del Pino of the 2,000-ton Italian ship Sicilia, whose delicate maneuvering created a patch of calm water that enabled even the women and children among the Corinthia's passengers to clamber down to the tug Fraedo and then up ladders to the rescue vessel.

The demands were presented Tuesday to the Metro executive committee and will be heard today by Toronto board of control.

MARMORA

Ministerial Associations' Hold Joint Meeting

MARMORA.— Centre Hastings Ministerial Association was welcomed to the monthly meeting of the North Hastings Ministerial Association at Gilmour United church on Monday afternoon by that body.

Each under its own president conducted its business meeting and later listened to a well prepared and thought provoking paper on St. Paul's Epistles to the Corinthians, which was given by the Rev. E. J. Kersey, of Plainfield.

The Rev. A. L. Borland of Bancroft, president of the northern group, presided at the opening of this joint session. The Rev. Theophilus Smith, also of that district, led in opening devotions with the Rev. K. J. Crawford, of Marmora, accompanying for the hymns.

The president welcomed those in attendance, The Rev. William Fletcher, president of the Centre Hastings Ministerial Association, expressed the pleasure of himself and fellow members in accepting the invitation.

The business of the northern group was next attended to, with that of the guest association following.

Then came the paper and the resultant interesting discussion. Centre Hastings Association hagging their February meeting scheduled to be held at St. Andrew's United church, Marmora, with the Rev. C. R. Chapman, of Thomasburg, providing a paper on the Epistle to the Romans.

The invitation to the North Hastings Ministerial to attend was graciously accepted.

Closing devotions also were taken by the Rev. T. Smith. Refreshments were partaken of, before the members left for their homes.

CAMPBELLFORD

R.J.A. McGregor New Chairman Of Utilities

CAMPBELLFORD — Chairmanship of the Campbellford Public Utilities Commission changed at the regular meeting in the council chambers when the board accepted the resignation of Chairman A. J. Meyers.

Mr. Meyers, who has been chairman of the board for several years, will take his place on the board as a commissioner.

Commissioner Robert, J. A. McGregor was elected chairman, and will serve in that capacity for at least the next year. Vice-chairman is A. C. Newman, who along with Mr. McGregor, was re-elected to the board at the last municipal election.

SALARIES INVESTIGATION

After a great deal of discussion, the board finally received the report of a special committee named to investigate the salaries and wages schedule of commission employees. Commissioner Newman objected strongly to portions of the report, and on motion of the board, portions referring to statements made by Mr. Newman were deleted from the report.

Joseph Poulton addressed the board, requesting that the board place a hydrant or flushing valve somewhere on a water main leading to his home on Burnbrae Road, in order that the sewer could be flushed out. This had not been done in some nine years, according to Mr. Poulton, who was assured by the board that steps would be taken immediately to remedy the situation.

Representatives of the Superior Propane Gas Company Limited of Peterborough addressed the board and outlined the advantages and methods of using propane gas in Campbellford. The board invited the two representatives to speak on propane, with a view to interesting enough local customers in this method of heating, that the power situation during peak-load periods would be lessened.

Chairman McGregor said he would favor the commission handling the bottled gas on a commission basis, as offered by the company, and said he felt that the commission could not only make a profit on the venture but that it would be a source of prompt service on the product.

As there are no existing gas mains in the town, the gas would be supplied in containers. The commission was generally in accord with the idea of using propane for water heating and cooking as a means of reduced power consumption during peak load periods.

PRIVATE HANDLING PREFERRED

Many of the board members, however, were against the idea of the commission handling the gas. They thought a better idea would be for a private individual or firm to handle the gas, with the commission setting more in a supervisory capacity to insure service.

The matter was laid over to a special meeting which will be held following receipt of a written proposal from the company, outlining the terms and conditions under which the gas would be supplied here. There are now about 15 users of propane in the town, and these accounts would be turned over to local interests if and when a deal is consummated.

Mayor Ralph J. Locke asked for a grant of $14,000 from the commission board. This grant would be given to the town council, as has been the custom in previous years, to help reduce or hold the mill rate. The mayor met with immediate opposition to this request. Commissioner Meyers outlined some repairs which were necessary this year at the power plant, including some new $40,000 governor for a generator, and a new switchboard, which would cost about the same. He said he could see at least $70,000 which the board would spend on repairs and installations this year, and said that because the town has no contract with the HEPC, no power has been sold since last May to the Hydro. In 1952 the board received somewhere in the neighborhood of $13,000 through the sale of excess off-peak power to the HEPC. Now the town is buying power from the HEPC at 9 mills.

After some study of the commission's business, it was decided that the board might conceivably be close to $3,000 ahead on the year's business, and Commissioner Meyers moved that a grant of $3,000 be made to the town council.

LOWERS REQUEST TO $10,000

Mayor Locke, seeing he was fighting a losing battle, lowered his request to $10,000. Chairman McGregor said while he favored the grant, he would like to see a budget prepared for the coming year, then decided on what amount the board could give to the town. In that way, he said, they might be able to increase the grant from $3,000.

Commissioner Newman moved in an amendment to Mr. Meyer's motion, asking that the board would approve a grant of $10,000. His amendment was defeated after some haggling, but the original motion carried, and Mayor Locke adopted the "half a loaf is better than none" attitude and accepted $9,000. This will make a difference of about 4 mills under the new equalized assessment. Council is hoping for a rate of about 40 mills, but that figure is now doubtful.

CAIRO (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi Monday assured British and United States representatives that Egypt will stand with the West despite her attack on a planned Iraqi alliance with Western-aligned Turkey.

INCREASE FARE

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The first 5-cent local bus fare in New York state was granted Friday to the Niagara Frontier Transit System. The public service commission authorized Niagara Frontier to raise its cash fare from 15 to 20 cents, beginning Sunday. Commissioner Glen R. Bedenkapp said the increase was necessary partly because the company has to pay gross revenue taxes to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, on top of a state tax.

"No trouble with

IRREGULARITY"

Writes Mr. J. C. Hillis, of Halifax, N.S.

"It's a pleasure to be rid of harsh laxatives. I've had no trouble with irregularity for 18 months, since taking your gentle but effective laxation cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran."

The above testimonial is typical of thousands received each year for All-Bran, the original, natural laxative cereal pioneered nearly 40 years ago by W. K. Kellogg. This delicious dish promotes comfortable elimination without harsh purging.

Relief from Constipation

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage. All-Bran is made from the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel and supplies natural food bulk. Just eat daily one-ounce serving for breakfast and drink plenty of water. It will improve your "Intestinal Tone" so necessary to comfortable regularity.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

All-Bran is a wholesome, good-tasting cereal that has helped millions. We'll prove to you that Kellogg's All-Bran will give gentle, effective relief from constipation within 10 days or return twice what you paid. But be sure you get Kellogg's, the one and only All-Bran. Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

SECOND PLACE AGAIN!

These Memos are getting dizzy with this business of hopping back and forth from fourth to second place in the standing. They tucked away a neat "four-pointer" last night, sandging the tough Brockville Marcheses 5-1 in an hard n' checkign fray as has been seen here this season.

The checking was torrid and heavy and the game was not actually decided until the ole sorrel-top Red Doran blasted home the Memos' third goal as time was running out.

The win hoisted the Memos' point score to 36, overstephen with the Whitby Wrens and two in arrears of the young leadfar Cornwall Colts, who took a 6-1 shellacking at the hands of the Clinton Comets last night.

Tonight the Memos safari to Peterborough to take on the lowly Petes—and anything can happen here. The Petes whipped our side 3-1 here the last time the clubs met and they'll be out to repeat tonight. A Memos' win will tie them with Cornwall for top spot.

AND HOWE!

Gordie Howe, who in our opinion is the best hockey player in the National Hockey League (Oops, hold it, Peter, I know how you feel about the Canadiens) got a tremendous kick out of the Red Wings 4-3 comeback victory in Montreal last Saturday night.

We have met and interviewed Gordie a few times when he has been a guest, with other Red Wings, that grand Detroiter, Lawrence Eggert (not forgetting Mike da Phillips) and we found him to be the modest type, not given to ebullliency, nor blatherskiting.

So when Gordie goes out with a statement, kiddies, that's "sumpin!".

The fleet Wing winger is as popular in Montreal as is the Rocket at Olympia, Detroit. Every time he moves he is greeted with a chorus of boos.

Speaking of the game in Montreal where he racked up two goals, Howe said rather facetiously:

"My public was really in good form Saturday. After Richard had scored his two goals in the first period they were really giving me a rough time. I don't know exactly what they were shouting but it sounded like 'Wow Howe.' After I scored my first goal the chorus wasn't quite so loud. When I got my second goal I said 'Wow Howe' and it sounded so loud to me that I was sure everybody in the building must have heard it, the silence was so deadly."

Actually, Detroit's surge to the top of the heap makes some facts and figures interesting.

Did you know, for example, that the Canadiens have already amassed as many points on the roads in 23 games as they did last season in the entire 35? As of today the Montrealers have 24 points on nine victories and six ties. They have been beaten eight times.

Comparing Montreal's road record with that of Detroit helps to explain why the Red Wings are in first place. The defending league champions have played only 20 games away from home but out of that number they have won exactly half of them and tied three for 23 points.

Last season, believe it or not, while the Canadiens finished in second place they were, next to the luckless last place Chicago Black Hawks, the worst road team in the league. Of the 35 games they won eight, tied eight and were beaten 19 times.

Detroit's road record for the '53-54 season was 13 wins, seven ties and 15 losses.

While Canadiens are certain to better their last season's road performance, so, too should the Wings.

NEW CHAIRMAN

Veteran councillor and member of the Arena Commission for years, Alderman Claude D. Tice was the unanimous choice of that august body for his chairman this year. Claude was chairman at one time with the presidency of the Ontario Arenas Association.

"While the commission has an arduous task, we hope to have a successful season. There will be no change in the hockey policy," he said. "Alderman Bruce Smith will be in complete charge of the selfior club with interference from no one.

"I feel that Belleville has one of the best teams in the group, and more public support would help ease the heavy financial burden."

The new chairman said arrangements will be made to have a minor (bantam) game played prior to the Memos-Whitby game here on Tuesday, January 25th.

Theodore Kennedy is an all-star only in Toronto.

The 29-year-old workhorse centre with Toronto Maple Leafs has never been elevated to an all-star position in the National Hockey League and coach King Clancy figures it's a crying shame.

"I think Kennedy is the best hockey player in the league," Clancy says, "Apparently it's the way player doesn't count anymore. Everybody is looking for scorers."

Clancy wasn't happy when he looked over the NHL's mid-season list of all-stars Tuesday night and discovered that Kennedy's name was missing again.

TWO MADE IT

Two of his players, leftwinger Sid Smith and goaltender Harry Lumley, made it, though. That helped soothe the irritation but Clancy insists that Kennedy should have been on the list all over the great Jean Beliveau of the second-place Montreal Canadiens.

Kennedy's never-back-checking in one game than Beliveau does in the whole season.

Clancy has no antipathy towards prolific scorers. The 23-year-old Beliveau has piled up 24 goals so far this season and Clancy solemnly affirms he is a prospect for such boys in today's specialized game.

But, he also contends that players who perform more menial chores such as back-checking and penalty killing are just as important to the success of the team.

The all-star team's heads like this: Goal: Lumley; defence: Red Kelly of Detroit and Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens; centre: Beliveau; leftwing: Smith; rightwing: Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal.

SOME ABSENT

Notable absentees from both teams were rightwingers Gordie Howe of Detroit and Maurice Richard of Montreal. A second all-star selection, to take in the whole 70-game schedule, will be chosen later in the season.

The cry to put Kennedy, in his 10th season with Leafs, on the dream team has been going on for years. He has never been a 30-goal man. His best year was in 1944-45 when he scored 29 goals and in 1946-47 when he got 28.

He has five this season. But he has 28 assists, giving him a tie for eighth place in the individual scoring department with Red Sullivan of Chicago.

Kennedy will be with the third-place Leafs tonight when they clash with the last-place Chicago Black Hawks at Maple Leaf Gardens. In the only other game, the Red Wings take on the fifth-place Rangers at New York.

Golf 'Gripers' Get Support

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The griping, divot-digging golfer found a friend today in of all places—a meeting of the nation's golf turf specialists.

The gripers had a champion in Bob Williams, superintendent of Chicago's Beverly Country Club.

And the divot-diggers had the support of the president of the Golf Course Superintendent's Association of America, Norman C. Johnson of Jacksonville, Fla. Johnson recommended, in fact insisted, a good iron shot couldn't be made without taking a healthy chunk of turf—any shot at 18-inch square patch.

Williams says a golfer who comes out to play after a tense day at the office is entitled to let off steam.

"If a player doesn't gripe on the golf course," said Williams, "he is likely to take it out on his family."

Paul E. Weiss, a turf expert from Ammaus, Pa., estimated something like an acre of turf is dug up each year on the average golf course. The only golfer who irks the club superintendent, he said, is the one who doesn't replace the divot firmly.

Marlies Whip Irish 7-3; Teepees Win

By The Canadian Press

Not so long ago Toronto St. Michael's Majors held a comfortable 10-point lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

Since then they've frittered away that lead and now are finding it difficult to keep up with the other clubs.

For instance, Tuesday night they dropped a 7-3 verdict to Toronto Marlboros to remain in a third place tie with Guelph Biltmores. Each team has 43 points.

Only one point behind are St. Catharines TeePees who defeated Galt Black Hawks 5-1 at St. Catharines. In another game Kitchener-Waterloo Canadiens beat Barrie Flyers 5-3 at Kitchener.

BRIEF LEAD

Dick Duff put St. Michael's into first place in the first period, but the Marlboros' offensive power was too great. Other St. Michael's scorers were Ken Linseman and Brian Anderson.

Allen Gorrman led the Marlboros with two goals. Billy Harris, Bob Kennedy, Jerry James, Al McNeil and Bob Pulford counted the others.

Captain Hank Ciesla led the TeePees' attack with two goals, one late in the first period and another early in the second. Cec Hoekstra, Ab McDonald and Barry Dillon counted the others. Jack Caszewski scored Galt's only goal.

IVAN ON HAND

The game was watched by Tom Ivan, general manager of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, sponsors of both teams.

It was the third straight victory for Canucks who broke a 3-3 deadlock in the third with two late goals, one in an empty net. Canucks led 3-1 and 5-2 after the first two periods, but Barrie tied it up early in the third.

Stan Baluik scored twice for Kitchener. Others went to Ted McAskill, Irvin Spencer and Wilfrey Youngberg. Jack Kane counted two for Galt and Art Smith added the third.

REMEMBER WHEN

By The Canadian Press

Charlie Conacher, high-scoring rightwinger with Toronto Maple Leafs, announced his retirement from hockey 17 years ago today after a medical check-up. But after a rest in Florida he came back to play a season for Detroit and then joined New York Americans. Conacher, NHL leading scorer for two seasons ending in 1935, finally retired as an active player in 1940.

Dutchies, Mercs Battle To Overtime Tie

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League leaders battled to a 2-2 overtime tie Tuesday night and the draw left Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in first place, one point ahead of Owen Sound Mercurys.

A long shot that skipped past goalie Bob Gibson gave the Dutchmen the tie with only 97 seconds of play remaining in regulation time. Ken Laufman fired the shot from outside the blue line and the puck landed about four feet in front of Gibson and slipped past his hand.

Jack White scored the other Kitchener goal late in the first period. The Mercs crammed both their goals into 80 seconds in the second period, when Jerry Reid and Vern Gardiner scored.

In another game Windsor Bulldogs downed Niagara Falls Cataracts 8-4 at Niagara Falls.

After holding a one-goal lead through the first two periods, Cataracts faltered in the third to drop the verdict. A screened shot by Bobby Brown gave the Bulldogs the win.

Other Bulldog scorers were Chuck Henderson, Jim Peters, George McLagalan and George Armstrong. Lorne Pitie, Fritz Fraser, Al Buchanan and Eric Ungar counted the Cataracts' goals.

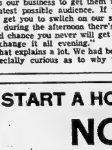
It was Niagara Falls' fifth consecutive defeat.

Video Network Drops Two Million In Featured 'Football Game-of-Week'

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP)—There are so many puzzling aspects of the United States television problem as it affects college football that one can easily despair of ever putting all the pieces together, but we have been able in recent days to gain a little understanding that we didn't have before.

One thing we started out to learn was why the United States national networks want to go through the sweat and tears of televising the so-called game of the week at all. This seemed to be a fair question, for there isn't any money in it. NBC, which had the feature three years, finally made a few dollars in 1953, but ABC, which took it over last season, was reported in print to have dropped more than $2,000,000.



That doesn't appear to be very good business, but we are assured that it isn't necessarily as bad as it looks when prestige is involved. Each network is anxious to build up as devoted an audience as possible on Saturday afternoons, especially in the fall. A network official explains:

"Each of us has a full program of big-money features Saturday night, backed by major sponsors. It is our business to get them the largest possible audience. If we can get you to switch on our station during the afternoon, there's a good chance you never will get up to change it all evening."

That explains a lot. We had been especially curious as to why the NBC threw all the money it did into bringing the games of the Canadian professional league—NHL. American living rooms last fall. We did not then appreciate the finer shadings of the word prestige.

How anxious are the national networks to continue telecasting the college game of the week with the NCAA choosing the game and generally calling the shots? We are told they are not anxious at all, and that unless the NCAA television committee comes up with a better proposition in February there is not likely to be a single game to be telecasting privilege. The committee, under heavy pressure from alumni, after the networks anything really attractive on a national basis.

Memos Hop Back Into Second-Place Tie With 3-1 Win Over Brockville

Stubborn Both-Way Checking Features Hard-Fought Battle; Ted DeGray Notches Winner

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A stubborn, hard-checking Brockville Magedomas club yielded to the Belleville Memos 3-1 in a hard-fought senior "B" game here last night.

The victory bolsted the Memos into a second-place tie with the Whitby Wrens, two points behind the loop-leading Cornwall Colts who were defeated by Clinton last night by a 5-1 score on the latter's ice.

A crowd of nearly 800 saw a closely-fought, both-way checking game with goalies Tony Parisi of the Memos and Paul Charron of the Magedomas coping up with outstanding efforts.

The win was an important one for the Memos and it deprived the Magedomas of the opportunity to creep closer to the fourth place.

Actually there was not much to cheer about, if you likes hard, close-checking hockey. The high calibre of play throughout the game was confined to centre ice.

WERE MAN SHY

While the game was a clean, hard-hitting affair, Referees "Moon" Flanagan and Ken Partis of Kingston, handed out 14 minor sentences, five going to the Memos. The first Belleville goal was scored when the Magedomas were a man shy.

What the game lacked in color it was recompensated with close, fierce checking, both fore and aft.

Rockburn of the Magedomas, drew a penalty, as did Rich Wilson, of the Memos, in the first eight minutes of play. Then after 17 minutes of rugged battling, Brockville's Clarke got a boarding penalty and the ensuing Memos' power play paid off. Davy Jones beat Charron cleanly on a three-way foray with MacDonald and Goyer to open the scoring. The period ended that way.

The second period was a repetition of the first as far as check-ing was concerned. Both teams stormed the opposing citadel and at 3.20 of the second beat Harve Rockburn tied the score on a Brockville power play with Hunt getting the helper.

UNUSUAL GOAL

The teams battled in an offensive – defensive, cautious style of play until Belleville took the lead on a somewhat unusual goal. Ted DeGray raced up front with the Duncan twins and took Erwin's pass at the doorstep. His shot dropped from Charron's hand and trickled slowly over the goal line. It was a tough break for Brockville.

Trainor went off for interference after seven when the penalties started to cluster. Thomson got the gate for slashing and Ed Doran followed him. Peter Jones drew a hooking penalty and the Memos were playing three men to four. No damage was done, but Davidson got a slashing penalty as time ran out.

With a man advantage the Memos gave Charron a busy time, with the checking forces on the part of both teams. It was nip-and-tuck hockey with both goals having narrow escapes. Rockburn's drive hit the post and Ted DeGray duplicated at the other end. The Magedomas exerted terrific pressure at the half-way mark, but Parisi and company held the fort.

The Memos surged back to protect their lead and Arnie Dugan's slapshot missed by inches. Foch speeded up and produced the best hockey of the night.

Erwin Duncan and Richardson got the gate for a shoving match and Rockburn followed seconds later.

Rockburn had scarcely set foot on the ice when Red Doran on a three-way seahay with Dugan and Hoh Macey slammed home the insurance marker with a little more than a minute to go. The Memos maintained the pressure as time ran out.

Keith MacDonald suffered a leg injury midway through the game and did not resume play.

The team:

Referees, Ken Partis and "Moon" Flanagan of Kingston.

Canadian Sparks Notts County

LONDON (CP)—A young centre forward fresh from Toronto soccer has helped spark Notts county in one of the hottest runs this season in English League football.

Youthful Jimmy Jackson, who left Nottingham for Canada two years ago vowing that he was finished with the British game, has scored eight goals in his five matches so far with the second-division team. The county has taken 15 of 16 possible points in its last eight games, surging from 13th place in the 22-team league to third.

The experts say Notts county—and Jackson—are bound for promotion to the first division.

"It took me a couple of weeks to get back into shape," said Jackson in a telephone interview from Nottingham, "the 25-year-old has played with the Toronto German Olympia team until the season ended in October.

RECALLS HAYS

Crosby Tourney Nets $40,000

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Proceeds from Bing Crosby's golf tournament were more than $40,000—including a $1,000 cashier's cheque donated by Byron Nelson.

Nelson, former national Open champion, retired from active tournament competition in 1946. But he and his amateur partner, Ed Lowery of San Francisco, won the pro-amateur event Sunday.

Crosby came from a sickbed to present the top winners their cheques. Nelson promptly endorsed the $1,500 cheque and handed it back, saying:

"Give this to the charities which your great tournament supports, Bing."

PAID THE BILLS

Crosby, who was in a Santa Monica hospital Tuesday, paid all the tournament bills, including the $15,000 in prizes.

Ted Dunein, press director of the tournament, said the tournament has brought in more than $262,000 in nine years. Of that amount $200,000 has gone to the youth centres on the Monterey Peninsula. Some of the funds went to aid polio victims, some to old people's homes and some to churches, Dunein said.

Stormy Petrel Of Soccer Back in News

By JEFF RYAN

LONDON (CP) — Wilf (Golden Boy) Mannion is making a second comeback in soccer in the face of possible censure action from two official sources.

The burly, blonde 36-year-old inside forward, who has played 26 times for England in the course of a tempestuous career, now plays for Hull City. But the man who has twice quit football in disgust, only to return both times, still is in something of a spot.

In his last "retirement" period, Mainmion twice aroused official anger. First he wrote an article for a Sunday newspaper saying that football pools, a national craze. This got him in hot water with the Football Association. The FA said that even if Mannion wasn't playing, he was still on the books of his old club, Middlesbrough, and therefore had broken a rule which says players taking part in football coupon betting shall be permanently suspended.

Mannion replied with characteristic frankness. About the bribe, he said he had decided to "take the consequences" rather than name the team. And he said he made the pools selection several days before he signed for Hull and "I wasn't a player when I did that."

Mannion's past record has been stormy. He joined Middlesbrough in 1936 at the age of 17 and was hailed as the greatest young player since old-timer Cliff Bastin, star of Arsenal and England.

In 1948 he shook the soccer world by quitting, saying he was on a one-man strike against the "soccer slave system" of buying and selling players. His action was discussed even in the House of Commons.

A year later, he was back with Middlesbrough.

Early in 1954, he quit again. This time he explained:

"It's taken me long enough but now I know—football is a dead-end game." Some alleged he left because his team dropped from the first to the second division.

Last June Mannion signed for Hull City, earning his old club, Middlesbrough, a reported fee of £5,000 on which Mannion has no claim except for a £10 handout.

Gerry James Seriously Hurt

TORONTO (CP)—Gerry James, Toronto Marlboro rightwinger and leadfield star for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, suffered a fractured cheekbone and an injured right eye during Tuesday night's Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game against Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

James, Bomber halfback who was chosen the outstanding Canadian football player during the 1954 season, was struck in the face by a hard shot taken by Jim Linaman, St. Michael's forward, midway in the second period. It is not known whether the injury will affect his hockey or football careers.

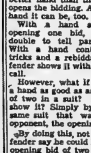
Not Listed As World Mark



NEW YORK (AP)—Herm Wyatt didn't set a world indoor high-jump record after all at the Boston Knights of Columbus games, secretary Dan Ferris of the National AAU said Tuesday.

Wyatt leaped six feet, 10 inches Saturday at Boston Garden. It was listed as a world record, although several questioned it at the time.

Navy Lt. Ken Wiesner in March of 1953 jumped six feet, 10½ inches at the Chicago relays. Ferris said Wiesner had asked recognition and the AAU had approved his 6:10½ record in 1953.

Surprises never cease in the course of your bridge life. As a defender you are likely to have a better hand than the player who opens the bidding. A much better hand it can be, too.

With a hand as good as an opening one bid, defender can double to tell partner about it. With a hand containing eight tricks and a rebiddable suit, defender shows it with a jump overcall.

However, what if defender has a hand as good as an opening bid of two in a suit? How does he show it? Simply by bidding the same suit that was bid by his opponent, the opening bidder.

By doing this, not only does defender say he could have made an opening bid of two in a suit. He also says he will not lose any tricks in the suit the opener has mentioned.

Culbertson says: An immediate overcall in opponent's suit shows the ace or a void (or at worst a singleton) in the overcalled suit; in a hand containing 9½ or more honor tricks.

Goren says it is the strongest of all defensive bids; forces to game; equivalent to an opening two bid; promises ability to win the first trick in the adversely bid suit with an ace or by ruffing.

Accordin' to Gordon: An immediate overcall in opponent's suit shows no tricks (same as an opening two bid); guarantees to lose no tricks in the suit bid by opponents.

Their rules promise first round control in opponent suit. Mine guarantees no losers at all in that suit. Take it or leave it.

South opens with a heart. Bid two hearts with this west hand:

♠A Q 10 5 3
♡A
♢K Q J 7
♣A Q 9 .

You tell partner you will lose no hearts at any other trump; you promise at least nine tricks; your pair must go to game.

Don't use this with Mrs. Knittingham as your partner. She will pass your two heart bid and kill your faith in human nature.

The delicious flavour of Wrigley's Spearmint Gum brightens your day—gives you a little lift . . . while the pleasant chewing brightens your teeth. Keep a package handy in your purse or pocket.

AT THE BELLE—Robert Taylor playing Marcus Vinicius commander of Nero's military legions, falls under the spell of Lygia, lovely Christian hostage, enacted by Deborah Kerr in "Quo Vadis" M.G.M.'s spectacular drama, co-starring the popular British actor Leo Genn and Peter Ustinov as Nero. Quo Vadis was filmed in Technicolor, and is showing Today and Thursday, at the Belle, on the Wide screen.

Mays Better Than Musial Says Durocher

NEW YORK (AP)—The "I love Willie" chorus reached a high note Tuesday when his manager Leo Durocher called Willie Mays "better than Stan Musial" and said he had a chance to be "the best we've ever known."

"If Willie hits .321 or better for the next three or four years, he'll be the best we've ever known," said Durocher on his first visit to New York Giant headquarters since shortly after the world series.

Durocher, still playing the role of the self-effacing leader who gives all the credit to his men, heaped more praise on Mays, his sensational centre-fielder.

Asked to compare Mays with Musial, St. Louis Cardinals' ace, Durocher said, "Mays is a better ball player. He is a good a hitter and has as good power. He can outrun, outthrow and outfield Musial."

Mays batted .345 during the regular season, hit .477 in the world series and batted in 13 runs during the 1954 baseball campaign.

Sasky Riders Lose Another

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Jack Mitchell, new football coach at the University of Arkansas, Tuesday rounded out his staff by naming Martin Ruby, former Texas A and M tackle, as line coach.

Ruby, who now is playing and coaching with Saskatchewan in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, is not signed yet, said Mitchell. "but he has agreed to come and I'm tickled to death that we're getting him."

Thistles Score Double Win

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Thistle Club rinks scored a double victory Tuesday by capturing district nine elimination finals in both tankard and Governor - General Trophy playoffs of the Ontario Curling Association.

In tankard play, rinks skipped by A. R. Tarlton and A. R. Boadway defeated Brantford quartets 29-21. T. O. Loveless of Brantford edged Boadway 13-10 but Tarlton guided Thistles to victory on aggregate score by upsetting Harold McKay's rink 19-8.

Thistle foursomes in the Governor-General Trophy final had an easier time against Victory Club rinks. George Snyder defeated John Woodcroft 19-4 and Fred Thomas downed William Barclay 16-4 to give the Thistles a 35-10 triumph on total score.

The Thistle rinks will enter elimination rounds for the Ontario championships on Jan. 27. Tankard curlers will meet in Toronto. Kitchener will be host to the governor-general event.

AT THE McCARTHY—Gary Cooper challenges Susan Hayward in this scene from "Garden of Evil" as to her real motives for leading a pack of strangers into forbidden lands. Richard Widmark, Cameron Mitchell, Hugh Marlowe and Victor Mendoza are the other men involved in her reckless scheme in the CinemaScope production filmed in Technicolor in the interior of Mexico. The Twentieth Century-Fox adventure drama opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Eagles Quarter Is 'Approached'

Canadian Players 'Making Farce' Of Puck Tourney

BOSTON (AP)—Coach E. Jeremiah of Dartmouth University said Tuesday Canadian players are "making a farce" out of the National College Athletic Association hockey tournament.

He told reporters the championship should be discontinued because it has been reduced to a battle among Canadian-manned teams.

Said Jeremiah:

"I think we ought to do away with the NCAA hockey tournament at Colorado Springs. It's no longer a national or U.S. championship because of the Dominion of Canada hockey talent.

"... I don't object to Canadian boys coming to the United States to get a college education, but I do object to their turning our national championship into a farce."

TITO IN BURMA

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Yugoslavia's President Tito arrived here today for an 11-day state visit to Burma. The Red Western chief of state to pay an official call to Burma, he was received by President Ba U. Premier U Nu and cheering crowds.

'Sugar Ray' 3-1 Choice Over Tiger Jones

CHICAGO (AP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones should be considered more than just a whistle stop on Sugar Ray Robinson's comeback timetable tonight.

Their 10-round or at Chicago Stadium will start at 10 p.m. EST and will be televised nationally (CBS).

Robinson is a solid 3-1 choice to dispose of the 26-year-old Yonkers, N.Y., middleweight who is a rough and ready body-puncher who once was a third - ranked middleweight contender.

It will be the second fight in two weeks for Robinson, who at 34 is trying for a comeback that he hopes to climax by regaining the middleweight crown now worn by Bobo Olson. If he succeeds, he will be the first fighter to come out of retirement and win back his title. He made his start back by knocking out Joe Rindone in the sixth round at Detroit Jan. 5.

Canucks Win

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hugh Bartleman paced Vancouver Canucks to an 84 victory over New Westminster Royals in a Western Hockey League tilt here Tuesday night by firing three goals and assisting in two others. Barlow played for St. Catharines of the OHA Junior A League last year.

TV ON CONFERENCES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Tuesday authorized television and newsreel cameramen to make sound movies of presidential press conferences for possible later public showings.

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian figure-skating championships start here Thursday and the consensus has just a whiffle stop on Sugar Ray Robinson's comeback timetable tonight.

Their 10-round or at Chicago Stadium will start at 10 p.m. EST and will be televised nationally (CBS).

Robinson is a solid 3-1 choice to dispose of the 26-year-old Yonkers, N.Y., middleweight who is a rough and ready body-puncher who once was a third - ranked middleweight contender.

It will be the second fight in two weeks for Robinson, who at 34 is trying for a comeback that he hopes to climax by regaining the middleweight crown now worn by Bobo Olson. If he succeeds, he will be the first fighter to come out of retirement and win back his title. He made his start back by knocking out Joe Rindone in the sixth round at Detroit Jan. 5.

Eagles' Coach Worries About Canuck Interest

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Philadelphia Eagles coach Jim Trimble says he is worried about the interest that owners of Canadian football teams display in American stars.

Trimble returned Monday from the west coast where he coached the east team in the pro bowl game. "Why it seemed like there were more Canadians at the game than Americans," he said.

"Directors of the furious Canadian teams and their lawyers were all over the place," Trimble said. "When they have their lawyers with them they intend to do business. How much they did, I don't know. All I know is that we'll have to be on our toes or they'll take over."

Tartan-Clad Lassies Tend Bank Elevators

TORONTO (CP) — A touch of Old Scotia has turned up in the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Elevators of the building in downtown Toronto's Bay street financial district boast 21 lassies clad in skirts of Royal Stewart tartan and doublets closed with traditional thistle buttons.

The outfits are faithful copies of bare-knee-lengthone. After breaking such traditional bans as those against smoking and females on the players, it still took bank directors three months to subscribe the expense of the kilt during banking hours.

Ten-Year-Plan For Prosperity In U.S. Is Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today handed Congress his 10-year blueprint for the achievement of $500,000,000,000 or more in annual United States production, and said 1955 promises a high level of jobs and production.

In a glowingly optimistic economic message, Eisenhower gave virtual assurance of a "general, though modest, reduction in taxes" in 1956, made possible by a broad business recovery which he said now is in progress.

He warned a warning finger at the soaring stock market, declaring that "continued expansion and recovery must not be jeopardized by over-emphasis of speculative activity." The government would meet its "great responsibility" to prevent a financial boom-and-bust.

Picturing the present as a time of industrial expansion, the president said labor strife often increases in such periods with "serious economic repercussions."...

WAGE FLOOR BOOST

The report, third and last of the major presidential messages, urged the states to increase the amount, duration and coverage of unemployment compensation, and called again on Congress to raise the minimum wage to 90 cents an hour.

Eisenhower discouraged the proposals of labor leaders and some Democrats for a wage floor of $1 or $1.25 an hour. The 15-cent increase, he said, is all that can be "economically justified."

A higher minimum might cause lower production and substantial unemployment among low-wage workers. He proposed, however, that Congress consider extending the minimum wage protection gradually to 20,000,000 workers not now covered.

Eisenhower stressed that government's role in helping to achieve the 500 billion production rise needed to reach a $500,000,000,000 annual output of goods and services in 1955 will be primarily that of encouraging private initiative, curbing monopoly and avoiding encroachment on industry.

GARSON, Ont. (CP)—Fire early today took the lives of a mother and her three young children.

Fire chief Jack Hayes identified them as Mrs. Rita Latendresse; Lawrence, 6, Shirley, 3; and Beverley, two months.

The chief said all four died in their sleep from asphyxiation. The mother and Shirley were upstairs, the others downstairs.

He added that overheated pipes on a wood stove in the kitchen of the frame home probably started the fire. The chief estimated damage at more than $3,000.

CRAWL TO SAFETY

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rivet and Lawrence, 14, Paulette, 11, and Danny, Jr., 1, escaped by crawling on their hands and knees. The Rivets family occupied two rooms in the rear of the building.

Fire chief Hayes said he received a call at 4 a. m., reporting the fire. The call came from Rene Gauvin, a neighbor of the Latendresse family.

The father, A. H. Latendresse, was at work on the midnight shift at Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Mrs. Hayes said.

Firemen and neighbors in this mining community five miles northeast of Sudbury tried to rescue the trapped family but flames drove them back.

The temperature at Sudbury dropped overnight to a low of 20 below zero.

British Freighter Sunk During Chinese Air Raid

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The British freighter Kweiyang was sunk during a Nationalist Chinese air raid on the Communist port of Swatow on Wednesday, it was announced here today.

The 1,700-ton vessel unhurt, the Hong Kong maritime department stated.

In Taipeh the Chinese Nationalist authorities said Nationalist planes sank a Communist gun boat and a 'foreign tanker." They added that this attack might have been the Edendale.

IN WAR ZONE

A Nationalist defence ministry spokesman said in Taipeh: "Since the Nationalist navy began fighting last September we have declared the Ribbon coast, including the main ports of Amoy and Swatow, a war zone subject to our blockade.

"We have also served notice to all foreign ships to keep out of this zone unless they have permits.

"If any foreign ship is bombed or sunk it is at its own risk and we are not to be held responsible."

King Saud and Arabian Oil Co. Find No Fury Like Woman Banned as Driver

BY ROBERT HEWETT

CAIRO (AP)—King Saud and Arabian American Oil officials making an all-out effort to conform with local customs in the interests of international goodwill, did not protest much against the restrictions.

They did not even complain when 2,000 women in the air-conditioned oil camps—hit the roof about three months ago when Saudi Arabia announced women would no longer be allowed to drive cars. Since practically no Arab women go out in public in the country, the edict hit the American women.

"They nagged their husbands until the latter finally drew the matter to the attention of the king," one American said.

As a result, the monarch lifted the ban on women drivers and announced that Christian ministers' wives could continue driving in oil company areas.

Arab women are not permitted, but the ministers are preaching in company theatres.

Nationalists Claim Guerrillas Holding On

REINFORCEMENTS LANDED BY REDS ON YIKIANGSHAN

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist garrisons today clung desperately to their fingerhold grip on Communist Yikiangshan island as Red Peiping radio had trumpeted that the tiny island outpost had fallen to Communist invaders.

The Nationalist defence ministry said the guerrillas were still resisting in a "life or death" struggle this afternoon, despite heavy Red shellings from Red-held Toumen Island and the arrival of Red reinforcements.

The ministry said two Red warships had shut down a curtain of fire while fresh Communist troops poured ashore on the 3½-square-mile island in junk and sampan. The landing came after Communist artillery batteries on Toumen's five miles away, also had hammered Yikiangshan with more than 300 shells.

BELIEVED SMALL

There was no official indication of the size of the holdout force, but it was believed to be small.

Nationalist commentators earlier had reported that "our brave guerrillas, still firmly holding their positions, are heavy and bitterly fighting in pools of blood. This was despite air bombing, naval and ground fire and use by the invaders of flame-throwers. In the face of these heavy attacks our defenders calmly held out and gave the tough bandits a good drubbing."

Wednesday the Nationalist air force prowled along some 300 miles of the southeast China coast and the defence chief said at least 17 Red ships were sunk. Most of the ships were small.

FIRE ON ISLAND

Nationalist artillery on Quemoy fired 500 shells into Red-held Chinmen island in Amoy harbor. The ministry said many artillery positions were destroyed in Wednesday's bombardment from Quemoy since September.

Press reports here said American-supplied jet planes were used in Wednesday's attack, which the Nationalists called retaliatory for the Communists' recent bombing of the Tachen islands.

In this Nationalist capital there was no answer to the indications by President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles that the United States would not object to the United Nations debating the issue of fire in the Chinese civil war.

It was reported that the Nationalists would not object to such opposition to such a plan through the U.S. ambassador here.

Say Wm. Nickle, W.H. Collings Will Take Welsh's Positions

TORONTO (CP) — Reports circulated today that Provincial Secretary Arthur Welsh has resigned and that William Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Kingston, will be sworn in today as his successor.

Premier Frost is expected to announce at the same time the appointment of W. H. Collings, 56-year-old Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Beaches, as chief inspector of explosives, replacing Col. Welsh has been holding.

Col. Welsh, 58, has been provincial secretary since 1949. He was elected to the legislature in 1945 and became planning and development minister in 1948. He represents the riding of Lennox, Ontario.

It has been known at Queen's Park for some time that he wanted to return to private life. His resignation will be effective Thursday, but it has been suggested he may become sheriff of Ontario county.

Mr. Nickle, elected to the legislature in 1951, is a lawyer. He is the son of William Folger Nickle, a former Ontario attorney-general.

He, Nickle was a classmate of Premier Frost at Osgoode Hall. He practised law with his father in Kingston and was first elected to the legislature in 1951. For some time he was secretary of the Kingston Progressive Conservative Association.

He is married and has one daughter, Agnes. Her husband, Donald H. McClaig, is publisher of the Renfrew Advance.

Mr. Collings was elected to the legislature in 1951. He was one of the leading members of the legislature's committee on highway irregularities.

He is a member of the Toronto board of trade, is married and has one son and two daughters.

Probe Edmonton Jail Riot Beneath Cloak of Secrecy

EDMONTON (CP) — A government investigation began today into the Edmonton jail riot Wednesday which was quelled after guards were reinforced by RCMP armed with rifles.

No official comment was available on the disturbance in the jail in Fort Saskatchewan, 20 miles northeast of here.

Warden A. L. McLean would give reporters no information.

Attorney-General Maynard was out of town and his deputy, H. J. Wilson, said he has no details but would start investigations today.

Earlier, reporters were refused admittance to the jail.

About 50 RCMP officers raced to the jail in 10 cars, loaded with tear-gas grenades after the jail called Edmonton for assistance about noon.

They used the gas to flush a group of prisoners from a kitchen where they had barricaded themselves.

A guard said the riot started in the afternoon when prisoners were eating. About 10 prisoners broke a door and ran across an enclosed courtyard into a storeroom. The storeroom was wrecked and fire started, damaging clothing. The blaze was doused by the town's fire brigade.

There was no official report on damage or injuries but it was learned one guard suffered minor injuries in a fall.

Within 30 minutes guards and police forced the men back to their cells.

It was believed a few men incited the lunchtime riot, starting a fire-in-a-can during which food, dishes, tables and benches were thrown around the room. One unidentified person and soup, pudding and wieners were splattered on the walls, ceiling and floor while dishes were smashed "all over the place."

Nicaragua Says Costa Rican Planes Violate Its Frontier

BY CARLOS ESCUDERO

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Costa Rica's rebellion threatened to widen today as Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza charged that new American - purchased fighting planes were flying Costa Rican - Nicaraguan frontier, and added that four of his own fighters would join the battle if there were any further trespassers.

In a message to the inter-American investigation commission here Somoza said two Costa Rican pilots had severed their ties with Figueres over the frontier while strafing La Cruz, near Nicaragua's Pacific coast. It was the pilots' first mission with the United States planes, which arrived from the United States Tuesday signed three agreements under which Pakistan will receive $171,000,000 economic aid this year. Under the agreements the U. S. will also provide technical assistance and farm commodities including a gift of $10,000,000 of farm

Figueres meanwhile, predicted that today would mark the decisive battle in Costa Rica's rebellion fight against the rebels in northwest Costa Rica.

Reports from the fighting front indicated that the loyalists, supported by air support from a converted airliner, were trying to smash their way northward from a corridor from the border over which Figueres charges they came.

These reports said government troops continued Wednesday to push the rebels back from ground mounted women would no longer practically no Arab women go out in public in the country, the edict hit the American women.

"They nagged their husbands until the latter finally drew the matter to the attention of the king," one American said.

As a result, the monarch lifted the ban on women drivers and announced that Christian ministers' wives could continue driving in oil company areas.

Arab women are not permitted, but the ministers are preaching in company theatres.

Britain and U.S. Considered Cease Fire Plan

LONDON (AP) — Britain disclosed today that she has consulted with the United States and New Zealand on a possible move in the United Nations to obtain a cease-fire in the China fighting.

A foreign office spokesman, replying to a reporter's question, said the proposal "was one of a number of possible courses of action which we have discussed with the United States and New Zealand in the course of exchanges over recent months.

"The question to carry it out was taken," the spokesman added.

The spokesman was commenting on a report that UN headquarters in Lut Britain and New Zealand have been considering taking a joint cease-fire resolution to the Security Council.

The report said the countries have been studying the matter for weeks but have done nothing because of opposition from National-ist China.

PROTEST BOMBING

Britain has reportedly prepared to register a formal protest with the Chinese Nationalists against the air bombing of the 1,717-ton British-ship Edendale Wednesday night in the Red China port of Swatow.

The protest is to be made to Formosa provincial authorities in Taipeh, Britain recognizes Red China and has one consular tie with the Nationalists on Formosa.

MEMBER ACCUSES PRIME MINISTER OF SURRENDER

Claims He Backed Down to Que. on Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has been accused of surrendering to Premier Duplessis of Quebec in their taxation dispute.

The charge was made Wednesday during the Commons throne speech debate by Hazen Argue, CCF member for the Saskatchewan constituency of Assiniboia.

First member to comment on the federal government's proposed retirement of the Ottawa - Quebec tax dispute, Argue said it is a disservice to Canada.

It demonstrated the government has abandoned its postwar proposals for health insurance and aid for schools and road-building.

TO DISCUSS PARIS TREATY

Today, the Commons interrupts its throne speech debate to discuss Canadian ratification of the Paris protocol providing for membership in a rearmed West Germany in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The protocol was signed by Canada Oct. 23 last.

Opposition members already have indicated during the debate that they will oppose the protocol. West Germany would have a 500,000-man army in NATO.

Mr. St. Laurent, in announcing Monday the cabinet's solution to the tax dispute, said the government will propose amendments to the Income Tax Act to provide a 10-per-cent cut in federal income tax for 750,000 Quebecers in 1955 and 1956. The amendments would give the federal treasury about $50,000,000 a year less income from the province's taxpayers.

The tax cut would be made retroactive to 1954 for about 300,000 Quebec residents, those who actually were liable to pay the 15-per-cent provincial income tax last year.

MADE RETROACTIVE

Mr. St. Laurent said the tax cut will be available to all provinces if in the ninth stitch. A child's yellow mitten was dangling from the window next to the driver's seat.

Crossing At Haig's Lane East Of City Scene Of Accident

Carl Stapley Driving Three Sisters to School at Time

Two sisters were critically injured and a brother and sister only scratched, when the car in which they were riding skidded into the path of a westbound CPR freight train at Haig's Lane crossing east of Belleville at 8.22 this morning.

In Belleville General Hospital in critical condition are Marie Stapley, 16, and Joyce Stapley, 10. Carl Stapley, 18, driver of the car, and his youngest sister, Edna, 8, escaped with only minor abrasions.

The accident occurred at Haig's Lane - CPR crossing, north of No. 2 Highway, about 100 yards east of the highway - CPR crossing.

SAW TRAIN COMING

"I saw the train clearly," said Carl Stapley in an interview this morning. "I didn't hear it whistle, but I saw it all right. I put on the brakes and skidded about five feet on the ice. If I'd stopped about six inches shorter it would have missed us."

The right side of Stapley's face was pitted with cinders and there was clotted blood on his hands as he sat bandaged in the out-patients' department at the hospital.

The locomotive of CPR extra 2333 west, caught the bumper of the southbound auto and twisted it into the path of the following freight cars.

"I had been towing my brother-in-law, Jim Green, just before it happened," said Stapley. "I had left him. I had just started up again. I didn't get the car out of second gear. I saw the train. I skidded five feet before stopping. I was trying to back up when the engine hit. The wheels were just spinning on the ice."

Brother-in-law James Green, who saw the engine hit the car, said that it was the second collision with a box car that did the damage. Each car in turn hit the twisted wreckage of the Stapley car, strewing pieces for about 100 feet along the north side of the line of way.

The totally wrecked car was about 50 feet west of the crossing in the north ditch. A child's yellow mitten was dangling from the window next to the driver's seat.

4 Rebellious Massachusetts Convicts May Settle for Less Than Freedom

BOSTON (AP) — State prison authorities today saw indications that the three rebellious Massachusetts state prison convicts holding five guards hostages for the third day may see the end of their seige for less than freedom despite their continued show of defiance.

Hopes for a bloodless settlement were expressed by Rev. Edward F. Hanrahan, prison Catholic chaplain and Dr. Samuel Merlin, the prison physician, after they had visited separately with the besieged cell block.

Merlin said the four hard-ened criminals for an-hour and a half Wednesday night and later told reporters: "The men say they are determined to hold out, but that every possible 'no' is not the final outcome."

Merlin said that although he has seen three guns in the possession of the rebellious convicts there had been no "bullying" display of them

Extra Shop Accommodation Is Proposed H. S. Addition Hotly Debated in Council

Municipalities within the North Hastings High School Area are not in accord as to whether extra shop accommodation is needed for the Bancroft High School.

Construction of a nine-roomed addition to the present high school at Bancroft is planned when Hastings county being asked by the school board to raise debenture for $160,000 to cover the cost. However only eight regular classrooms at a cost of $140,000 are approved by the Department of Education, and if the shop room is constructed its cost must be borne entirely by the municipalities without benefit of government grant.

This was learned at Wednesday morning's session of Hastings County Council after a committee from the high school board was read asking the county to issue the debentures. At least seven municipalities in the area are not in favor of the extra shop accommodation.

Reeve William Davis of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor, led off the discussion declaring the extra shop room which has not the approval of the department would cost the municipalities as much as the rest of the entire eight-room addition.

He noted that the Bancroft High School Board already has a problem of a leaky high school roof and it is not known where the matter will end. He felt that with extra benches available the present shop was adequate.

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft said the extra shop was necessary declaring that the shop at Bancroft high school had gone a long way toward preparing young men for a place in industry.

"But at present parents are taking shop classes that the shop is overcrowded and the boys are deriving little benefit," he said.

"Even with the municipalities paying the cost of the shop room the entire cost to the school area for the eight-room plus shop would be but $41,000.

Warden J. Sprackett noted the school board felt the extra shop accommodation was required and that the municipalities were prepared to pay its cost.

MAJORITY TO RULE

He wanted to know, however, what the last position the county would be in when two municipalities within the high school area approved only of the $140,000 expenditure.

The feeling of council was that the majority would rule although Reeve Lloyd Price of Elzevir stated that council was being asked to decide a question which should be decided by the school area.

Warden Sprackett said he did not like borrowing money $20,000 but he believed the extra shop was needed.

Reeve Victor Hughson of Wollaston, said his municipality was in favor of the $140,000 figure, noting that his council felt it this was accepted it may be the "thin end of the wedge" in the eyes of the department of education. Reeve Hughson was agreeable to the eight-roomed addition.

Speaking again on the subject Reeve Price pointed out that maintenance costs would rise with the operation of the new addition, noting that such costs were now paid by what it was claimed they would be when the school was built.

Reeve Tryon then declared he said, "when high school teachers will have to accept high school graduates as university principals who rule students out if they fail in certain high percentage I know of high school students staying three years in one grade."

"It is just not reasonable," he said, "that we are to say to students who just haven't got what it takes. Surely there must be room for all of life in which they fit."

"That is a good point," agreed Reeve Price, "but to do that some sort of a recommendation would have to be made to the department."

Deputy Reeve Harold Varty of Hungerford said that the Hastings area had a problem which interested him greatly. It was his feeling that practical training was more important in high school than academic training. "I say get the academic training first," he said.

PERSISTENT TROUBLE BROUGHT

Reeve Wells of Marmora noted that it was the feeling of the Department of Education that academic training was more important and said there was a lot of persistent trouble brought to bear and the "frills" in education.

He felt boys were special training schools for vocational work which would lead to a system of apprenticeship training.

But Reeve Tryon still felt the shop training high school was important for the boys, just as much so, in fact as were home economics, typing and cooking classes for the girls.

"There is a vast difference," returned Reeve Davis. "Every girl is a potential housewife and she should have home economics training, but to fit a boy for a job in industry, would mean an elaborate shop for high school."

Reeve Earl Baker of Madoc township said it was difficult to determine just what the "frills" were in education. He for one would not approve of going away with shop training for the boys.

Reeve Price brought the discussion to a head when he moved that the matter of issuing debentures for the North Hastings High School Area be referred to by-laws. His motion was carried.

District Field Secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Mr. W. Timmins, addressed council with a request for a grant of $200 for his organization. He noted there were 60 blind persons in Hastings being cared for by his organization and referred to their program for the prevention of blindness. The request was referred to ways and means.

Mr. A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, appeared for the customary county grants for Junior farmer camps, flying speed at Peterborough and for the Soil and Crop Improvement Association. This was also referred to ways and means.

Communications from various municipal associations seeking membership renewals and a grant request from the Children's Aid Society for a grant of $600 were referred to ways and means.

AGAIN LAID OVER

The request from the Village of Bancroft, for exemption from county road rates which was laid on the table for further discussion on the table was referred to by-laws after Reeve Tryon spoke on the matter stating there was no reason why it should be laid over when Bancroft had no county roads.

"The act says that a municipality may apply for exemption when it has no county roads and Bancroft is making that application," he noted.

Wollaston township is seeking assistance in the county library department to improve the approach of a township road leading onto a county road. Reeve Victor Hughson noted the approach had been left in bad condition when the county artery had been rebuilt as a development road. He declared that fixing the approach was neither a township nor a county responsibility but should be looked after by the highways department.

Egg Is Found On Beam Of Old City Home

Want an egg that is probably one hundred years old? If so give Dr. J. Russell Scott a call. Recently the doctor purchased a portion of the late Charles F. Frost on Great St. James street, and is now being remodelled and decorated to serve as his office.

Mr. Edward Culliedeen is the carpenter in charge of the work and he reports that the beam, joist and siding are all hand hewn lumber and the beams are pegged together with dowels, a favorite form of construction when the house was built. While tearing out a beam the other day, Mr. Culliedeen found a perfectly-formed hen's egg 125 on the beam. The shell is in a perfect state of preservation but the yolk and white while of the egg has considerably hardened through time. It is likely the egg was laid on the beam while the house was under construction and never noticed by the workmen.

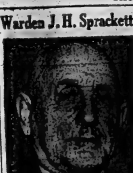
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Got troubles?



Consider the plight of one Nicholas Shipp, oil company operator, who has one ship adrift at Bermuda, another out of fuel and being towed in, two out of fuel and awaiting tows to Bermuda, two others returning to the Azores because of fuel shortages and all others running three to 10 days late.

"And on top of that," he moaned Wednesday, "it's snowing. Let's do much loafing in weather like this."

Fire of unknown origin this morning razed through a Foster Avenue garage, piled high with furniture and furniture, destroying it before firemen reached the scene.

Fire chief Gerald Vance estimated damage at about $1,000 resulting from flames which engulfed the double-garage structure owned by Harold Crain, 82 Foster Avenue.

The garage at the rear of the house and used for storing lumber and furniture was practically destroyed, when fire reels arrived on the scene in answer to an alarm turned in shortly after 8 a.m. Firemen concentrated on preventing spreading of the fire to nearby dwelling and the garage. No damage was done the Crain home.

A small dog in the back of the garage when the fire erupted survived the flames and was rescued by firemen.

Chief Vance said there was no indication what sparked the fire. Mr. Crain, a railroad employee, was at work when the fire broke out.

Observers Think Ford Settlement Now Not Far Off

TORONTO (CP)—More contract negotiations were planned between Ford of Canada and the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) today and there was a general feeling that settlement of the long walkout was not far off.

Although neither side would comment on the progress of the discussions, observers speculated that an end to the crippling strike, now in its 102nd day, may come this week.

Emil Mazey, International vice-president of the union, answered questions by newspapermen after talks adjourned late Wednesday night with these words:

"When we agree we'll let you know."

The two parties met for two hours Wednesday night after holding talks during the day.

Reporters waiting outside the meeting room in a downtown hotel for news of settlement stirred Wednesday night on a report from Oakville, midway between Toronto and Hamilton, said the strike might end in a matter of hours.

Asked about the report, T. J. Emmett, company executive vice-president said: "I don't know anything about it."

Commented Mr. Mazey; "There's nothing to it."

More than 9,000 persons have been left idle by the strike, which started in Windsor last Oct. 19 and spread to company plants in Oakville and suburban Etobicoke.

Railroad Strike Is Postponed

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (I&L) says it has postponed, pending mediation, a strike that had been set for Friday on the New York Central Railroad east of Buffalo.

A strike of 800 men had been threatened because of a dispute between the independent brotherhood and the railroad about mileage agreements, which govern the division of available work among employees.

The union said the decision not to strike was reached after the national mediation board intervened.

202 Residents At County Home States Report

At the end of the year there were 202 residents at the Hastings County Home, 124 men and 74 women, members of Hastings County Council were told at the Thursday morning session of council. The County Home report was read by Superintendent Byron Harder of Sidney township.

The number of residents at the home is now considerably over the intended capacity of the home which is 175. Forty seven of the residents in the home are from the city.

During 1954 there were 63 new admissions, 42 from the county and 21 from the city. There were 15 discharges and 35 deaths. The institution had on hand a total of 15,186 days with an average of 42 patients for each day during the year.

The County Home report did not include a financial statement with Deputy Reeve Harder noting this would be given at the April session. He did report, however, that 1954 had seen a reduced revenue from the County Home farm. There were two reasons for this, lower farm produce prices and dry weather, which had reduced the yield.

HOME NEARING CAPACITY

In closing he pointed out that the County Home was now nearing its capacity in the number of residents it could handle and urged reeves to screen all applicants, but at the same time give every consideration to deserving cases. He complimented the Home superintendent and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth York, who, he said, were "doing a fine job."

Mr. York spoke to council briefly noting that there were considerably more men than women in the Home with accommodation for men becoming taxed.

Councillors were invited to inspect the Home prior to the noon luncheon period.

Several appointments to boards and committees were made during the morning session.

Reeves Ritchie Wells and Irwin McCoy with Warden Sprackett were named to the public relations and resolutions committee; Reeve Cecil Ketcheson and Warden Sprackett will represent the county on the hospital board of governors; Reeve T. C. Graham and Warden Sprackett will be county representatives on the East Central Counties Tuberculosis Association.

Reeves T. C. Graham, J. Rollin, T. W. Tryon, Cecil Ketcheson, Theodore J. Cooney and Warden Sprackett were named to the county assessment committee for 1955.

U.S. State Dept. Denies Blocking Sale of Surpluses

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States state-department has denied that it is trying to hamper sales of surplus American farm products abroad.

Testifying before the Senate agricultural committee Wednesday, Samuel C. Waugh, assistant state secretary, answered criticism from farm sources that his department had favored Allied countries over American farmers.

"We consult with other countries, but not to the extent that some people feel interferes with our sales," Waugh said.

Earlier in the session Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson said the "trying years" are over for the U. S. farmer, and forecast "a great decade ahead."

The secretary estimated that surplus stocks now amount to about $7,000,000,000. It was partly in hope of avoiding such pileups in the future that the administration drove across a system of flexible price supports in the last Congress.

The theory is that flexible props will discourage production in times of surplus, encourage it in years of shortage and thus avert perilous price dips.

Benson sidestepped a question as to whether a sale of 100,000 tons of surplus wheat to Brazil had fallen through because state department officials consulted with Canada, which then undersold the U. S.

Then Waugh acknowledged that state department officials consulted "with friendly nations" before selling U. S. farm surpluses on the world market. He said consultations were required under a directive of President Eisenhower not to disturb existing markets or ruin the economies of friendly countries.

Belgian Lower House Ratifies Paris Pacts

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—The Belgian Lower House today ratified the Paris agreements to rearm Western Germany and form a Western European Union.

The treaties passed by a huge majority.

The three main parties, Catholic, Socialist and Liberals, had previously announced their support.

But one Socialist and one Liberal joined the four Communist members in the 212-seat House in voting against ratification.

Huntsville's Chief of Police Goes on Trial

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—Chief Constable Alan Hanes goes on trial today, accused of beating a youth with a rubber hose and knocking out a man with his fists.

Chief Hanes, head of the town's police department for four years, is charged with assault causing actual bodily harm to Bernard Lynch, 22, and James Wallace, 18.

A week ago Wallace and three other youths were brought to the station by a night constable. Wallace was charged with disorderly conduct.

The youth later claimed he was separated from the other boys and taken into another room by the chief, ordered to stand by and then beaten and sat with a piece of rubber hose. One of the other youths said there were red welts on Wallace's back when he was brought back to the room where they were being kept.

Last Saturday the chief was involved in an incident at a restaurant with Lynch. Chief Hanes said he was struck at and then hit him first. Lynch said the chief hit him in the face and knocked him down.

Lynch has been charged with assaulting police. Hanes charge will also be heard this afternoon.

R. E. Best, counsel for the chief, said Hanes was struck in the face by Lynch when he objected to the language being used by Lynch in the restaurant.

'Copters, Planes Relieve Distress Of Highlanders

LONDON (AP)—Relays of helicopters and light planes today relieved the distress of 10,000 highlanders marooned in snow-covered northern Scotland.

Food drops from the air now have reached all isolated villages, and snowplows are beginning the task of opening roads and railways.

In London, an acrid smog that kept residents of the great metropolis coughing in their beds Wednesday night cleared away this morning.

Scandinavia experienced bitterly cold weather. France and Germany still faced flood problems. But on the whole, winter turned a kinder face to Europe than she has for more than a week, in which at least 36 lives have been lost.

The improvement in Scotland was particularly noticeable. At Wick, a headquarters for the relief missions, a police spokesman said: "Another day or two should see the worst of our troubles over."

THE RIGHTS OF THE ACCUSED

The report of Mr. Justice Roach of the Ontario Supreme Court on the treatment by Toronto police of two men arrested after a melee at Varsity Stadium, Toronto, on October 23 is of more than local significance.

Mr. Justice Roach found that one police officer used unnecessary violence on one prisoner. There was, it appears, verbal provocation for this incident.

Mr. Justice Roach stated, if any policeman in future felt tempted to yield to similar provocation, he would resist the temptation and thereby demonstrate the qualities of an efficient policeman.

Of greater significance, though, were the observations by Mr. Justice Roach on the fact that both the prisoners had been denied, improperly, the right to communicate with relatives or friends and to consult counsel.

According to police testimony, this right was denied the prisoners on the advice of Assistant Crown Attorney Fred Malone. Sgt. Agnew testified that Mr. Malone had told him that a lawyer retained by the father of one of the prisoners was not to be permitted to see them until police investigation had been completed. Mr. Justice Roach noted that, during the hearings, he had disclosed that there were two sergeants and a detective on the Toronto force who thought they were justified in labelling as "definite obstruction" the act of a lawyer telling his client not to say anything. This suggestion Justice Roach described as "shocking."

Any reporter who has covered police court knows that in a large number of cases convictions are obtained as the result of something which the accused has said to the police.

Police, of course, are quite aware of the fact that statements made by the accused are a deciding factor in a great number of the cases which come to court. They are, therefore, eager to obtain statements. It is a natural desire. The police are merely doing their jobs.

Why, then, should their work be hampered?

The answer is simple. In most cases persons convicted as the result of statements to the police are guilty. But there are cases where, in the confusion of the moment, an innocent person will make a statement which can be construed as damaging. The accused has a perfect right to remain silent. It is one of the axioms of our system of justice that no man can be compelled to be his own accuser. The accused has a right to legal advice. His counsel has the right to question police methods. In some cases this advice results in a guilty man going free; but in others it prevents an innocent man going to jail.

The Communists, in recent years, have given us new and frightening demonstrations of the fact that physical torture is not necessary to extract a false confession from a prisoner.

Where the prisoner is not permitted to communicate with relatives, friends or counsel, if he is given the impression that he has no right to refuse to answer the questions of police, he may try to placate his questioners and to communicate with the outside world by giving police a statement which can be construed as an admission of wrongdoing. This is all the more likely if the accused has had no previous police contact. The hardened criminal knows, without any advice from a lawyer, that the best thing for him to do is to keep quiet.

Mr. Justice Roach, in his report, has outlined the rights of the accused in unmistakeable language. We cannot allow these rights to be invaded without jeopardizing the safety of all of us, for there is no person who can be certain that circumstances never will not result in him being accused of a crime of which he is innocent.

"JUNK MAIL"

Should something be done about "junk" mail?

"Junk" mail is the designation used in the United States for mail distributed at low cost by regular letter carriers to all addresses on a mail route.

Canada has no such service. In the United States it has been estimated that for each $100 the Post Office receives for "junk" mail service, its costs increase $200.

The Oshawa Times-Gazette wonders whether the same proportion of revenue and costs applies in Canada. If it does, says the Oshawa paper, "possibly a commission could examine carefully the effects of this service."

Most citizens will echo that observation.

"Junk" mail is a nuisance to the recipient. It keeps him busy tending the incinerator on Saturday afternoons when he would prefer to be loafing in the garden or reading in the parlor.

Senders of "junk" mail would almost certainly be well served if the government increased postal rates for this class of mail. This would make distribution of this matter through the mails considerably more expensive. Most of this material consists of advertising matter. If costs were raised, the senders might investigate other methods of advertising. If their investigations were carried out with reasonable vigor and intelligence, they would discover that there was simply no way of getting their advertising messages distributed at low cost, without burdening the Post Office and without annoying the householder.

In fact, if they insist, we will even tell them the secret. All they have to do is advertise in daily newspapers.

I KNOW WHAT I DON'T KNOW

My fingers are a useless lot.
They can't even hit a knot.
That's firm and strong.
For what must mended be or made,
I always have to wait for aid
To come along.

I'm wholly useless by myself.
Alone I cannot build a shelf;
All effort fails.
I cannot join two planks of wood,
At climbing ladders I'm no good,
Or driving nails.

With paint the wall I merely smear,

I am no household engineer.
Or handy man.
Repairing things is not my line.
When that is needed, I resign
For one who can.

When skilled men come I must admit
Nearby I always stand or sit
As they begin.
I don't know much. I'm just a shirk.
But, when they've settled down to work,
I don't butt in.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GREAT LITTLE THINGS

It often takes years before the significance of the great little things in life appear to be significant. Admiral Collingwood, an English officer, wrote many interesting letters to his wife. I will quote but one short sentence. He said: "Tell me how do the trees which I planted thrive! Is there shade under the trees, going for a comfortable summer seat? Do the poplars grow at the west end of the wall of the terrace stand firm?"

Recently I came across a letter that I had sent to my mother in family from the East to Michigan. The date was 1885. The talk in the letter was all about the little things of the home, the daily happenings, and interesting gossip about the everyday. I once spent an afternoon with the late Henry Ford at one of his country developments. We had lunch with a country boss which he had nurtured and sponsored. I asked if he had a favorite book. After a brief hesitation, he said he couldn't name one right off the bat. His favorite poem was "Maud Muller," by Whittier.

I have discovered that the greatest a man is, and the larger his interests the simpler are his tastes. Mere possessions are not his great est pride, but what he has done. He that has brought the largest amount of good into the world, making him that much more useful and inspiring to others.

So many of our important wants, that seemed about us in early life, lose their glamour as we grow older. We learn how important are the little things we long ago neglected. George MacDonald once wrote: "Life's best things gather round the close to bless it from the door."

On one of my visits to Honolulu, a driver took me around the island. He owned one in a while he would stop and tell me the interesting history of the place. He saved the most beautiful for the last, I reserve. It looked out upon the ocean with the famous Capt. Cook monument in full view. Then this driver took his guitar and played and sang several of the beautiful songs of the islands.

Letter to the Editor

Post Office Official Voices Appreciation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

Many through you, extend to the people of Canada the very warm thanks of myself and other members of the Post Office staff from coast to coast for the exceptional co-operation extended in the mailing of their Christmas cards and gifts.

Reports are being received from postmasters in all parts of the country indicate clearly that in more than ever before, the public showed its activity to assist the service in the early days, with the result that the postal staffs were able to effect most Christmas deliveries in good time for the holiday.

The reports also indicate that the proportion of correctly addressed and fully-packaged mail was higher than ever before, although, as in the past, delays and difficulties were experienced as a result of failure on the part of many persons to observe correct mailing practices.

Much of the credit for the success lies in our handling of the Christmas mails must, of course, go to the employees, which in many cases took great pains to remind the public of the difficulties to be faced in observing the various mailing dates and in correctly addressing and packaging their mail. Needless to say, this assistance has been much appreciated.

Yours sincerely
W. J. Turnbull
Deputy Postmaster General,
Ottawa.

Trashman Now A Specialist

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

The matter of getting rid of household trash is getting serious. Yesterday, trash was trash. You hired a trashman to come around periodically. He hauled everything that week called down, and that was that. Sometimes he even seemed glad to get the business.

Now, all is specialization, classification, alphabetization. Ask a trashman to take your trash in toto and he looks hurt—like you've asked him to dress indecently, with trousers of violets, between the pages of his memory book.

It has to be sorted, sequestered, segregated; and for each a separate hauler. Waste paper is no longer waste paper; it must be filled "Waste Paper A" and not "Waste Paper N to Z." Nor can an errant leaf clutter the cloister. It is cast into the paper bad truck.

Tree limbs are something else again, for separate contractural commitment also. Burn barrels and a burning affidavit must show whether the ash is cottonwood or oak or hickory for cheerful burning of the workbench. Unwanted cast-bannens which have a beauty all their own, go to the incinerator night in dark closets, complicate bundles for the newspaper and magazines, it goes without saying, comprise a different operation. Indeed, whichever the trail, type to each his own. And it's getting fen.

As experienced sneerers at the "good old days," we somehow cannot sneer at the era when the line of indexed trash was rubbish.

Asking For A Raise

(New York Times)

Cartoonists have bunches of fun with the stock situation of the employee standing before the boss' desk asking for a raise. Then cartoonists are free-lance people who don't have bosses and don't have to ask for raises. But free-lances they have problems of their own and which are rarely understressed, but they do not have to work themselves up to a face-to-face confrontation every weeks of preparatory interior monologue and sleepless nights the day when the time seems most propitious rise like wraiths from their desks to confront themselves into the lion's den with no more weapons in the paw than a tooth-indented pencil.

The housewife, college boy or other unsalaried observer might think of asking for a raise is a simple economic proposition: the seller of his own labors and services puts his price the current one-for his goods; the purchaser makes his estimate of what it is worth—the going rates and delivers a reply. Nothing could be more complicated than that. In the first place, asking for a raise is a confrontation, and there is always inequity in the drama which goes with confrontation. The boss, the seecher is a subordinate and the beseeched is a boss. Every boss is the subordinate of his own boss. Meeting raise requests, either subordinate or boss, is never a standard executive equipment. He is not only brought to the test rationality but emotional extreme variety: gentle supplications, blustering demands, quivering entreaties, businesslike expositions and brash threats. Every employee, who often lacks even a single subordinate among his duties in this matter, is limited by the facts of his own case, his personal and the greater or lesser devices of his imagination and his shielded affair, there is no doubt.

What are the frames of mind an employee establishes before making his plea? Well, it is probably is the simple, and to the employee seemingly undeniable merit of the work and even apart from the boss' conception of it. The boss is used to refuse the raise, need only tell the employee that his work has been no good at all. And unless the worker is going a job like selling vacuum cleaners, in numerically ascertainable, the struggle stops there, of course. Then the boss is loath to apply this like-it, or-lump-it type of answer. He must be made to admit a certain quality in the work but point out that the economic labors have been perhaps superior and that he is not asking for a raise because he thinks he ought it, since foolishly or not, raise-seeking employees are not forgiven for the financial causes of others along with their own. Since bosses, even the least generous and sympathetic, must necessarily deny many raises and to do it artfully, gambits like this prove invaluable.

Among the employee's gambits, one of the subtlest demands salary for nothing. Like a trained diplomat he makes an appraisal of his power or real worth and his own willingness and ability to pay for it. Then he quietly lines up alternatives. One job will pay the salary he seeks. Finally, in the friendliest fashion, he announces the attractive offer he has received and waits. This, of course, is a bluff because he can't leave a job he does not want to change jobs. He must have drawn the line at the point where he can't bear to leave a spot to congratulate him on his good fortune and express sorrow at his forthcoming departure from the firm. It might be mentioned that sometimes the offer is unknown to fabricate "other jobs" a stratagem that has been used by a number of gambit on gamble. Of similar appeal to the devotee of high finance is the more complicated "I-quit technique, which, if it does not work, generally gained the sprouts the blossoms of goodwill. But certainly the most appealing gambit of all is the simple question, put without special intonation: "Can I have a raise?" and the simple rejoinder, "O.K., how much?"

Rocket Scores Again

(Montreal Gazette)

At the Forum on Saturday evening, Canadiens' Rocket Richard, brilliant right wing of the Canadiens, scored his 325th goal among other things a cheque for $2,000 from the management of that club, for having gained the unique distinction of having scored 400 goals during his professional hockey career.

Whereupon it was announced that Richard, the hockey player had decided to donate the money to one of the two local children's hospitals of Montreal —one half to St. Justine's and one half to the Montreal Children's Memorial Hospital. Two small boys, many a sick child will be treated in the years to come.

There is no need, surely, to say that this was all just a publicity stunt, but if this is so then it is one of the best. If there were more publicity stunts of this kind, the name of (Rocket" Richard is on every boy's lips, and one can imagine the lift that a few dollars would lend a sick child when he finds that he is to spend the Christmas in the bed the "Rocket" have to the hospital.

Richard has had a wonderful career on the hockey rink, and his generosity should not be forgotten, but it may well be that this generous action over shadow all the rest. It will be remembered in the hospitals as long as the greatest of his scoring feats.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

THE KIDS AND THEIR TONSILS

Dr. Brady

That the presence of tonsils or tonsil (round cell, lymphoid, sole-noid) tissue in the throat is not in itself harmful to health is evidenced by the fact that more or less tonsil tissue remains intact in from 75 per cent to 90 per cent of persons who have undergone tonsillect o m y, the outstanding number of these tonsillectomized individuals do have trouble from the portions of tonsil left in the throat, but most of them do not.

I have often referred to tonsillectomy as an atrocity, and I mean strictly. Especially when it is perpetrated on a child. Even if the victim survives the operation and suffers no serious complication or sequel, such as hemorrhage, cessation of heartbeat, post-operative pneumonia, lung abscess, I contend there is insufficient reason to prove that tonsillectomy is necessary, except in rare instances. A good substitute for tonsillotomy is the method of choice for enlarged tonsils in children.

Tonsillotomy means snipping off the infected or enlarged inner portion of tonsil with the snickersnee or guillotine ring blade called the tonsillotome. It is a minor operation, instantaneous, is painful and as dangerous as extracting a tooth. Like extraction of a tooth it may be done under general anesthesia, local anesthesia or none, in the doctor's office or the patient's home.

Tonsillectomy means extensive dissection of the throat in the attempt to remove every bit of tonsil tissue or, in the language of the trade specialty trying to sell its superior surgical skill, "get all the tonsil." Although tonsil tissue were in itself harmful.

Tonsillectomy is a major operation involving serious hazards to life in every instance.

The doctor who misrepresents the facts in order to persuade parents to consent gambles with the lives or children whose tonsils are endanged — as children's tonsils are likely to be in the winter and spring.

If the school doctor, or maybe the nurse, "takes a look at your child's throat and sends you a note saying the tonsils should be removed, remember the report of Dr. Barron of Addison. At school doctor he found many or most of the school children he examined had enlarged tonsils. He followed his routine, advising their parents to consult their family physicians about the removal of the tonsils. Few or none did. Then in the autumn, after summer vacation, Dr. Barron examined the same school children again. He found most of them enlarged tonsils had somehow shrunk to "normal." The results of the child's tonsils are "enlarged", don't rush to the operating room. First try two or three months of open air life and sunshine.

REGARDING SAINTS

It is interesting to note that the Bible never withstowches its saints.

Jacob, from whom the nation of Israel sprang, was a liar, a cheat, started out as an unmitigated rascal and ended a saint and mighty man. Moses was plagued with a bad temper as long as he lived. David, friend of God, was guilty of adultery, adultery, and murder. Peter forsook his Lord in an hour of need and denied that he knew him. Paul the Apostle had been guilty of many inconsistencies which involved the death of Christian victims. The list only once refers to whitewash—our Lord's reference to the Pharisees as whitened sepulchres.

What is a saint? A saint is a sinner who is trying to become better. The Lord appears to be interested more in what we are becoming than in what we accomplish. Jacob, Moses, David, Peter, Paul and all real Christian spiritual leaders, yet their lives at times broke down morally and they were overcome by sin. The Biblical writers did not get out the whitewash brush and spoil when the time came to exhibit the characters of these men. They set them forth as they were.

All of which may well encourage us in the midst of our moral failures. The question is not whether we fail, but whether after failing we turn ourselves up and start all over again.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

By the time a boy is thirteen or fourteen, the foundation of his character should already have been laid. Then, at the age of a man who has been engaged in boys' work and in juvenile problems all his life.

"It's like a loom, is weaving," he says. "For the first dozen years of a boy's life should be like preparing the warp on the loom, when are those threads that are running fixed by as the foundation of the job. Once the warp, and the weft, and then weave what patterns you like. But without the warp, you have nothing at all, and there will be no fabric."

School, he says, is of supreme importance in stretching that warp; and it is with engineering that this man, with the widest experience in watching boys grow into men, has decided to devote his programs which slacken the disciplinary aspect of primary school life.

Army Ordered To Re-instate Mrs. Annie Moss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Wilson Wednesday ordered the army to reinstate Mrs. Annie Lee Moss, suspended employee whose case figured in controversy between the army and Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.)

The 43-year-old Negro woman was twice suspended by the army as a possible security risk, the second time last Aug. 4.

She had been doing clerical work.

Wilson's order was in a letter to Army Secretary Robert Stevens in which he directed her restoration to duty and said that she would be, reassigned to a non-sensitive position "without access to classified information."

NOT PROVEN DISLOYAL

Wilson said his study of the record "does not support a conclusion that she is actually subversive or disloyal to the United States."

Mrs. Moss came to national attention in February of last year when McCarthy, a critic of the army with "coddling" Communists, said she had been identified as a Communist by a witness before his investigations sub-committee and was even then handling "top secret" messages in the defence department code room.

Mrs. Moss denied she was a Communist and contended it was a case of mixed identity.

Railway Spur Line Opened

NEPHTON, Ont. (CP)—The first railway spur line constructed in this central Ontario area in more than 50 years was officially opened here this week.

It runs from Havelock, 25 miles east of Peterborough, to Nephton, a distance of 17 miles to serve the property of the only commercial syenite ore deposit in North and South America.

Construction on the line started in May, 1954 and was finished the shirt week in December. The first ore train ran over the line Dec. 20 and now is hauling about 200 carloads of processed ore weekly to ceramic markets.

The current annual output of American nepheline mines is 125,000 tons.

Future plans call for short extensions of the existing rail line to serve a crystalline limestone deposit southwest of the mine for future production of artificial bauxite ores.

The Canada Flint and Spar Co. of Buckingham, Que., which plans to quarry nepheline ores in the near future, will be served by a four-mile spur.

12 Pedestrians Hauled Off Street For Jury Duty

OTTAWA (CP)—In a rare court move, 12 startled pedestrians were hauled off the street Wednesday as a judge sought to fill a gap on a jury panel.

Veteran court officials said it was the first time in their memories such emergency action was taken. Those hailed appeared surprised and a little frightened but followed the sheriff into court without objection.

The emergency action was called by Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder of the Ontario Supreme Court when lawyers, picking a 12-man jury from a panel of 52, got only 11 and needed another before a rape case trial court start. The judge ordered the sheriff to go out and find prospective jurors.

The man finally picked: J. E. Lalonde who was on his way home for lunch.

Ingrid Bergman Not Likely To Make Film in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A report on Ingrid Bergman comes today from actor Mart Kreuger. Just returned from making a film with her in Munich.

After five years in Europe, Kreuger is back in Hollywood to stay. He is full of details on movie making abroad. His most interesting engagement was acting with Bergman in "Joan of Arc." The film was directed in Germany by her husband, Roberto Rossellini.

Kreuger found Miss Bergman happy and talkative.

"Start her on any subject and she talks on and on until you stop her," he remarked. "Always she was knitting between scenes, and she talked as fast as she knitted. She was very helpful to the other actors and co-operative with the press."

Does she miss Hollywood?

"She doesn't seem to. I think she would be happy to return here. But she would make a picture here only under the condition that Rossellini would direct it."

The fear of public pressure against hiring Miss Bergman appears to have died down. Recently she was offered a role in Cecil Courtney-Fox in "Lord Vanity." She ordered the sheriff to go out and find prospective jurors.

The man finally picked: J. E. Lalonde who was on his way home for lunch.

Woodworkers Join in Drive Against Reds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 50,000 member International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) is reported to have expelled one of its members as part of a growing crackdown on alleged Communists in British Columbia labor unions.

The drive was started earlier this week by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) which organized 21 members, including three officers, on charges they were engaged in Communist activities.

The 21 will be put "on trial" before the union's executive early next month.

IWA officials would not comment on the report that a rank-and-file member of Local 1-217 was expelled but other sources said the expulsion had taken place.

NOT THE FIRST

Another IWA official, who refused to be identified, said it wasn't the first time the union had moved to oust Communists from its ranks.

"We were riddled with Communists in 1946," he said. "We don't want that to happen again."

Suspension of the 21 electrical union workers brought charges of "McCarthyism" from George Gee, suspended business agent.

He demanded that charges brought against him by IBEW international officers be released to the general membership.

WANT PARTITION

Meanwhile, delegates to the 12th annual convention of the Communist-led International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ld.) urged partition of the union at the border and a separate constitution for the Canadian body.

John Clarke of Denver, Colo., international president, said the move "will free us from diabolical and malicious laws passed by the U.S. government."

Mine-Mill was expelled from the CCL and CIO in 1949 for alleged "Communist domination."

Acton Annexes 446 Acres

ACTON (CP)—Effective March 1 this town 15 miles east of Guelph, will be larger by 446 acres and richer by $400,000 in assessment.

The Ontario municipal board announced Tuesday it has granted Acton's two-year application to annex part of suburban Esquesing township. The board reduced the town's original request for 566 acres.

The area to be annexed, which includes two industrial plants, will give Acton an additional $400,000 in assessment and increase the town's population by about 100.

The township has opposed the annexation.

Metro Area Growing

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto is growing by leaps and bounds. Population of the Metro area, consisting of 13 municipalities, is 1,254,091, the assessment department said Wednesday. This is an increase of 81,456 since figures were released last January.

Dorothy McGuire Gives La Rosa Cold January Air

NEW YORK (AP)—Pretty Dorothy McGuire finally came right out and said it Wednesday—she has kissed and made up with her husband, thus giving singer Julius La Rosa the cold, January air.

Her host, Arthur Godfrey, shrugged off all credit for the reconciliation. He said he's no Cupid-type, although he's happy about the whole thing.

In Chicago, where he's playing an engagement, La Rosa was saying nothing.

Miss McGuire, one of three singing sisters on the Godfrey show, said in a brief statement:

"I have been reconciled with my husband, John Henry Brown. I am anxious for us to resume our normal lives without all this publicity. We are entitled to our happiness and our privacy. I do want to say that this is my own decision and that both John and I are very happy."

SERVED IN KOREA

Her husband is an army sergeant who served in Korea, and is due for discharge in three months. He and Dorothy, 26, were married in 1951, before she became a big name on TV.

Dorothy's romance with La Rosa came to light when Godfrey fired him. Publicists said at the time that she had been "lost humility."

La Rosa, who since hit a jackpot of wealth as an entertainer on his own, publicly announced at the time that he loved Dorothy and hoped to marry her.

Court of Appeal Rules Against Judge's Decision

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that jurymen should not put themselves in the place of a person accused in an accident case and try to imagine what they would do in the same situation.

The court criticized the action of Mr. Justice D. P. C. Kelly of the Ontario Supreme Court who was quoted as instructing juries at Whitby, Ont.:

"I suggest that you put yourself in the seat of his car."

The Appeal Court said in a written judgment that it was "plainly improper for a juryman to judge the conduct of a person in given circumstances by considering, after the event, what he would or would not have done in the circumstances."

TO BE AVOIDED

Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw of the Appeal Court wrote:

"It is most desirable that the error should be avoided in future cases."

The court ordered a new trial in one of the two cases at Whitby under consideration. It upheld the jury's findings in the other case.

Mr. Justice Laidlaw, in discussing the "standard of care" by which a jury is to judge parties in a case, said:

"It is the care that would have been taken in the circumstances by a reasonable and prudent man."

Weddings

BALAZS—BEBEE

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Anna May Bebee, daughter of Mr. Marvin L. Bebee, Napanee, and the late Mrs. Bebee, and Mr. George Francis Balazs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Balazs, R.R. 1, Burgessville, took place recently in Grace United church, Napanee, with the Rev. L. D. McLellan officiating.

Miss Frances Reid, cousin of the bride, was soloist, and Mrs. B. M. Black was at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a floor-length dress of nylon net lorned lace over taffeta with a curved V-neckline, gathered princess style waist and long fitted sleeves. The skirt fell to a short train. A pearl-studded Juliet cap caught her illusion fingertip veil, and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and a white orchid.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Norman Babcock, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Balazs, sister of the groom, and Miss Jean Bebee, sister of the bride. Mrs. Babcock was dressed in cocktail length, off-the-shoulder net over satin sheath, styled on princess lines, with an off-the-shoulder neckline. She wore a flowered headdress and carried a bouquet of white carnations surrounded by Scotch pine sprayed with gold. The two bridesmaids were gowned alike in dresses of antique gold styled the same as that of the matron of honor, and they wore matching headdresses and carried bouquets of red carnations and Scotch pine.

Mr. Frank Balazs, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were, Mr. Anthony Holmes and Mr. Norman Babcock.

The reception was held at the Napanee Hotel where the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Fred Thompson, received the guests wearing a grey crepe dress, pink accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a royal blue dress and navy accessories with a corsage of red roses.

The couple left on a trip for points west. For travelling the bride chose a blue knitted suit, white fur jacket, navy accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Upon their return the couple will reside in Belleville.

Mr. Kenneth Box, hospital administrator, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. George Stobie, founder and first president of the Auxiliary, who captivated and enthralled her audience with her sparkling dedication of the growth of hospitals, especially of Belleville General Hospital from its inception by women enthusiasts to the present, and also of the advance of medicine from the 19th century to the present time.

Before calling on Mrs. Stobie to the introduction, said she was thrilled to be present, thrilled with the report, glad to have called on the Auxiliary, and now to be the chairman speaker on his happy occasion.

HOSPITAL GROWTH

In preparing her address, Mrs. Stobie stated to give her own version of the growth of hospitals, she had asked Miss Kathleen Rust, which she had at first intended using. Miss Rust is first hospital between Toronto and Kingston was built by women. Medicine looked after and nursing had retrogressed; it was still in the Greek age, and until the 19th century it partook of religion, and superstition. Disease was considered a visitation of God, and not until the 19th century were doctors allowed to dissect the human body by dissection, when medicine began to change. Hospitals began as "houses of houses," then advanced to places for the "indigent"; then were called "pest houses" or "fever barns", which eliminated the sense of pain, so it was used in operations, opening the way for the high level of surgery today.

The story were rambling stones to the use of anaesthesia in child birth, saying it was in opposition to the Bible, which stated: "In sorrow shalt thou bring forth children." But Dr. Simpson also used the Bible to refute this, by pointing out that when God made Eve he caused "a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and He took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof."

Queen Victoria used chloroform for her first child, and recommended it for her next one. Belleville hospital was founded just 20 years later.

Medicine was the great worry to the profession. In 1840 Pasteur discovered the bacterial theory of medicine, and later branched to the infection into people. Results now are directly due to Pasteur's work.

Dr. Lister of Glasgow, decided that bacteria caused bacterial infection of the womb, and this brought the first sterilization of gowns, instruments in operations.

LOW CLASS NURSES

In the early days nursing service was done by drunkards and prostitutes; choice was given to low layers of going to jail, or working in the hospital. This unlocks on the nursing profession was detrimental to the right people, but after Florence Nightingale took on herself the task of obtaining fresh air, water for the sick, and her aid in the Crimea with the 49 nurses she took with her, who were allowed out in groups of three only, a change came in nursing.

In 1903 a school of nursing was started; all would-be nurses were thoroughly investigated, which began to attract the right types.

In selecting a ... for the Belleville hospital, that where the Corbin Lock Factory stands was chosen and broke ... Here began the battle between the city and the country. The council granted $300 with the understanding no one was to be brought in from the country. A later site where St. Michael's is now situated and when in 1932 the present site was obtained. The ...intelligencer, of that day, said that the city was robbed in the price of $20,000.

HOSPITAL OPENED

In 1886 the hospital was formally opened with three nurses and $ beds. In 1895 there 9 nurses, in 1910 the new wing was added; in 1919 the maternity wing at a cost of $3,500, and in four years hospital was in male hands.

In 1922 men were first admitted to the board, and in 1924 the W.C.A. hospital was in male hands.

In 1927 the Auxiliary was started, which at first was not too enthusiastically accepted. All doctors' wives were asked to join. The war years were difficult years, but the working group was most harmonious. This was one of the highest expenditures of the speaker's life.

In 1948 the W.C.A. handed the hospital over to the city.

MODERN HOSPITAL PROBLEMS

"The problem of modern hospitals," said Mrs. Stobie, "is the high cost of care. Doctors have nothing to do with the cost; it is due to the period in which we live; drugs are expensive; the doctor's life is one of sacrifice; he is on 24-hour duty, while other labor has a 40-48-hour week.

More doctors have heart disease than those in any other line of work. But the benefits of modern medicine are incalculable; at Johns Hopkins Hospital a new attempt to cure cancer is by inserting a certain drug into the brain, and then exploding an atom bomb, and the cancer is done. Without modern medicine modern civilization could not exist; epidemics which ravage Europe would be with us again.

Medicine has prolonged life today with 50 years being average; children are healthier and happier and health abound through medical research; ability to give. Research men in the medical profession give life to benefit humanity. There is no end to work but through years of studying disease, diagnoses may be given. Medical practitioner is only humanity trying to do its best."

Mrs. Gilbert Scott expressed the thanks of the assembly to Mrs. Stobie for the word picture she had given of the growth of the hospital, leading up to the "Belleville General Hospital of today." She also extended appreciation to the committee of Tabernacle church which had been responsible for the fine luncheon served by Mrs. Box group, and the collection was also extended by Mrs. Forrester to Mrs. Stobie for her fine and instructive address.

Miss Pearl, director of nursing, added her thanks for the great work done by the auxiliary and the extras the patients needed. Bursaries were also made available to student nurses, with six bursaries at the present time.

OFFICERS ELECTED

For the nomination and election of officers, Mrs. John Buchan occupied the chair, while Mrs. Pinkis read the slate of officers. Those elected were: honorary president, Mrs. W. C. Miller; president, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Buchanan, 2nd vice-president Mrs. E. G. Kennedy; recording-secretary, Mrs. F. Pugh; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ben Burley; treasurer, Mrs. W. Dallas.

The new president, Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, occupied the chair while the past president, Mrs. Forrester placed the presidential pin on the former's shoulder, and presented the gavel, symbol of responsibility to assist the hospital in every way possible, especially of all attendances of the community.

Following the new executive was called to the front, where Archdeacon J. R. Cregan gave the closing prayer of benediction.

Mrs. Smith thanked the auxiliary in honoring her by the presidency, and asked for the co-operation of all members in the year that lies ahead, stating that it was her desire to serve the hospital to the best of her ability at all times.

A pleasing feature was the presentation to Mrs. Stobie and Mrs. Forrester of lovely yellow rose corsages by the Beta Sigma Phi.

Mrs. Fred Beeby was in charge of the P.A. system.

The address of Mrs. Stobie will be re-broadcast tonight over the local radio station.

Trenton Quinte Queen Lodge Confers Degree

Again Quinteno Rebekah will attend an inspiring and thought-stirring drama as Quinte Queen Lodge from Trenton, conferred the Degree of Rebekah on Mrs. Vera Reynolds on Tuesday night, a fitting memorial to the late Mrs. Thomas Wylie, who gave to Odd Fellowship first their great creed of fellowship, love and truth.

The lodge room was well filled with Belleville and Trenton members, also friends from Picton, as the Trenton team, under the able guidance of Sister Rose Smith, moved through the pageantry of history in the initiation ceremony with the voice of the Trenton soloist, a beautiful backdrop for the colorful ceremony.

At this time also a pleasant task was performed by Sister Phyllis Pringle, P.D.D.P., who installed Sister Florence Pollitt, P.N.G., into the office of recording secretary.

Immediately after lodge, an initiation and, as amusing as unmerative, was held by Sister Maurice Clancy, assisted by Sister Janet Twiddy.

In the upper hall, Sister Eva Judge, her co-worker Sister Janet Twiddy and their assistants, had prepared refreshments, beautifully arranged. Sister Webber favored the guests with a solo and Sister Mary Plumpton, N.G., called on Sisters M. Senkbeil, N.G., and R. Jones, V.G., of Trenton, for a few words of friendship. At this time, Sister June Carnahan, V.G., presented Sister Senkbeil, a gift in appreciation of that lodge's kindness of the evening.

Y's Menettes Club Enjoys European Travelogue

Guest speaker of the evening was Di Diamantides, general secretary of the YMCA, who gave an interesting and inspiring address illustrated by slides, on his trip to Europe this past summer.

A pleasant evening closed with refreshments served by the hostesses for the evening, Mrs. J. Pearson and Mrs. E. Wooding.

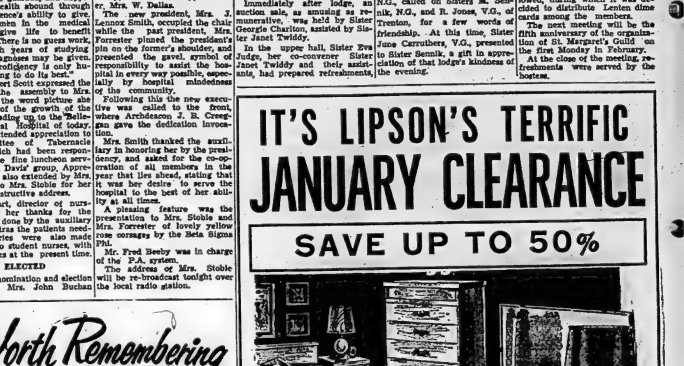
St. Margaret's Guild Elects 1955 Officers

St. Margaret's Guild held its January meeting on Monday evening at the home of the Rev. L. Arthur Page and Mrs. Page. The devotions opened the meeting with prayers, and welcomed the members present.

The president, Mrs. F. E. Moore, gave a brief survey of the activities and accomplishments of the, organization during the past year. The financial report was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. R. E. Wood. These reports revealed that the objective for the year had been exceeded.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The rector presided for the election of officers for the coming year, which are as follows: honorary president, Mrs. L. A. Page; president, Mrs. F. E. Moore; vice-president, Mrs. Emilie; secretary, Mrs. F. R. Clarke; treasurer, Mrs. F. Bradley; press reporter, Mrs. E. I. Davis.



A short business period followed, during which it was decided to distribute Lenten dime cards among the members.

The next meeting will be the fifth anniversary of the organization of the Ladies' Auxiliary Guild on the first Monday in February.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

LEAVE THE SHINNY NOSE TO RUDOLPH!

There's nothing appealing about a shiny nose on a girl—except on Rudolph's! Don't like perpetual powdering? Try this. Before applying make-up to nose, rub with a cotton ball soaked in witch-hazel. You'll find it staves off shining remarkably!

LO! THE MIGHTY MUNTER!

Dragging his weaken and wild ducks behind him! Give him a break—cook his game for him properly—he'll love you for it. Venison, remember, should never be overcooked, for it has no fat to keep it moist. Onion flavors beautifully, if does a half-cup of red wine in the roasting pan. Ducks should be wiped with a damp cloth, cooked quickly in a very hot oven. An apple or onion inside draws very strong flavor.

NOT BANANAS—BUT ANGORA—IN THE REFRIGERATOR!

If shedding angora sweaters give you trouble in the laundering, here's a tip worth remembering. Wrap them in tissue and keep in the refrigerator!

May sound odd but it works!

A BRUSH-OFF YOU'LL LIKE!

It's annoying and tiresome to have food particles stuck to a strainer when you're trying to wash it. Keep a fairly-stiff brush handy and whisk away the offending particles in a flash.

HAVE HAIR SILKY AS A KITTEN'S EAR!

A gal's crowning glory gets that way only with daily brushing—and here's a way to add extra gloss! Wrap your brush in a discarded nylon stocking, and brush for that usual way. Makes hair gleam beautifully. 150 strokes a day—300 if you've neglected it will do the trick.

OLD VIENNA

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MOTHER WANTS TO BE A CHAPERONE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My daughter, who is 19 years old, has a friend who comes to the house to see her every night and they don't like it because I won't go away and leave them alone in the room. I know that if I do go, they will sit and kiss each other and don't stand for that so I stay right there.

She gets very angry and says I don't trust her. I tell her I do trust her and don't believe she would want to do anything wrong but that such behavior might lead to a lot of trouble before she realized it.

I love my daughter very much and want her to have a boy friend just as other girls do, and to bring him to the house, but I don't want them just to sit alone and neck. Don't you think I am right? — Mrs. H. J.

Dear Mrs. H.L.:

On general principles, I think you are exactly right in feeling that your daughter and her boy friend should spend their evenings in a better way than petting. But I'm afraid you'll have a very hard time convincing her. At 19, she undoubtedly feels that she is too old to be told what to do, and if you tell her anything that she'll change her ways, you might find she would stop saving this boy come to the house and would go elsewhere.

It's understandable, of course, that two young people would prefer having a place to themselves to spend an evening together than to have an adult sitting around with them. A chaperone, sitting right in the room with a young man and his girl certainly does put a damper on any conversation.

Could it be that you have not gone about discussing things with your daughter in the right way, but have been so critical of her conduct that she has antagonized her and made her resentful? Don't you think that if you took a more sympathetic and understanding attitude, you might be able to make her realize that she is making herself cheap by wanting to spend an evening petting, and that she would certainly she will lose out in the end? You might suggest to her, not that instead of sitting around by themselves, it would be nice if your daughter invited some friends in now and then, or went to the homes of other friends.

If you find, however, that even a different attitude on your part gets you nowhere, then I advise you to choose the lesser of two evils and let your daughter alone. Tell her once and for all that you do trust her and that you have nothing more about the matter. Also, keep out of the way when the young man calls. Young people be even vague if you made it so uncomfortable for her at home that she would see her self of the house to less desirable meeting places.

TWENTY-NINE MONTHS IS A LONG TIME!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past nine months, I have been engaged to a fellow in the service who will be 20 years old in January, I am 18. We have known each other for two years.

My problem is that he has just been shipped to Germany, where he will have to stay for 29 months. We wanted to get married before he went overseas, but couldn't because he wasn't granted any leave. I want to go to Germany this Spring, so that we could get married there and I could be with him. I would plan to obtain a position there.

My parents, however, think I should stay at home and just wait for that 29 months. They say that if I went to Germany it would seem as though I am chasing after this fellow.

Please give me your opinion on this matter. I do want to do what is right.—I.P.

Dear I.P.:

If you are definitely engaged to this young man, and if you both are mature enough to realize the necessity of making, in advance of your going to Germany, a workable plan for your marriage and your life afterward, then I, personally, see no reason why you should not be free to do so. After all, an engaged girl can hardly be said to be "chasing after" the fiance, I am assuming, of course, that your fiancie is eager to have you join him as you are yourself.

Naturally, I can appreciate that your parents would be concerned over your going so far away, and being married away from home. But if you do work out plans that are acceptable to the proper authorities, and that will enable you to live the right kind of life, then I would feel they might fall in with your desires and help you carry it through. Twenty-nine months is more than a two years, and since you have known each other long enough to be sure of your feelings, I think it only fair that you should be allowed to marry and be together, if this can be done under approved circumstances.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

DON'T WAIT TO GIVE HOUSE-WARMING

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband and I would like to give a housewarming soon. But the upstairs apartment is not all furnished (and I presume it will be some time before we're in a position to entertain over-night guests), and neither is the downstairs garage or attic, nor the sun porch. Is it absolutely necessary, as we have been told by several relatives and friends, for us to postpone the housewarming until we can show the whole house complete?

— Frances A.

While it is, of course, ideal to be able to show the completed house at the housewarming, it is certainly not necessary to wait for this ideal time. When as much as possible is ready, invite your guests to "come to our new house for a housewarming" — and either close off the rooms not ready, or merrily show the unfinished room and tell the guests about your plans for its use and your ideas about decorating it.

SHOULD SHE WEAR HAT TO FORMAL LUNCHEON?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In 'days of yore,' say twenty years ago, when I went to a formal luncheon at the house of a friend, it was more for granted that we all wore hats to and during the luncheon. For the past several years I haven't worn a hat to a really formal luncheon, but now I've received an invitation to one, and I'm not sure whether or not I should wear a hat. Should I?

— E.F.

Today there's a wide leeway about this, and in most circumstances you may do as you wish, whatever is your custom, whatever you consider most comfortable. If the luncheon is to take place in a house in a large city, you would probably wear a hat . . . even the brief wisp of a hat, often not more than a baudeau, now and for some years back a highlight in the fashion-scene (see drawing). If the luncheon is to be in a house in the country or in a suburb, you may wear a hat, if you wish, but you'll undoubtedly find that many of the guests will come hatless to the luncheon.

CONCERNING THE SERVICE OF SHERRY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other afternoon I went to a large tea-party given by a very charming and sophisticated friend of mine. She had her dining room table, and the guests went there to be served tea, sandwiches, and prettily-decorated petits fours. On the sideboard, on a well - opposite the table, was a service of sherry: the sherry in a decanter on a quite large silver tray, seven or eight sherry glasses, and a plate of bland biscuits. I asked myself was this type of service before tea is sherry considered an alternative to tea, or is it supposed to be drunk after the tea has been served?

— V.S.

A "sophisticated" hostess very often does follow just the tea-party procedure you have described . . . having the tea served on the dining room, rather than on a table in the living room, and providing a sherry-service. Sherry is an excellent alternative to tea. At a tea-party it may be an intended alternative to tea, or a guest may choose to have a glass of sherry after the serving of the tea.

Beauty

TRIMMING THE WAISTLINE

When a woman realizes she is taking on weight, that her hips are heavy and her girlish waistline has followed a path of expansion, she is likely to be depressed.

Let her face dietary facts. Was it the last piece of cake that passed her the cream puffs, the chocolate cake and the rich candy? Was it the hand of Fate that pushed her down into a comfortable chair when she should have been doing a few exercises?

Those guilty sounds are of her own making. Too much delicious, rich food and not enough muscle activity! Instead of working off her calories, she has stored them away in the form of bulges.

Women who have will power can regain their figures. Too many refuse to forego the pleasures of spotting foods and go right on collecting fat cells. Dieting is no great hardship. The rewards are well worth the effort.

Fats, starches and sweets build adipose tissue. They should be cut down, but not entirely deleted from the daily fare because they create energy. One can have lean meat, fish, eggs, vegetables, fruit, fruit juices, Sweet desserts and cereals are definitely out. Tea and coffee should be taken clear.

Here is an exercise that is a humdinger for reducing waist, hips and thighs:

Stand tall, chest lifted, tummy in, feet five inches apart. Lift the hands high above the head, bend forward at the waistline, keeping the legs rigid. Touch the right foot with the left hand, then touch the left foot with the right hand.

Hastings County Anglican S.S. Staffs Meet at Christ Church

The Anglican Sunday school staffs of the district met in Christ church parish hall on Friday last with members attending from all points: Bannockburn, Trenton, Madoc, Stirling, Milford, Frankford and Bancroft, Belleville staffs were the hosts: St. Thomas, St. Margaret-on-the-Hill, St. George's and Christ church.

Mrs. Kempston and Mrs. Wright kindly volunteered to prepare the tables. Tastefully laid and decorated with flowers, the dinner looked as appetizing as it was later found to be. St. Thomas' supplied the scalloped potatoes which really puts them in the chef's class.

Mr. Ray Lennox welcomed the clergy and their teachers.

Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan remarked on the good turn-out, 85 in all, including nine from Bancroft. A short address by the president, F. K. Neal, of Trenton, opened the meeting.

ACTIVITIES PRESENTED

Activities of the Sunday schools were presented:

Bannockburn gave their students prayer books and Bibles.

Stirling reported a successful Nativity pageant and advised all members to attend this next year.

St. Thomas' remarked on the increase in all Sunday schools, showing a healthy condition.

It was suggested by Mr. Benson that reports should include the number of pupils and teachers, clerical staff, finance and equipment.

Trenton reported an increase of 60 per cent.

Bancroft and Frankford both showed steady progress.

NEW PARISH HALL

Milford have a new parish hall resulting in a well organized Sunday school.

Madoc is operating successfully, in spite of close quarters. The church choir presented a Christmas concert for the children.

Christ church is hospital at the seams. The church and parish hall are filled with children every Sunday morning at 9:45. Space is urgently needed for expansion. A new Bell and Howell projector has been purchased. Attendance is over 83 per cent. The Christmas carol had to be replaced by parties. This was regretted, but the parish hall is simply not big enough to hold the children even if no parents came.

The annual White Gift Sunday was again a big success. The children bring gifts for less fortunate families.

St. Margaret's now have a projector used as a visual aid providing variety and improved teaching.

CHIEF SPEAKER

The principal speaker, the Rev. Ogren Johnston of Bancroft, spoke on "Juvenile Delinquent". He said he might have spoken on the parents' place in the Sunday school, but most parents just wait outside to take the children home. Another topic "Sunday School Papers", was discussed because they sometimes provide good material for scrapbanes and darts. Most unintersting.

Mr. Johnston stated that "boys are not bad, in fact "delinquents" were far more receptive to church teachings than our own boys." He told of boys he knew, when he was attached to a school for delinquents in Kansas, and in all cases they came from broken homes— divorced, or criminal parents. "The home", he continued, "is the base for training. Sunday schools, a valuable extension. Teachers cannot be too careful because children love to imitate and look to them as example."

His bishop in Kansas, U.S., Bishop Nichols, who had to leave Japan after 40 years' service, was the boys' hero. They would miss games and shows to be with him. Whenever he entered the room where the boys were he saluted them in the Japanese manner—shook hands with himself and sat on the floor.

Mr. Johnston invited the members to Bancroft for the next meeting in May. Secretary Ralph Anderson of Stirling, will announce the date.

The Rev. W. J. Robinson of St. Thomas, thanked the speaker for his talk and invitation.

Women's Guild Hears Address On Probation Work

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held in the Manor last Thursday, with the president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, presiding.

Annual reports for the year 1964 were submitted by the treasurer, Mrs. S. Hibbard by the secretary, Miss Emma Pantry; by the convenor of the program committee, Mrs. T. K. Franklin and by the convenor of the social committee, Mrs. T. C. McMullen.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. E. C. Irvine.

Mrs. Beverly Shaw, accompanied by Mrs. M. Duff, sang two solos which were much enjoyed.

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker of the afternoon was Mr. D. MacKinnon, who was introduced by Mrs. Gilbert Smith. Mr. MacKinnon gave an interesting address on the subject of his work as probation officer of the Family and Juvenile Court of Belleville. He stressed the importance of this court in dealing with juvenile delinquency. Many young offenders can be reclaimed who might otherwise become hardened criminals.

Mrs. Finkle thanked Mr. MacKinnon for his instructive and interesting address. After the meeting closed, tea was served.

Eggs Feature In Many Tempting Meals

Did you know that eggs are one of our most valuable foods? They are considered valuable, not only from the standpoint of food value, but for economical reasons as well. With eggs so plentiful and so reasonably priced on the market today, the budget-wise homemaker will do well to feature eggs regularly on her menu. Eggs may not be the answer to every meal problem but they certainly come close to it. They can be used in some way in almost every course and in almost every meal. They not only taste good, but they are easy to cook as well. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture suggest some ideas for egg dishes to satisfy January appetites.

It is a well-known fact that a breakfast containing protein is a satisfying one and makes one feel better and less tired after a long morning's work. Eggs can make light breakfasts these winter days and there are ways to cook them that will please everyone in the family. Breakfast eggs can be cooked, shirred, poached, scrambled, served soft, medium or hard boiled or fried. For Sunday morning breakfast French toast or a fluffy omelet served with crisp bacon adds variety.

Eggs can be a great help in planning lunches or suppers. Egg sandwiches go well with a piping hot bowl of soup and, if there is a young cowboy in the family, be sure to serve him western sandwiches now and then. To make the filling, chop some onion, green pepper and ham and add to a well-beaten egg with a little milk and salt and pepper. Cook in a greased pan until egg is set on both sides. Hard cooked eggs may be sliced or devilled and used to garnish salads or luncheon dishes. Waffles or omelets served with sausages or bacon are other suggestions for lunch. Then, for a party luncheon, try cheese souffle.

Eggs may be baked and used in various casserole dishes. Try them in a medium thick cream sauce, cheese or tomato sauce seasoned with onion or a little curry. Pour it into a greased casserole and let stand a few minutes until depressions can be made in it with a spoon. Now break the whole eggs into the depressions and top with buttered crumbs. Bake this in a moderate oven long enough to allow the eggs to become firm.

Now we cannot forget egg desserts such as custard with all its variations. One of the most interesting ones is Floating Island and children love it. Instead of putting the egg whites into the custard itself. Whip them us separately and add sugar to make a meringue. Put this topping on the cooked custard and brown in a moderately slow oven.

There are many other delicious desserts made with eggs such as fruit whips, eclairs and cream puffs with rich cream or custard fillings. We must remember, too, the great variety of pies which may be made with a custard filling as a base. Lemon pie is always popular but for variety use the same filling recipe for lemon tarts and top with a soft meringue.

Baked Alaska is nice dessert that homemakers are often afraid to try. To make one place a brick of ice cream on a layer of sponge cake cut about an inch wider and an inch longer than the ice cream. Then prepare a meringue by beating egg whites and gradually adding sugar. Now cover the ice cream evenly with the meringue making sure that there is no ice cream showing. Bake on a board in a hot oven 450° F., until the meringue is slightly brown, about two or three minutes.

With eggs so plentiful, it is a good chance to make more of those delicious feathery-light sponge, angel or chiffon cakes. Left-over egg yolks may be used in a gold cake or sponge cake. A standard white cake may be topped with one of those fluffy egg-white frostings. For afternoon tea place meringues and macaroons made with egg whites high on the list and, when making cookies for hungry youngsters, choose a recipe containing whole fresh eggs.

Social Secretary to Pakistan's P.M. is Canadian-Born Girl

By JAMES SHERIDTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Official visitors to Karachi are introduced at gatherings in their honor to a dark-eyed young Canadian - born woman who has met royalty and many heads of state in the Pakistan capital.

Alya Saddy of Edmonton is social secretary to Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan.

When she first left the dry cold of Edmonton for hot and humid Karachi Miss Saddy assured her mother: "Perhaps it will be only for six months." That she's been there for 18 months and will be returning to Karachi at the end of January when her current holiday here is over.

OF SYRIAN DESCENT

Miss Saddy was born at Wardlow in southern Alberta and educated in Edmonton. Her father and mother met and married in this country. Both came from a Syrian area which now is part of the Republic of Lebanon.

In an interview here Miss Saddy had many tales to tell of her experiences in the East, capped last summer when she made the Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca in Saudi Arabia.

This journey, she said, fulfilled a dream of her father, Mahmoud Saddy, who died in 1931 before he could make the pilgrimage himself.

As one of the party accompanying the Pakistan prime minister, Miss Saddy travelled in an aircraft provided by the late Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. They flew to Jedda and there motored along a modern highway through the desert to Mecca, passing pilgrims coming from all over the world to the holiest spot in Islam.

The party followed the path of the Prophet Mohammed throughout Mecca and surrounding religious monuments, including Mohammed's tomb at Medina.

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Miss Saddy first met Mohammed Ali socially in Ottawa in 1949, when he was Pakistan's high commissioner in Canada. They met again when he made a western tour and in January, 1953, she went to work in the Pakistan high commissioner's office at Ottawa.

When Mohammed Ali was appointed Pakistan's ambassador to the United States the following December, Miss Saddy went to Washington as his social secretary. She moved on to Karachi in April, 1953, when he became Pakistan's prime minister.

SEES MANY CAPITALS

When the Pakistan prime minister attends conferences or makes visits to other lands, Miss Saddy goes too. She was at the Kashmir talks in New Delhi, at the meeting of Asian prime ministers in Colombo, Ceylon, and has been to Turkey, Egypt and other countries.

In Karachi she handles the prime minister's personal mail and works of files, visits hospitals and refugee colonies. She attends parties for visiting dignitaries who included Prime Minister St. Laurent last year, during this world tour.

The job, she says, "keeps me busy."

Miss Saddy told how women are taking an increased role in the affairs of thriving Pakistan. One tenth of the seats in both federal and provincial parliaments now are reserved for women, and there is even a women's national guard.

Wife of Mexican Official Likes Canadian Cold Weather

By PEGGY THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Cold weather and heavy snowfalls probably make some Ottawa residents dream of a warm, cozy life in the tropics — say Mexico, for instance.

Mrs. Salvador Pardo Bolland, wife of the Mexican charge d'affaires, isn't one of them. She likes cold weather.

"Perhaps it is because we spent so much time in tropical pools," she said in an interview.

CENTRAL HEATING HELPS

Or, maybe, she says, it is because cold countries go in for central heating. In countries with short winters houses might have nothing but an occasional fireplace and no storm windows.

Regardless of her approval of Canada's climate and that of Sweden, where the Bollands spent two winters, Mrs. Bolland thinks her native Mexico City is the ideal place to live.

MODERN GARB

She has one regret about present-day Mexico.

The Mexico of brightly-colored peasant skirts and huge sombreros as depicted by the picture postcards now exists only in some inter ior villages and during fiesta celebrations.

But the traditional Mexican art of silver work still flourishes even in modern surroundings, Mrs. Bolland has several samples of hi heavy large, tastefully - furnished home.

Mrs. Bolland, though born in Mexico, grew up in Louisiana. Her father was American, her mother Mexican.

Besides English, with a slight southern accent, she speaks Spanish and French. This stood her in good stead for some part-time work. She organized two international cardiological congresses and edited an allergy journal.

FROM MEXICO

Mrs. Salvador Pardo Bolland, wife of the Mexican charge d'affaires at Ottawa, likes Canadian winters by considers Mexico city an ideal place to live. One of her hobbies is collecting traditional Mexican silver art work. (CP Photo).

'Neighborly News' Will Mark 15th Anniversary

TORONTO (CP)—Surveys have shown that listeners in the big cities like to tune in the "neighborly news" radio broadcasts which every Sunday attract widespread rural audiences.

A special national broadcast on Sunday evening, Jan. 30, will mark the 15th anniversary of this program, long built up with items garnered from weekly newspapers across the country.

Stories of happenings in village and farm often have wide appeal, while hunting and fishing news attracts sportsmen everywhere. The little triumphs and tragedies of rural life interest many city dwellers.

FAMILIAR VOICES

While the 15th anniversary spotlights specifically to the Ontario broadcast, the special program will be heard nationally over the CBC trans-Canada network. It will include the voices of neighborly news correspondents across Canada—Les Way, British Columbia; C. F. Greene, Prairies; Don Fairbairn, Ontario and Quebec; Jack Brayley, Maritimes, and Gerard Brady, who does a Wednesday version of neighborly news in Quebec.

W. B. Sawdon of the Sackville (N.B.) Tribune-Post, president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, is the scheduled guest on the show.

SINCE 4 BEGAN

Fairbairn, who will act as host, has been on the broadcast ever since it began, starting as announcer and becoming the producer. He took over as commentator seven years ago after the death of Andy Clarke, popular Toronto newspaper man who through his association with the program was dubbed the mayor of the little places."

Over the years the program has been produced from many different communities as special events such as a "old home week" or some local celebration.

A CBC report says more than 30,000 items have been used from Toronto as well as the many versions and incidents of the small town, village and countryside.

Coloring the program began greetings have been extended to some 40,000 persons in Ontario and Quebec entering the ranks of the "overninety birthday club."

FIRE FOUR COPS

MONTREAL (CP) — Four city cops—three of them inspectors—were fired Wednesday by the city executive committee. A fifth was formally suspended. Dismissals of all four had been ordered by Mr. Justice Francois Caron last October in his report of a judicial inquiry into police toleration of vice.

TO MEET MONDAY

MONTREAL (CP) — City officials will meet Monday with Lionel Chevrier, St. Lawrence Seaway Authority chief, to discuss plans for linking the city with the south shore of the St. Lawrence river. Members of the city's public committee and of the civic subcommittee studying potential traffic of the seaway on greater Montreal are expected to attend.

LYNX RUNS INTO TROUBLE "DOWN SOUTH"

Mistaken for a wolf, this lynx is believed to be the first one ever shot in the district around Aylmer, Ont. Levi Schaitzy, a St. Thomas trapper, said he was out on his trap line near Sparta when the animal appeared about 50 feet in front of him. Thinking it was a wolf, he shot it. The animal, which stands three feet high and weighs 50 pounds, is not native so far south. Daniel Neill, at left, St. Thomas game warden, was on hand to identify the animal. Farm Leaders' Program Given Cool Reception

OTTAWA (CP) — Prairie farm union leaders hope to find support today among opposition members of Parliament for their plan of a two-price system for farm products.

The program, involving government support of farm products at 200,000 - member Interprovincial Farm Union Council, said the meeting with the ministers was one of the best the council has ever had.

"We had a rational discussion on parity prices, but I wouldn't want to leave the impression the ministers favored it," he said.

The 14-member delegation later presented the plan to Liberal members of Parliament and today planned to approach opposition members.

The program calls for pricing farm products for sale in Canada at government-supported levels adjusted to meet changes in living costs. It is called parity pricing because it seeks to keep the farmer's return in line with his operating costs.

Canada's Senate Will Work Harder

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate is going to work harder at its current session.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the senate, indicated this Wednesday in a report to the Upper House on its work this session.

Mr. Macdonald said he recently brought to the attention of the Government requests last session by senators that more legislation should originate in the Senate.

As a result of the representations, Mr. Macdonald said, five government bills already have been introduced in the senate. He said he hopes that as the session progresses more bills will be introduced in the Upper Chamber.

Year in, Year Out Announcer's Job Best Work in TV Shows

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Being an announcer instead of a star in radio and television has its compensations, says deedy - voiced Nelson Case.

"The performer's work is more interesting to do artistically," he declared, "while ours basically is a salesman's job.

"But so far as going along steadily year in and year out, this probably the better end of it."

Case, who started at 17, has been an announcer more than 25 years longer than the careers of all but a handful of performers and he hopes he has a good few left.

While the star of any show usually gets more pay than the announcer, Case says, it also requires more of the star's time and the difference in pay by the hour is not too great. The announcer in turn is able to do more shows than the performer.

Case, for example, appears weekly on NBC-TV's Red Buttons and Jack Carson shows and on CBS radio and television for the daytime Road of Life series. He also does filmed and recorded commercials.

However, Case says life as an announcer also has its problems.

For one thing, he realizes that the sponsor who pays up to $60,000 for half an hour does so for the three minutes of commercial announcements by the announcer, which comes to $20,000 a minute. The announcer, he says, feels a particular responsibility to do his part as perfectly as possible.

There's also the problem known in the trade as product identification. An announcer may be able to do commercials for several entirely different types of products out it's difficult to switch from one brand to another of the same product.

Case began announcing in his native Long Beach, Calif., and joined NBC as a staff announcer in San Francisco in 1931.

He has appeared on most of the big programs in radio and many of the leading TV shows. He is married and has two children. Nelson, Jr., is a student at the University of Miami (Fla.) where fellow students kiddingly call him "Lower Case."

Max Liebman's latest spectacular, the Victor Herbert operetta "Naughty Marietta" telecast Saturday night, was one of his best in color, in black and white and in color. Lovely Patrice Munsel, whose voice is pretty as her face, dominated the production but had able vocal and dramatic support from Alfred Drake, John Conte and Gale Sherwood, among others.

Turbulent Year On Labor Front Is Seen in U.S.

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions are shooting for some big economic gains in 1955 and United States government officials say they are expecting a turbulent year in labor-management relations.

A sampling of sentiment among union leaders shows they feel this way: "If ruthless is going to be as good as businessmen say, we want a share of the gravy."

The U.S. unions acknowledge that they did reasonably well in 1954 when—at least in the spring and summer—the business outlook appeared rather dark. With economists generally predicting better conditions in 1955, the union men figure "there should be more in the kitty."

SPAIN HAS ATOM-RESEARCH PROGRAM

Spain is hard at work in the atomic research field in a program that has been going on for almost five years. While the work is classified as to details, it is known that the country will soon use atoms on several peaceful purposes, particularly in industrial and medical fields. The laboratories of the National Nuclear Board are located near the University City in Madrid. Here some 60 technicians are at work on day and night shifts. Here, top, one of the laboratory technicians is shown checking an accelerator and, above, a view of the control panel of one of the accelerators. (Central Press Canadian).

Queer Things Happening on Volcano Believed Extinct

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

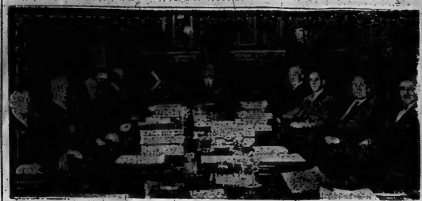
NEW PLYMOUTH, New Zealand (CP)—Mount Egmont, a volcano 8,200 feet high on the west coast of New Zealand's North Island, is supposedly extinct. But queer things have been happening recently.

Residents hear thunder from a clear sky. They feel jolts, thumpings and shock waves which stop clocks but do not register on seismographs. They find fish washed up on the shore as though dynamited and patches of muddy water in a calm sea.

Some say the growls and rumblings that disturb their sleep come from the mountain; others say from the ocean. A group of geophysicists engaged in a survey for oil heard three distinct explosions from the mountain, yet no sign of volcanic activity has been found.

The natives of New Zealand, the Maoris, declare there is nothing queer about it. The whole thing can be explained from their legends.

The Maori story is that Mount Egmont once dwelt with other volcanoes in the centre of North Island. But there was rivalry for the love of the female mountain, Ruapehu. Egmont was defeated and fled to the coast where he paused to lick his wounds for several centuries.



Some day, the Maoris say, Egmont will strike back at his hated rival in a fiery eruption. That rival, the volcano Ngauruhoe, has been shouting defiance for several months in its most violent eruption in living memory. Egmont, the Maoris declare, is at last beginning to stir in preparation for a devastating counter-blow.

This could all be dismissed as fable except that scientists have proved that the greater part of one of the volcanoes in the centre of the island was in fact blown away in a colossal upheaval some time in the past. And geologists have found that the river which runs from the centre of the island toward Egmont follows the line of a distinct volcanic rift.

And to this day the Maoris, who usually had a practical reason behind their legends, are opposed to living along the line between the central volcanoes and Egmont.

While not accepting the Maori version, the government is nevertheless concerned at the possibility of an eruption of Egmont, once believed to have been extinct for thousands of years.

Weather Balloon Found on Farm At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — A weather instrument parachuted to earth in a field on the farm of Fred Stephens, English Line Road, about two miles from Campbellford. The instrument was discovered by Mr. Thomas Hodges, who noticed a red object in the field on the evening of December 31st. He didn't investigate it until the following day, and then discovered that the red piece of cloth was a small parachute. Attached to it was a metal box, about the size of a small mantel radio, and on top of the box was a glass tube about ten inches long, which tapered to a point. Working parts were contained in the box and glass tube.

A light similar to a flashlight bulb was attached to the apparatus and a tag also was attached. The tag revealed that the purpose of the apparatus was to obtain weather data in the stratosphere at least 14 miles above the earth's surface. It was the property of the U.S. Army (Signal Corps) and had been released at Niagara Falls Airport, Buffalo, N.Y. The date of release was December 30th, indicating that the instrument had flown about 200 miles and arrived on the Stephens farm in Seymour East, sometime during the following day.

From the labelling of the apparatus, it is apparently known as a Radiosonde Modulator. Directions regarding the return of the instrument requested of the finder also appeared.

DISCUSS ATOM-FOR-PEACE PLAN

At United Nations headquarters, where delegates to the seventh nation advisory committee of the U.N. international scientific conference meet are Dr. I. I. Higgins, professor of physics at Columbia university, left; United Kingdom scientist Dr. J. V. Dunworth, centre, and Russian scientist Dmitri V. Skobeltzin. The delegates were welcomed by U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, after which they got down to work in a closed meeting to lay the groundwork for the conference to promote the atoms-for-peace program instigated by President Eisenhower and supported by Great Britain. Use of Prisoners Said Justified

WINNIPEG (CP)—The use of prisoners in the Brandon provincial jail to harvest potato crops and de-pain the Brandon police office was justified, says Attorney - General Ivan Schultz of Manitoba.

He said Wednesday that a newspaper report alleging that jail prisoners had been used as "slave labor" was "either incorrect or grossly exaggerated."

Mr. Schultz' remarks were contained in an official report on an investigation mad following charges made by the Winnipeg Tribune.

SOCIALISTS OUST 16

PARIS (Reuters) — The French Socialist party executive decided late Wednesday night to expel 16 National Assembly deputies who voted against ratification of the Paris agreements to rearm West Germany. The 16 can appeal to the Socialist national congress which has been called for Feb. 5 and 6. They broke party discipline in the crucial debate.

DIE IN BRAZIL CRASH

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—A Brazilian air force plane crashed Wednesday near Ilheus, the Meridional news agency said, killing eight airmen.

Toronto Group, Mello Macs, Wins Spot on Godfrey Show

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie McDonald, who six years ago was a delivery boy for an ice company, became home from New York recently with a mink bow tie.

Eddie, leader of Mello Macs rhythm singing quartet, had a solid set of theatrical bookings to go with his new tie.

He and his partners, former fellow-employees of the Toronto Transit Commission, took top prize on Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts television program. The result was a set of mink and alaska seal bow ties and a group of bookings.

HOUSE OF MUSIC

The youthful Eddie is one of a family known as the musical circus of Playter Crescent. The McDonalds' 12-room house holds four pianos, assorted other instruments and more musical echoes than the Grand canyon.

After winning on the Godfrey show Eddie turned down an offer to tour for a year with Tony Martin.

The McDonalds have handled everything from composing singing commercials to singing grand opera. Their list of instruments includes piano, harp, viola, double bass, trumpet, cello, trombone, violin, mandolin and a set of drums. "At which everyone takes a whack."

Mrs. Joseph McDonald, mother of the three girls and five boys, is the only non-musical member of the family. Mr. McDonald died five years ago.

WITH BELL SINGERS

At one time, the three girls sang with the Leslie Bell Singers, then at another, four of the boys and their father were members of St. Michael's cathedral choir.

It was during one of the McDonalds' uproarious parties about two years ago that Eddie got the idea for the Mello Macs. His brother Joe was fostering another singing group, the Crew Cuts, at the same time.

He said it was just a gag at first but since then the group has sung hundreds of dates. Their next tour will include Syracuse, Philadelphia and Chicago before they return to New York.

Music is a part-time occupation for most of the McDonalds. Mary, the exception, was musical director for seven productions by the late Rev. Daniel Lord and now is a teacher, professional pianist and vocalist.

WROTE COMMERCIALS

Catharine (Mrs. Frank Bolger) used to write singing commercials. Now she has four children to keep her busy.

Anna, a soloist at the Marian Pageant here, was given a scholarship by her employer to study French at Laval.

Bill is a teacher of viola and piano when not busy as an advertising executive or with his family of four girls and a boy. Joe plays piano, cello, double bass and trombone and is a lawyer. Jack is married and lives in Winnipeg and Alex, studying for a piano degree, is still at school.

The family credits father's firm hand with much of their success as musicians and now it proposes to pass some of the same on to nine up-and-coming grandchildren.

NOISE, PLUS INJURIES

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A homemade bomb exploded in the boys' washroom of South Oak Cliff high school Wednesday, injuring two students. Shortly afterward a 16-year-old boy admitted he set off the explosion "just for the noise." The bomb consisted of a three-inch firecracker glued to a board and covered with a tin casing and adhesive tape.

Plan Memorial to David Fife, Peterborough Man Who Helped Make Canada World's Granary

REFUGEE DOCTOR

Dr. Erwin Friedman, 29, celebrated Viennese psychologist, who fled Hungary in 1949 in the hope of finding freedom and a future in his life's work in the U.S., is shown as he arrived in New York. A specialist in the treatment of emotionally disturbed children, Dr. Friedman will teach at a school in Hawthorne, N.Y. (Central Press-Canadian).

OTTAWA (CP)—David Fife, the tall, thoughtful man who developed Red Fife wheat, was described in the Senate Wednesday as just about the most forgotten man in Canada.

Senator Joseph J. Duffus (L—Ontario) urged national recognition of the man who helped make Canada the granary of the world. He appealed for funds for a memorial in his honor.

Senator Duffus said the David Fife Memorial Society, organized three months ago, proposes to build a "living memorial" about 7½ miles from Peterborough, "within view of the spot upon which the famous Red Fife wheat was first grown."

Senator Duffus, chairman of the society, said the memorial would be a modern indeed hall and cost about $300,000. It would be erected on the banks of the Indian river along the route of the trans-Canada highway and would be known as Fife Hall.

TO MOVE HOUSE

It was proposed to move the log house occupied by David Fife to the site and complete construction of the present hall during the summer. The memorial would include plots for experimental purposes and would be open to the use of incidental fence.

Senator Duffus said David Fife produced Red Fife wheat on his farm in the township of Smith in 1842. It soon took the standard variety of spring wheat grown in Ontario for more than 60 years and led to the development of the famed Marquis wheat.

"The dramatic and intriguing story of the origin of Red Fife wheat is inextricably connected with the history of Canada," Senator Duffus said. "For 60-odd years after its discovery Red Fife wheat piled up tremendous wealth for Canada and its producers, helped to lay strongly and well the foundations of this great nation."

TO FEED ALLIES

Marquis wheat, a direct offspring of Red Fife, made it possible to feed the Allies during the First World War. Other varieties developed from Red Fife included Preston, Ladoga, Stanley and Kitby.

It played a major role in the development of the West and made Canada one of the world's chief grain-producing countries. However there has been no recognition of David Fife except a proposal many years ago to erect a cairn near Keene in Otonabee county.

"Canada owes more to David Fife than to any one man and it is time the debt was given national recognition," he said. "It is an indictment of the whole country that it should be necessary at this late day for a private citizen to plead for such recognition. Everyone should help to liquidate this 112-year-old debt."

Senator Duffus urged members of Parliament and industrial companies and farmers to contribute to the memorial fund. Gifts and donations should be sent to W. M. Gemmell, Dominion manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, Peterborough.

Will Reply to Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Cote said Wednesday he will reply later to charges of favoritism made in the Commons Tuesday against two top officers of his department.

Fernand Viau (L—St. Boniface) had charged R. J. Emerson, a Manitoba postal official, with having promoted over the heads of better men three persons in possession of "an unelected depository of power in the post office department."

Deepsea Ship Operators Question Need of Fighting Navy for Canada

OTTAWA (CP)" — Deepsea shipping operators question the need for a fighting navy for Canada if the country's merchant fleet is neglected in the process.

The Canadian Shipowners Association Wednesday approved a presidential statement by M. G. Cowie that Canada is expending decades as to financing a navy if it does not also make Canadian flag ships to protect.

In telling the association's annual meeting that Canada generally has declined to a 35-year low of 20 ships, Cowie said:

"Many Canadians must be asking what purpose is served in spending many hundreds of millions of dollars a year in building and establishing an extensive navy if its only purpose is to protect foreign shipping.

"If Canada does not need its own merchant shipping, why does it need a navy?"

The expansion plans under consideration for some time by the American Sheploines Ltd. at Nephton, Ont., can now be carried out due to installation of a railway line from Havelock to Nephton, which will cut down freight costs. CPR has assigned 80 of its covered hopper cars for constant use in moving the ore from the mill which is blasted from outcrop, seen above, which towers 350 feet above the surrounding country. With the advent of the railway, officials of the company have in view putting out ore a reduction mill. It will ultimately have a capacity of 50,000 tons of ore monthly or four times that of the present mill output. Nephline mineral deposits occur in quantity in many countries, but the ridge at Nephline is claimed to be superior in purity and for easy extraction to other known sources.

Mayor's Motion For Judicial Inquiry Lost

TORONTO (CP)—All four city controllers Wednesday turned down a motion by Mayor Nathan Phillips for a full-scale judicial inquiry into entertainment expenses in connection with a hotel suite.

The mayor, who promised the investigation would follow his election, asked for an investigation into the use of the room and the propriety of city entertainment expenditures since Jan. 1, 1952, when Allan Lamport, now Toronto Transit Commission vice-chairman, became mayor.

During the civic election campaign last month, it was charged that the city was being run from the hotel suite by a city hall clique.

George S. White Against Import Of N.Z. Cheese

OTTAWA (CP)—Government approval of importation of New Zealand cheese into this country was the worst slap in the face Ontario farmers ever received, George S. White said in the Commons Wednesday.

The Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario constituency of Hastings-Frontenac said the government has the necessary authority and machinery — and should use them—to prevent import of New Zealand cheese.

He was the seventh member of the Commons to bring up at this session the subject of importation of cheese from New Zealand and Australia.

Mr. White said industry receives tariff protection amounting to 25 or 25 per cent but that tariff on cheese amounts to only one cent a pound, or a protection of only four or five per cent.

Pilot's Call for Full Lighting Burned Out Fuse at Crumlin

OTTAWA (CP)—A pilot's call for all-out lighting at London's Crumlin airport, led to a lighting failure preceding the crash landing last Friday night which fatally injured Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders.

Transport Minister Marler revealed in the Commons Wednesday that a fuse burned out from the unusually heavy power load needed to meet the pilot's request as he struggled with ice-laden wings to make an emergency landing.

Mr. Saunders died Sunday of injuries suffered in the crash of the Hydro aircraft, which occurred 400 feet from the end of an airport runway.

Mr. Marler's statement followed questions in the Commons Tuesday by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) about the partial airport blackout and a report of an hour's delay in getting a stretcher to the crash scene.

He said the transport department learned that the rotating beacon and obstruction lights did not go out.

Lights on runways and runway approaches were under a separate control system permitting full run-way and taxiway lights, plus one set of approach lights, to be turned on at the same time.

"The control system, however, is not interlocked that the rotating beacon and obstruction lights did not go out, because experience has demonstrated that this is a necessary safety measure. If more than one set of runway approach lights are on at the same time, planes may be confused and use the wrong runway.

"At 11:49 p.m. the pilot asked for all runway and approach lights to be turned on, presumably because of the urgent situation in which he found himself.

"In view of the special circumstances, and in spite of the control arrangements, all lights were turned on but they stayed on for approximately one minute only and then a fuse blew out because of the overload on the system."

Mr. Marler said the traffic control officer in the airport tower immediately called the senior controller, maintenance foreman and field radio technician, and then the RCAF for crash and fire trucks. Trucks were lined up at one side of the runway by 11 and the pilot was told by radio what had been done. The lights were restored after being out for 20 minutes.

In connection with the reference to the time of arrival of the stretcher party, it is advised that the tower continued in radio communication with the aircraft until the emergency was over after midnight. At five minutes after midnight the tower telephoned the township and provincial police and the commercial exchange. The airport did not know at this time the exact location of the aircraft. The department does not, of course, operate an ambulance service."

Duplessis Sends P. M. Reply To Federal Tax Proposal

QUEBEC (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent will learn today what the Quebec government thinks of his plan to give money Quebec taxpayers a 15-per-cent refund on specific federal income tax.

Premier Duplessis Wednesday sent by registered mail a reply to the federal proposal. It will be studied at a one-hour meeting of the cabinet but the premier gave no clue to his views on developments in the Quebec-Ottawa taxation front.

His letter, believed to be two pages, "flows from Mr. St. Laurent's letter" tabled in the House of Commons Monday. He said no arrangements have been made to discuss the matter.

Officials of the government were silent on Quebec's next move.

Political observers, however, were sure Mr. Duplessis presumably is in no position to concede the structure of the Quebec income tax, now set at 15 per cent of the federal income tax but with higher exemptions.

The federal government's decision, made in the light of the federal tax structure, provided that the 10 per cent reduction will apply, except for 1954, to all 750,000 federal income taxpayers in Quebec.

Because the federal reduction—totalling about $30,000,000 — is spread over 750,000 taxpayers instead of the 300,000 who pay provincial income tax, some double taxpayers will still collect on a small scale for upper-income brackets.

To receive the possible $30,000,000 Ottawa will return to Quebec taxpayers in 1955 and 1956, the provincial government would have to

Aberdeen Angus Bull Brings $35,000 at Sale

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Alex Edwards of nearby Arva has sold an Aberdeen Angus for $35,000, top price ever paid in Canada for a grand champion bull.

The bull, Prospectmere, was purchased by Warren Bicknell of Greenville, owner of Sladola Plantations at Thomasville, Ga. Previous high price was $30,000 for a Hereford bull sold in Calgary, Alta., ever.

Prospectmere was one of 53 head of prize Aberdeen Angus cattle which Mr. Bicknell bought for $155,000, believed the highest price ever paid in Canada for a herd of comparable size. The remainder were females.

The prize bull was grand champion at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto in 1949, 1950 and 1951. He was reared on the Arva farm.

scrap its current tax structure and frame another agreed on the federal tax structure.

This observers here say, Mr. Duplessis is unlikely to do because he is already committed to higher expenditure, on church schools.

Senate Body Plans to Probe Use of Narcotics

OTTAWA (CP)—The growing use of narcotics, especially by teenage Canadians, will be investigated by a special committee of the Senate.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, announced Wednesday during the Senate question period that he will propose establishment of the committee. He said it would make a complete investigation of the problem, recognized by government officials as one of the worst menaces facing young Canadians.

Senator Macdonald also said unemployment is not as serious as "some people would have us believe," and that defence expenditures can not be reduced "if we want to survive."

NOT TRUE SOLUTION

He said punishment of addicts is not the solution to the narcotics problem. Some countries have tried it and have been taken to treat addicts and prevent further exposure of young Canadians to the pernicious practice.

There have been reports here that a joint Senate-Commons committee might be established to conduct the investigation but this is not the present will output. Nephline mineral deposits occur in quantity in many countries, but the ridge at Nephline is claimed to be superior in purity and for easy extraction to other known sources.

increasing use of narcotics. However, the minister has not yet indicated that it proposes to ask the Commons to participate in a joint study.

The increase in narcotics traffic in recent years was described by Senator Macdonald as a "growing menace in Canada."

"The public is in a shock this problem, however, is at the source—the manufacturers," he said in the distribution. . . ."

Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia) said the traffic "has got completely out of hand in the city of Vancouver."

The annual report of the RCMP for the year ended March 31 last said there has been a steady increase in narcotics traffic. Arrests during 1954 totalled 1,000 or 507 from 493 the previous year.

The report added:

"The cycle of periodic arrest, subsequent conviction and imprisonment of the addict has failed to make any appreciable progress towards correcting this situation. Any real hope for positive, long-term results in dealing more effectively with the drug addiction can only be achieved by the combined efforts of medical, social and enforcement bodies."

Builders Head Home to Desks And Plants Believing Building In Canada Will Be Up This Year

By FORBES HUDDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

QUEBEC (CP)—The men who find a $5,000,000,000 industry headed back to their desks and plants today.

As delegates—some 800 of them from coast to coast—they attended the four-day annual meeting here of the Canadian Construction Association.

At the $5,000,000,000 figure they account for nearly one-fifth of all Canadian activity.

No one, in the four days, so far as one could hear, expressed any doubt that Canadian building would become progressively greater. But they did agree competition was rugged.

SEEK MORE WORK

They apparently were determined to be not only builders but to attract an increasing share of the Canadian dollar into the bricks and mortar that mean building.

They even agreed they should not cut each other's throats in the process. Throat-cutting, more mildly expressed as bid - peddling, was the investigation job in Ottawa that it wasn't quite cricket to reveal to a friend that a competitor had bid a little lower.

And it wasn't cricket for a firm to lop off its own subsidiary companies that others were quoting a price for.

Especially, it wasn't cricket to say that some one was quoting a lower price when he wasn't the case at all.

Such things are the worries of the industry itself.

BUYERS SHOULD BEWARE

To some extent the buyer of construction means lower prices to the public. But, as one delegate put it, the buyer must beware. For, say observers, the buyer can depend that the builder will be there.

Some were inclined to think the note of good practice was only an expression of good intentions which at today's costs a too-low price tag might be forgotten in the rosiness of good intentions were something.

Others thought contractors would separate the sheep from the goats and eliminate unnecessary grace into the bidding procedure in the lush days of easy selling.

Looking Paper Over

TORONTO (CP)—Viscount Rothermere, publisher of the London Daily Mail and head of one of Britain's press empires, arrived here Wednesday was reported intervested in buying The Globe and Mail.

The Toronto morning newspaper was offered for sale earlier this month. Lord Rothermere said he is in Toronto "looking the newspaper over."

Canvases Owned By Queen, P. M. To Be Shown

LONDON (CP)—One of the biggest exhibitions of Canadian paintings ever assembled will open here including canvases owned by the Queen and Prime Minister Churchill was launched Wednesday with a private viewing.

The display, sponsored by the Ontario government and comprising 162 paintings, will be officially opened Friday by Field Marshal Earl Alexander. It is being shown until Feb. 4 in the galleries of the Central London department store, Fortnum and Mason, owned by Canadian business magnate Garfield Weston.

Most of the paintings are drawn from British collections but were selected and arranged by Britain by the Laing Galleries of Toronto.

Humanist Lecturer Sticks to Guns In Debate With Wife of Clergyman

LONDON (Reuters)—Mrs. Margaret Knight, soft-spoken psychology lecturer who embroiled Britain in a religious controversy by denying God's existence, broke in on two radio talks, has stuck to her guns in her debate with Mrs. Coggan.

She expressed her views firmly Wednesday night in a debate with the wife of the Rev. Frederick Coggan, vicar of Scottish clergyman. The BBC, which gave Miss Knight freedom of the air despite much criticism, now is braced for another storm after Mrs. Knight's debate.

Mrs. Knight declared that talk about "sin and redemption" and "original sin" is children's minds needs of "frightful intellectual problems which ripen when the child grows up and is faced "by all the evidence that science suggests that God's purposes are anything but loving."

The 53-year-old Aberdeen University lecturer touched off an uproar led by newspapers, church leaders and outraged listeners when she suggested last week that Christian parents tell their children that God is a fable like Santa Claus.

Mrs. Knight said Wednesday night that her quarrel is with dogmatic theology, doctrines of incarnation, atonement and redemption. She said she is primarily criticizing instilling of dogmatic religious beliefs into children.

"Surely any modern child must feel that there is something morally wrong in the idea of God giving His only Son as a sacrifice to appease His own anger," she said.

Mrs. Knight said she does not suggest that religion is a good thing for everything, but feels that best hope for humanity lies in the application of scientific methods to human problems.

"I do not disagree with it the view, so often put forward by Christians, that one can't love God unless one loves one's fellow men," she said.

Mrs. Morton declared that the scientific humanism which Mrs. Knight advocates leaves unanswered "the question of that reasonable hope which is demanded by all of whom great efforts are expected."

The greatest danger of humanist moral training, she argued, is that it "makes men fastidious rather than loving and resourceful."

New Dream Cars Go on Display In New York

NEW YORK (CP)—A crop of "dream" cars, some 26 production models, animated research and engineering exhibits and scores of other products built by General Motors Corp. went on public display at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today.

It was the formal opening of GM's newest and perhaps most lavish motorama. Late Wednesday and last night several thousand invited guests previewed the showing. Most of its features also were previewed on a one-hour network television program.

Eight "dream" vehicles were among the automobiles displayed. All but one were of reinforced fibre-glass construction. The V-6 engine shown in three of them still is strictly experimental, GM engineers said.

Aside from the showing of passenger cars, both present and experimental, there are items of musical revue, dozens of household appliances and a new model kitchen. Many of the kitchen's features are not yet in production. There also is a television screen with which the housewife may watch what is going on outside in the house, and a telephone that can be answered without even touching the instrument.

Government Reports Rising Unemployment Across Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising unemployment was reported Wednesday by the government, and further increases immediately demanded federal action to check it.

In its monthly report on jobs, the government issued these figures.

1. A bureau estimate of unemployment—based on a sampling survey—that at Dec. 11 there were 247,000 Canadians without work and looking for jobs, up 23,000 from three weeks earlier and up 57,000 from the same time in 1953.

2. A report from National Employment Service that at Dec. 9 there were 319,000 registered for jobs with that government agency was 262,000. This was an increase of 64,103 in three weeks and was up 24,615 from the same time a year earlier.

"SERIOUS PROPORTIONS"

Claude Jodoin, president of the 360,000-member Canadian Labor Congress of Canada said the bureau figures showed a "serious" increase over a year "leave no doubt that unemployment has reached serious proportions."

"Canada," he said in a statement, "is something more than a increasing seasonal unemployment coupled with chronic unemployment.

"This congress must take steps to bring the facts of the case first into consideration and take immediate measures to stimulate constructive activity throughout our Canadian economy."

DETAILS GIVEN

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the 372,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, said an "extremely conservative" estimate of current unemployment is 350,000 and predicted it will go beyond 400,000 during the winter.

In Montreal, Gerard Picard, president of the Confederation of Catholic Confederation of Labor, said the actual number of persons affected by total or partial unemployment "is 650,000 and maybe more."

At Toronto, welfare commissioner W. S. Rupert said Wednesday 42,000 persons are listed there as unemployed. He told the welfare committee the number is the highest since the depression of 20 years ago.

No Charges Laid

TORONTO (CP)—Two men who drove a sports car 117 miles an hour along the Queen Elizabeth Way not be prosecuted under the Highway Traffic Act, Attorney-General Dana Porter said Wednesday.

He said the law stipulates a charge must be laid within 30 days of the offence and the high-speed driving happened three weeks ago.

Eric Stevenson, writing in the January issue of Small Torque, publication of the Toronto British Empire Motor Club, said he and Chuck Bishop owner of the car, drove the sports model at more than to 117 miles an hour. The highway speed limit in Ontario is 50.

RAWDON

Mt. Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S. Holds Most Interesting Meeting

RAWDON—The January meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Smith with 19 members and four visitors in attendance.

The president opened the meeting with a New Year's thought and read an article regarding the missionary burden. Miss V. Kathleen Metherall, nurse at Ikoqe hospital, in India. This gave a vivid description of the new hospital, the family of workers, some of whom are now retired, and a small sketch about the patients.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave her report and following receiving business the yearly reports were given by the various secretaries.

In 1954, there were six life and 88 annual members with one coming in fully paid one letter dated possible. Twelve regular meetings were held with an average attendance of 16. Eighty adult visitors attended. Three attended all 12 meetings. Miller Keith, Florence MacMullen, and Nettie Potts. All meetings were reported in a month in the Gleaner; also all Mission Band meetings and other activities of the W.M.S. Seven letters of sympathy and cards were written by the corresponding secretary.

FINANCIAL REPORT

The treasurer remitted to the presbyterial treasurer $343.98. The thank-offering were $30.00 and givings by envelope $108.11 and mite-boxes $19.32. All offerings were by systematic givings.

The allocation at $300 will be "no silver tea."

The Mission Band under the leader, Miss Ruth Linn, remitted $117.21. They have 15 active members and six honorary members. They raised $34.80 from the sale of cards.

The Baby Band under the direction of Mrs. Percy Hoard, remitted $68. They had a bale sale and catering to banquets.

The supply secretary reported a working balance for 1953. Yarn, layette and quilt materials had been purchased. Cash forwarded to cover overseas parcels and a layette sent.

The members made 1228 home and hospital calls, an increase of 123 over last year. There were 11 subscribers to "Missionary Monthly" and 13 to "World Friends". The allocation was exceeded by $127 for the "Building Advance Fund."

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Rev. W. G. Fletcher installed the 1955 slate of officers. Jean Hicks favored the offering which Mrs. Roy Thrasher dedicated.

Mrs. Eric Summers presided over the program and Miss Ruth Linn officiated at the piano.

The worship service was based on "Evangelism — The Church's Business."

The Bible passages, found in Acts, were read by Mrs. Ed Richardson, Mrs. Grant Hubble Mrs. James Keard and Miss Ruth Linn.

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher gave the devotional paper and Mrs. Carleton Potts and Mrs. William McAdam sang a duet "For You I Am Praying."

Mrs. Roy Thrasher outlined the Chapter based on "The variety faiths (religions) in India" and this study showed how the feelings as a whole are a deeply religious people but there is a difference between Buddhism, Jananism, Islam, Hinduism, Hinduism and Christianity. Throughout the world a gigantic struggle for men's minds is in progress.

This chapter vividly pictures how the various faiths of India have influenced the lives of the people.

The memory of the late Mahatma Gandhi is greatly revered and he is referred to as "the father of our country", and the "architect of independence". Many Hindus believe that the wrong action of Hinduism is the only means of preserving religion. The Communists are aggressive for men's minds, but the Christian church is increasing daily.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

It is well to remember that in India, Burma and Pakistan the constitutions guarantee either religious liberty or protection of religious minorities. Christianity stands above all other religions and claims a Christ who is the Son of God.' Many Indian Christians like Bishop Azariah, Sarah Chacko, Mrs. Kenneth Maslh, Dr. Sundar Gaikwad are demonstrating that Christianity is pre-eminently a way of life."

The service closed with a hymn of fellowship and prayer.

Three ladies paid their membership fees.

The hostess served homemade candy.

Young Picado was graduated from West Point academy in the U.S. in 1951. He is married to an American, the former Susan Ellen Moir. At right is Lawrence D. Lee, Jr., 27, of Glendale, Calif., who told reporters in Los Angeles that he was an unofficial agent of the invaders. Mrs. Lee had previously said that her husband and Picado were high school buddies and had plotted the rebellion. The rebel radio said Picado's troops were anti-Communist. (Central Press Canadian).

NEW LEAGUE?

According to a story in a Toronto evening newspaper, the Peterborough Petes hold high hopes of joining a Central Ontario Senior "B" hockey league next season. The story quotes Jim Ellis' manager Jim Ellis as saying: "We're out with a six-club Central Ontario senior "B" league next season if we can get one team out of the Toronto suburban area."

Peterborough is ready to join Whitby, Stouffville, Newmarket and Orillia in the new set-up and a sixth team from Toronto would make it perfect," Ellis said.

He goes on: "We have nothing but the highest regard for our current senior "B" associates in Eastern Ontario, but the cost of travelling is killing us financially."

There isn't the slightest doubt that Whitby would jump at the chance to join the proposed loop.

The split upon the death-knell of the current Eastern Ontario senior "B" set-up. Senior hockey has returned to Ottawa and in view of the heavy transportation costs, it is reasonable to suggest that Cornwall and Brockville would move at least some where a return to the Ottawa Valley Hockey League. If such a thing comes to pass where will Belleville and Kingston fit in the scheme of things?

NOT HAPPY!

Whoever "dunk" up the idea of selecting National Hockey League all-star teams in mid-season, while not establishing too much, has definitely stirred up a hodge-podge of opinions as to who is the best player in the grand circuit.

King Clancy of the Leafs, blew his bidding krish top when his favorite centre-ice spotpon, Ted Kennedy, was left out of the ranks of the charmed sextet.

Yet Frank Selke, boss-man of the Montreal Canadiens, maintains that while Kennedy is a fine player he "lacks color and it goes against him in the voting."

And here's Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins, who comes up with the statement that the "Rocket" is the man "holding the Toronto Leafs up."

Frank Boucher, master mind of the New York Rangers, says he has opinion. Jean Beliveau is the greatest player in hockey today. "He's still developing," Boucher told Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll. "Why, he has a chance to become the greatest player in the history of hockey."

But Maurice Selke does not agree.. "Jean Beliveau is the smoothest hockey player I've ever seen, but the word 'greatest' must be reserved for Maurice Richard."

Richard, by the way, also missed the first all-star squad, but the selectors saw fit to put him on the second team. Kennedy may have some consolation in the fact that he is in line for the Hart Trophy, awarded annually to the player deemed most valuable to his team.

Meanwhile in Detroit, the sportswriters are digging up the record. They have disclosed that on January 11, 1954, the Red Wings defeated the Canadiens 2-1 and were never headed. They went on to annex the league championship by seven points. The scribes across from Windsor are pointing out, with probably much wishful thinking, that history is about to repeat itself.

It could at that. With Gergie Howe back into form and Ted Lindsay back in harness the Adams boys have taken on a new lease of life, aided and abetted right nobly by their new "Hustle Line" of Marcel Bonin, Bill Dineen and Dutch Reibel. Alex Delvecchio is proving Howe and Lindsay.

MORE RECORDS

The eyes of the senior "B" groups are centred for the moment on the corrushing Whitby Wrens, who have won seven games in a row, lost two and tied one in their last ten starts. Last night's bout with Kingston is not included. Cornwall has a 7-3-3 mark, the Mercos 6-4-5, not counting last night's fray; Brockville 5-5-5; Clinton 4-3-1 and the Petes and Kingston 3-7-0.

According to our esteemed contemporary east of here, there is no excuse for uncertainty in the Goodyears' camp over the decided slump now being enjoyed by the Men o' Dougall.

Mr. Rodden points out "most teams encounter losing strings that are difficult to explain. "The breaks," he says, "just go the other way but veterans of the game insist that all roads turn eventually."

Turning to statistics, Mr. Rodden points out that each team in the group has amassed more points at home than away, which, after all, is to be expected. Whitby tops the "away" points-getters with 15; Cornwall racked up 14; Belleville 13; Kingston 13; Clinton 11; Brockville 9 and the Petes 3.

Home point records are: Cornwall 34; Kingston 22; Belleville and Whitby 21; Brockville 20; Clinton 14 and the Petes 10.

Bathgate Deflates Detroiters Scoring Both Ranger Goals; Chicago Deletes 3-Goal Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's nothing the cellar clubs in the National Hockey League like better than knocking off a couple of the toughest teams in the game.

New York Rangers, for instance, must have been unusually elated Wednesday night when they deflated Detroit Red Wings 2-0 just when the Wings seemed to be shifting a scorching winning streak. The Wings only last weekend walloped Montreal Canadiens 4-3 and mashandled Rangers 3-0 to take over first place in the three-way race.

It was a different setup in New York Wednesday night. Andy Bathgate, the Ranger freshman sniper prospects, scored both goals as the Rangers handed the Wings their third defeat in 21 starts.

HAWES-LEAFS TIE

Then there was the engagement between the last-place Chicago Black Hawks and the third-place Maple Leafs at Toronto. The Hawks didn't win but they were trailing 3-0 in the second period before driving back to tie Leafs 3-3 before 7,063 fans.

The victory left Rangers in fifth spot with 57 points, one behind the fourth-place Boston Bruins and 25 off the Detroit pace. Hawks picked up single points for a total of 26 in 44 games.

Rangers, along with the Hawks, have been all but written off as NHL contenders this year, were hardly expected to be before 7,063 hometown fans. It was the third shutout of the season for goaltender Lorne Worsley. He was sensational in stopping 41 Detroit shots.

Bathgate, 22-year-old native of Winnipeg who once starred with Guelph Biltmores in the Ontario Junior League, scored his first goal early in the second period. He added the clincher with less than three minutes' left in the game.

TOOK A PASS

On the first goal, Andy took a pass from centre Edgar Laprade, the old smoothie, and scored on a 15-foot screen shot. He operated with Harry Howell and Laprade on the second one, slapping the puck past goaltender Terry Sawchuk's outstretched back.

Leafs took advantage of goalie Ray Frederick's stage fright in the first period to grab a 2-0 lead. They added another in the second when Danny Wilson, Johnny McCormack and Nick Mickoski beat teammates Harry Lumley to tie it up.

Centre Gerry Bailey and Ted Kennedy and utility forward Joe Klukay tallied for Toronto.

Attacks On Canuck Players 'Sour Grapes'

By JOHN BARROUR

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Michigan's hockey coach, Vic Heyliger, said Wednesday that attacks on Canadian players in American collegiate hockey by eastern coaches were "sour grapes."

Heyliger said the most recent attack came from Dartmouth coach Eddie Jeremiah. He said Jeremiah "has had losing seasons for so many years, he is from Missouri."

"Canadian boys in our hockey have improved the game tremendously," Heyliger said. "The Canadian influx has stimulated hockey at the college and civic level."

Heyliger acknowledged that the Michigan team had a good many Canadians as did other teams.

But, he said, "The Minnesota team is entirely made up of American boys and they should have won the national title for the last two years. We beat them two years ago—but we had no right to do it."

DONE WONDERS

"The Canadian boys have done wonders for hockey," Heyliger said. "In time there will be a lot more good American hockey players. Take away the Canadians and you'll really hurt the game."

Heyliger said that the University of Michigan was only 40 miles from the Canadian border and Canadian players found it easier to go to school here. "Most Canadian boys from Michigan's upper peninsula 800 miles away.

He credited the Canadian influence with making American collegiate hockey "one of the few money making sports" and in giving rise to a spreading civic hockey program.

"We have 248 boys playing in Ann Arbor leagues, 600 in Detroit, and others in Toledo, Ohio, Grand Rapids and the Soo Mich. There are widespread juvenile leagues in Minneapolis-Minnesota and North Dakota and six or seven years they'll be producing top - notch American hockey players."

United States Wins Hopkins Golf Trophy

By BOB MYERS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—California's winter golf picture shifts today to the Mission Valley Country Club on the outskirts of this city, where a field of nearly 150 players starts shooting for $15,000 cash in the 72-hole San Diego Open.

Leading the contingent is the winning Hopkins Trophy team from the United States, victor over a valiant Canadian team in the fourth edition of the series sponsored by the International Golf Association.

The Yankee shotmakers scored 17 points to 10 for the Canadians to win the award, inaugurated by John Jay Hopkins, wealthy industrialist, as a Canada-U.S. good will gesture.

The Hopkins, held for the first time in the U.S., was played at the neighboring La Jolla Country Club—6,583 yards; par 36-36—72.

U.S. LOST SOME

The U.S. scored 11 points in winning three, losing two and splitting one of the matches, and winning two and losing one of the doubles attractions.

Briefly, the results:

Singles—Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich., defeated Phil Fletcher, Saskatoon, 4-up, three points to zero; Ed Furgol, St. Louis, defeated Al Balding, Toronto, one up, 2½ points to ½ point; Henry Morrell, Edmonton, defeated Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., three up, 2½ points to ½. Jules Huot, Montreal, defeated Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, one up, 2½ points to ½.

Cary Middlecoff, Hammond, Lake, N.Y., defeated Bill Kerr, Montreal five up, three points to zero, defeated Al Balding, Kiamesha Lake and Stan Leonard, Vancouver, ended even, each with ½ points.

Doubles—Burke-Ed Furgol defeated Fletcher-Leonard 3 up, 2½ points to ½; Balding-Gordon Brydon, Toronto, defeated Middlecoff-Lloyd Mangrum, Niles, Ill., 3 up, 2½ points to ½; Barber-Marty Furgol defeated Martin-Kerr, 3 up, three points to zero.

Hungry Tiger Gobbled 'Sugar', Rusty Robby Easy for Jones

CHICAGO (AP)—They fed Sugar Ray Robinson to a tiger Wednesday night and he gobbled him up.

From all indications, it is the end of Sugar Ray's ring comeback, but Robinson, himself, insists he wants to continue.

Ralph (Tiger) Jones, dropped from the middleweight ratings after losing five straight, chewed hungrily after Robinson from the start of their nationally-televised fight in Chicago Stadium and sledged him almost at will for an overwhelming 10-round decision.

The International Boxing Club, looking ahead to possible big attraction of Robinson and Kid Gavilan in another month, appeared caught out of breath.

IBC secretary Truman Gibson, asked about any future bout for Robinson, an 8-1 ringside favorite, mustered: "I just don't know. . . I just don't know."

The former welterweight and middleweight titleholder, now 34 and who started his comeback after 20 months as a song-and-dance entertainer by saying Joe Rinaldo two weeks ago, was handed the worst beating of his career by Jones.

With his timing off, and with most of his best shots whizzing harmlessly past the Tiger's noggin, Robinson rustily tried to fight off his stalking foe with combinations that were weak imitations of the broadsides that he'd blasted a ring record of 137 victories in 143 bouts.

Time and again, Jones drove Robinson into the ropes and mauled him plithely. Sugar Ray's right eyebrow and nose bled throughout most of the scrap and at times his arms dangled as if helplessly weighted down.

All three officials scored it heavily for the 26-year-old Jones. Each fighter weighed 159 pounds. A crowd of 7,283 contributed to a gross gate of $27,419 and a net of $22,778. Robinson's share, including $4,000 from television, was about $12,000.

Memos Squeeze Out Single Point In 9-9 Overtime Battle With Petes

Disputed Goal Evens Score In Boisterous Extra Session Of Rugged Free-Scoring Fray

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Belleville Memos and the Petes battled to a 9-all overtime OHA senior "B" draw last night in a wide-open puck tussle. The tie left Memos in second place and the Petes still trailing the field. Erwin Duncan's goal at 3.46 of the extra inning salvaged a point for the visitors after Don Fryia had put the Petes on a 9-8 early in their abbreviated frame.

The final goal caused a hot argument by the Petes and resulted in indescribable penalties being handed to playing coach Eddie Redmond and goalie Jack Donlevy. The latter caught the puck in the scramble about the Petes' net and the referee didn't flash the light till ordered to do so by referee Maurice Walsh, who maintained the puck was caught just over the goal-line. Hitting a minor or penalty at the time, dashed out on the ice to argue with his mates.

SEESLING STRUGGLE

It was a sizzling struggle throughout, generally speaking, though a couple of fights threatened as the tilt progressed. Petes drew seven of the 17 penalties, all minors but the two final mis. coodoled by Referee Bert Hill was 'rut under the chin in the middle heat, but returned to action after being patched up in the third period. Each side counted a couple of markers with the other team a man short.

The homesters spotted Belleville a 2-0 lead early in the game but were only down 4-3 to end the first frame and they zapped in four straight to open the second period, being in front 6-4 going into the third. Memos outscored them 3-3 in this chukker to end the fray into overtime.

Several times the Petes held a goal lead but each time saw the Memos fight back to sew it up. The Quinte sextet has yet to win a senior "B" game on Petes' arch-rivals for this season, though they twice have held the Petes to a draw here.

Vern Geyer, Erwin Duncan, and Red Doran each scored a pair of goals for the Memos, with one apiece notched by Ted De-Gray, Arn Dugan, and Peter Jones.

Leading in assists were Hub Macey and Dugan with three each, Doran getting two, and the others going to Ed Duncan, Pet-ers-on, and Jones.

Chum Fryia paced the Petes in goals with two, singles being tallied by Ed Redmond, Bert Hill, Ted Collins, Bob Kennedy, Don Fryia, Gus Zeaman and Toodle Greenlaw. Two assists each went to Fryia and Redmond, and one apiece to Bill McMaster, Kennedy, Floyd Greenlaw, Hill, Leonard and Bill Crowley.

Both goalies kicked out a lot of hot rubber in the wide-open tussle, as both sides turned on the heat in every period. The rival forwards hustled both ways and the checking at defence often was plenty stiff.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson and Macey; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan and Geyer; alternates, Geyer, Muckler, Doran, Dugan, P. Jones, D. Jones, Bettiol, Day and Hull.

Petes—Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centres, Leonard; wings, Crowley and Fryia; alternates, Armstrong, Watt, Greenlaw, Kennedy, Collins, Hill, Floyd and Hunsault.

CHOOSE SATCHEL

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Leroy (Satchel) Paige, ageless Negro pitcher who took part in its first national tournament, was tagged by the National Baseball Congress Wednesday as most outstanding athlete in the "nationals." It picked Paige from the 18,240 players who have competed in the 20 national tournaments to date. He pitched for Bismarck, N.D., who won the first national non-pro tourney in Wichita in 1935.

Red-Hot Indians Whip Dutchies 5-3 As Chatham Trims Niagara Cataracts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons seem to be back on the right track in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League.

The fifth-place Maroons, trimly first by 10 points, scored their first victory of 1953 Wednesday night and it was an impressive 8-3 win over the last-place Niagara Falls Cataracts before 1,328 Chatham fans.

Meanwhile, in the league's only other game, the red-hot Stratford Indians notched a 5-3 victory from the league-leading Dutchmen in Kitchener to climb to within four points of third place. The Dutchmen through the Winner's Own Scout Indians to retain their six-point first-place margin.

The Chatham victory broke a five-game losing streak that went back to Dec. 28.

Jim Connelly's three goals were the offensive highlight of the night. The defensive star was Cataract netminder Don Lockhart, who kept the Maroons from cracking it a larger runaway with his marvellous goaltending.

Frank Bonello and Rod McElroy each added two markers for Chatham with Eddie Bosch scoring the other. Lloyd Ferguson fired both for Niagara Falls.

Maurice Leveque, a Kitchener eastoff, came back to haunt his old mates and led Stratford's attack with two goals. Harry Pavika, Bill Flick and Mickey Roth were the other snipers.

Jack McKenzie, Charlie Brooker and George Schoies shared the Kitchener scoring. A crowd of 2,606 saw the game.

Western Skaters Favored In 1955 Show

TORONTO (CP)—The East has held a monopoly on the Canadian figure-skating championships for the last few years but this winter it may be different. At least two western Canada skaters are favored in the East show.

The championships start today with competition in the junior ladies' and senior school figures. The ladies' event, with 18 competitors, has been split into two the three-day program.

Dianne Watson of Calgary's Glencoe Club, was among the top contenders in today's show. She was unbeaten in the west to Coast Shipsam, also of Calgary, in all events and was second in the over-all standings.

STIFF OPPOSITION

Pamela Willman of Vancouver and Karen Dixon of Calgary, who placed third and fourth last year, are certain to offer stiff competition.

The youngest entrant in today's competition is 11-year-old Pamela Gold, daughter of Otto Gold, trainer of Barbara Ann Scott.

Another youngster in the event is 13-year-old Sonja Soelling, sister of Charles Soelling, last year's senior men's singles champion. Charles is defending his title this year.

In the event Canada entered include Eddie Colvin and Kerry Leitch, both of Ottawa, Ont., and Jackson of Ottawa and Hugh Smith of Oshawa, Ont.

The championships, in Toronto for the first time since 1947, will decide the Canadian team for the world's championships at Vienna next month.

'Sold Out' Sign Hoisted By Sports Reporters

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario sports reporters hastily hoisted a "sold out" sign Wednesday for their annual $25-a-plate sports celebrity dinner for crippled children.

The committee of the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association in charge of the fourth annual event Feb. 17 hailed further selling activity as a check showed 795 gone already. It had originally decided to sell 720, a reduction from the 750 of 1952.

All proceeds of the dinner go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children which received some $70,000 from the first three dinners, including private donations made through the dinner committee. It also served as launch promotion for the country-wide Easter seals campaign.

Two more celebrities were added to the list of guests: Babe Dye, star hockey player of 30 years ago, and Jesse Owens, former United States track star. Both now live in Ontario.

Others include Marilyn Bell, chosen by association members as Ontario's athlete of the year for swimming Lake Ontario last September; Chris Conway of London who paced Roger Bannister and John Landy in their memorable miles and Rich Ferguson, the Canadian who ran third to Bannister and Landy in the miracle mile at the British Empire Games at Vancouver.

STAMPS SIGN COACH

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders have signed Ken Preston as coach to pilot them through the 1953 season in the Western Interprovincial Football Union. He is the 35-year-old Jack Hennemier, chief assistant coach at the University of Maryland for the last five years. He takes over from Larry Siemering, former line coach of the professional Washington Redskins, who was fired after one season. The team failed to make the WIFU playoffs in 1954.

Organize New Sports Body

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Organization of a group of athletic stars, the Christian Athletes, on behalf of Christian Athletes to combat juvenile delinquency, was announced here Wednesday.

The organization was announced by Ernest Mehl, sports editor of the Kansas City Star and a member of the group's advisory board.

He said the fellowship has enlisted such present and former athletic greats as professional football players Deak Walker, Otto Graham, Dan Towler and Kyle Rote; football coaches Bud Wilkinson of the University of Oklahoma; Olympic decathlon champion Bob Mathias; and baseball pitcher Carl Erskine of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Disagree With Charge Regarding Canadian Players

TROY, N.Y. (AP)—Representatives of two New York state college hockey powers disagree with Dartmouth coach Eddie Jeremiah's proposal that United States and national collegiate tournament be abolished because of the widespread use of Canadian players.

A third defender of his school's use of Canadians but would not comment on abolishing the tournament until he had talked with Jeremiah personally.

The Troy Record asked officials of Clarkson College, St. Lawrence University and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute to comment on Jeremiah's statement Tuesday that the use of Canadians was "turning our national championship into a farce."

AGREES ON ONE

Coach Ned Harkness of RPI said he agreed with Jeremiah that "over-emphasis" was being put on the championship. However, he did not approve of abolishing it.

Clarkson President William G. Van Note asserted that "we haven't played before but from what I have heard I understand that it has been handled very well and represents a true championship for American colleges."

Ollie Kellewell, coach at St. Lawrence, said he would prefer Jeremiah personally with Jeremiah before discussing the tournament. He added that "our school feels that we are entitled to play on our hockey teams if they are eligible."

Both Clarkson and St. Lawrence are rated strong favorites to represent the East in the championship this year. Canadians are on all three squads.

Hockey Player Draws Suspension

KITCHENER (CP) — Alf Lochridge, secretary-manager of the Western Ontario Athletic Association, announced in a statement Wednesday that forward Norman Dault of Paisley Maroons has been suspended indefinitely for allegedly attacking a referee during an intermediate 'B' hockey game at Paisley Saturday night.

Dault was reported to have grabbed referee Warpy Tennant of Owen Sound and wrestled him to the ice. Lochridge said the report indicated Dault had apologized immediately following the incident.

The suspended player's case will be dealt with by the WOAA executive at a meeting today in Wingham.

Local Stations, Day Shows Will Provide Future TV Stars

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's stars of tomorrow will come up by way of daytime network shows and programs on local stations, says Robert G. Lewis.

The CBS radio-TV entertainer says those two fields are providing the opportunities for performers to gain experience they once would have obtained in stock companies and vaudeville.

He disagrees with the view expressed by some of the older bands in the entertainment field that newcomers have fewer opportunities than they did in earlier eras.

"There's no dearth of jobs for talented people right in their own home town," he says.

"There are more than 400 television stations on the air and practically all have local programs with local talent.

"There's no problem at all if they realize they can't come to New York and get on a network show right away."

Lewis, now known for his frequent substitutions on Arthur Godfrey's shows and now host on his own Friday-week variety program on CBS-TV and Saturday CBS radio show, pointed out that the members of his own troupe to become headliners in their own right.

"I think the next big star to come out of our group will be Jaye P. Morgan," relates Lewis. "She has an unusual name. She's as cute as a bunny and she can really belt a song in the Sophie Tucker and Betty Hutton manner."

Lewis says he can't see the end of TV stardom "and is going to be a hit all over again."

Robert G. would like to think of his show as a sort of stepping stone or testing ground for new stars, but he declares Gary Moore does even more in this field than he does. He says Moore has given boosts to many of today's stars, including George Gobel.

Lewis adds that daytime TV also is developing new talent in the writing, producing and technical fields.

Art Linkletter's latest "People Are Funny" show on NBC-TV had 13 plugs for products other than those of the sponsor, plus one each for a Los Angeles restaurant and a Las Vegas hotel. As on many shows these days, it's sometimes confusing as to who is the sponsor.

Trent Valley Hockey League

The Trenton Admirals and Port Point Anne Cementmen walked off with easy victories in a Trenton section twin-bill played at the Memorial Arena last night. The Admirals handed Hill Gault's Belleville Juniors a solid 10-3 trouncing in the opener, while the league-leading Cementmen racked up their ninth straight victory, 7-1, over the RCAF Flyers in the nightcap.

TRENTON 10, JUNIORS 3

The Admirals were completely disorganized for the first two periods of their game and were outscored 6-0 in the first stanza. Trenton added a trio in the middle session and the super crew finally came to life with three goals in the final twenty minutes while the visitors got one.

The line of Joe Scott, Bob Hatfield and Cal Coulins paced the winners' attack, Scott getting three goals, Cousins a goal and three assists and Hatfield scored once and assisted on two others. Jones notched a pair of goals with Graham, Schmidt and Austin Scott each getting one apiece.

A. Scott opened the scoring at 2.55, taking a pass and blasting a rifle over Charlton's shoulder, and just two minutes later Graham notched another on a breakaway.

Joe Scott from Cousins, Hatfield from Cousins and Hatfield, Schmidt from Lesvy and Graham and Joe Scott on passes from Cousins and Hatfield made it 6-0 by period's end.

The rout continued at 1.28 seconds of the second period, Joe Scott with Cousins assisting at 2.23 and Hatfield from Cousins at :52. Charlton looked weak on both goals. Jones made it 8-0 at 2.50 on a three-way play with Beale and P. Scott and the period ended that way.

Jones upped the count to 10-0 at 2.37 of the third period with P. Scott and Beale assisting, but the Belleville team quickly came to life for three fast ones in five minutes.

Cpl. McKenna sank the first one at 3.10 on an angled drive with Stoller setting him up. Wayne Fox blasted a blue-line drive netward at 11.31, his shot hit Stevenson and dropped, but Atkins pulled it in for the 10-2 score. Bryant finished the scoring at 13.41, taking passes from Buskard and Atkins.

Six minor penalties were dished out by referees Barrett and Carson with Belleville drawing four of them.

The teams:

Trenton—Hill, York, Farmer, A. Scott, Beale, Jones, Leavy, P. Scott, Cousins, Hatfield, L. Scott, J. Scott, Schmidt, Reeves, Barr.

Belleville Juniors — Charlton, Baker, Stoller, Atkins, St. Denis, Bovay, Brooks, McKoon, Bouland, Casey, Bryant, Petrie, Fox, Waterfield.

Referees—Carson and Barrett.

FT. ANNE 7, RCAF 1

The Cementmen spoiled the Flyers a goal in the initial minute of play, knotted the score five minutes later and then netted the twine on three occasions each of the last two periods to win going away.

A holding penalty to defenceman Bill Hurst put the Flyers just ten seconds of play paved the way to the Flyer's lone marker with Bowman sinking a rebound on a ganging play with Rochon and Lewis. Pat Dinsmore made it 1-1 at 14.55 when a loose puck lay about ten feet in front of Ogden. Gilmour outraced a RCAF defender and flipped the disc by the stationary netminder.

Jackie Wardhaugh was thumbed for tripping at 3.25 of the second period and when Bill Strahan argued his behalf he was promptly handed a misconduct. Gilmour took matters in his own hands at this point with a fine stickhandling effort and at 3.15 he rifled home his second unassisted goal of the game to give the Pointers a 2-1 lead. Leo Goyer made it 3-1 at 5.45 with Williams taking Gerry Goyer's pass and relaying it to Leo who made an instake on Ogden's doorstep. Coach Williams added another at 13.09, tipping in Leo Goyer's goalmouth pass and the period ended with the Cementmen out front 4-1.

Play picked up considerably in the final period with both teams coming up with the best hockey of the night. Bill Strahan notched a beautiful goal at 5.30 when he took Wardhaugh's pass up centre, cut in on the left wing, cut across the net and flicked the rubber over the falling custodian for the 5-1 tally.

Gerry Goyer clicked for a pair of goals in 18 seconds as time was running out to complete the scoring. He banged home a rebound with Leo and Williams assisting at 18.30 and at 18.38 Seemark's screened drive bounced off the big forward into the twine. Leo Goyer also assisted on this play.

Leo Goyer was the top point man of the night with a goal and three assists. Gerry notched two goals and one assist while Williams had one goal and five. Gilmour tallied twice with Strahan getting the odd marker.

The winners drew six of the ten minor penalties as well as a misconduct.

The teams:

RCAF — Ogden, Cowick, Playford, Francis, Bowman, Rochon, Tardif, Blanchard, Racicot, St. Pierre, Dickson, Adams, Stewart, Childerhouse, Branch.

Point Anne — Lehman, Hurst, Semark, G. Goyer, L. Goyer, Williams, Gilmour, Strahan, Wardhaugh, Hunter.

Referees—Carson and Barrett.

AT THE CAPITOL—Mamie Hall goes Oriental with Lee Gowery in Allied Artists' "Sweep the Boards" as Beverly Boys comedy now at the Capitol Theatre for its first city showing. On the same program Rod Abbott and Lou Costello in "Buck Privates Come Home".

Goldwyn Offers Some Reasons For Dearth of New Movie Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn today offered a reason for the dearth of new movie stars: They have to act nowadays.

Theatre men, fan magazine editors and casting directors have loudly complained recently that the studios have developed few stars of major importance in the last few years. Goldwyn exceptions: Marilyn Monroe, Marlon Brando, Martin and Lewis.) Goldwyn, one of the sagest minds in the film industry, says the reason is the change in audiences.

"You can't make a star by publicity nowadays," the veteran (40 years) producer remarked. "The days are gone when you could take a beautiful girl, give her a glamor build-up and make her a star. Audiences are more mature now; they demand credibility from their stars.

"Actors have to be not only attractive. They have to act as well.

"The fault in the lack of enough new stars is not with the studios, which have searched everywhere looking for talent. The trouble is that there is just so much talent to go around."

PROMISING FINDS

Although new stars haven't been turned out in the numbers Hollywood used to produce, there have been several promising finds, Goldwyn continued. He cited Grace Kelly, Audrey Hepburn, and Jean Simmons among the actresses. All three have that rare quality of beauty and acting ability.

At 79, Goldwyn shows no sign of slowing down. As we lunched in his private dining room, he enthused about his forthcoming project, "Guys and Dolls." The film will cost five million—one million went for the story rights alone.

And all of it will come out of Goldwyn's pocket. For many years he has financed his own pictures.

"Guys and Dolls" will star Marlon Brando, Frank Sinatra, Jean Simmons and Vivian Blaine.

AT THE BELLE—Robert Taylor, playing Marcus Virilius, commander of Nero's military legions, has under the spell of Lydia, lovely Christian hostage, enacted by Deborah Kerr in "The Robe," showing Tuesday through Thursday for the last three at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY

Susan Hayward Alone in Man's Movie World

The record proves that it's a man's world, cinematically speaking. In making a close survey of the popular Hollywood theme, 62 per cent were found to deal mainly with male problems with the result that men are doing most of the acting.

Even when pictures concern women's problems, like Susan Hayward's in Twentieth-Century-Fox's CinemaScope production in Technicolor, "Garden of Evil," male performers outnumber females four to one. That is exactly the ratio in the Mexican-United production opening to be seen at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Miss Hayward plays opposite four top stars — Gary Cooper, Richard Widmark, Cameron Mitchell and Hugh Marlowe.

In all other similar adventures Miss Hayward has played, she was the theme to be the man's problem with only one female character as opposed to seven men dominating the action. Such course is self-evident in Westerns, whose production comprise a major portion of Hollywood's output.

If one casts an eye to published opinion polls, most have listed only two women, Susan Hayward and Marilyn Monroe, as the top box office champions.

Contract lists also reflect this male dominance. For every two women under contract there are three male performers.

But as Director Henry Hathaway, who avoided feminine "Evil," pointed out, "There is no need to accuse the film capital of male chauvinism. Women prefer, because I am sure that women, when asked by the decisive about which pictures their families will see, are more interested in watching men perform than women."

Valdes' Manager Demands Fight With Rocky

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Gleason, manager of heavyweight contender Nino Valdes, called upon boxing commissioners Wednesday to force champion to defend title tilts against the No. 1 contender.

He said he has posted a $5,000 "good-faith check" with the New York commission for Valdes, ranked No. 1 challenger to heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano.

Gleason attacked the campaign of light-heavy champ Archie Moore for a shot at Marciano as "wild statements" and observed "Moore conveniently overlooks the fact he was knocked out by Ezzard Charles who was soundly whipped by Valdes."

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Interests and activities favored the most at least some attainment now. Try to finish incompleted matters to leave things in order for a fresh and pleasant start Monday.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Many indications responsive, and enable for worthy matters, for new, important tasks, undertakings. Don't accept the unreasonable but do strive for your just share; know what you work for.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Much will depend upon demands of your position, also domestic obligations, how you accept and handle them. Be agreeable to necessary change of plans, avoid real improvements.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Some tip-top inclinations. Be sure to be in your cheerful position, willing to work for goals and loved ones, but don't neglect health, perhaps important social and religious affairs.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Fine outlook for a progressive you, but be sensibly cautious in financial transactions, buying-selling, trading. You could wisely plan for future possibilities, proffered worthy projects.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — A tidy, pleasant day for sound matters and new activities that have value. Don't overreach but try for new gains in your line of endeavor. Add to your status by plausible ideas.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A day for smart management, for some workable intuitive application. We often need to follow that inner sense when not too sure of which way to turn. Say a prayer and proceed.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Look up and find what your appetite for diversified activities, interests that could spell sound new advancement. You enjoy challenge, difficult problems be alert now.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — May have to contain yourself so that enthusiasm and desire for new achievement won't lead you into too many things. Be sensibly ambitious, guard health as you travel along.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Advice to Scorpio pertinent to your chart today. You can really get things done satisfactorily, but don't be overzealous nor strain nerves and perhaps spoil disposition.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Auspicious for doing something out of the ordinary, if of course, honorable, constructive. Curb any sign of restlessness. Exercise common sense, be concerned for family and just causes.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Be serene, agreeable even if some matters, perhaps some people, aggravate. We can show our true worth against opposition. Caution benefits indirectly through friends, family, employer.

YOU BORN TODAY are a Capricorn-Aquarius Cuspal; born when the sun was leaving Capricorn to enter Aquarius; you have strong traits from both signs. As a rule, independent, honest, thoughtful, studious, but may be inclined to lean toward fantastic ideas, support theories not always conducive to advancement. If you seek best education possible and apply your talents daily as you should, you can have substantial success and happiness. Don't worry needlessly, seek God's loving aid always. Many noted writers, scientists and business men and women were born in your Zodiac sector.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was thinking to herself thoughtfull, and she said to pop, Well William, Christmass has come and gone.

2 weeks ago to be exact, pop, said, and ma said, Yes, I know, and I still think I was right in sticking to my resolution.

You sound as though you were talking about New Year's, that's resolution time, pop said, and ma said, No, I mean Christmass, and I mean my resolution not to send greeting cards to the people I had already sent presents to.

Oh, that, pop said. Yes, I Agree with you, there's no sense in adding honey to molasses, he said, and ma said, That's what I thought. And besides, William, our Christmas cards were quite expensive this year. Not that I would want to actually pinch pennies at the very season of the year when generosity is the proverbial password. I mean it would not be very nice to deliberately go out of our way to cut down on expenses at Christmas time, would it, William? she said.

I don't know. I never had that experience, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, William, when I say I was right in sticking to my resolution, I mean I was theoretically right, because now I'll have write 6 letters that I wouldn't of had to write.

How come? pop said, and ma said, Because 6 people sent us greeting cards as well as presents, so naturally I'll have to write and explain about my resolution. You just said yourself, William, that we don't want people getting to of pinching pennies at Christmas, she said.

Yes gods, it's a woman's world, pop said.

Meening men cant help it.

Was Rundown; Suffered Stomach Gas, Indigestion

Nerves on Edge, Got Tired, Dizzy Spells, Couldn't Sleep Well. Also Had Pain In Back, Limbs, Joints. Tells of Relief.

"For a long time I suffered from stomach trouble, and felt saky, tired and rundown, but I have obtained such grand relief by taking System Herbal Compound that I do not hesitate to recommend this fine medicine to anyone suffering as I did," said Mr. Frederic Hill, 244 Talbot street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

Tells How She Felt

"After my meals I would bloat up with gas and I would get full hard stuffed feeling. I was subject to bilious spells and dizzy feelings. It seemed that my entire system had become rundown as I felt tired and worn-out and couldn't get my proper sleep at night. I suffered with backache and pains set into my hands, arms and shoulders.

Relief Came Quickly

"But all that is changed since I've been taking Systems, and to fact it hardly seemed any time after I got some of this medicine until I began to feel better. Now my food digests well, constipation is relieved and I am free of dizziness. Also my nerves are calmed down and I sleep much better at night, the pains in my back, arms, shoulders and hands and joints and aches and pains are practically all cleared up.

"It is just wonderful to feel as well again and I gave the statement hoping it will be the means of helping others who suffer as I did.

How It Acts

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Systems, containing Nature's own vitalizing ingredients, acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and blood to aid nature in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Systems is sold and recommended in Belleville by Doran the Druggist.

Critical of Govt. For Allowing Importation of N.Z. Cheese

OTTAWA (CP)—Import of New Zealand cheese into this country has placed Canadian cheese producers in a precarious position, the Commons was told Tuesday.

Dr. William Blair (PC—Lanark) criticized the government for permitting the importation of 2,250,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese when Canadian cheese producers have 18,000,000 more pounds in storage than last year.

He was the fourth Progressive Conservative to bring up the subject in the Commons at this session.

He said in the throne speech debate that the Canadian cheese market now is completely disorganized and the way has been left open for unrestricted imports of dairy products from New Zealand.

IMPORTS "UNNECESSARY"

Import of New Zealand cheese was completely unnecessary and made the selling of Canadian cheese more difficult. Canadian producers had received no advance warning of the importation though Canadian officials must have known about it for months.

Canada's 450,000 dairy farmers were carrying on in the face of competition from cheap imports, making their position "very, very difficult." Canadian farmers were being asked to compete with farmers in other countries which had the lowest wage rate in the world.

Dr. Blair at another point suggested that more farm machinery be shipped to India as part of Canada's contribution to the Colombo plan for economic aid to South and Southeast Asia.

LIBERAL ASKS CONTROL

At the night sitting, Raymond Bruneau (Lib.—Glengarry - Prescott) said New Zealand cheese should be placed under import control.

The farmers of his riding were at a loss to understand why the government authorized the importation when Canadian producers had a surplus.

Federal subsidies would be welcomed by the hard-pressed Canadian cheese producers.

Jobless Number Rises 33,000 In Three Weeks

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose by 33,000 in the three weeks before Dec. 11, the government estimated, but it said the rate of rise was slower than a year earlier.

In its monthly survey of employment conditions, the bureau of statistics calculated the number of persons without work and looking for jobs rose from 214,000 at Nov. 20 to 247,000 at Dec. 11.

The Dec. 11 figure was up 57,000 from a year before.

Guatemala Revolt Quickly Crushed By Anti-Red Chief

Costa Rica and Nicaragua Accept Buffer Zone Plan

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—The government pushed a roundup of Communists and supporters of ex-president Jacobo Arbenz Guzman today after heating down an uprising aimed at unseating Guatemala's anti-Red president, Carlos Castillo Armas. At last 58 persons already are under arrest.

Government troops hold Guatemala City and other strategic centers in an armed grip. Castillo Armas announced that 10 persons were killed and as undetermined number wounded in a brief clash Thursday between loyal forces and rebels seeking to capture an air force base outside the capital. He blamed the Communists and Arbenz supporters for the revolt.

STATE OF SIEGE

The anti-Red government, in office less than seven months, promptly declared a state of siege, a kind of modified martial law. But authorities announced they are in control of the country throughout the country.

Machine gun-armed soldiers mounted tight guard on military posts and strategic points. A few were seen in the capital, with no unauthorized person allowed on streets after 10 p.m.

A presidential decree said the state of siege is necessary to smash out the "subversive activity" which "in connection with Communist elements disturbed public tranquility and by an armed action tried to overthrow the legally constituted government."

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The Costa Rican general staff announced today the capture of the rebel stronghold of La Cruz and the nearby town of Puerto Soley on the Pacific coast. It added that the rebels now are caught in a trap, with loyalist troops closing a pincers from the north and south.

The announcement came on the heels of unofficial reports that the rebels were withdrawing toward the Nicaraguan frontier.

The action was on the edge of the newly proclaimed buffer zone between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

Neutral ground and air observers of the inter-American peace committee, patrolling a belt 18 miles long in the area to keep the rebellion from touching off a war between the two neighboring countries.

Launching its major peace-preservation effort, the five-country commission of the Organization of American States dispatched 23 officers to patrol the neutral buffer zone. The 18 miles long and six miles wide, which the commission established, runs along the border north of the fighting area.

In accepting the neutral-zone proposal, Costa Rica's ousted President Jose Figueres and Nicaragua's President Anastasio Somoza agreed to keep their troops out of the area and their planes out of the air space.

NO CEASE FIRE

In setting up the buffer zone, the OAS commission emphasized that it was not seeking a cease-fire in the rebellion which began Jan. 12, but only to keep the Costa Ricans and the Nicaraguans from fighting. The commission made its proposal after Somoza charged Costa Rican planes were attacking rebel headquarters Wednesday with visiting Nicaraguan military. He warned that further border violations would have "grave" consequences.

Figueres has claimed that the rebels were Nicaraguan-inspired.

Huntsville Chief Aquitted In Assault Case

HUNTSVILLE (CP) — Police chief Allan Hanes was cleared early today of one charge of assault causing actual bodily harm but will face another assault charge next week.

The court was in session all day Thursday and at 1 a.m. today.

Chief Hanes, head of Huntsville's police department for four years, was accused of causing bodily harm to Bernard Lynch, 25, and James Wallace, 19. Counter charges of assault against Lynch and two counts of disorderly conduct against Wallace were withdrawn by the crown immediately after the verdict.

CHIEF INSULTED

The police chief still faces an assault charge against Wallace. It was on this charge that the verdict of the late hour.

"I find as a fact beyond any doubt that Bernard Lynch used language that was vulgar, vile and insulting and that he used that kind of language toward chief Hanes," magistrate Redmond Thomas said.

"I have no doubt that chief Hanes was provoked by this language and got it. He slashed first."

The incident in which the police chief was charged occurred in an argument last Saturday in this Muskoka district town. Lynch is said to have made a statement about chief Hanes' moustache.

Chief Hanes said the man attacked him and hit him first. Lynch denied this.

DOCTOR CALLED

Lynch was taken to hospital after his father, Joseph A. Lynch, called a doctor to attend to. Six stitches were needed to close cuts in the mouth and near an eye.

Wallace has charged that chief Hanes beat him on the back with a rubber hose and struck him again while trying to make him admit he had broken a window. Wallace was charged by police with disorderly conduct Jan. 3.

CHINA OFFERS TO ALLOW VISITS TO 17 AMERICANS

Will Permit Relatives Of Men to See Them

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (Reuters)—Communist China has offered to allow the relatives of the 11 imprisoned American fliers to go to China to visit the men, it was officially announced at the United Nations today.

The offer was made to Dag Hammarskjold, UN secretary-general, when he went to Peiping recently to seek the men's release.

It has been passed on to the fliers' families in America.

Also covered by the offer, is admission to China of any of the two American civilians who have been imprisoned along with the airmen on charges of spying, and four American jet pilots.

The Chinese Communist government-run radio announced the airmen's sentences, but regarded the some high UN quarters as a possible key to the prisoners' eventual release.

It is reasoned that the Communists could use the offer to decide to accept their offer and go to China, decide the time ripe for a peace gesture to the West, or gauge their readiness to free them.

It was understood that along with the offer the Chinese communist government gave assurances regarding the relatives' safety and their freedom to leave Communist China.

Witness Says Lack of Vitamin C Cause of Death

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Dr. William Hay, provincial—pathologist from Kingston, told Coroner Hall today lack of vitamin C was a direct cause of the death of 11-months-old Donna Marie Elliott.

He testified at the trial of a North Augusta man charged in the Christmas-time death of two of Donna Marie's sisters.

Gerald Elliott, 45-year-old truck driver and his pregnant wife, Mary, are charged with criminal negligence in provide the necessities of life in the deaths of the baby and their children Donna Marie, and David, 26 months.

The children were found Thursday, Fifteen others were removed from the home.

Pathologist Hay said Donna Marie's death was not due to starvation.

"Scurvy was apparently available," he said, "but apparently not fully the inadequate amount of vitamin C.

A medical witness testified that a child could suffer malnutrition and "the mother could hide under its formula to keep pace with growth, but the starved system of two children were the only ones in the family of eight not breastfed." They received special treatment.

Special worker Margaret Herrick and health nurse Eleanor Earle said they found the Elliott home very clean, and a comfortably furnished residence." There was plenty of food, they said.

Nautilus Makes First A-Powered Dive in History Off Long Island

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The nuclear submarine Nautilus slipped under the heaving Atlantic ocean Tuesday in the first atomic-powered submarine dive in history.

She remained submerged for an hour and 15 minutes, with Capt. William H. Layman, ship's diving officer.

The dive was made in rough sea and high winds. A United States Navy spokesman said that at the time the Nautilus submerged water was washing aboard the submarine rescue vessel Skylark, which has been accompanying the submarine on her trials.

The dive was made south of Montauk Point at the end of Long Island, N.Y. Previous surface tests had been made in relatively shallow Long Island sound.

Thousands Toil Desperately To Keep Seine Within Banks

PARIS (Reuters)—The swollen Seine river today threatened to flood the streets of central Paris and thousands of men toiled desperately in a bid to keep the muddy waters from pouring into the city's heart.

The Seine seeped into magnificent Notre Dame Cathedral, which stands on the Isle de la Cite in the middle of the river, and inundated markets in the east end of Paris.

But as the flood danger mounted here, the levels of ramp ging rivers in Western Germany were going down, and a thaw eased the icy grip of the winter's worst blizzards and severest cold wave elsewhere in Europe. The thaw brought relief to some 50,000 people in the north of Scotland who had been cut off from the outside world for more than a week.

Three companies of Paris fire-brigade strove with pumps to keep the water level down in Notre Dame, while workers using sandbags and concrete, stepped up their task of bolstering riverside embankments in downtown Paris.

They worked fast, because the rate the Seine was rising today it should soon reach a peak flood stage of 23 feet above normal, well over the level of the last serious flood here in 1945.

Pontoon-equipped helicopters were patrolling the flooded outer suburbs of the capital where hundreds of families are homeless.

Prime Minister Mendes-France and Interior Minister Francois Mitterrand were touring the riverside and suburbs this afternoon.

At Montereau, just above the confluence of the Seine and Yonne, boats and pontoons were lashed together in the flooded outer streets to evacuate districts isolated by the waters.

The Aix district , 0 villages were isolated by the rising river Yonne. Police built a flood warning. Along the Garonne, rising at a dangerous rate, a warning was sounded by a booming cannon.

Witness Nickle, Kingston Lawyer, Named Provincial Secretary

TORONTO (CP)—W. M. Nickle, 57-year-old Kingston lawyer and Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Kingston, was sworn in Thursday as provincial secretary.

Premier Frost also named two other members to high government posts.

At the swearing-in ceremony, Mr. Nickle placed his hand on the same Bible used in 1923 when his father, William F. Nickle, 83, started a long career as Ontario attorney-general.

The younger successor, Col. Arthur Welsh, 58, who announced his resignation as secretary, liquor control commissioner and member of Muskoka-Ontario. He said he would resign his seat in the house.

Mr. Frost said no by-election will be called to fill the seat. This gave rise to speculation that a Liberal-Labor political election would be called in June.

Col. Welsh will succeed Mr. Deputy Minister Beacom, 52, of Whitby, as Ontario provincial sheriff. Mr. Beacom served for 43 years and was Ontario's chief electoral officer.

Also sworn in were A. R. Herbert (CP)—Temiskaming, vice-chairman of the Ontario Northland Railway commission and William N. Collings (CP)—Huntsville, vice-chairman of the liquor control board.

In a cabinet change two weeks ago, George Doucett resigned as highways minister and was succeeded by James N. Allan.

Other cabinet ministers have been rumored as on the point of resigning due to ill health. However, Queen's park observers now think no other cabinet appointments are likely soon. Mr. Frost denied resignation of the legislature, due to start Feb. 8.

Col. Welsh, 58, was elected to the legislature in 1945. He became planning and development minister in 1948 and took over the portfolio of provincial secretary in 1949.

Mr. Nickle is the 3-year-old William Folger Nickle of Kingston, who was given his seven-year-old name at ceremony and afterwards was guest of honor at a tea arranged by Mrs. Nickle, wife of the new Ontario's lieutenant-governor.

Mr. Nickle, 57, has been an attorney-general of Ontario in the cabinet of Conservative Premier G. Howard Ferguson. Still a practising lawyer in Kingston, he has been counsel for many institutions and in Parliament as well as in the legislature.

The newest provincial secretary, considered one of the outstanding lawyers in the province, was elected to the legislature in 1951, He came into prominence earlier when he and his father defended prisoners accused of taking part in the Kingston penitentiary riots of 1930. As a result of these trials, the federal government appointed the Archambault commission, whose report still is studied in penology and reform.

Mr. Nickle served overseas in the First World War in the 4th Brigade, which included the 18th Battalion in which Premier Frost was a subaltern. Mr. Nickle, wounded three times, won the Military Cross and Bar and rose to the rank of major. Later Mr. Nickle and Mr. Frost were law school classmates at Queen's University.

Mr. Collings, the new chief liquor commissioner, was born in Yorkshire 56 years ago. He was one of the leading members of the Conservative committee on highway irregularities.

The appointment to the Ontario Northland Railway commission transfers Mr. Herbert, 60, from the position of member of the legislature. Mr. Herbert, 40, is from Cobalt.

Chinese Nationalists Report Reds Have Conquered Island

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (ap) — Communist China held undisputed possession of tiny Yikiangshan island today as its battle-started amphibious striking power menaced the nearby strategic Tachen island held by remnants of the Chinese Nationalist stronghold.

The Nationalist defence ministry said the 720 Nationalist guerrillas on Yikiangshan had been wiped out in last two days.

Resistance ceased on the island, the ministry said, at 5:12 p.m. Thursday night, more than 60 hours after Chinese Red invaders landed behind pulverizing naval and air bombardment.

"Our brave garrison accomplished their anti-Communist, resist-Russia and recover-mainland duty all of them died gloriously in action," the ministry said. "Such heroic deeds will be recorded for admiration the world over."

The ministry, however, insisted that all fighting had ended Tuesday, the same day its amphibious forces withdrew from the overwhelming force.

Peiping broadcast, heard in Tokyo, said the Communists had killed about 500 Nationalist troops, captured more than 1,000 and seized stores of guns and ammunition.

Another Peiping broadcast hailed the "liberation" of Yikiangshan as a victory which has "inspired the nation in its struggles to liberate Taiwan (Formosa)."

A Nationalist spokesman said the Communists long had trumpeted their intention of taking the offshore islands and added:

"With the fall of Yikiangshan they'll try even more to get the Tachens."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Republican senator said today that the Congress will approve any request by President Eisenhower for authority to use U.S. armed forces and sea power to assist in the possible evacuation of some Chinese Nationalist islands.

Eisenhower was reported Thursday night to be considering a request for such authority in the event Red Chinese invasion forces evacuation of troops from the islands off the China coast. The Reds have captured the island of Yikiangshan, which had been held by anti-Red Chinese, and they have stepped up attacks on the Tachen group, which is held by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists have some 20,000 men.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) administration thinking is said to be a belief by some American officials today that Nationalist forces are withdrawing from some of the scattered offshore islands because they probably be deployed elsewhere for the defence of Formosa.

Senator Dulles and Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, were reported to have sounded out congressional leaders on the administration briefing Thursday on the possibility of a congressional resolution to back the president advance approval to use sea and air power should that be necessary in any evacuation attempt.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (Dep. A.J.), a member of the Senate's foreign relations committee, said Congress probably would say such request might be forthcoming, but said he thinks "the president will get all the authority it wants" bearing on the Formosa situation.

ALL OPPOSITION LEADERS SUPPORT ARMING GERMANY

Pearson Outlines Govt's Reasons For Ratification

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—It was the end of a long day and evening in the Commons.

External Affairs Minister Pearson had outlined the government's reasons why it believes the House should ratify the Paris agreements for more than $1,000,000 worth of arms.

He had won support from John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative spokesman for foreign affairs, CCF Leader Hazen Argue and Social Credit Leader Low.

Other members had spoken, with only one—Stanley Knowles, chief CCF party whip from Winnipeg North Centre—saying he would vote against ratification.

DRAMATIC MOMENT

Then a Jewish member rose. All the drama of the debate was focused in his speech.

Leo Kennedy, Liberal member for Montreal Cartier, said 60 of his family had been murdered or tortured and slaughtered by the Nazis.

He said he had to make a choice between the Russians, still a menace, Berlin was a lesser evil than Moscow. "I will vote for the resolution, but not without an ache in my heart."

There was thunderous applause from the floor and the galleries. Some members rushed over to shake hands with Mr. Crestohl.

Earlier, Mr. Knowles said he believes West Germany should be given its sovereignty and admitted to NATO but not rearmed. The risk of war would be heightened by rearming West Germany.

Debate on the resolution to ratify the Paris protocol was to continue today, when the leaders of three more parties are expected to oppose it.

The protocol would not only admit West Germany into NATO but set a 500,000-man limit on the size of the German Army and ban manufacture in Germany of atomic, bacteriological and chemical weapons. It must be ratified by the 14 NATO nations, as well as by West Germany, before West German entry into the Atlantic alliance.

Mr. Pearson, who spoke 90 minutes despite an attack of laryngitis, said ratification could not be deferred because of Russian threats of retaliation and because of a conference on German reunification.

William Hall, 35, of Alderwood, Ont., died in hospital shortly after he crash. Driver of the car, Lorne Reid, 30, of Port Credit, Ont., suffered head and internal injuries. He is in critical condition. Driver of truck is in condition. The truck driver was unhurt.

Marooned on Ice Pack Since Jan. 4, Nine Hudson Bay Eskimos Walk Home

HALIFAX (CP)—Word reaching the RCAF today said nine Eskimos given up for dead after becoming marooned on an ice pack in Hudson Bay Jan. 4 are alive and have walked to their families.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters said a radio message from Mr. Hudson Bay detachment of Port Harrison told of the hunters' safe arrival. They reached there after 10 p. m. at the Eskimo village of Povungnetluk.

The message said Eskimos had walked home."

A Thursday night the RCAF, on the advice of RCMP, called off the search for them.

The arctic winds had been blowing shoreward for several days and RCMP said if the men were still alive they could make their way back to shore and back to their camp.

And, this, it appeared, is exactly what happened. The fact that they walked home was taken as a strong indication that the condition of the Eskimos was not too serious.

The amazing story began 17 days ago when the Eskimos were fishing from the ice pack near Belcher island, near the shore about 200 miles north of Port Harrison.

A chunk of the ice broke away and drifted out into the bay. The hunters were cut off from their hunting and dogs, kayaks, cooking equipment and extra clothing. The ice pack was carrying them slowly on their harpoons and rifles.

Search planes of the search RCMP Supt. H. A. Larsen, an Arctic veteran, said he had heard of Eskimos drifting for days after being cut adrift on the ice, but only if they had equipment and a good deal of clothing.

"Their clothing gets wet on the hunt," he said. "They have to change or parts of their bodies freeze. Clothing is kept in their greatest danger—exposure to the deep freeze."

It is almost certain that it will be days before the story of survival of the nine men can be fully known. It will be questioned by RCMP and then a report will be sent south to civilization.

There is a possibility, too, that the Eskimos will make light of their adventure, figuring it is a story only worth telling after any great detail. No further information is available at RCAF headquarters and no more are expected now that the men are reported safe.

Lone Constable Captures 2 Thugs In Brink's Office

Ottawa Men Try to Duplicate Million-Dollar Boston Grab

OTTAWA (CP)—Two would-be safecrackers armed with 13 revolvers were captured by a lone constable Thursday night in the main office of the Brink's Express Company here.

Constable Tom Flanagan held the two at gunpoint until a dozen other officers swarmed in to assist him.

There was no indication of how much money the safe held. The Brink's Express, whose armored cars carry money to banks and business places, is the same firm whose Boston office was robbed of more than $1,000,000 some years ago.

TOO NOSEY

Arrested and charged with shop-breaking, possession of burglar tools and theft of 13 Brink's revolvers are Lester Latulippe, 25, of Ottawa, and Arthur Turcotte, 45, of Ottawa and Montreal.

Police were investigating a report that Latulippe once operated an elevator in the building housing the Brink's office.

Flanagan on patrol entered the building by a fire escape following a telephone call from optometrist Hermann Rosenberg, who said he lived in the building, who heard a noise in the Brink's office.

Flanagan surprised the two men and ordered them to drop their tools and face the wall. Within minutes other police swarmed into the building and at least five patrol cars stood watch below.

TRIPPED ALARM

One of the men, police said, had three guns and a blackjack. The other carried 10 guns in a satchel. All guns but one fitted in the office by Brink's employees.

A private protective service had also been alerted to the break-in when an electrical alarm around the safe was tripped.

Committee Tries To Get Convicts To Free Guards

BOSTON (AP) — A seven-man committee, including two ex-convict prison officials and the president of the Boston Bar Association, conferred early today with the four rebel convicts at Massachusetts state prison in efforts to end a four-day stalemate.

The committee member said the group had met with the rebellious quartet in efforts to obtain release of five hostage guards and six other inmates held in a cell block in the prison since early Tuesday.

The committee met after a night meeting at the prison today. Its members are: Sumner Babcock, bar association president; Rev. Edward J. Darion, chaplain of the Pilot, Boston's Roman Catholic archdiocesan paper; Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor; Rev. Edward Harrington, prison chaplain at the prison; Rev. Howard Kellett, Protestant chaplain; Dr. Samuel Mencher, prison physician, and Patrick McDonough, a member of the state corrections council.

STAY TWO HOURS

Earlier four prison officials went into the prison from the warden's office for a two-hour stay but declined to give any details of the talks.

The quartet, escorted by an armed guard, entered three cell prisons before dawn and entered the warden's office, ignoring reporters' questions.

The activity began shortly after 8 a. m. when relative quiet for several hours in the stalemate which began last Thursday.

The activity came after a night during which Rev. Edward F. Boyle, Roman Catholic prison chaplain, and Dr. Samuel Merlin, psychiatrist, had sought in vain to persuade the desperate criminals to give up their siege.

Roads and Bridges Committee Proposes $326,000 Expenses; Would Increase Rate One Mill

A roads and bridges expenditure by-law of $326,500 will be up for approval at the next members of Hastings County Council on the final day of their January session.

Thursday afternoon a roads and bridges committee chairman Reeve Harry Morrow of Rawdon set this figure as the amount of money which would be required for the 1955 road program. The report was adopted by council and was scheduled to go to by-laws today.

Included in the above figure was an amount of $23,000 estimated for expenditure by the suburban roads construction.

The roads and bridges report and the suggested amount of the by-law are considered a decision on the part of members, several of whom stated that only in this way new construction was planned for the year.

Reeve Harry Sager, of Madoc, as chairman of the finance committee, noted that the suggested amount by-law would cost a county rate of seven mills, up one mill from 1954.

He noted that last year's rate had been kept low only by skimping into the county surplus, while the county had also dipped into its surplus for the $40,000 grant payment to the hospital building fund.

This year the county would not be able to dip into surplus as heavily, with the anticipated new 1955 payment toward the hospital building grant and increased liabilities for other departments would have to come from taxes.

SEES 3 MILL INCREASE

Reeve Sager said the rate increase of at least three mills over that of last year unless road expenditures were cut.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township, also spoke generally what was planned in the way of new construction and was in line with the report which was under consideration.

Reconstruction of an additional one-and-a-quarter miles on the Shannonville gravel; a mile on the 6th. of Tyendinaga and the placing of knolls from the Marmora-Deloro road.

Reeve Charles Buskard of Deloro, was particularly interested in the latter project, noting that had been first suggested in 1943. He was glad to see that some work was to be done on this stretch of road which the knolls made quite dangerous.

Last year's committee chairman, Reeve Sager, also noted that it was also hoped to finish the Lonsdale hill and also do some work in Huntingdon township, while the 1956 chairman added that the building of a machine shed and painting of several bridges was also contemplated.

"Although we are not know what progress would be made in 1956," he said, "the cost of the right-of-way for the proposed development work to be done on the Madoc road would undoubtedly prove costly." Reeve Morrow said. He noted the preliminary survey had been made but thus far the county had not received the report.

Reeve Sager claimed that the county should not have to pay for purchase of the right-of-way for the Madoc development road. Every effort should be made to place this cost where it should be with the highways department," he said. "The road would be a provincial highway when completed."

REPORT RECEIVED

Reeve J. Kinlin, of Hungerford, wanted to know if any changes were planned for the Tweed-Marlbank road on which there had been a petition signed by property owners present. He was told that no report had been received from the department.

Reeve Irwin McCoy agreed that the knolls should be put from the Marmora-Deloro road but declared that if priority was to be strictly adhered to the road leading north from Marmora should have had attention years ago.

This road was slated for a hard top when Simcoe Fox was road superintendent and few members of council can remember that," he said.

He asked that consideration be given to putting the road in shape and that it be given a permanent top next year.

Warden Spreckett also referred to the Shannonville-Sandford road that the county should be prepared to go ahead and purchase the necessary right-of-way if there was to be construction this year.

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow, wanted something done with the steep grade at the railway crossing at Foxboro station.

"There have been several near fatalities there and it would be too bad if someone was hurt there," he said.

Road Engineer Larry Langlois said this matter was considered last year and it was agreed that the work be done but the Board of Transport had set the minute and had stated no funds were available for this purpose until after the present fiscal year.

He noted that the Board of Transport had agreed to pay 60 per cent of the cost with the railway and the county dividing the remaining 40 per cent of the cost.

REQUESTS PRIME COAT

Reeve Victor Hughes of Wellington wanted to make sure that the Coe Hill road was not being forgotten. He noted that a prime coat be given the road through the village and if possible also to the limits of the work all the way to Ormsby.

It was little point in getting a good road built and then allowing it to blow into the fields in dust," he said.

Last year's committee chairman Reeve Elmer Hubbard referred to the six-mill road rate last year and noted that this had not raised the amount of money for the road. "The rate should have been at least six and a half mills," he said.

The county engineer noted the road rate two years ago had been eight mills, whereupon Deputy Reeve B. Harder of Sidney, pointed out there would be over a million dollars more assessment this year. Another member noted the equalized assessment was up from $17 million two years ago and thus a lower rate would raise as much money or more.

The equalized assessment for the county is $21,250,000.

Reeve Sager felt that more efficiency might be gained through coordinating the work from the road jobs. He said there were too many jobs going on without proper supervision. "This type of operation just does not show results," he declared, he said.

Deputy Reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga said his municipality had increased efficiency by raising wages, while Reeve Ross of West of Shilling, suggested it may be better to do the ditching work back to the townships and they do the work. "I am serious about this," he said.

WOULD TIE UP MACHINERY

He went on to suggest that it may be better to sub-contract development road work rather than use county forces and tie up expensive machinery.

Road engineer Langlois replied this may be true if the county had more road work money. As it was the county usually spends its road allotment by early autumn, then road gangs are swung onto construction work to keep the men busy during the time that it usually takes until July to get maintenance work properly done. The idea was to keep the regular men busy, rather than lay them off and then engage them back next year.

Reeve Sager noted that it was necessary to keep key men but said much of the work was done by ordinary labor that was readily available at any time.

Reeve Buskard felt the roads committee was capable and should have the confidence of council to run its department efficiently.

Deputy Reeve Harold Varty of Hungerford had a word of appreciation to last year's road committee for its work in clearing hills in the Sulphide area noted to silver mining rocks to operate from the plant there.

According to the roads and bridges report, $80,000 is set aside this year for construction work on county and township roads; $217,000 on maintenance; $11,000 on machinery and $16,800 miscellaneous. In all these various costs are included. The county's share of this cost after grants would be $153,595.

The roads and bridges committee report was adopted without further discussion and referred to by-laws.

COUNTS ORDERED PAID

Under ways and means an $800 grant toward Junior Farmer expenditures was approved, same as were grants of $125 to the County Crop Improvement Association and $25 toward the spring show at Peterborough.

Membership in the Ontario Conservation Association for $25, and in the Ontario Association of Managers of Game Fur, Agad at $10 were authorized. Delegates to the latter convention will be members of the county home committee and the superintendent and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth York.

The county increased its road liability insurance to double the coverage it had been carrying on the recommendation of Reeve William Davis.

Councillors also discussed the carrying of hired truck insurance, Mr. Langlois noting that the county had no trucks in many cases for a few days at a time and the insurance was necessary for the county's protection. "Premium paid for full insurance was held out of road funds and the county received provincial subsidy on full cost," he said.

There was also some discussion regarding the advisability of placement of the county's road liability insurance with some other firm at a saving to the county. Reeve Russell K. West,

Stapley Girls Still Critical But Improving

The condition of Marie and Joyce Stapley, injured Thursday in a car-train collision at the Old Lane crossing, was described this morning as "still critical but showing some improvement."

The children, daughters of Mrs. Cora Stapley, R.R. 1, Belleville, were being driven to school on Thursday morning by Mrs. Irene Fisher, Carl, 10, who escaped with only minor injuries.

Joyce, 9, is suffering from shock, concussion, a fractured left leg and multiple lacerations.

Marie, 11, suffered severe lacerations of the head and face while the Fisher girls were bruised from head to foot. Their sister, Edna, 8, escaped with only a shaking.

The Stapley car skidded into the path of a CPR freight train Thursday morning about 8:22 and because of the ice the driver was unable to back out of the train's path. The engine caught the front bumper of the car and pushed it into the path of box cars which completely demolished the car. Miraculously, the passengers were thrown from the car before it was struck by the 50 foot long caboose of the crossing.

Dr. A. J. Niles is treating the Stapley children.

of Stirling, suggested that a local firm might be interested.

Council approved that the road liability insurance be taken out with the A. E. Wilson Company, although Reeve McCoy suggested later that tenders might be called for the insurance.

The Ontario Natural Institute for the Blind was given a grant of $700.

REPORT ON BUILDINGS

Reeve Russell West as last year's chairman of finance, reported that the most important repairs done to county buildings last year and noted plans for this year.

He said the new heating plant at the county home established a coal consumption had been sharply reduced from that required in the old plant. Plans for this year included renovation of the road engineer's office, as well as replacement of the eavestroughing on the court house.

Reeve Russell pointed out that two rooms in Shire hall, including the county room, should be renovated. The finance chairman promised this would be considered by this year's committee.

Assessment Matters in County Subject of Council Discussion

Assessment matters and how the re-assessment of county municipalities may affect government school grants were under discussion by county council at its session this week.

Reeve Tracey Adams of Dungannon township, introduced the subject as county assessor Cecil Geen was making his report to council, the northern reeve noting that in his municipality the school board secretary that heat and light grants for his school had been cut off this year.

Mr. Geen offering an explanation, as by his understanding of the school grant system as it was affected by assessments and noted that when assessment was over $20,000 per classroom the fuel and light grant to schools is cut off.

He noted that when assessments were increased by reason of re-assessment the increased amount is not taken into consideration immediately to reduce the percentage of school grants to be received. Instead 50 per cent of the increased assessment was considered for a year until the new figure was reached. In this way municipalities did not feel the full impact of increased assessments immediately.

Reeve C. Graham of Tweed, said it was his opinion that the department was trying to be very fair with the municipalities and grants were required. "They are going to be hard pressed to meet the increased assessment," he assured.

In making his report Mr. Geen noted that there were but four more municipalities in the county to be re-assessed. Where reassessment had taken place there was a few municipalities which needed going over but on the whole the assessments were much better than before.

NO ADVANTAGE IN DELAY

Reeve William Davis asked if in view of equalization assessment, which had proved close to the actual, there would be any advantage in delaying equalization to take place at the April session.

Reeve Harry Morrow of Sidney suggested that the question of assessments for pipelines, telephone property and other utility properties. He noted that the oil pipeline running across the Sidney township farms should were assessed differently in each municipality.

Reeve Graham and Sager moved that equalization take place at the April session.

Council then went into a Committee county resolution asking that the $5 per cent provincial subsidy on child care be paid directly to the county instead of the county paying 100 per cent and then receiving a rebate.

Council also concurred in a Dufferin county resolution asking that it be made compulsory for gasoline tax refund cheques to farmers be made with trucks equipped with measuring meters.

Action to be taken was taken by council on the motion, a resolution asking that the department of agriculture calling for an amendment to the Assessment Act advising a minimum tax of $33 to be assessed against all dwelling houses be considered during discussion. The "minimum tax would be to assure that all dwellings, no matter how small would pay a fair share toward education costs.

REEVE AXES QUESTION

Reeve Davis wanted to know what the average cost per dwelling might be for education. County Assessor Geen said this would be hard to say but he did think that it was customary in some municipalities to put more assessment on houses than what would ordinarily be the case.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora, said the resolution did not go far enough and asked what could be done to force trailer inhabitants to pay a fair share of education costs.

He noted that his municipality was facing the problem of having to provide more school accommodation, and to some extent to accommodate children of trailer inhabitants.

Deputy Reeve Byron Harder noted that in Trenton town a $50 licence for trailers in lieu of assessment was required. He added there were few houses in Sidney township that were taxed at less than $50.

Reeve Theodore Cooney noted that a building by-law in his municipality had blocked the erection of small shacks.

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow, said that they had the trailer problem fairly well under control in that it required trailers to be kept in a trailer camp. Under this requirement the municipality received no assessment from trailers directly but the camp was assessed. He noted there should be some way to assess any trailer of a permanent nature.

Council took no action on a Wellington county resolution asking for permission to subsidize be increased to take the load of taxation off real estate.

Most of the county reeves felt they would be happy to get their present road by-laws approved rather than ask for an increase in subsidy.

During the discussion Reeve Davis noted that the department of education was progressing far ahead of the highways department in its demands for good road conditions.

He said that the department of education required that roads be kept open for school buses and the cost was beyond the money available in their road by-law.

Reeve Earl Sager, of Madoc, said it was a question of whether road users or land owners should be taxed for roads. It was considered if another cent on the gas tax with the extra revenue to be earmarked for additional subsidy to the municipalities, might serve the purpose.

Reeve R. Wells, of Marmora, noted that in view of the high-way scandals coming to light the highways department might have been money to burn. "If they cut out waste maybe they would have more money for the necessities," he said.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, Children's Aid Society supervisor, addressed the council in connection with the society's request for a $1,000 grant to be used for preventive work. The request had been turned down by committee but was laid over until this year.

In a question period following Mr. Kerr's address it was revealed that councillors did not entirely approve of the recent reduction in council representatives to the C.A.S. board from three to two members. Mr. Kerr replied that the board of directors had been reduced from 48 to 24 members with most of them from the city.

REFERS TO RATES

Mr. Kerr said he would be happy to see a representative from the county.

Councillors referred to the increase per diem rate which had been given $1.10 per day to $1.33 per day with a mileage rate of 7 going to $1.50 per day. Reeve Sager wanted to know where the extra money was going.

Mr. Kerr replied that last year boarding home rates had been increased in order to get the right types of boarding homes. Staff salaries had been increased to a level commensurate with those in other societies and also $14,000 worth of clothing had been purchased during the year.

"We had a $5,000 deficit in 1953-54," Mr Kerr said, "and that indicates that the society was not high enough."

He said that the aim of the local society to bring the highest standard of care to children without the necessity of going to court.

Deputy Reeve Harder was interested in learning what relocation in wards coming into the society's care might be expected in a full time basis was put on preventive work. He was told this was difficult to answer but with a competent worker ten less children would not be impossible.

Reeve Wells in the case of the society costs about $300 per year, it was pointed out.

The matter of a grant to the C.A.S. for preventive work will be considered before the council adjourns this afternoon.

Program Planning Meet of Holstein Breeders Held

The annual program planning meeting of the Holstein Breeders of Hastings county was held in Stirling on Tuesday, Mr. Allan McComb, president, outlined some of the activities of previous years, and welcomed the new members to the board of directors.

All members of the executive endorsed the suggestion of the Stirling and Addington Holstein Club, that Mr. Harold McCaul be supported as a possible director for the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, Mr. G. E. Nelson, Holstein fieldman urged all members to attend the annual convention in Toronto, February 2nd, at the Royal York Hotel.

Tried and Chief Sweet Grass. In membership drive this year, and are hopeful that all former Holstein breeders are purebred or grade who are interested in the furtherance of the breed will join. 50c membership fee which goes to support the activities of the Holstein Club in Hastings.

Ill was decided to again hold the Black and White Show at the Belleville Fair, on October 5th, and also that suggestion that Mr. Nelson and Mr. Dalrymple visit the breeders in the spring to attempt to increase interest in the Black and White Show, and thus have more animals benefit by such show.

There was considerable discussion regarding the bus trip, and a committee consisting of Mr. Ross Horton, Fred Campbell, Garnet Wilson, and Mr. Nelson was selected to meet with the Crop Improvement Association with a view to possibly having a joint bus trip, to the O.A.C., on June 3rd. On this trip there will be a Holstein field day and the breeders feel that this might be a very good joint affair.

A grant of $25 was given for the Stirling Fall Fair Holstein Show for 1955, and Mr. Francis and Mr. Dalrymple were complimented on the successful 4-H Club work in Hastings county.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were 50 cents a hundredweight higher this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Calves were steady, hogs 50 cents to $1 higher and sheep and lambs unchanged.

The run of 7,200 head of cattle was some 900 head better than last week. Included in the fresh run were 400 head of choice, mostly stockers. This is a decrease of nearly 400 head of choice offerings from last week. Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers continued very light and there were no exports to the U.S.

Good stock calves were $17-18; some sales to $19; a few picked lots up to $20; medium calves $14-16; plain and chickers $17-19; mediums $14-16; commons down to $12.

Technicolor Log of Cruise In Caribbean Sea Enjoyed

"Spanish Main Adventure," Lt.-Col. John D. Craig's account of his log of a delightful 4 1-2 month cruise on, over and under the Caribbean Sea, proved a unique and exciting program offering to the women's World Travel and Adventure group members last evening at the collegiate auditorium.

Lt.-Col. Craig, an Academy Award winner for his underwater photography in some of Hollywood's thrill epics, took first prize for excitement in the present Kiwanis series.

The blue and green radiance of the world under water was fascinatingly captured by Col. Craig's camera. The spine-chilling sequence of sharks, barracudas and moray eels at close range was no less exciting because of the speaker's constant assurance that the monsters were harmless and all was well.

The film, made while vacationing on a friend's 85-foot converted navy crash boat and from the Caribbean Islands, showcased the Spanish Main. Aerial pictures were taken of Jamaica's "gold coast" vacationland, the Florida Keys, Yucatan and its Mayan ruins, Haiti and Cuba.

Cruising the Caribbean with the leisurely stops at out-of-the-way islands provided a sparkling glimpse of an ocean-island paradise. Technicolor pictures of Haiti were outstanding.

Exploration of the sites of Columbus' first settlement in the Americas, Jamaica's "Haunted" lake, and tours of picturesque old forts and castles were expertly woven into the historical background of the Spanish Main to provide maximum interest and viewers.

Highlights of the picture, however, were the underwater sequences of the eerie denizens of the ever-moving, half-lit world under the waves.

Col. Craig's camera interpretation of this living, breathing world on the ocean floor proved to be one of the most fascinating and exciting films ever offered Belleville viewers.

Exploration of sunken ships and treasure, at Discovery Bay, off an anchor that might be the anchor of the Santa Maria, proved highly entertaining.

Col. Craig's excellent narration, his matter-of-fact account of his experience in making the picture and his agreeable humour, added greatly to the enjoyment of the film.

Cost Accountants Hold Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario was held this week at Maple Haven, west of the city.

Speaker of the evening was Warren Armstrong, representative of Henry A. Martin, Ltd. His topic was "Management and the Cost Accountant," which was later subjected to an extensive question period by the members.

Mr. Armstrong believed the cost department should function under the treasurer or manager. He emphasized that the cost department should not be a police's mean regarding plant operations, but should work with a vigilant attitude, drawing attention to operations that are uneconomical.

The speaker was introduced by C. Hewson and thanked by Ted Ward.

Program chairman outlined arrangements for the April meeting with the Kingston chapter as guests. Guest speakers at the meeting probably will be Den Seebach, controller, R. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada Ltd.

Censorship Pact Now in Force Says Duplessis

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis disclosed Thursday that Quebec has a gentlemen's agreement with the federal government concerning censorship of television films and programs shown in the province.

Mr. Duplessis, speaking in the legislature, said he met with Justice Minister Garson three months ago "and we did not exchange letters, rangement."

Mr. Duplessis also said the National Film Board now submits all its films to the Quebec cinema board for censorship before distributing them in Quebec.

The system of censorship came up when Mr. Duplessis said the government had bought films from the NFB.

OPPOSITION QUESTION

"Has not the premier said there were Communists in the National Film Board and in the CBC?" asked Raynold Belanger (Trois-Levis).

"I said there had been Communists there and they were fired," said the premier, "We decided to censor television films and we adopted a law (Dec. 10, 1952) to impose television film censorship."

Mr. Duplessis said films had been shown on television that were not "in tune with the Canadian way."

"Mr. Garson and I discussed this television censorship matter and he assured me that the CBC made every effort to show in Quebec only films suited to the mentality of Quebec."

It was understood that the government does not intend at this time to apply its three-year-old television censorship law as a result of the unofficial agreement between Mr. Garson and Mr. Duplessis.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Al Herndon flew over Baltimore spreading a bushel of bleached corn flakes.

Patronage Charge Arouses Duplessis' Ire

QUEBEC (CP)—A liberal member for Gaspe has drawn touched off a heated debate Thursday night by charging that the Union Nationale government in Quebec has given to a government supply firm, the Quebec council.

The charge by Raynold Belanger (Liberal) was aimed at Hon. Gerald Martineau, top UN organizer in Quebec and Maurice Duplessis, $2,750,000 worth of typewriters and other office equipment for the government.

Premier Leader Georges Lapalme tabled boxes of carbon paper with the name Gerald Martineau written on them. Mr. Belanger asked if there was any relationship between the two names.

The charge brought Premier Duplessis to his feet, glaring angrily at the opposition.

He said the R. Martineau in the public accounts was that of the legislative councillor's son.

"I am the one who decided to buy from Gerald R. Martineau and it," Mr. Duplessis said.

The premier turned to Mr. Lapalme and asked him to make specific charges against either himself or the public accounts committee.

Mr. Martineau was appointed to the legislative council by the late Premier Duplessis.

Mr. Duplessis denied flatly Mr. Martineau had received money for the sale of typewriters or other office machinery and stationery.

He said Liberals for 40 years in Quebec spread out patronage to their friends and associates and convicted persons who did not conform to party ideas.

"After 40 years it now is the time for honest people to have their fair share of government patronage," he said.

Dairy Farmers Told Imports Would Not Hurt

REGINA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner reassured Canadian dairy farmers Thursday that imports of New Zealand cheese would cause them no hardship.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada which has protested importation of 2,250,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese, he said an agreement with New Zealand will prevent any further imports for at least six and possibly nine months.

Representatives of delegates representing 450,000 milk and cream producers, he said:

"You can take it for granted that if this cheese import would do all the damage you claim it will, then no government, regardless of its politics, would allow it."

UNLIKELY TO UNDERCUT

New Zealand cheese was unlikely to undercut prices even if it were allowed in, Mr. Gardiner said, because it is of a different type.

The cheese agreement went to one processing company," Mr. Gardiner said. "I can't see that it has undercutting regular prices. My opinion is that it will be happy if it gets two cents or three cents as part of its profit margin."

Grant M. Carlyle, president of the National Dairy Council, said in another address that Canada's dairy industry will be injured if the present federal government policy continues long enough. He said more and more of the domestic market will be lost to margarine if the federal government continues its policy of maintaining consumer prices at present levels.

Canada has only its point of unmanageable surpluses in dairy products, he said. For the first time, he said, this year might be the first one in which dairy farmers would face a substantial loss.

The improvement is based on a new approach to training, more a less in officers and has made innovation, Brig. Walsh said. It involves shortening of drills and concentration on essentials.

Litter of 10 Pigs Sets Record For Low Feeding

KITCHENER (CP)—A litter of 10 pigs from a purebred Yorkshire sow owned by Hagey of Preston has set up a record for what may be the lowest feed consumption for market hogs in Canada.

Figures revealed at the annual meeting of hog testing stations for Canada held in Toronto Thursday showed that for every 100 pounds of feed the litter ate they produced one pound of gain of carcass. On a live weight basis they required only 12 pounds feed for one pound of gain.

Four of the 10 were tested at the Waterloo advanced registry test station, said Finlay Stewart, of the federal Dominion experimental farms service. Those on test for Mr. Hagey went to market in 156 days and had a carcass score of 84 which is about 14 points above the Ontario average.

HONOR DESERVED

Well-known veteran of township and county government, Henry Jarrett Smith of Thurlow and Tudor and Cashel townships has been elected warden of Hastings County for 1955.

Warden Sprackett's elevation to the highest office the county's fathers can bestow will be greeted with acclaim by veteran councillors as well as those now retired from office who were associated with him during his 25 years as reeve and county councillor.

The wardenship is more than an honor to the reeve of the north country. The presentation of the warden's chain of office is a tangible mark of appreciation for a quarter century of loyal, efficient effort and co-operation in the councils of his township and county.

He comes to his new office eminently qualified for the post. He has served faithfully on many council committees and has been chairman of not a few during his long and honorable tenure of office. Warden Sprackett exemplifies the sturdy, down-to-earth councillor that typified the men who built county government in this area to Hastings and have maintained its high status down the passing years.

We feel safe in saying that the administration of county affairs for the next twelve months will be in safe, efficient hands.

WISE SUGGESTIONS BY DULLES AND EISENHOWER

On Tuesday U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that the United States would offer no objection if the United Nations endeavored to negotiate a cease fire between the Chinese Communists and the Chinese Nationalists.

On Wednesday President Dwight D. Eisenhower made it stronger—he said he would like to see the UN arrange such a cease fire.

These statements will come as a surprise and shock to some. Have Dulles and Eisenhower been won over to the policy of "peaceful co-existence" with the Communist world? The answer to that question, of course, is that it depends entirely on what is meant by the words "peaceful co-existence" and that these words, like many another catch phrase in these days, have almost as many meanings as there are people.

There is no suggestion in the latest statements by Dulles and Eisenhower that they are prepared to appease the Communists. There is, however, a clear and certain indication that they are ready to attempt to negotiate peace with the Communists, if the Communists will permit it.

Is this a foolish and unprincipled policy? What other acceptable choice is open to the free nations of the world? There is only one, a crusade against Communism, an armed crusade. How many of the critics of "peaceful co-existence," in the sense that these words can be applied to the stand taken by Dulles and Eisenhower, want to see a war which would expose the nations of the world, on both sides of the Iron Curtain, to the horrors of atomic warfare?

There are some, of course, who are prepared to run this risk. Chiang Kai-shek and his other leaders of the Chinese Nationalists are among them. This is understandable. Driven from their homeland, they face the grave danger that the support they now enjoy from the free world may diminish and that their hostile attitude fails their present allies into a false sense of security from the threat of Communist expansion. It is only natural that they should be concerned about abandoning their life's sole aim, an invasion of the Chinese mainland and the ousting of the present Communist regime there.

It may well prove, if the UN attempts to negotiate a cease fire, that Chiang will share their opposition to a cessation of hostilities with the Chinese Communists. The Reds, however, will not have so much justification for their attitude. So long as the Chinese warships attempt to blockade the Chinese coast, as long as his planes bomb the coast line, it is understandable that the Peiping regime should consider him an intolerable nuisance, which must be eliminated, if possible. These fire was negotiated, however, Chiang and his Nationalists would become no more than a minor irritation to the Communists.

Peiping might flatly refuse to negotiate, part of the sacred soil of China being left in the hands of a revolutionary, but except for a brief period at the end of the Second World War Formosa has been divorced from the control of the Chinese mainland since the Japanese seized it in the closing years of the last century.

To suggest that a cease fire between the Chinese Communists and the Chinese Nationalists is a solution for the major problem in the Far East is absurd. It may also be absurd, however, to hope that if a major war can be avoided for the passing few years' will bring a cure for our present ills. Time does not cure everything, but it has in the past cured much. If it does not cure the present division of the world into hostile camps, it is extremely difficult to envision anything which will cure it.

PIONEERS

The youngsters may not know it, but always throughout the years
Each generation's oldest have been lonely spinsters
With all lamps bones were lighted 'til the change was made by
With stoves the rooms were heated 'til the furnace came to pass.

What now we think were handicaps were conquered from day to day
With courage and with patience
'till men found a better way.

All improvement's born of struggle. Those who venture with it first
Have to cope with many troubles, since they know it at its worst.
Those who pioneered the auto for the sparing miles of today
Had to crank a stubborn motor and get stuck in roads of clay.

Since to start the car in winter needed muscles that were strong.
Women drivers were not many until Kettering came along.
All the ways that daily tried us, merely old-time memories are.
Now they simply push a button when they want to drive the car.

When relating what I suffered in the days that long have fled
My children don't believe me or they think I should be dead.
They have never pushed a motor; never known a bedroom chilled;
They have never trimmed an oil wick and a stove they've never filled.
They doubt every tale I tell them, and I cannot make it clear
For he's generation's comfort I have been a pioneer.

Many of our citizens will doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity to visit Toronto in order to witness the Royal Alexandra Theatre the imminent production of Sir Joseph Nevin Doyle's spectacular opera "The Golden Age," which was given to such marked did effect in this city last spring. The Alexandra Theatre cast is of high standard being composed of the best Toronto talent and will appear in fine form after a long season of training. This is the first Canadian opera ever given to the public and the fact that a Belleville boy is the author will have great weight in drawing the crowds. With the usual generosity Mr. Doyle puts the opera under the auspices of the Red Cross branch of the Belleville Association.

Hockey Safe By Comparison

(Fort William Times-Journal)

During the past year 10 deaths were attributed directly to injuries sustained in football games in the United States. There were an additional six fatalities described as being indirectly caused by the sport.

Recently a wrestler died of a heart attack in Florida. Boxing takes its toll with regularity.

In view of the speed of hockey and the use of wooden sticks, a hard rubber puck that could kill it if bit the right spot, terrific bodily contact, the sharpness of skates, it is surprising that Canada's national game does not promote fatalities as football does.

Probably one explanation of the record of safety which hockey has attained is the fact that players learn how to protect themselves at an early age. Another, which is a tribute to the thousands of participants, is that most players are conscious of the danger that lies in their sticks and skates, and subconsciously protect the other fellow.

Tea-Brewing By Seesaw

(Ottawa Journal)

Our friends, newly-returned from England reported that it was the greatest invention since the wheel, that is, the seesaw. Each morning now they said, they cheered the dawn.

The device seemed complicated. Going to bed, the owner places tea in a teapot and water in a kettle and sets these utensils opposite each other on a seesaw device. They are connected with a tube. When he retires he sets an alarm under the seesaw. If he wants tea at 8 o'clock in the morning he will set his alarm for, say 7.40.

While he slumbers 7.40 comes and the alarm sets heat under the kettle which boils and sends its steam through the tube into the teapot. When enough water has been transformed in steam the teapot weighs down the kettle and the heat turns off. At 8 o'clock another alarm rings loudly and the overworked host gets up merely to pour the tea, made to his taste, into a cup and thus awake joyously.

Paris Needs Garlic Smell

(Hamilton Spectator)

Walking along F Street in Washington, we once found ourself enveloped in the smell of Purple Passion (or perhaps it was Original Sin) with which a giant smoothie with the odor of a department store was turning a whole block into a captive sniffage. Our fragrance later took some extensive explaining now.

It is not on that ground, however, that we will be likely to alarm the decision of the Paris subway authorities to spray their stations with eau de cologne.

Among the world's subways, Paris' has a personality all its own—rather Second Empire in mood by comparison with the rather antiseptic of Toronto's, the casual efficiency of London's, the Continental of New York's or the Late Communist Baroque magnificence of Moscow's.

Most of the Metro's trains belong to the gaily-painted-green cars for second class, red for first, all with the Art-Nouveau grillwork look peculiar to electric broughams and Ascots, and find their way through heavily baked enamel sheets picked out with beige stripes. They move with the sedate trot of a mare on a bridle path. The stations, at platform level, are gently outdated names as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Stalingrad. And they smell.

Their smell is a touch of cosmos all its own. Some contend it is the great ground-swell of the garlic eaten by a nation connoisseurs.

On his first descent into the tiled passageways the Anglo-Saxon is inclined to feel that his nose has been pole-axed. But have courage, my dear, soon you'll be welcomes the Metro's pungency a a relief, an olfactory improvement. Soon you'll grow with the woman-smell of Paris and the blend of perfume and face powder and toilet soap and wave lotion and skin cream and cologne that permeates the air and sidewalks and the stones of the buildings.

As the attar of roses needs its civet, as the essence of lilac its vanillin, so the Parisian smell needs its foil of garlic below.

Numbers Game In Russia Ends

(Edmonton Journal)

Tragedy has just overtaken one of the world's most popular guessing games.

For many years, commentators on Russia, sifting all the official news sources on the inner politics of the Soviet government, have had to seek for information in odd corners. Among the most useful indicators, it was found, were the lists published in Pravda and Izvestia of communist dignitaries attending official functions. The listing was always arranged strictly in order of political importance of the individual — which was a formal position — at any given time.

Thus, Stalin, and later Malenkov, would be named first; then the man who stood next to him in the hierarchy of power, the Minister of Defence, Molotov, Beria or Krushchev — and so on down the line. The closer a man was placed to the big boss than he was named, the greater was the power he was rising in favor. On the other hand, if he was put down a few places, that was a sign that he was under a cloud and perhaps headed for political extinction. By studying these lists, the experts were able to chart fairly accurately the rise and fall of Russia's rulers.

Now, the wicked Ruglians have suddenly changed their system. When the top leaders attend a function, they are listed according to their official rank: full members of the presidium first, then candidate members, then the party secretaries. Within each group, the listing is in alphabetical order.

From this set-up it is almost impossible to tell the actual relationship of power. For example, Comrade Alexander Aleksandrovich Kuznetsov, chairman Comrade Zacharias Zaharoff of the council of ministers, is second end, no matter how powerful he becomes. This system may well have been adopted for the express purpose of baffling watchers in the Outside World.

It looks as though the experts, if they want to follow the course of internal Communist struggle, before they reach the shooting stage, will have to fall back on observing the flight of birds and the livers of sheep.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THESE AND OTHER DAYS

Just before Washington and his soldiers crossed the Delaware, the Commander-in-Chief distributed to all his soldiers a pamphlet written by Tom Paine. It began with these words: "These are days that try men's souls."

How often during our national history has this phrase been repeated. And there has probably never been a day in these 179 years when these words have not been cogent and true. For life is a battle. Some days are easy and it all way will be. Our earthly existence is a period of testing. There are put here amid a welter of baffling circumstances in order that the way prove whether we are worthy of eternal life or of eternal death. Our souls are constantly being tried. The life of our nation is constantly being tried. If we read history word by word, we are in despair; and little better if we read it page by page. It is only when we read it chapter by chapter that we see progress being made.

Communism, corruption, juvenile delinquency, crime, inordinate ambition—all these are the forces that will pass but will come back in different forms to try our descendants. God's sole interest is to see to it that we and they will learn the lessons of life.

In ancient times, now and as long as the world shall last, these are days that try men's souls.

Cars Too Big For Garages

(Ottawaite Journal)

Automobile manufacturers seem intent upon following in the footsteps of the men who built a reservoir and raised a cat. Their basements only to find it was impossible to get them out in the spring.

Longer, wider, lower, many high powered cars come off the production lines each year—and each year are less suited to the size of garages, highways and people. What's happening? Well, let's look at car length.

One popular low priced car has grown from 154 inches in length in 25 years to 196 inches. Another now reaches 204 inches. Or, take width. The two cars referred to have grown from 68 to 76 inches and from 68 to 74. And they're "small" cars. The big jobs go two feet or more longer and much wider.

Until a very few years ago home size garages were built about 18 feet long — leaving room for a rear end Junior's bicycle. Take a look at them now. Some will scarcely sticking out of home garages, large doors removed from garages to let drivers escape. Owners of public garages are lying awake nights. They used to figure that it took 127 1-2 square feet to park a car. Now it takes up to 300 square feet. And they're trying to figure out how to park a car—it's too big a job for ordinary drivers.

The new "long looks" are cutting down on curb parking space, too. Cars take more room on streets and highways as they move—and parking is at a premium. All this when the number of cars grows and the demand for space is only a bit of street or highway.

Or, take height. In just five years the height of cars has grown by five inches in height. A six footer wears out trousers by constantly fanning a bucking horse, but he develops a permanent slouch and has to learn to be a contortionist or an India rubber man.

Or, take power. Auto makers say that of cares drivers should use only about one quarter of what engine power is built in to cars—that the extra power is put in to satisfy the urge to drive at about half of it and thus gain an easier ride and reserve power for safety purposes. But the trouble is that too many drivers use that power to tune off during the nation's horrible death toll.

It's all cheery madness, says T. T. Wiley, Ottawa city's traffic commissioner. And it is. Kingsize cars for the kingsize people would well become obsolete just as the dinosaur did by getting too big for our world. They don't fit garages. They're almost impossible to park. Their flanks can be used safely on nine foot highway lanes built for 80 mile an hour traffic.

Maybe they make fine products for the kingsize people, but not to a nation that seems to be on a "big car" bender. But they don't make sense.

Hockey Safe By Comparison

(Fort William Times-Journal)

During the past year 10 deaths were attributed directly to injuries sustained in football games in the United States. There were an additional six fatalities described as being indirectly caused by the sport.

Recently a wrestler died of a heart attack in Florida. Boxing takes its toll with regularity.

In view of the speed of hockey and the use of wooden sticks, a hard rubber puck that could kill it if bit the right spot, terrific bodily contact, the sharpness of skates, it is surprising that Canada's national game does not promote fatalities as football does.

Probably one explanation of the record of safety which hockey has attained is the fact that players learn how to protect themselves at an early age. Another, which is a tribute to the thousands of participants, is that most players are conscious of the danger that lies in their sticks and skates, and subconsciously protect the other fellow.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

I READ MEDICAL BOOKS AND JOURNALS

I tell you once more I do not know whether rabies occurs in man. But, if it does occur in man, it is so rare that, as Drs. Denison and Dowling, of Saskatchewan, Alsberg, have concluded from their unparalleled experience as Director of Labs for Saskatchewan and Health Officer respectively, for many years in the "rabies capitol of North America."

Dr. Brady

Rabies is primarily a veterinary problem. Regardless of its prevalence among dogs, it will probably never cause sufficient morbidity or mortality among human beings in this region to allow its classification as a public health problem of importance.

2. If rabies were as easily contracted by man as is commonly supposed, it would long since become one of the leading causes of death. Actually it continues to be a very rare disease.

3. In this, region there appears to be little relation between mortality from rabies and the administration of antirabies vaccine.

4. Aside from an actual bite or scratch, circumstances of exposure rarely warrant vaccine treatment.

5. When considering the advisability of treatment for exposures other than an actual bite, the possibilities of vaccine paralysis or other serious complications should be considered.

6 The problem of rabies, as it is known in the Birmingham, region seems to be one of home owned dogs (pets) and not of unidentified strays.

These are the conclusions Dr. Denison and Dowling gave in their report published in the Journal A.M.A., 7, 39, 755.

Whether rabies occurs in animals is a question for the veterinarians to settle. If they say it occurs in animals, that's good enough for me, But I do wish the veterinarians would leave the question of rabies in man to physicians.

Since I do not know whether rabies ever occurs in man, I never have advised and I shall not advise in favor of or against the use of so-called Pasteur treatment in any circumstance.

Since I believe rabies does not occur in man, I should not submit to Pasteur treatment in cases of death, nor would I consent to administration of it to any one else.

The arbitrary utterances and acts of medical and health authorities, from the passage of Pasteur (60 years ago)make a record of which we should be ashamed. But it is as much as one's life is worth (one's life as health column conductor, I'd say) to point out how such wrong. I ought to know—I have lost several lives that way.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE LOVE OF A DOG

I read in my newspaper recently of a driver in New York City who saw a little dog run out of his moving truck and immediately swerved to miss him, which he did, but the truck hit a trolly pole, snapping the wires, which fell, electrocuting the man in front end of the truck, leaped the curb, tore at a billboard, and sent the driver to the hospital. The little dog trotted away without a scratch!

Congratulations to that truck driver! He would have done the same to save a child or a sick woman. There are heroes in all parts of our great land. Most of their kindly deeds go untold, for they are mostly unseen. I have a sense that that driver was a family man, with children—and perhaps a gentle dog in which he takes pride.

One of my friends heard a scratching at his door and opened it to see a strange little dog with a dripping leg that appeared to have been crushed by a passing car. He was taken in, bathed and fed—and, how very grateful. Then he was sent to the veterinarian, for the broken and crushed leg was amputated. He was so grateful he licked the hands that had been kind to him and seemed full of joy when he was taken to a child. The last I heard was that he was being given the love that would make him a pet for a child, and the kindly people who gave this little dog a home, themselves have been blessed.

I believe the dog to have intelligence enough to know that without a word to express himself, that something had happened (something one) and that eternally wagging tail! So many of the great of this world have had a dog to be counted be about them as a companion. I don't know how much a dog learns from any of us, but I know we learn a great deal from him. He is a genuine love. He harbors no resentments. His eyes alone are so expressive that they look into their master's very soul!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is a gosselfeaky experience to watch a shoplifter at work. In the days and days yesterday, I was wandering around looking at the minor merchandise of our world, within a one of the pleasures of five and ten, when I happened to notice a man pick up a pocket knife with mother of pearl blades. They were in a plastic container. He opened them. Then, as if he is calmly, stuck them in his pocket and walked out.

He was about thirty years of age, quite well-dressed, in a sporty kind of way. He looked like one you see at race tracks, or out bawling the odds to bookmakers between periods of a hockey match. The kind, with hat a little forward over one eye, standing around in a wall, eyeing the world solidly.

I followed him. He went around, with an easy air, to the hardware department, where they have the bins of screws and cup hooks, files and door stoppers. And also tools such as patent chrome plated pincers and hammers.

My gentleman passed and picked up one of the patent hammers, hefted it, studied it. The girl inside the circle had her back to him. Nobody in the elderly woman on the far side. He glanced at me; but I was intent upon the bins of wood screws. He doubtless also glanced in all other directions, too, and then slipped the hammer, without a word, into his pocket, and walked out.

What should you do in a case like that? Holler? Point him out to somebody? Tell the patent hammer girl? Create a scene? While thinking about it, I saw him pause at the stationery circle, and no doubt he nobbled off a patent pencil or a genuine love. He harbored no resentments. His eyes alone are so expressive that they look into their master's very soul!

Knowles Opposes Rearming Of Germany

OTTAWA (CP) — Rearming of West Germany has been opposed by a member of the ranks of the CCF party on grounds that the move will increase the danger of war.

Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, warned the Commons on Thursday night that if West Germany is admitted to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization it eventually will become the largest NATO member on the European continent with a major voice. There also was a danger that the men who ran the German military machine during the Second World War again would be in charge of a West German army.

Mr. Knowles, CCF party whip, differed with party Leader M. J. Coldwell who supported ratification of the Paris protocol providing for German rearmament and admittance to NATO. He was the only one of eight members who spoke in a debate on a government resolution to ratify the protocol to say he would vote against it.

However, he apparently was voicing the sentiments of other members of the CCF group when Mr. Coldwell, speaking earlier in the debate, indicated that some CCF members still oppose ratification.

"Everyone will agree that, at best, the proposal to rearm Western Germany at this time is a calculated risk fraught with very real danger," Mr. Knowles said. He said he believed this view was shared by a great many people in Canada.

West Germany should not be rearmed "because by doing so we run a grave risk of war breaking out than would otherwise be the case." It would be "in the nature of an irrevocable step in the further division between East and West."

This was the view, he said, of the CCF national executive in August and of his party's national council by a majority vote last weekend in Ottawa.

Switzerland Decides to Admit Otto Strasser

BERN, Switzerland (CP) — Dr. Otto Strasser, exiled rival of Hitler, who has been living in Canada since 1941, will be allowed to enter Switzerland conditionally, the government announced Thursday night.

The Swiss decision to admit Strasser, presumably under a cloud of identity issued by the Canadian government last year, was made after officials and the German Legation political leader had promised to refrain from activities directly hostile in Switzerland.

The way now appears clear for Strasser to return to Europe. He has been waiting impatiently at his home in Toronto, N. B., for his new West German passport for which he applied for after the Bonn government restored his citizenship, some weeks back.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Bonn said Wednesday that the passport matter was still "under study." During the last week Strasser has made and cancelled several air reservations to Europe.

Strasser has claimed the delay was caused by Communist influence and could be said were he in league against him. He had been an early collaborator with Hitler, but later broke with the Nazi leader and formed the separate "Black Front" movement which led to his pre-war exile from Germany.

In the small Nova Scotia town, Strasser Thursday night was overjoyed at news of the Swiss decision. He was convinced that he will soon be back in Germany, where he plans to find a new political party in opposition to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

He also expressed hope for a reunion with his family, now reported living in Switzerland.

Pearson Says Russia Has Military Force of 250 Army Divisions

OTTAWA (CP) — Russia and its European satellites have a total military force of at least 250 army divisions backed by armor and supported by thousands of planes, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday.

Spearhead of the force is some 600,000 Soviet troops stationed in East Germany, he added as he sought Commons ratification of Paris agreements to ring a rearmed West Germany into the Western alliance.

Referring to Soviet threats to retaliate by arming a Communist-led eastern alliance if West Germany is admitted to NATO, he said:

"There is certainly no reality behind the threat of an 'eastern NATO' because they now have a military alliance system which is already more heavily armed than NATO, and under Soviet control."

HUGE FORCE

Besides the Soviet's 175 divisions, the Communist forces had 75 satellite divisions, some armored and supported by 2,500 planes.

Russia began rearming East Germany as long ago as 1948 when there wasn't a soldier in the Federal German Republic.

"They are to have made a transparent effort to dissolve this organization's military policy."

Quite apart from some 80,000 frontier and civil police, there are almost 100,000 more of them "on a crack policemen organized into army corps and divisions and into air force and naval formations on Soviet lines.

"East German army units have some 600 tanks, 250 self-propelled guns and 1,700 other pieces of artillery.

TALKS EX-NAZIS

"Any ex-Nazi who wishes to sell himself to Communists is welcomed into these forces and into their leadership. Their strength would be even greater if the Communist masters felt they could count on the reliability of more of these German soldiers if they were given arms."

Apart from East Germany, Russia has been organizing military forces in other European countries "including those who were our Fascist enemies in the last world war and now are supposed to be disarmed by treaty."

"There are for example about 250,000 Bulgarian troops, over 225,000 Hungarian troops and some 250,000 in the Rumanian forces. . . .

"All are under complete Russian control and this control has been carried to the point in Poland where the defence minister is that country is a Russian marshal."

Premier Duplessis' Reaction To Tax Cut May Be Known Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—The reaction of Quebec Premier Duplessis to Prime Minister St. Laurent's move cutting federal taxes less than in Quebec is expected to be made known next week.

It is understood Mr. Duplessis' reply, in a letter received Friday by the prime minister, is none too conciliatory.

Contents of the letter may be made public simultaneously in Ottawa and Quebec City, possibly Tuesday.

The federal government's decision in the federal-Quebec tax dispute was announced by Mr. St. Laurent last Monday. A 10-per-cent reduction of federal income taxes in 1955 and 1956 for all of Quebec's 700,000 taxpayers, retroactive to 1954 for the 300,000 payers of the Quebec income tax which came into effect a year ago.

WANTS WHOLE AMOUNT

Mr. Duplessis' stand through the long controversy has been that the whole amount of the provincial tax should be fully creditable from federal income tax payments. Federal law has allowed a deduction of up to 9 per cent of the provincial tax collections for those paying provincial income tax.

The Quebec premier has made no public comment on his attitude to Mr. St. Laurent's decision, but he has said what, if any, further action his government will take.

The provincial tax rate is roughly 15 per cent of the federal levy, but the schedule of provincial exemptions is about 50 per cent higher than under the federal law.

The federal tax-reducing move will eliminate double taxation for all Quebec taxpayers except those earning about $6,000 or more.

NO INDICATIONS

In a letter to Mr. Duplessis Jan. 14, Mr. St. Laurent indicated his willingness to negotiate with Quebec its exemptions scale to the federal level to eliminate double taxation in the province. But if there are no indications that Quebec will do so.

The tax reduction permitted Quebec taxpayers also has been enforced by the federal government as an alternative to the federal-provincial tax agreements under which all of them have signed. So far, none of the provinces has indicated any intention to switch. Quebec is the only province which did not sign the agreements.

Mr. Duplessis received another letter Thursday from Mr. St. Laurent dealing with the tax situation, but a highly-placed spokesman in Quebec City said he doubted whether it contains any information not already made public.

Penitentiaries In Canada Have Housing Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—Now it's Canada's penitentiary population that has a housing problem.

The 5,000-odd men and women occupying cells in eight federal penitentiaries and one training centre can't do a thing about it—except, when they get out, that they stay out.

Help along that line may be forthcoming.

The penitentiary population has reached a peak and further expansion of existing institutions should be kept to a minimum, Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson, commissioner of penitentiaries, suggested Thursday.

He said it is more desirable to establish new institutions to lessen the security and administration difficulties resulting from the overload now faced by federal wardens.

IN ANNUAL REPORT

His views were expressed in his annual report to Parliament tabled here round in great numbers in the report showed that at March last the penitentiary population had increased by 186 to 5,120 from 4,934 a year previously.

The report said:

"It is considered desirable that the existing institutions should be expanded much beyond their present capacity. Large and unwieldy populations involve serious problems of security and administration.

"It therefore appears inevitable that, as the population of Canada increases, the establishment of new institutions to provide for the custody and treatment of an increasing prison population must be contemplated."

Facilities for more segregation within penitentiaries are needed, it from training and the tougher type of criminals should be given more consideration.

MUST REDUCE

If existing federal prisons, to which sentences of two years or more, years are committed, were to be expanded, their rolls must be reduced.

Gen. Gibson said this could be done if "the number of persons sent or more "correctional" institutions to which some types of prisoners could be transferred.

He told a reporter later that the question of what classification would be transferred in that way still is under study. It has been suggested the government is considering setting up a penitentiary solely for inmates serving life sentences.

Gen. Gibson said a more liberal policy in granting parolees might help reduce penitentiary rolls. A parole committee appointed by the government now is studying the matter under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada.

ONLY FAILURES

However, the commissioner said this policy would offset only partially the increase in the penitentiary population.

In the 1953-54 fiscal year 2,418 men and 46 women, for a total of 2,464, were locked up in penitentiaries, compared with 2,161 men and 51 women, totalling 2,418, the previous year.

There were 2,283 discharged, of whom 53 were women. The number of paroles granted was 384, the same as in 1952-53.

FEWER U. S. MARRIAGES

The number of marriages in 1954 was 1,484,000, estimated at about 1,484,000, or some 60,000 fewer than in 1953.

Sunday School Lesson:

We Are the Fortunate Folk

By ROY L. SMITH

All of us have heard, and have probably sung, the old song which expressed a wistful wish that Jesus' hand might have been laid on our heads, that we might have known Him as He might have been held in His arms, and that He had grown and thoughtful eyes we might have heard Him speak.

Jesus, Himself, however, declared that we were to be the fortunate ones—that we would have an inestimable advantage over that generation which heard His voice, looked on His face, and felt the impact of His physical personality.

COUNSELLOR WAS COMING

In the first place, He assured mankind that following Him there would appear among the races of men a Divine Spirit who would find entrance into human minds and by an infinite versatility and by amazing powers of adaptation He would influence the minds of men in the direction of Godliness, peace and justice.

As a living person—a man, "the Word made flesh"—Jesus could be present in only one spot at a time. He could speak but one language. He could appeal to but one people. He was limited to one generation, one social situation, one racial milieu.

That which Jesus called "the Spirit," however, was to be subject to no such limitation. Instead, He would find a way to gain an entrance to every consciousness, every intellect, every hope and every personal consciousness.

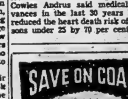
THAT HAPPENED

And that is precisely what has happened! Since the day when darkness fell upon Calvary, and Jesus' body of Nazareth hanging upon Caesar's cross at the edge of the city of Jerusalem, a new spirit has entered into the affairs of men which no nation and no individual has ever been able to avoid or outwit.

Hitler and Mussolini in their day, and Stalin since, undertook to stalk their way through the world intent on imposing their mailed fists upon the throats of all mankind. Each one they found it necessary to appeal to something higher than themselves —the moral law.

This was another way of saying that they were trying to claim for themselves the sanction of the approval of that Spirit which Jesus said would make His appearance. Even tyrants have not been able to ignore the fact of the common conscience of mankind, which is the product of the influence of the Holy Spirit.

SPIRIT STILL WORKS



We are the fortunate folk of all history for the simple reason that the voices of the holy dead are raised from their graves in support of every measure aimed at justice, encouraging every soul that labors in behalf of brotherhood and humanity.

Napoleon, Hannibal, Charlemagne, Attila and Genghis Kahn —these are not the ones who rule the world today. Instead, the spirits of Abraham Lincoln, Cardinal Mercier, William Booths, Elizabeth Fry, and an interminable list of the God's who left just in whom there dwelt the Spirit of the Most High — these are the ones who are mustered to our support!

The testimony of 2,000 years of Christian progress is in support of all those who labor for the emancipation of the souls of men. How fortunate we are! Martyrs, heroes, servants of the common people—these are our allies!

YOUNGER HEARTS STRONGER

CHICAGO (AP)—The president of the American Heart Association says the risk of dying of heart disease has declined sharply for persons under 44 years of age. It has risen a little if stationary for women over 44, but has increased for males above that age. Dr. E. Cowles Andrus said medical advances in the last 30 years have reduced the heart death risk of persons under 25 by 70 per cent.

Weddings

HAGERMAN—WALTERS

PICTON—Basket of blue cinerarias and white snapdragons oblong with ferns made a lovely setting for the marriage on Saturday, January 15, of Ina Irene Walters to Lyle B. Hagerman. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Walters, Moscatfield and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hagerman, R. 2, Picton. The Rev. Stephen Spurrell officiated. Mrs. C. Stanbury at the organ played the traditional wedding music, while Mrs. W. C. Wright, soloist, Lloyd Kellogg, or Port Hope, brother-in-law of the bride, sang "A Wedding Hymn," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a lovely picture in a gown of ivory brocaded satin, styled with portrait neckline, long pointed lace sleeves, fitted bodice, and flaring floor-length skirt. Her full length veil was held by a small bridal cap of pearls and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gerbera with stephanotis.

Attendants were Mrs. Lloyd Kellogg, as matron of honor; the bride, as matron of honor; Miss Margaret Hunter, of Belleville, as bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Kellogg, of Port Hope, sister of the bride, as flower girl. They were dressed alike in gowns of bridesmaid taffeta in cyclamen shade shot with peacock blue, styled on princess lines with bridle's gown, waltz length and short sleeves. They wore headdresses of matching tiaras were of baby roses in white and blue, the same flowers were carried in their Colonial bouquets. The flower girl's dress was a replica of the other attendants' and she carried a nosegay of the same flowers.

Cally Hagerman, of Belleville, was groomsman for his brother. Ushers were Kent Clark, of Wallace-burg, and Cyril Hilliard, of Picton.

The reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Receiving with the bride and groom were the parents of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Walter chose a midnight blue taffeta with sleeveless pearl trimming, winter white hat and corsage of pink delight roses. Mrs. Hagerman was in allegro blue tricotine crepe and Chantilly lace with shell pink flowered hat and corsage of Premier roses.

The house was decorated with baskets of flowers. A large white wedding bell and cluster of white streamers decorated the arch in the living room. Guests were seated in groups at small tables centred with pink and white centrepieces. The bride's table, covered with a linen cloth, was beautifully decorated with pink and white carnations, and tall white tapers in crystal holders on either side of the three-tier wedding cake which was topped with pink and white carnations and surrounded by pink and white tulle.

Servers were Misses Norma Foster, Anne Doxsee, Ruth Vinson, Patsy Leavitt, Margaret Parliament, Patsy Spurrell and Joyce Fleming.

Among the many messages of congratulation was one from England and a telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brooks, Three Hills, Alberta.

Among the guests was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. H. Brooks, who was dressed luncheon gray crepe and lace, hat to match and corsage of Happy Day roses. Others present were guests from Ottawa, Toronto, Bowmanville, Colborne, Brighton, Trenton, Waterloo, Scarborough, Barrie and Port Hope.

Leaving amid showers of confetti and good wishes, for a motor trip to Florida, the bride donned a dress of eggshell freestyle taffeta with mink coat, the shrimp velvet hat, caribou tan accessories and corsage of Briarcliffe roses. They will reside on the groom's farm, R. 1, Picton.

SUCCESSFUL WRITER

Two best-sellers and literary recognition have made little change in the life of Mrs. Evelyn Richardson who with her husband, John, has spent 25 years in lonely Portage Island off Nova Scotia's southwest coast. The spell of the island still fascinates the woman who made it famous with her writing. She is working on a third book. Her first "We Keep the Light" is still going strong nearly ten years after it was published. Her photo she writes in a note-book in front of her lighthouse home. (CP Photo).

Spell of Lonely Island Still Fascinates Lighthouse Keeper

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BON PORTAGE ISLAND, N.S. (CP)—For 25 years Evelyn and Merrill Richardson have kept their lighthouse blinking its warning across the waves, and the spell of this lonely island still fascinates the woman who made it famous with her writings.

Two best-sellers and literary recognition have made little change in the life of Mrs. Richardson. She's kept a lighthouse keeper's wife first: an author second.

A handsome woman with grey-ing hair, she looks more the motherly type than a successful author.

RADIO LINK

Communications with the mainland have improved since the Richardsons came to Bon Portage. They have a two-way radio contact with the direction-finding station at Yarmouth, N.S., and along with other lights in the district report at 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Transportation to and from the island, however, hasn't changed much. It's still by motorboat and then only when weather is right for a landing.

Dropping in on Mrs. Richardson, as she says, "any coffee some in-convenience for the visitor."

FINE COOK

Those who make it during the fall and winter are likely to be treated to wild duck or lobster, which Mrs. Richardson cooks to perfection.

Mrs. Richardson shoots the ducks in a salt-water pond at the mainland end of the three-mile long island. Lobsters, too, are easily come by.

Herbert Larkin, the assistant lightkeeper, gathers them out of traps washed ashore by the waves.

The lighthouse is on the seaward tip of the island, not 25 feet from churning breakers when the tide is high. A seawall had to be built several years ago because the waves, unchecked across thousands of miles of north Atlantic, were chewing in dangerously close to the light.

PROUD OF KITCHEN

Workmen were on the island all fall building a new kitchen, Mrs. Richardson's pride and joy. She says there's no comparison between it and the drafty, dark old affair they served during their first 25 years.

And next summer the department of transport plans to build the Richardsons a new house.

Mrs. Richardson settles in the winter because she's too busy with visitors in the summer. Only people on the island the rest of the year are the Richardsons and Larkin, but included in the "family" are two cats, a dog, Prize, sheep and nearly a dozen head of cattle.

Mrs. Richardson is looking forward to turning a bedroom into a study in the new house. In the present one she works in the living room on a typewriter her proud husband bought her.

WRITING NEW BOOK

She's working on a third book now, a sequel to "Desired Haven" to be called "No Small Tempest." She says she hasn't touched it since spring but plans to get started soon.

"But I don't think I'll get it done this year. My publishers have also asked for a sequel to "We Keep a Light." That book, her first, is still going strong nearly 10 years after it was published.

"We Keep a Light," winner of the governor-general's award, was a warm, simple tale of her family's existence on the island. Anne, the sister daughter, is married with two children at a nearby mainland village. Betty June married the assistant lightkeeper at Cape Sable. Their only son, Laurie, died in 1947.

"Desired Haven," her second book, is a novel of the old days on the island-dotted southwest coast of Nova Scotia.

13th Cub Pack Holds First Card Party

A successful euchre party in aid of the 13th Belleville (Holy Rosary) Cub Pack was held on Wednesday evening at Holy Rosary hall. Seven tables of twenty-four tables were in play.

Cash prizes were awarded the winners and these were as follows, ladies' high, Miss Mary Daly; 2nd high, Mrs. V. Freeman; consolation prize, Mrs. H. Hartiger; most lone hands, Mrs. Conway and Mrs. V. Freeman tying with five.

Men's high score was won by Mr. Dorstaar; 2nd Tom Daley; consolation prize to Mr. Leo Gauthier and winner of the most lone hands (men) was Simon Malloy.

Refreshments were served.

The attendance prize, a mirror, donated by local firm was won by Mrs. Eaves.

Dean of Women At University College Retires

TORONTO (CP)—Marion B. Ferguson, dean of women at University College, who ruled two generations of co-eds with a firm but benevolent hand, retires this term after 34 years service.

She is the third dean of women since the college, an affiliate of the University of Toronto, was established.

Native of Galt, Ont., an interest in young people took Miss Ferguson from teaching to YWCA work in Burma and Ceylon and on to her present post.

During the First World War as a student at the University of Toronto she was the only woman picked to go to the Y.M.C.A. "Y" recruit. She studied two years at Yenching before becoming general secretary in Rangoon for five years.

INTERESTING STUDENT

Known popularly as "Fergy" she often mixed social work with her teaching duties. Among all her students she remembers best the first West Indian student ever admitted to Whitney Hall, the college's women's residence.

The student's name was Eugenia and she arrived by plane with no educational credentials but her name in a newspaper clipping to show she graduated from high school. She had an acceptance from the university.

Immigration authorities gave her an admit-to-lectures card and enrolled her in honor law.

Miss Ferguson took her on a whirlwind shopping tour to equip her with winter clothing she could not buy at home.

NOW IN PRACTICE

Miss Ferguson Eugenia was called to the bar in England and now is practising in her own country.

She once found another student, unable to pay residence fees, living in a Toronto slum and obtained a scholarship for her which allowed her to move into residence.

Miss Ferguson says two things have made her work fascinating. The first is watching girls grow and develop into mature women. The second is the thrill at being a small instrument in the machinery

Campsite Leaders Needed for Guides, And Brownies

The annual meeting of the Belleville Guide and Brownie Association was held Monday in Bridge Street United Church with a majority of Packs and Companies represented.

Mrs. Brown presided and opened the meeting.

Reports were read from the various committees, of particular interest was the badge report showing that the greatest number of badges awarded this year were for "First Aid" and "Home Nursing."

Commissioner Arnott gave the annual report of the Packs and Companies, showing an approximate enrolment of 400 Guides and Brownies with a waiting list due to the lack of leaders. The Commissioner also stressed the need of the association having their own campsite, as at present many girls are deprived of the joys of camping due to the small quota allowed the district. At present there is one site all Belleville and district Guides would have the privilege of attending camp.

It is hoped that the mothers of Brownies and Guides will endeavor to promote Brownie work in the city.

NEW EXECUTIVE

The Commissioner introduced the new executive for 1955 as follows:

Hon. Presidents — Mrs. M. Benscombe, Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Mrs. L. Bowerman, Mrs. M. Hall, Mrs. J. Watson; chairman, Mrs. G. A. Bradford; secretary, Mrs. W. G. Meagher; treasurer, Mrs. D. Stewart; badge convener, Mrs. A. Lewis; assistant, Mrs. R. Mc-Gee; Mrs. O. Dulmage; ways and means, Mrs. G. Durey; executive members, Mrs. J. A. Belair, Mrs. R. Bateman, Mrs. L. Price.

Mrs. Bradford presented a wish for sincere co-operation in 1955 and hopes for a most successful year.

Mrs. R. O. Dulmage, social convener, announced that final plans were being made for the annual Guide and Brownie tea to be held in February at Bridge St. United Church.

Local authorities gave her an admit-to-lectures card and enrolled her in honor law.

Miss Ferguson took her on a whirlwind shopping tour to equip her with winter clothing she could not buy at home.

She once found another student, unable to pay residence fees, living in a Toronto slum and obtained a scholarship for her which allowed her to move into residence.

The Experts Say — Leather Has Now Made Jump From Car Interiors to Homes

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Leather has finally made the jump from car interiors to the living-room.

Leather has been around for centuries, of course, but Canadian and United States interior decorators have just begun using it seriously in the home.

Vera Shatford of New York, representing the upholstery leather group, has a 12-room leather exhibit this week at a Toronto department store. It is the first time leather furnishings have been shown on such a scale in Canada.

Leather manufacturers got the idea that leather could be more widely utilized in the home about three years ago.

SUITS ANY SETTING

"Big advantage of the material," Miss Shatford said, "is that it can look right in any setting, either modern or antique."

Illustrating her point was a room called "leather with platinum" showing leather adapted to a French library setting. A Louis XV chair was upholstered in bright grey-blue leather and platinum-shaded leather curtains were strung on a brass pole.

Finishing touch was a leather nude picture in dark brown leather strips outlining the nude on a faun, deer-skin background.

Another room called "leather and water."

LEATHER USES

Showing leather in a modern setting with copper appointments was a small living room done in aquamarine shades. A small table was covered with an aquamarine leather cloth tooled in gold. The accompanying wing chair was covered in matching leather and finished with copper nail heads.

Another idea is to cover one wall in leather and one in flocked tweed or homespun. Leather was used on television sets, as matting on pictures and for six - foot - high screens.

Upholstery leather firms now stock more than 60 shades of leather and will dye to order if the decorator desires.

Miss Shatford estimates that upholstery leather costs generally from $12 to $15 per yard, 54 inches wide.

Care of leather is quite simple. Floors may be waxed just as ordinary floors and washed over with soap and water. Upholstery leather should not be waxed or touched with anything except soap and water.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HE'S NOT LIKELY JEALOUS, JUST INDIFFERENT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a boy who means a great deal to me. He is a very good dancer, and people say we dance very well together. He almost always dances with me, but seems jealous when I dance with someone else, and when I do, he dances with another girl just so I will notice him.

He asked me for one date, then broke it. Recently, he broke another date with. Another time, he told me to call him (I have no phone). He wasn't home.

He is a very nice fellow, but I am sure he is just trying to make me jealous. I am jealous, but I don't let it show. I have gone out with many others, but none of them mean as much to me as he does. He doesn't go with any other girl.

Please help me. — M.S.

Dear M.S.:

If this chap makes and then breaks dates with you, expects you to go to the trouble of finding a telephone to call him up, and acts altogether in such an indifferent way toward you as you describe, you are very foolish to waste time thinking about him. I rather doubt if he is just trying to make you jealous. It sounds more to me like plain lack of interest in you.

You are probably intrigued because he acts the way he does but any boy who does act this way is not going to be a very desirable friend, even though you should succeed in getting him to pay you more attention. If he is rude and boorish towards you now, he will be just the same way, and probably more so, if you were to get to know each other better, and he would be keeping you unhappy most of the time.

My advice to you is to let him see that you have plenty of fine friends to get with who treat you politely and courteously as a girl should be treated.

GIVE HIM A CHANCE AND SEE IF HE TAKES IT!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last September I fell for a boy I and known all my life. My family and his are good friends.

He knows I want to date him and I think he would like to date me, but he is very quiet and shy and never dates anybody. He is 18 and I will soon be 15.

There are times when I feel angry with myself for waiting for him to ask me for a date, and would like to forget him, but I can't. Sometimes I date other boys, but with no interest. Perhaps I would not care for him if we ever did date, but it's something I've got to find out, because now I feel my life would be incomplete without him. — C.N.

Dear C.N.:

Since you say you would have known this boy all your life, and you feel that the only reason he doesn't date is because he is too shy, I don't see that there would be any impropriety on your part if you made the first move.

For, example, if something is coming up at school to which it would be natural for you to invite a boy, give this one the invitation. Or, give a little party at your home, inviting an equal number of boys and girls so that there would be a partner for each girl in games, dancing or whatever, and see to it that this boy is your partner. You might, even, at such a party, follow the old custom of having each boy paired off with a girl for supper or other refreshments and pair yourself with him.

Once you have given him the invitation, it would be up to him to invite you somewhere, and so the ball might start rolling. If he doesn't return your invitation, however, then, no matter how much you would like to have him for a better friend, and had better get across the situation. To do that rarely works.

Instead, make the polite point of dating other boys and make a real effort to enjoy yourself, instead of

HAS SHE REASON TO LEAVE HER HUSBAND, OR NOT?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married woman in love with a man of whom my husband knows nothing. I've been seeing this man for about six months. He is unmarried, and would like to marry me if I were free.

We are really very much in love and want to be together, but don't know what is right to do.

Please advise us. — Mrs. H. J.

Dear Mrs. H.J.:

How could I possibly advise you in this matter with no real information to go on?

For all I know your husband is kind to you, provides adequately for you, and does his best to make you happy, while you may be a superficial, restless woman who doesn't know a good thing when she sees it.

On the other hand, your husband may be inconsiderate and selfish, he may get drunk and beat you, he may run around with other women, in which case it would hardly be surprising if you wanted to leave him for some man you thought would treat you as a husband should.

Again, it may be that there is just some minor difficulty between you which could be adjusted so that you would be happy together again.

All I can advise you to do, without knowing anything whatever of your real circumstances, is that you examine your situation very closely to determine whether you have any real reason for divorcing your husband, or whether you might make something really fine of your marriage if you set your mind to it.

PROPER TO ASK FOR RETURN OF HEIRLOOM GIFT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About twenty years ago I gave to my dearest friend . . . we went to preparatory school together and to college . . . a very handsome brooch which was an heirloom in my family. She always enjoyed wearing it, and I always enjoyed seeing her wear it. About two months ago she passed on. She had no children. Her husband and one sister survive. Because of the cherished associations I had for the heirloom brooch, I wonder if it would be at all permissible for me to ask her husband if he would mind giving the brooch back to me. Would you please guide me about this? — E.S.

This is a perfectly permissible request for you to make, and I am sure your friend's husband would understand your request. I would like to suggest that you consider making this request through your friend's sister, or at least ask her advice about it. Or, if you think best, make your requests directly to the husband. If you know each other well, you might ask him when you see him; if not, it might be more delicate to write him.

"The heirloom brooch" you refer to Margaret so many years ago is so closely associated with our previous friendship and my treasured memories of her that, if you approve in every way, I would like to have it, to wear in her honor. However, if there is a relative or friend to whom you would like to give it as a memorial gift, I will thoroughly understand.

MUST SHE INVITE PARENTS OF ATTENDANTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be my maid of honor, I am having four bridesmaids and my cousin is to have four ushers. Is it necessary to invite to the wedding the parents of all the attendants? Some of these parents we don't know at all, and several we know only slightly. — E.L.

You must invite all of these parents to the church ceremony, of course. Whether or not you have them to the reception depends on the kind of reception you are having. If it is to be a small reception say the members of the two families, perhaps a few close relatives and perhaps a few very intimate friends . . . you would not be expected to invite those whom, like these parents, you know only slightly or not at all. But if the reception is to be a large 'general' reception, you must invite these parents of your attendants.

MOST DECORATORS HAVE THIS PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is an interior decorator, has just started her own shop, and is working very hard to make it a success. Many evenings she arrives home very tired, but she is a very sociable person and loves to go with me to dine with friends or to play cards or just to spend the evening chatting with friends. But now that it is known that she has her own shop, many of these friends (or even acquaintances who are glorified in the house) begin to ask her about what colors she'd suggest, or what fabric, or what does she think about a certain wallpaper, and so forth, and so forth.

I get furious inside, at their insisting on her "talking shop" when she should be relaxing after her tiring days, and grilling her excellent advice for free. She's nicer than I am, says there is nothing else she can do when they ask her for advice. However, last evening he did say that if there is something that would be courteous that I can do about it, I have her permission to try. Would you please work with me by suggesting "something that would be courteous"? I could say to these people? — Sister

I'm proud of you for trying to "come to the aid of" your sister . . . and indeed it might be simpler for you to take over the explanations. But I must premise you, sister (and me) that you'll step lightly, explaining with great grace, and not give an impression that you are criticizing. (P.S.: No potential customer must be lost!) You might say, for example (With manner most gracious): "You must see Grace's lovely new shop . . . she has some wonderful materials of just the kind you are mentioning."

Beauty

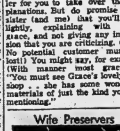
By HELEN JAMIESON

NECK LINES REVEAL AGE

Reproduced by King Features Syndicate

You've seen it often enough! A lovely pink and white face above a yellow, crinkled neck. The smooth, youthful complexion testifies to hours of modeling, patting and fragrant creams. The neck hasn't received even the slightest beauty attention.

Facial operators in salons are doing wonders to restore downtrodden necks to a state of loveliness. Much can be done at home if one will be persistent. Here's something more is needed than a perfunctory application of cream. There should also be vigorous friction to force the emollient into the flesh.



If skin is discolored, a bleaching cream should be applied. The neck can stand astringents, too, if tissues have lost tone and lines are present.

Take a backward look in your mirror. If you are plump, there is danger of a soft little roll developing just below the nape line. You may not know a thing about it but the people who sit behind you at the theater or circle around you at dances will know that roll only too well.

There are means of flattening such a roll. Clasp hands behind your head, pressing heavily into the flesh at the nape. Bother them enough, knead them and smack them and they will go away.

telling yourself how little interest you have in them. The more interested you are in a lot of friends and a lot of activities, the more attractive a girl you'll be, and so more likely to attract this boy, as well as others you may find you like just as well. It would be your own foolish fault if your life were "incomplete" without this one chap.

NEW LINES FOR COTTON

By GRACE THORCLIFFE

The ever-popular combination of black and white gives striking emphasis to a striped cotton handled to achieve a fine princess line and well-molded bodice. Three black buttons call attention to the scoop neckline. Black ribbon makes a nice edging for short sleeve, and is used as a border at the hem. Another band of black tops the hem flounce and makes a centre front bow.

SETTING TO RAIT

"The Soviet government and its satellite governments are seeking to prevent this development (rattification) by an international campaign of intimidation, of cajolery and distortion, by the exertion of every kind of pressure through affecting promises and threats of reprisals.

"We would be unwise and short-sighted if we yielded to it. The choice should be what will happen if these agreements are ratified.

"For in my view will that ratification provoke warlike retaliation unless the Soviet government has drastic reasons, desires to pursue such a belligerent policy.

"I think thyself the chances that such retaliation will happen and are might follow are less now than they were last summer after the European Defence Community was rejected.

Mr. Pearson did not stress so much the danger of war as the protocol—that is, German troops for the Western alliance.

FORCING DEMOCRACY

Rather he emphasized that acceptance of the Paris agreements would help the free nations of the West Germany and bind the Atlantic alliance more closely together.

"We now have a type of government and a political system in West Germany that is democratic and European — minded. Surely we should do what we can to encourage and strengthen that hope of government, not to weaken it by negotiations and retreat.

"Honorable members would debate themselves if they conceived of the people of the German Federal Republic as a nation of militarists straining at the leash for freedom to impose their warlike selves for weapons and to constitute themselves for military aggression.

"The fact is that to the best of my knowledge, in Germany as elsewhere, militarism is dead — war and militarism . . . rearmament . . . is generally regarded as bad . . . a tragic necessity."

RUSSIAN PRESENT

Mr. Pearson, whose audience included Russian Ambassador Dmitri Chvvahin, said he can sympathize with the Canadians who are opposed to German rearmament.

"We have every right to be concerned with German good faith in this series of agreements or any agreements . . . we do not forget how the Nazis exercised the Second World War) with savage brutality and how the German people supported it. . . .

"While we do not forget that and cannot forget it, it is my considered view that support of these agreements with the safeguards I have described is wise and straightened and of all the courses that are open to us this is the best course to follow in our effort to shape a better future."

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if Parliament had been convened last fall and Mr. Pearson reported then, on the fears of Canadians concerning German rearmament would have been allayed or diminished.

Mr. Coldwell said the West, even with the controls of the agreements remaining, should keep close watch on Germany.

Mrs. Low contended that Canadians should not be asked to defend West Germany—"you had soldiers and airmen stationed there —if the Germans were not designing themselves.

Mal-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) said the choice lies between linking West Germany with the West or letting her drift "westward and inevitably to be sucked into the Soviet system."

MADOC

Madoc District Co-op Association Shows Progress

MADOC (Special) — Members of the Madoc and District Co-operative Association held their annual meeting in the basement of the Presbyterian Church in Madoc last week. A capacity crowd, including members, wives and friends, attended the meeting which took the form of a turkey banquet provided by the ladies of the church.

Guest speaker for the evening was Arthur Musgrove, vice-president of the United Co-operatives, who congratulated members of the Madoc Co-operative on the success of their association and pointed out that theirs was one of 156 local co-operatives in the province doing a 50 million dollar business each year.

He reminded the responsibility of the directors in such a venture and noted it was because the board of directors had done their part to bring the Madoc Co-operative to the present standard of success.

Lack of capital, high accounts receivable and directors doing business with competitors were the three biggest obstacles retarding the success of co-operatives, Mr. Musgrove stated.

He stressed that problems be faced squarely noting that when problems are dodged it is back to ourselves in the position of the man who turns his car out to let the bride and groom pass. "To turn out means disaster," Mr. Musgrove urged. "Face the challenge squarely—is an opportunity to get safely over the river."

In the same manner, co-operatives which face their problems squarely are on the road to greater success.

Ralph MacMillan, U.C.O. fieldman for the district, introduced the speaker with appreciation being expressed by Don McKinnon.

$3,923 NET PROFIT

Max Wood reviewed the financial statement of the Co-operative which showed a satisfactory business for the year was $119,151 with a net profit of $3,923 after paying $1,000 in patronage allocation. A patronage dividend of three per cent payable in 30 years was authorized by the members.

New directors elected for a three year term were John Caskey, Arthur Parks and George Palmer. Retiring directors were Rex-Rollins, past president, Dennis Chapman and John Caskey who were eligible for re-election.

Directors met after the general meeting and appointed Don McKinnon as president, Ed. Robinson as vice-president and Earl Sager as secretary. C. H. Ward of Toronto was appointed auditor for 1955.

YOU ONLY GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR

This gentleman needed a hat. He bought in the store and walked out with a very cheap hat. As he stood in the rain that evening waiting for his car, he has already a half it's size. As his soutache got very wet he thought to himself, "You only get what you pay for".

Insurance is like that you know.

Cheap insurance shows up when a fire, a robbery, or an accident. Then, when it's time to collect, you wind up as part of a statistician's table. One of these days you'll be glad you didn't have that kind of coverage. Give your local General Accident insurance agent a call, and ask him to discuss insurance that really insures. His counsel costs not merely with the premium but the lifetime knowledge you desire.

Pictures, Maps Enhance 180 Page Book on Rosier - Rosebush Family

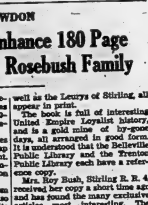
RAWDON—Mr. Walde R. Rosebush, of Rawdon, Wiscoy, Alberta, compiled and had printed a 180-page book of "The Rosier-Rosebush Family."

There is a wealth of pictures and maps in the book of the early days of the area around Stirling, Ont. Another is a pioneer picture record covering the townships of Rawdon and Sidney in Hastings county.

Several hundred records from Stirling appear on the pages, also extracts from Philo Rosebush's book for "The Stirling News-Argus." Philo tells of Joseph Rosebush and and his family as well as children and where they all were born and his story was written in 1896.

Philo was born in 1808, and was a civil engineer conducting land surveys. He wrote many articles for various journals. Here is a thrilling story of how the family arrived "on log" and landed at a point of land jutting from the east bank of the Trent River, where it bends westerwardly to Glen Rose. They spent the winter there, and in the spring came on "Hobble Hill," now known as Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, and remained there for a few months before moving on.

CROWN PROPERTY DEEDED.



The property on the Trent River was eventually deeded from the Crown and for seven generations "Rosebush" have occupied the land.

The book contains items written by Dr. Harry W. Mack, Detroit; Mrs. Percy MacMullin, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. Roy Bush, River Valley, and a full appendix of the various families who have been married in the Rosebush clan. A full outline of "The Wright-White Family" with their pioneer thriller of the little boy spending three days in the Indian camp; a full history of the "Westcott" family of "Bobby Burns", "Ichabod Heard and Chard" families, as well as the Lemys of Stirling, all appear in print.

The book is full of interesting United Empire Loyalist history and is a gold mine of by-gone days, all arranged in good form. It is understood that the Belleville Public Library and the Trenton Public Library each have a reference copy.

Mrs. Mary Bush, Stirling R. R. 1, received her copy a short time ago and has found the many exclusive articles of much interest. The book was published in Appleton, Wisconsin, in December, 1954. The pictures are of the pioneers of Rhode Island and Alfred, New York, the Rosebush family, of New York State, the Rosebush families of Ontario, and the Lewis Rosebush homestead along the Trent River. The excursion boat "Stoney Lonesome" and many other views of particular interest to folks in this area.

The abridged edition is also a book of interest to the youth of to-day who are connected up with the early pioneers.

Richard Runs Wild With Three Goals As Canadiens Wallop Leafs 6-2

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

FLYING HIGH!

The Whitby Wrens, who of late have proved to be the "humming birds" of the senior "B" group, won their eighth straight game when they defeated the slipping Kingston Goodyears the other night.

The Wrens' terrific splurge started on December 29 when they whipped the Petes 9-4. Since that time they have hewn to the victory line and whomped Belleville, Brockville twice, handed the Petes another setback, beaten Clinton and walloped Cornwall. Previous to teeing off down the victory trail on December 29th, the Wrens had dropped three and tied one in their last four starts.

And if the Wrens continue their fiery safari down the victory lane they might pull away from the pack and romp across the wire an easy winner.

For they have no less than six games in eight days starting them in the face starting Saturday, January 22. And four of these games are on the road. They meet Kingston, Clinton, Belleville and Peterborough on their out-of-town tilts and entertain the Petes and Cornwall in the remaining pair. Completion of this compact little schedule will leave them with ten games to play.

Cornwall also plays five games in a little better than a week starting at home Sunday against our side. Then in turn they meet Clinton, Whitby, Peterborough and Kingston in a row, three of them away games. But the Colts will have two games in hand over the Whitby Wrens.

The Memos come up with three important tilts next week, games which may have quite a bearing on their standing. Sunday they look to Cornwall and on Tuesday meet in Bath "must" game against the soaring Wrens from Whitby. The following Friday the Limestone Goodyears will be their guests, and that brings the Memos' total number of games played to 36, just twelve short of the wire.

The Beechermen hold a 3-2 edge in victories over the Cornwall team. The Colts hold the record of being shut out the most times during the season, two in all, and the Memos draped their necks with the collar on both occasions. The only other shut-out was a 3-0 game in the 3-0 defeat of Clinton by Brockville on December 14th.

Some one more superstitious than we might, after glimpsing the scoring records of the Memos to date, come up with the remark the letter "D" is their point-getting symbol.

At the last compilation the Duncan twins are topping the pack with Edwin totalling 49 points and brother Erwin 47. Linemate Ted DeGray has 23, giving this "D" line a total of 121, points, 51 of them goals.

Third in line is the ole sorrel-top Red Doran, who has climbed into third place with 12 goals and 15 assists for a 27 total, his best record since coming to Belleville. DeGray holds down fourth spot. Then comes Davey Jones with 23 points and Doug Day, ditto. Hub Macey breaks up the consecutive "D" list with 22 points, one ahead of Arnie Dugan, who has been scoring of late.

Vern Geyer and Peter Jones each have 19 points and four more players grade downward to Bob Wilson's eleven. Fourteen of the Memos' roster have accumulated double figure point scores, a marked difference to the team record of last season. To date the have scored 145 goals and 127 assists. The "goals against" number is 125. This in 23 games played.

While the Memos' scoring ability is definitely more distributed than last year, the club's scoring record, comparatively speaking, is well below that of a year ago. Their total for a 40-game schedule in 1954 was 191 goals and 258 assists.

Bob Wilson, in this department's opinion, the most improved player on the squad, is the "bad man" of the team with 69 minutes spent in the hoosegow.

The Memos' total time in durance vile is 458 minutes. The overall total for 40 games last year was 576 minutes. Erwin Duncan is the leading goalgetter with 29 to date with brother Edwin topping the "assisters" with 33. Hub Macey tops the scoring defencemen with 4-18; Vern Geyer-wack 8-11; Jake Wade 5-8; Johnny Mackier 6-9 and Wilson 6-7.

O'NEILL BACK IN BASEBALL PICTURE

Steve O'Neill (centre), long-time big league catcher, manager and coach is back in major baseball, but this time as a front office executive, having signed as assistant to Hank Greenberg (left), Cleveland Indians' general manager. Greenberg is shown handing the fountain-pen to Mike Garcia, Redskin mound star, who signed a $30,000 1955 contract. Pilot is the first of the Tribe's "Big Three" hurlers, Bob Lemon, Early Wynn to tote a contract for this year. Lemon won 23 games in 1954. (Central Press Canadian).

Explosive Rocket Gets Assist As Beliveau Hits Hemp Twice; Smith Scores Both Leaf Goals

By The Canadian Press

The ever-startling Maurice Richard, still an explosive superstar when most athletes are past their peak, did it again Thursday night.

The 33 - year - old righthinger scored three goals to lead Montreal Canadiens to a 6-2 National Hockey League victory over the unpredictable Toronto Maple Leafs.

It would have been a tremendous performance for a run-of-the-mill player, but it was old stuff to the Rocket. This was the 32rd hat trick of his tumultuous career, and gave him his 410th goal in the NHL and the 26th of the season. He also picked up an assist.

Richard again chose Montreal Forum for his brilliant performance, and 14,269 fans nearly went wild.

RAINS BOP WINGS

In the only other league game, the upstart Bruins edged the tough Detroit Red Wings 3-2 at Boston. The Bruins remained in fourth spot with 40 points, 12 behind Leafs.

The Montreal victory moved Canadiens into a first-place tie with the Red Wings. Each has 59 points, seven up on Toronto.

Richard, Montreal's No. 1 citizen, overshadowed the display of Jean Marc Richard Beliveau, 21-year-old rookie to raise his season's total to 26 goals.

Beliveau, a 23-year-old centre heralded by many as most likely to become a star of stars, also got an assist and is tied for the lead in the league scoring race with teammate Bernie Geoffrion. They have 50 points each.

Bernie Geoffrion set an also-ran in this one. Calum MacKay, centre ice Canadiens' No. 1 line Wally Hergesheimer and Bert Olmstead, scored the other Montreal goal.

Lotheiter Ed Chadwick of Smith saved Leafs from a blackout by scoring his 22nd goal of the season. That tied the game 2-2 but Canadiens had little trouble re-gaining the lead.

MORNS SCORES PAIR

Goals early in the third period by Dave Mohns and Leo Labine gave Bruins their victory. It was the second straight setback for the Detroiters.

Mohns came up with a two-goal performance. His first came at 11:30 of the second period and cut Detroit lead to 2-1. He tied it in the third period with his ninth goal of the season. Labine's 15th goal of the season won it.

The victory was a triumphant return for Bruins' coach Lynn Patrick. Jim Henry, He had been replaced by rookie Jack Henderson but showed up again when Henderson suffered an injury.

No games are scheduled until Saturday, when the Wings are at Toronto, the last - place Chicago Black Hawks at Montreal and the fifth-place New York Rangers in Boston. The Leafs are in Toronto at Detroit, Montreal at Chicago and New York at Boston.

Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Big Jean Beliveau of Montreal scored two goals and assisted on another Thursday night to break teammate Bernie Geoffrion's long-standing monopoly of first place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Beliveau's scoring splurge boosted his points total to 50, the same as Geoffrion, who has held the lead since the start of the season. Geoffrion still leads in goals with 27, one more than Beliveau and Maurice Richard of the Habs.

Richard also found the range Thursday for three goals and an assist and strengthened his hold on third place.

Marlies Add To Hamilton Loss String

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto Marlboros defeated Hamilton Cubs 2-1 Thursday night to run the Hamilton club's winless streak to six games, two ties and four consecutive Ontario Hockey Association Junior A losses.

Gary Aldcorn and Billy Harris were the marksmen for the Dukes while Brian Smith accounted for the lone Cub goal.

The Hamilton club disputed Aldcorn's goal which goalie Dennis Riggin stopped but then dropped over the goal line, according to the goal judge.

Riggin was replaced for a sixth forward in the last: 55 seconds of play, and Marlboros played three forwards to six for the last 37 seconds when Bob Pulford got an interference penalty. But Cubs weren't able to get a shot against the tight Marlie defence.

Cubs were outshot 36-22.

Canadian Players 'Better Than Yankee Coaches'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota hockey coach Jonny Mariucci, whose team is exclusively American, has conceded Thursday the presence of Canadian players on U.S. teams.

"We at Minnesota don't have any Canadians," the American - born Mariucci said, "but our doors are open. One good Canadian player is worth 10 American coaches."

The outspoken Gopher coach, a former defenceman for Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League whose teams have won two straight Western Intercollegiate Hockey League titles with American personnel, acknowledged "the schools might get overload with Canadians."

"But, he said, "it's their business."

Mariucci thus took crisp issue with Dartmouth coach Ed Jeremiah, who earlier this year protested the wide prevalence of Canadians on American college teams. He added:

"American players can learn more watching good Canadian play than they can by listening to the coaches."

Herb Score, Phenomenal Young Lefty May be Second Feller, Says Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YOR K(AP) — Men who watched Herb Score, a somewhat phenomenal young southpaw, pitch for Indianapolis in the American Association last year say that if Anderson League plate umpires give him half a break he will be the most sensational thing to hit the big leagues since Bobby Feller came up 18 years ago.

They say, also, that there won't be a hope of keeping Cleveland Indians out of the world series again if he did. Score is slated for a regular turn with Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia. Score is the 21-year-old who struck out 329 batters in 251 innings last season, leading the Asociation to association record, while posting a 22-3 winning mark.

Off such a performance it would appear to be almost certain that the talented youngster will be an immediate success in the majors, but baseball men have learned to be wary because of the umpiring factor. Getting strikes over is the highest minors, they claim, is a different matter from getting them in the big league.

"I haven't even seen Score," said a rival American League manager recently, "but when a rookie runs up a strikeout record like that I can't help having a feeling that the umpires were giving him a lot of the close ones. He'll find that they don't do it up here. If he can stand or discouraged about it at the start he'll have trouble . . .

Maybe that can split that blate when he needs to. If he can, brother, I hate to think about it."

Imports Will Be Main Topic At Western Confab

CALGARY (CP)—Imports—how many to keep—probably will be the topic of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's annual meeting in Calgary this weekend.

The union is expected to hear little opposition to the plan of several clubs for a rapid truce with the National Football League on the question of player-raiding.

The Western Conference, though compartmitted reasonably by the American professional league, has indicated through several executives its plan for a no-raiding pact under which player contracts and options—especially those now held by the NFL—would be seriously respected.

Edmonton Eskimos announced plans to have the conference send G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, WIFU commissioner, to the NFL's Pro Bowl game next week "some sort of fair and honorable agreement" has been supported by at least two other clubs.

On the import score, Eskimos and British Columbia Lions already have proposed the death of the term "Canadian—American," used to designate the American player who has served four consecutive seasons in Canadian football.

Both clubs want to field a dozen imports, regardless of their length of Canadian service.

Other delegates might stick to the Big Four recommendations for eight imports plus two Canadian Americans.

Cataraqui Club Gets OGA Open

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Golf Association open will be played this year at Cataraqui Club, Kingston, and the amateur tournament will be held at Kitchener Westmount course, it was announced Thursday night.

The OGA tournament committee announcement said the Open will be held June 24-25. Play will be over 18 holes the first day and 36 for the qualifiers the second day. Rudy Horvath, Windsor, is defending champion.

The amateur rounds are set for July 4-5 on the same course of Stanley Grant Shirk. It will be matched over Bryngbout.

'Y' Basketball

George Parkhurst tallied an impressive 26 points to lead his team to victory over the Whizz Kids in a YMCA House League game last night. Bill Dickey was the top scorer for the Whizz Kids with 18 points. Final score 70 to 48 for the Pirates.

In the 8.30 game Jack Mahorn topped the scoring on the Idiots team with 24 points. Ted Batchelor was high scorer for the Speedsters with 31 points. Idiots ended a two- game losing streak by defeating the Speedsters 62 to 46.

Three teams, Idiots, Pirates and Whizz Kids are now tied for first place with four wins apiece.

Royals Goalie To Join Bears

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Hershey Bears said Thursday that goaltender Gilles Boisvert of the Quebec Hockey League Royals of Montreal, will join the team Saturday as a temporary replacement for the injured Gordie Henry.

General manager Lloyd Eilio of the American Hockey League Bears said Boisvert will replace Henry for Saturday's game against Cleveland Barons. He added he hopes to sign a permanent replacement for Henry for next Wednesday's game against Pittsburgh.

Henry was sidelined indefinitely Tuesday when he was injured in an auto accident which cost the life of his 25-year-old wife, Leona. He suffered fractures of the ribs, shoulder blade and elbow.

Wanda Beasly, Toronto Junior Skater Wins Compulsory Figures Title

TORONTO (CP)—Wanda Beasley, an out-doors girl who likes to hunt, Thursday won the junior ladies' compulsory figures event as the Canadian figure-skating championships.

The 19-year-old Toronto miss, who has been skating since she was just four, moved ahead of Dianne Williams, 16, of Calgary, on the last two of the five compulsory figures with a 23.5-point advantage. Only 39 points separated the 18 entrants.

The dark and attractive Toronto Skating Club competitor racked up 677.3 points in the five figures. Calgary's Glencoe Club took the next three spots with Miss Williams, runner-up last year, getting 653.8 points, Mary Cruickand, 572.1 and Karen Dixon, 574.9.

Marjorie Kistner of the Galt Figure-Skating Club was fifth with 556.9 points, Two Chatham girls, Sandra Woodall and Bonnie David, placed 11th and 19th respectively with 542.3 and 536.1. Elaine Richards of Ottawa was 17th with 530.3.

OTTAWA SKATER 2ND

Fourteen-year-old Don Jackson of Ottawa's Minto Club Thursday took the junior men's compulsory figures with 307.6 points. Hugh Smith of Oshawa was second with 305.5 and Bob Paul of Toronto third with 301.3.

The school figures count 60 per cent in marking for the junior ladies' titles. The second part—free skating, which counts for either 40 per cent—will start late this afternoon in both junior men's and junior ladies' events.

For Wanda, the standings were something of a surprise. It is her third try for the junior title, a knee injury keeping her out the last two years. She says her chances in the free style today are fairly good and she hopes to maintain her lead.

Ten Russ Teams Battle For Hockey Honor

MOSCOW (CP) — Komsomol Pravda, organ of the Communist Youth League, sees significance in the fact that Canada's entry in the world hockey championships next month will travel to Europe by airplane.

"Never in the history of hockey will there be such a speedy expedition," Komsomol Pravda says.

"It is characteristic that the Canadian hockey players will cross ope by plane instead of by ship, as they did previously. The Canadians want to conserve their strength. Therefore they also will play only four exhibition games in Europe. . . ."

The newspaper reported that in cold-November 19 Russian teams were training in mountainous Siberia and the Urals, all aiming to qualify as Soviet representatives at the Czechoslovakian tournament in Germany.

Canada is proud the Allan Cup champion Penticton V's to the championships, won last year by Moscow Dynamo.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Johnny Arthur, heavyweight champion of South Africa, won by a technical knockout over opponent Jimmy Walls here Thursday night when Walls was unable to answer the third round bell in a scheduled 10-round boxing exhibition.

Walls, from Cliffside, N.J., and claiming the heavyweight championship of Bermuda, weighed in at 191½, but gave away 42 pounds to the ponderous Arthur. He went down three times under a sustained attack in the last two minutes of the second round.

He was dragged, semi-conscious, to his corner and even traded efforts of manager Joe Vella and two handlers failed to bring him around in time to go out for the third.

FOG FINALLY CLEARS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Skies cleared over eastern Newfoundland Thursday and planes, grounded for weeks by heavy fog, droned to and from the St. Johns airport by the dozen. Commercial aircraft went back on schedule and passenger waiting lists were cleared.

BOXER AGAINST FIGHTER is a match of speed and skill against strength and power.

A fast, clever boxer must keep continually on the move when fighting a strong, hard-punching fighter! Ring judges may like the boxer's shifty style with dazzling speed, but the fighter's heavy, punishing blows do a lot more damage. A good puncher can hurt and confuse a boxer, knock him down and, finally knock him out. So, in many bouts, the fighter ends up "The Winner!"

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Good slam bidding is the cream of your crop at bridge winnings. You could do without it, of course. But in that case the main joy you get out of the game is dropping cards on a table now and then.

Every modern system includes the science of reaching slam. The making of a slam requires the taking of 12 tricks or more. So the first basic idea is discovery of 12 possible trick takers.

How is this discovered? By exchanges of information by a pair until a partner or both learns the combined holdings. What is used as a measure of tricks? Hear what the teachers say.

Culbertson says six or more honor tricks, depending on the type of distribution. Goren says 33 points or more. Accordin' to Gordon you must see a total count of 12 tricks or more.

Mind you, these measures do not assure a slam by themselves. They are simply the basic determiners of whether a slam is worth probing for. Other features are supporting factors.

Take the south hand shown here:

♠Q J 5
♥A 3
♣A K J 2

Culbertson would say you have five honor tricks. If you learn of more than one honor trick in partner's hand there is a basis for slam; providing the other supporting factors are discovered.

Goren would say you have 21 points. If you learn of 12 or more points in partner's hand there is a basis for slam, providing that there are other supporting factors in the pair.

Accordin' to Gordon your hand counts a total of six tricks. In partner shows you six tricks in his hand there is a basis for slam if you are able to discover the other supporting factors needed.

Thus, we all agree in the main idea. If you understand the Culbertson way, fine. If you can use the Goren way, also fine. If you are lost with either, you will have no trouble with mine.

Color TV Approved Year Ago But Progress Has Been Slow

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—More than a year after federal approval, American color television still hasn't been able to get off the ground—and appears unlikely to do so for some time yet.

It may be the fall of 1956, or later, before many people will be seeing their favorite stars in color on a regular basis. And prospects are that it will be set before as many as half the sets in use will be color sets.

A spot check around the industry indicates the following handicaps are holding back color TV. The high price of color sets, which retail for $600 up; the small amount of 'color programming, averaging only about three hours a week on the two networks telecasting in color; and uncertainty among set manufacturers as to whether any of the color TV picture tubes thus far developed is practical for mass production at moderate prices.

Only Radio Corp. of America and its subsidiary National Broadcasting can immediate prospects of color TV and it appears they may have to shoulder a major part of the job of putting it across. David Sarnoff, board chairman of both firms, says RCA has spent $50,000,000 in developing color TV and has no intention of letting down now.

HOPE TO EXPAND

As for color shows on NBC, Robert Sarnoff, executive vice president, says "we hope soon to expand the schedule."

The Columbia Broadcasting System denies printed reports that it plans to cut its color programs and says they will continue on schedules previously announced. However, these schedules run only until June and company spokesmen are reluctant to be specific on what is planned after that.

Both NBC and CBS have put color sets on the market, starting with 12-inch models that were discontinued when public response was almost nil. The CBS Columbia division then came out with a 14-inch model using a tube made by CBS-Hytron, and RCA followed with a 21-inch model just reaching the market. CBS-Hytron, in turn, quit making the tube in order to concentrate on a 22-inch rectangular tube which is not yet commercially available.

Admiral Corp. started shipping 21-inch color sets a few days ago and Ross Siragusa, president, estimates total industry production of tinted models will run only 100,000 to 200,000 for all of 1955. About 22,000 color sets were made in 1954.

Other major set makers as Philco, General Electric and du Mont are waiting for development of a reliable cheaper color TV picture tube before getting into production of color sets.

No Uniforms, Numbers, Walls In Prison Portrayed in Film

By BOB THOMAS

CHINO, Calif. (AP)—Hollywood has given movie prisoners in air planes, on ocean liners and even under water. Now comes one inside a prison.

Actually, there is little resemblance to a prison here. There are no uniforms, numbers or walls. The guards are unarmed. The inmates live in dormitories, watch TV at night and enjoy a swimming pool.

California Institution for Men, generally referred to as Chino, is the subject of a new picture, "Unchained," which had its premiere here this week. The film, which was written, directed and produced by Hall Bartlett, was shot here entirely and most of the inmates were used as actors.

Former footballer Elroy Hirsch, who stars in the film, Joe E. Brown, Donald Crisp, Joan Tetzel, John Qualen and Gordon (Tarzan) Scott were among the Hollywood contingent who attended the premiere. They met a remarkable man named Kenyon J. Scudder, who has been Chino's guiding spirit since its inception.

WALLS FOR HANDBALL

Chino was being built along contemporary lines in 1940 to take care of California's growing prison population. Largely through Scudder's efforts, the place was converted to a minimum security type of prison. The walls were not completed and are used now for handball. Lookout towers were boarded up.

Scudder's motto was "prisoners are people," and that's the title of his book which inspired the movie.

At superintendent (not warden) of Chino, he allowed prisoners to wear their own clothes and come and go from their dormitories largely as they pleased. Security is provided by a count of the inmates every four hours.

Families are permitted to visit on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Food picnic on the grounds.

But most of all a convict needs a job on the outside, and Chino provides the best training possible for welders, bricklayers, plasterers and other crafts.

The Chino plan appears to have worked. Rehabilitation is in 30 to 40 per cent above that of other prisons, a high figure even though 20,000 parolees are back-picked (only one) out of four California convicts make it. Most convictions offence is bogus cheque passing. But inmates also include a few murderers. Although murderers can leave merely by scaling a fence, the rate of escape is less than one per cent.

AT THE CAPITOL — Something has happened to Gene Evans and Ruth Hall, starred in their latest Bowery Boys comedy, "Bowery to Bagdad," now playing at the Capitol with the Queen's movie for the first showing today and Saturday, in the main program. Abbott and Costello in "Buck Privates Come Home."

AT THE BELLE—Alan Ladd is seen with Audrey Dalton in Delmer Daves' "Drum Beat", in CinemaScope Stereophonic Sound and Warner Color opening Today at the Belle Theatre. Bugs Bunny in "Quack Shot" is an added attraction.

OMEA Suggests W. Ross Strike As Hydro's Head

TORONTO (CP) — W. Ross Strike, second vice-chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, is to be proposed for appointment as chairman in succession to the late Robert Saunders.

A. Col. A. A. Kennedy, president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, said today in an interview his organization will make the proposal.

The commission comprises municipal hydro commissioners throughout the province.

AT THE McCARTHY
WIDE WORLD IS DIRECTOR'S WORK ROOM.
Making movies, out of the country is a complicated business but well worth the red tape, the sweat and the tears, according to Director Henry Hathaway who has cajoled, screamed and bargained his way through a dozen foreign productions in the last 20 years.
Hathaway's most recent "business trip" was into the heart of Mexico where he directed Twentieth Century-Fox's CinemaScope production in Technicolor, "Garden of Evil," now at the McCarthy Theatre. This is a star-studded vehicle whose panoramic background plays an integral part in the story plot. Gary Cooper, Susan Hayward, Richard Widmark, Hugh Marlowe and Cameron Mitchell were cast as adventurers who try to wrest gold from a forbidden sanctified ground in the heart of Mexico's mountain area. The authentic native atmosphere that is derived from such conditions as this in Mexico make them pay for themselves, Hathaway feels.
"Garden of Evil" is actually Hathaway's second CinemaScope venture, in foreign territory, the filmed background material in England for "Prince Valiant") but the difficulties of the Mexican location are typical according to him.
"First there is the problem of transportation. This means getting the mechical and photographic material to the area first. Then there is the problem of customs delays and inoculations for the crew and players.
"Differences of language slow you down no matter how skillful your interpreters, while differences of labor laws and union regulations create red tape. For instance, on "Garden of Evil" we had to pay standby directors, authors and musicians and, except for our key technicians, use Mexican workmen.
"But, despite all the hardships and maddening details, it is the only way to make a movie."
Hathaway, who turns out top box-office successes year in and year out, should know.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma got a letter from Ant Fanny in the mail this morning, and she red it at breakfast, saying to pop, Goodness, William, I mean mersey, Uncle Fill has married his 24 year old secretary for land sakes, she said.

What a carefree, pop said and ma said, He always was giddy scatterbrained, but she is beginning to fall, Fanny 9 years old of all things, she said. I remember it seeming like Uncle Fill at your sister Fanny's place, pop said. That was when his wife was still living. She had her hands full with old Fill, he said, and ma said, Yes, the poor woman, she practically never saw him. He was a fiend, a gambling fiend. He played in some poker game every night of his life, she said.

Lucky devil, pop said, and ma said, Wiliam what do you mean? I mean any man who always comes out ahead at poker, like your Uncle Fill, is a lucky devil, pop said, and ma said Well that doesn't excuse him for land sakes. And his half brained marriage is the crowing straw. There is nothing more ridiculus than a grate diffrence in age. She's probably just some empty headed little piece of Frenich pastry. When he is 60, she will be 34. I wonder if he stopped to think of that? ma said.

Well yes, he probably did, pop said, with his luck, he figures that when he's 89, another 24 year old secretery will bob up, he said, and ma said, You're worse than he is, and it's or even funny, so stop laffing.

Which he didn't, still laffin when he kissed her good bye an left for his office.

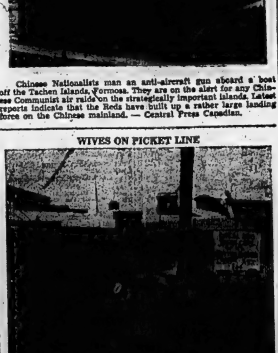
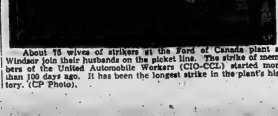
EX-KING PLANS U.S. TOUR



Though this photo would not prove the point, ex-king Peter of Yugoslavia and his wife are now reconciled and have given up all thought of divorce. The exiled monarch is now in London, England, where he is making plans to go on a lecture tour in the U.S.—Central Press Canadian.

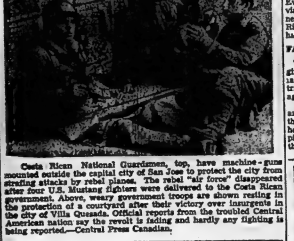
ESKIMO TRAVELLING SALESMAN



A long way from home is Yelept Puppyginuk-Koopsuck, whose craft is a whaleskin comiak. Mr. F-K hails from Kotzebue, Alaska, where he sells outboard motors to other Eskimos. He is on his way to the National Motorboat Show in New York and here he chugs along the New York Harbor, the famous skyline his backdrop.—Central Press Canadian.

ON ALERT FOR RED AIR RAIDERS

Chinese Nationalists man an anti-aircraft gun aboard a boat off the Tachen Islands, Formosa. They are on the alert for any Chinese Communist air raids on the islands, nearby important islands. Latest reports indicate that the Reds have built up a rather large landing force on the Chinese mainland. — Central Press Canadian.



WIVES ON PICKET LINE

About 75 wives of strikers at the Ford of Canada plant at Windsor join their husbands on the picket line. The strike of members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) started more than 100 days ago. It has been the longest strike in the plant's history. (CP Photo).

COSTA RICAN FIGHTING FADES

Costa Rican National Guardsmen, top, have machine-guns mounted outside the capital city of San Jose to protect the city from strafing attacks by rebel planes. The rebel "air force" disappeared after large U.S. Mustang fighters were delivered to the Costa Rican government. Above, weary government troops are shown resting in the protection of a courtyard after their victory over insurgents in the city of Villa Quesada. Official reports from the troubled Central American nation say the revolt is fading and hardly any fighting is being reported.—Central Press Canadian.

Special Formula Required For Two Children

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A medical witness said in court Thursday that a child could suffer malnutrition if its mother did not strengthen its formula to keep pace with growth.

Dr. M. G. McGuire of Brockville testified at the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elliott of nearby North Augusta on charges of neglecting to provide the necessities of life for two of their children, David, 28 months, and Donna, 11 months, both of whom died during the Christmas season. The couple pleaded not guilty.

The Elliotts have six other children.

Dr. McGuire said Donna was brought to his office Christmas Day.

"I thought she was dying," he said. "I instructed that she be taken to hospital immediately."

SPECIAL FORMULA

Evidence was that the two children were the only ones of the eight not breast fed, but required a special formula.

A neighbor, Mrs. Jean Hutt, testified there was normal food scarcity of food in the Elliott home.

Elliott, a truck driver, was described by his employer as a "reliable driver concerned with his wife and family."

The trial is continuing.

Bushworker May Know His Fate Some Time Today

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) The week-long murder trial of bushworker John Lecuyer, 36, may go to the jury today.

Defence and crown counsel were scheduled to address the jury and Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen of the Supreme Court of Ontario was to make his charge to the jury after that.

Lecuyer is charged with beating Helen Rivers, 30-year-old Indian, to death New Year's Eve in their one-room shack near Blind River, 35 miles east of here. He said he had lived with the girl for the last four years.

Lecuyer, the only witness called by defence counsel C. Terrence Murphy, testified Thursday that Miss Rivers got drunk New Year's Eve when she and several friends visited Blind River hotels. Witnesses testified earlier that Miss Rivers was so drunk "she could hardly walk."

FACE BLEEDING

The bushworker said when the girl came back to the shack her face was bleeding. He said she tripped and fell, striking her head against a stove door.

Lecuyer said he picked her up and carried her to the bed and then started to drink wine. Then, he said, the girl got out of bed, picked up a butcher knife and threatened to "put it through me."

He said he took the knife away and put her back in bed but she got up again and came toward him with a hatchet.

"I held her with my left hand and hit her twice with my right," he testified.

Lecuyer carried her back to bed for a third time and resumed drinking, he said. He built a fire when she complained she was cold. Later when he asked her if she was still cold she did not reply, he said.

Twenty-one w'itnesses were called by the crown.

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair . . . and Guarantee It!

Demonstration To Be Held Here

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville, Ont. Sunday ONLY, January 23.

These private individual demonstrations will be held at the New Queen's Hotel on Sunday ONLY, January 23.

HALIFAX, Jan. 7—In an interview here today, Wm. L. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and Director of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, said "There are 18 different Scalp diseases that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

"Once a person avails themselves of the Keele treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin or colorless, the Keele treatment can perform wonders.

A completely private examination is given by a trichologist to de'ermine the cause of the hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATION

This examination is very thorough and highly technical it requires 20 to 30 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination the person is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Halifax and check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities throughout Canada to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

" "We have no cure-all for sick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the result is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR A LIFETIME

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observance of a few simple rules.

HOW'S YOUR HAIR

If it worries you, call Trichologist G. G. Abbott at the New Queen's Hotel in Belleville, Ont., on Sunday ONLY, January 23, 13 noon to 9 p.m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way. (Adv.)

Carrier Task Force Reported Moving To Formosa Area

Nationalist Planes Step Up Battle For Island

Wife's Scanties Working Garb Of Aussie Miners

COALCLIFF, Australia (CP) — The well - dressed Australian coal miner wears only his wife's "scanties" and a pair of boots when at work.

This fact emerged today in a discussion of underground fashions following a strike of 230 miners here because the management refuses to let them wear the garb.

Officials told the miners they must be dressed at least in shorts when there is a possibility of visiting parties seeing them.

A veteran 60-year-old miner said dozens of miners at Coalcliff wear their wives' underwear to work.

The men perspire so much underground that even boots rot," he explained.

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A United States Navy fast carrier task force left Manila bay early today and was reported—but not confirmed officially — headed toward the troubled Formosan waters which have swirled all week with hot and cold action and Red China's biggest amphibious invasion of the long civil war.

Nationalist planes struck back Friday night and today at Yikiangshan island, invaded Tuesday by the Communists — and won after bloody fighting against Nationalist guerrillas.

Yikiangshan is eight miles north of the Nationalist Tachen Islands, which are 200 miles north of Formosa and 13 miles from the China mainland.

The 23,000-ton U.S. Carriers Essex, Yorktown and Kearsarge pulled out of Manila bay for what a navy spokesman there termed exercises at a "regular operational area."

A well-placed naval source at the Pacific fleet headquarters in Pearl Harbor said it would be a "safe assumption" that the carriers were headed for the Formosa area.

Each of the ships carry a 100-plane striking force.

MAY MOVE TROOPS

The reported move to back U.S. 7th fleet units charged with the defence of Formosa emphasized Washington reports that the U.S. might aid in moving Nationalist troops off outpost islands threatened by Red invasion.

(President Eisenhower is reported preparing to ask congressional approval for such an operation if necessary.)

But Nationalist Premier O. K. Yui today said his government is "firmly opposed" to withdrawal from any off-shore islands.

The English-language newspaper China News says President Chiang Kai-shek's government has ordered every regular island defended at all costs, but like Yikiangshan, where the Nationalists said 720 guerrillas fought to the last man against overwhelming Communist air, sea and land forces.

ARAB LEADERS MEET TO DEBATE DEFENCE PROBLEM

Egypt Calls Meeting As Iraq Ends Neutrality

By ROBERT HEWETT

CAIRO (AP)—An uneasy group of Arab premiers sought today to settle their darkening dispute over joining with the West in a Middle East defence pact.

Egypt called the emergency meeting in an attempt to line up her Arab neighbors against oldrich Iraq, whose premier, Nuri Said, announced last week that his government would sign a mutual defence treaty with American-backed Turkey.

Nuri's action cracked the unity of the Arab League, which has remained aloof from a bid with either East or West, and threatens Egypt's leadership of the Arab world.

Nuri himself sent word he was too ill to attend today's meeting. Egypt insisted on going ahead without him, despite Iraq's request for postponement of the conference.

Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser's government, which only recently signed a British agreement with Britain for evacuation of British troops from the Suez Canal zone, said the Arab states should rely only on themselves for defence.

NEIGHBOR UNEASY

But Lebanon's Premier Sami Solh expressed the neighbor's uneasiness over the chance of Soviet attack when he said the Arab states by themselves could not defend the Middle east against outside aggression.

Iraq's Nuri has made clear he views the Arab collective security pact a "daydream" for defence against aggression.

Meanwhile, Turkey's Premier Adnan Menderes announced in Istanbul that he will "publicly appealing to our brother Egypt" and the other Arab League countries to join the Turkish-Iraqi pact.

Two Men Thrown From Skidding Truck, Killed

ARMSTRONG, Ont. (CP)—Two men were killed early Thursday when thrown from a skidding truck which crashed into a parked log-loader.

They were Almo Alvi Huron, 36, and Alfred Blixt, 28.

Provincial police said the mishap occurred about 1:30 a.m. Thursday on a private road leading from Armstrong to camp 10 of Northern Forests Products Limited.

They said a front wheel of the truck ran into loose snow and the vehicle overturned. The driver attempted to swing the truck into a gravel pit. However, the truck left the road and smashed into the loader.

OUTFIELDER HITS HORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — A riding-school horse bolted in central park Friday, threw off its rider and then was struck by an automobile driven by Monty Irvin, left fielder for the New York Giants baseball team. The horse was destroyed by a policeman after it was discovered the car had broken its leg. Irvin suffered superficial leg injuries.

Govt. Approves Canadian Air Service Over Roof of World

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian airservice over the roof of the world between this country and Europe has been approved by the federal government.

Canadian Pacific Airlines, now flying the Pacific, expects to start flying the 4,825-mile polar route next May. This route between Vancouver and Copenhagen cuts 1,000 miles off the existing flight distance between Canada's west coast and the European continent.

Approval of a CPA trans-Arctic application the cabinet, announced Friday by Transport Minister Marler, means the Canadian Pacific Railway's aviation subsidiary will be the only Canadian company to operate over the polar route between the two continents.

G. O. McGregor, CPA president, said in Vancouver Friday night that at the outset the airline will schedule one flight weekly in each direction.

Eastbound flights will leave Vancouver every Friday, arriving at a route.

Amsterdam 18½ hours later after a refuelling stop at Churchill, Man.

Westbound flights, against prevailing winds, will leave The Netherlands on Saturday evening, arriving in Vancouver Sunday morning after a refuelling stop at Sondestrom, Greenland. CPA will use Super Canso aircraft.

The only trans-continental commercial service cutting inside the Arctic circle now is one started recently by Scandinavian Airlines between Los Angeles and Copenhagen. It touches Canada for a refuelling stop at Winnipeg.

CPA has also been refused to follow a great circle route leaving its planes no more than 90 minutes flying time from an airport at any time.

Its big Canadian competitor, the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines—did not oppose Canadian Pacific's bid for the so-called trans-polar route. Nor did TCA file an application of its own for such a route.

Dairy Farmers Turn Down Govt. Argument on Imports

REGINA (CP)—Canada's dairy farmers aren't accepting federal government arguments for permitting New Zealand to place 2,225,000 pounds of cheese on the Canadian market.

The government's position was outlined Thursday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner at the annual meeting of the 43,000 - member Dairy Farmers of Canada.

Late Friday, delegates at their closing session received a letter from Prime Minister St. Laurent dealing with the same subject.

But dairy farmers, who have been complaining loudly since the 52 carloads arrived in Halifax earlier this month, reiterated they will continue the protest.

Mr. Gardiner told delegates the government has said they will not allow the import if it believed it would harm Canadian dairy producers. The prime minister's letter, a reply to a written protest, said the import was not harmful to interests of international trade.

The delegates also called for an agreement through which New Zealand can sell 1,000 tons of cheese to this country every six months.

Summing up Friday, Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said Canadian farmers are protesting more against the method of importing the cheese than they are against the actual import. He said Canadian farmers did not know of the import agreement until the cheese was on its way.

The dairy farmers, in their annual policy statement, said reputation of the cheese import would wreck a cheese marketing board set up to maintain prices in Ontario, the big cheese - producing province. The statement, to be presented to the federal cabinet, said the government should permit no further cheese imports as long as there is a surplus of dairy products in Canada.

COMMONS STILL DEBATES ARMING OF WEST GERMANY

Expected Vote in House Will Be Taken Tues.

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons, still debating whether to approve rearming of West Germany under the north Atlantic alliance, has been asked whether that issue now is compatible with United Nations attempts at world disarmament.

Health Minister Martin said Friday the two were part of a single policy of working for peace.

The recent success at the United Nations in reviving disarmament talks, he said, was partly caused by the West had become strong.

The Paris agreements, now before the Commons for ratification, would guarantee that strength.

Mr. Martin spoke in reply to Joseph W. Noseworthy (CCF—Humber-St. George's-St. John's West), one of four Commons members who have indicated in the two days of debate that they oppose the pact ratification.

WILL ASSTAIN

The other three are Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre; A. B. Smith, Saskatoon, and H. W. Herridge, Kootenay West. Another, Coldwell member, Alistair Stewart from Winnipeg North, said Friday he will abstain from voting.

Mr. Noseworthy said that in the last three years, without either the Paris agreements or the rejected predecessor, the European Defence Community, the West had made more progress at negotiating with Russia than at any time since the Second World War.

"Why the hurry now to rearm the Germans?" he asked.

Mr. Martin agreed with Mr. Noseworthy that there has been some easing of world tension.

He referred to the Canadian-sponsored resolution at the United Nations for resuming disarmament talks, adopted while he headed Canada's delegation to the world body.

"My impression is that we were able to arrive at an understanding with the United Union because by this time the masters of the Kremlin had come to the conclusion that they were negotiating with an area of the world that had become strong."

GAVE DETAILS

The Labor-Progressive (Communist) party leader, Sherman Gutterman to party members on how to organize a campaign against ratification, Mr. Martin said, he read a number of instructions from what he said was a Communist private directive to its members.

Debate resumes Monday on ratification of the Paris agreements. They limit West German arms and armed forces, give the government has said they will involve no increase in Canada's commitments in Europe.

Seven NATO countries—France, the United Kingdom, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Greece, and Norway—have ratified the agreements. Parliaments of the other seven NATO members, including Canada, still must give approval, as must that of Germany.

Debate here is expected Tuesday. All Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit speakers in the Commons have said they will vote for ratification; so has CCF leader Coldwell.

Mounting Seine Causes Thousand To Be Evacuated

River Collapses Dike, Low Sections Flooded

PARIS (AP)—Alarm increased in Paris today as the muddy, mounting Seine river swirled over more suburbs and invaded basements on both banks in the city itself.

In St. Maur,a big suburb to the east, 1,000 people had to be evacuated when the river collapsed a dike and flooded low sections.

At Choisi le Roi, southeast of Paris, 2,000 inhabitants have fled to the flooded homes in the last 48 hours.

All along the river workmen are racing against the rising water, racing against the ever-climbing water.

CELLARS FLOODED

Already water has seeped into cellars of such historic buildings in the heart of Paris city as the Notre Dame Cathedral, on an island in the river, and the Palais Bourbon, which houses the National Assembly. Today, more buildings on the left bank were invaded along with many homes on the fashionable west side.

Near the Puteaux bridge at the western outskirts of the capital both banks were expected to be under three feet of water by nightfall.

The Louvre Palace in the heart of Paris also is threatened. At the edge. All windows and doors leading to the basements have been bricked up, and pumps have been installed to empty water which could filter through the walls.

Officials said that there is no danger to the art collection, which has been removed to upper floors.

The river has risen by about seven feet in the past 24 hours. The third highest level ever recorded, that of 1945, was reached this morning and it is feared the second highest mark, that of 1924, will be reached by Sunday night.

Nevertheless the river has begun to subside, but only a little in only a few spots. The Quai de Bercy and the Quai de Rapee on the east side have been most affected.

The Seine is expected to reach its crest, probably at the 23-foot mark, Sunday or Monday. The river hit its all-time high of 29 in 1910.

HEAVY LONDON FOG

LONDON (AP) — Dense fog blacked out Britain today, playing havoc with shipping in the Straits and English channel and stalling road and rail traffic up and down the country.

A warm air stream brought relief, however, to the drought - hit lands of Scotland, snowbound for the last two weeks.

A rapid thaw which set in Friday continued overnight and the Scottish Electricity Board reported green again as helicopters took off on the last stages of the supply drive to Caithness-shire villages.

PAID FOR GLASS IN PIE

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— The piece of glass that aircraft engineer Peter M. Kappus said he didn't expect to find in his gooseberry pie has been paid for in a verdict. Tropco testified he found the glass in the pie served to him in the Hughes Aircraft Co. cafeteria May 8, 1953. He sued for $75,000.

Lost Kisses In Card Game, Tried to Welch

VIENNA (Reuters)—A girl who had staked kisses against bottles of wine in a card game with four men, and lost, later charged them with violence assault and offences against public decency when they tried to collect their winnings.

A judge here handed down suspended sentences of five days Friday to the men for the "offence against public decency" but ruled there had been no assault because the girl had been seriously assisted in the collection of the debts."

Coldwell Calls Quebec Tax Plan Blow to Unity

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's tax-reduction plan for Quebec will be a serious blow to national unity, CCF leader Coldwell said Friday night.

He said that a departure from the principle that federal income tax should apply equally to all Canadians is "destructive of national unity."

Just as soon as this is done in one province, it is entirely possible that for some other reason it may be done in another," Mr. Coldwell said in a speech on the CBC's political forum series.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Monday the federal government has decided on a three-year, 10-per-cent personal income tax reduction, which now has a provincial income tax and has the tax arrangement with Ottawa. The arrangement will be available to all other provinces if they want to impose an income tax as an alternative to existing tax rental agreements.

BONUS FOR SOMET

Mr. Coldwell said it has been calculated the plan will cost the federal government $30,000,000 but the Quebec provincial government will receive $50,000,000 from its tax, leaving a "direct bonus" of $20,000,000 for some Quebec taxpayers."

Mr. Coldwell said the CCF's proposal for the abolition of Ottawa-Quebec tax difficulties, deducting provincial income tax from federal tax to the amount Quebec would get under rental agreement, would mean taxpayers in Canada in the same income brackets would pay the same tax.

It would eliminate double taxation, ensure that people in one province would not pay less than another and safeguard the tax rental agreements.

Wounding Charge Against Woman Is Dismissed

SARNIA (CP) — A charge of wounding brought against a Port Lambton woman in connection with the stabbing of her husband Jan. 9, was dismissed Friday in magistrate's court.

Mrs. Irma Sterling, mother of a seven-year-old girl, was charged after her husband, Donald, suffered a knife-deep wound in the right groin after a party.

Mrt. Sterling said she was thrown out of the couple's house three times and prevented from using the telephone to call police. She told the court she was knocked to the floor and grabbed a knife to grab the knife from a table. She said she did not know how the wound was inflicted.

MEDAL FOR MISSIONARY

SEOUL (AP)—A French woman missionary who survived a North Korean "death march" in 1950 today received the United States Medal of Freedom for her "meritorious action to the welfare of fellow prisoners" U.S. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th U. S Army commander, presented the medal to Sister Dorothee, of the Sisters of St. Paul de Chartres.

FARM FOODS RISKY

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— Farmers live longer than their city cousins but tend to be sick more, the Michigan health council was told Friday. Aubrey Gates, an adviser to the council's medical association, told the council many farmers still drink unsafe water, practise poor sanitation and eat foods that would not test pure.

Prime Ministers Will Study Commonwealth Defence Plans

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Each Commonwealth will put it defence planning and strategy under scrutiny in the discussions with governments and new alliances when the prime ministers' conference opens here in 10 days.

Britain's new minister of defence, Harold MacMillan, and British military chiefs of staff will outline the way they think the Commonwealth's future strategy should be shaped to meet the fast-moving developments of the atomic age.

The strategy review will take place outside the main conference session, and not all of the Commonwealth leaders are expected to attend the defence talks. But the various meetings India's Jawaharlal Nehru has not taken part in such talks.

After discussing world-wide strategy at the defence minister sessions, MacMillan will take up the part of the various Commonwealth countries in Middle East defence planning and the problems of the Far East, the south Pacific and Southeast Asia.

Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies and New Zealand Prime Minister Sidney Holland will brief the other Commonwealth leaders on the ANZUS (Australia, New Zealand and United States) pact.

Britain will outline the implications of its recent decision to end the Western European Union under the Paris treaties for rearming West Germany.

Full sessions of the Commonwealth meetings presided over by Prime Minister Churchill will be devoted mainly to international affairs and a review of the prospects for peaceful East-West coexistence.

Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie Suggests Relatives Accept Chinese Offer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Sqdn. Ldr. R. H. (Andy) MacKenzie, who thinks Red China's offer to let imprisoned American families visit them is a "gracious" one which might "facilitate their release."

MacKenzie spent more than two years in a Chinese prison camp, said Friday night in an interview that if he were still a prisoner he would want his wife to take advantage of the offer.

"The Chinese are great for personal contacts," he said. "Shut in prison we thought of some personal contact could be made it would facilitate our release."

He had no fears for the safety of any families accepting the offer of Red China.

"The Chinese will go overboard to please," he said, "and the more gracious way possible," he said, explaining that the Reds are eager enough to show outsiders see what they have done in the last five years.

MacKenzie came here to visit Mr. and Mrs. W G Parks, whose son, Lieut. Ronald Parks, was one of the men MacKenzie left behind when he was released by the Reds Dec. 3.

He'll also visit families of other Americans still imprisoned in China.

Four Boston Convicts Surrender In Exchange for Glimmer of Hope

BOSTON (AP)—Four desperate hostage - holding convicts surrendered their stronghold inside Massachusetts state prison Friday in exchange for "some glimmer of hope."

The escape - mad rebel four yielded five guards and six fellow-convicts they held as shields for themselves to a seven-man civilian negotiating committee after an 80-hour holdout of snarling death threats.

Spokesman for the negotiating committee, Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, said the civic group made "no promises" to the four desperadoes but promised to try "to get something" so the convicts "would have some hope for the future."

Canham, whose committee was chosen by the convicts themselves, described the tense climax of the discussion inside the grim granite hall like this:

"Until the precise moment when (they) pulled their guns from their dungarees pockets, slipped out the clips or bullets, and tossed them on the table, they were still armed to the teeth.

"Then they surrendered their guns, and we walked in. We were unarmed."

Still Negotiating

TORONTO (CP) — Secret contract talks between Ford of Canada and the striking United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) were scheduled to continue this afternoon but both sides said they are undecided whether a Sunday meeting will be held.

Two sessions were held Friday. Emil Mazey, head of the union's negotiating team, and T. J. Emmell, Ford of Canada executive vice-president, both declined comment after the meetings.

BBC Experts Try to Quiet Red Babble

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters) — The BBC has sent engineers to Communist East Germany to try to clear the air over Wales, a spokesman said today.

Listeners to the BBC's Welsh service are up in arms because their programs are marred by whistles and howls at the behest of German voices. They have organized a movement against paying the £1 annual radio license fee until the interference is stopped.

The competition has been traced to a Russian-controlled radio station in East Germany, operating on the same wavelength, and BBC engineers have been dispatched to East Germany to try to eliminate the "jamming."

Parking Meters For Market Sq. Again Deferred

Decision on a committee recommendation to install parking meters on the market square was again deferred by members of the city council traffic and light committee at their meeting Thursday.

At their previous meeting members had approved a recommendation to install the meters and referred it to their next committee meeting when the matter was again discussed and decision was deferred.

No action was taken on requests for traffic lights at the intersection of College street and Cannifton Road; at the corner of Moira and Coleman streets and North West College street.

The committee approved that parking space would be reserved for Mayor J. Both. other city hall staff employees may continue parking their own cars at the east side of the arena property.

At a property committee meeting the offer of Ross Caldine of $3500 for Lot 180 and $500 for Lot 182, both on Southview avenue, was accepted, subject to payment of local improvements for the life of the debentures. The offer of Albert Golden of $2,500 for Lots 181 to 186 Southview avenue, was also accepted as council has set a price of $500 per lot.

$5,000 Grant Is Given CAS With Certain Strings Attached; Business of Session Completed

Acting on a request laid over from the December session Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora moved upon to appropriate $5,000 to be used for preventive work by the county Children's Aid Society, the money to be made available when the Society has a qualified worker to put in the field.

The grant request by the C.A.S. saw considerable discussion on the part of councillors who in voting for the grant insisted that they expected to see results in fewer wards coming into the Society's care. Payment of the grant will be under the supervision of the two members from council on the C.A.S. board.

Earlier in the session the C.A.S. representative, Bruce Kerr addressed council in support of the grant request stating that each child in the society's care cost the county about $300 per year. He explained that one way keeping only a few children with their parents by a slight increase in the wards wards would more than equal the amount of the requested grant.

Reeve Irvin McCoy of Marmora, suggested that the matter be one of a "trial run" for the county in making the grant available. He suggested $2,500 for six-months' period, the money to be spent on preventive work.

Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township, said he would go along with the grant if it was to make a similar grant for the remaining six months should the money prove successful. He was told this was the idea.

Reeve Sager noted that council should take a long term view of the matter and suggested that cost of living in C.A.S. cas from infancy until he was 16 would cost the county $8,000.

Reeve Charles Buskard of Deseronto, was of the opinion that there should be tried for a year to see if potential wards could be kept in their own homes, particularly moved that the $3,000 grant be made for the year, thereby asking the Society was to show results.

THOUGHT GRANT TOO LARGE

Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, one of the two county representatives on the C.A.S. board, felt that $3,000 was too large a sum for the grant. Speaking was entertained by Reeve M. Hamm of Limerick. Mr. Hamm supported the $3,000 grant.

Speaking again in support of his recommendation, Reeve Buskard suggested the money be made available to the C.A.S. when they advise the county they had a trained man on the job. This was put on the suggestion of Deputy Reeve B. Harder of Sidney agreed that the money should be administered and under the supervision of the two county representatives on the board.

Deputy Reeve Harold Varty said he was not too clear on what the grant was for but if it was to keep children from coming to the C.A.S. as wards then "he was for it."

There was a brief discussion whether the county could legally levy for money simply to be spent. Reeve T. Tryon of Rawdon declared he thought the matter the jurisdiction of council to make the money "available." "Either we give the grant or we don't" he said.

But other councillors were of different opinion. Reeve Buskard said the county would be levying in good faith and like in all other case with the roads and bridges budget, if the money was not used it could go into surplus.

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow suggested some other wording be used than that of "made available." He thought the money should be set aside for the purpose.

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora asked if the extra preventive worker was really needed noting that all C.A.S. workers should do everything in their power to keep children with their parents.

The motion was carried for the $5,000 to be appropriated for the C.A.S. to be paid under the supervision of the two county members on the board.

A grant of $1,000 was approved for the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital with the way left open for council to make a supplementary grant later in the year if necessary. There were abstained this was required.

CAN SECURE DISCOUNT

County municipalities will be able to secure a discount from the county on pro-rated taxes, according to a by-law approved by councillors. Under the by-law a discount at the rate of four per cent per annum would be allowed on the payment with no discount to be allowed after December 31st.

Several of the county municipalities allow a discount on prepayment of taxes, but under the by-law the saving should be passed on by the county when taxes were paid by the municipalities before the due date.

George Thompson of Rawdon township, was named the county representative on the Belleville and Northumberland Roads Commission for a further five-year term. Reeve Charles Buskard and clerk-treasurer Eric S. Dresser were named to the committee to administration of justice.

Following a heated discussion councillors turned down a by-law which would have exempted the village of Bancroft from paying the annual rate for county road purposes. A motion to lay the matter over until a later session had earlier been defeated.

When the by-law was read Reeve Ritchie Wells said he felt that the county should stick together on a by-law. "I'm not because a man lives in a village is no reason to say that he doesn't enjoy driving on a county road," he said.

Several councillors spoke in opposition to the by-law with Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc pointing out that Bancroft was interested in the building of the Campbellford High School, was conducted on Sunday afternoon at Centenary United Church. Duplessis Will Fulfill Promise

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government will give effect to its income tax act that asserts provinces have a constitutional right to tax, Premier Duplessis announced Friday.

He said the provincial government's move is in keeping with a promise he made to Prime Minister St. Laurent when the two political leaders met in Montreal Oct. 3 to work out a formula for settlement of the double-taxation problem raised by Quebec's imposition of a provincial income tax.

The premier said Quebec's government's decision to grant Quebec taxpayers a 20-per-cent deduction in their federal tax is a "step towards justice." Quebec had desired agreement "to guarantee national unity."

Council on Close Vote Adopts Motion to Eliminate Dogs For Hunting Deer For 3 Years

Resolutions calling for a percentage payment on sheep losses instead of county funds to eliminate of dogs for deer hunting in North Hastings for a three-year period, and of snares for the taking of predatory animals; a protest against the importation of New Zealand cheese, and a request for the re-organization of fish hatching in Ontario, were passed Friday by Hastings County council at the conclusion of their January session.

The resolutions took up the entire morning proceedings as councillors dealt with the long list of the various questions.

Deputy reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga township, said that payment of sheep losses at market value was preferable to a levy for his township as payments exceeded the revenue raised through dog tax and also noted that if owners were paid market value there was no incentive for them to protect their sheep against dogs.

He recommended that valuators be instructed to value sheep at $15 each in the north and that the municipalities be allowed to pay about 75 per cent of the loss.

Several of the councillors, however, opposed payment on a percentage basis should be optional as there were some districts where no losses had done everything possible to protect their sheep and who had fenced their paddocks or sheds to kill the dogs. This suggestion resulted in the resolution which will go to the department of agriculture.

TO PETITION DEPARTMENT

The department of lands and forests will be petitioned to have the bounty for snares for the taking of wolves and foxes increased from $5 to $10 per animal taken when dogs would be in the woods.

In presenting the resolution Reeves Tryon and West noted that the dog tax was inadequate as the result of dogs. Wolves in many cases were responsible for the deer and were responsible for depletion of the deer population also.

Also foxes were cleaning out the partridge in the north section of the county.

Reeve Wm. Davis said trapping was becoming a lost art and suggestion and recommended if they were to be used in the future it be under the direction of the department.

The discussion swung around to the use of dogs in hunting deer with many of the northern townships speaking in favor of eliminating the dogs.

Reeve Davis later introduced the resolution calling for the department of lands and forests to prohibit the use of dogs for hunting deer in the 13 northern townships for a three-year period.

WARDEN BREAKS TIE VOTE

Council lined up evenly for and against the resolution and Warden Jeanne Sauriol was called upon to cast the deciding vote. His vote for the resolution.

Reeves Earl Sager and Cecil Ketcheson protested the resolution protesting the importation of New Zealand cheese into Canada. It was pointed out there were now 41 million pounds of cheese in storage with a 10 million pound surplus over anticipated domestic requirements. Dominion Canadian cheese and dairymen could not compete against prices of New Zealand cheese. Action was requested on the part of those in authority to prevent importation of such cheese as Canada could not compete with.

REEVE AGAINST CLAIM

Speaking to the resolution Reeve Sager noted that the public was paying for the cheese through the metropolitan press and that Canadian cheese is efficient they could compete with any country in any line of dairy produce.

He declared this was not the right time to import cheese and not hope to compete with either New Zealand cheese or Canadian cheese could compete with margarine on a price basis.

Reeve Ketcheson stated that the farmers' average return for milk during the past six years had been below the $2.68 per cwt. received in 1946. He could not see the line of action the manufactured products in which this was the case.

Reeve Ketcheson said that the resolution was not going only to hurt the producer but council would be widely supported throughout the country. Reeve Vernon Brennan of Deseronto, former cheese instructor, noted that the cheese industry was one of the most efficient with few other industries equaling the efficiency of the cheese factory.

The resolution calling for the elimination of hog marketing was presented by Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township. He said that hogs should be sold before they leave the farm in much the same way as cheese is boarded. Packers should be called upon to go to the board and there establish the price, the hogs not to be shipped by the producer until the hogs are bought and the price set.

County Council Procedure By-Law to Be Reviewed

Hastings County councillors want their procedure by-law reviewed and if necessary brought up to date.

And what's more important they want the by-law and the suggestions of the council procedure to be followed.

This was made known Friday as councillors met for the final day of their January session and discussions had been bogged down by councillors ignoring the procedure by-law.

Reeve Russell West of Stirling, brought in a recommendation calling for the resolution committee to have all resolutions prepared before the by-law, and have copies made to be available for councillors at their next meeting.

The Stirling reeve pointed out that the council procedure rules were being ignored by councillors rising to speak many times on the same question and that matters irrelevant to the subject at hand were being introduced.

The recommendation calling for the by-law to be reviewed was tabled just as council adjourned for noon lunch and during the afternoon session Reeve Harry Morrow came up with a motion that council's procedure rules were printed.

Many of the veteran members of council confessed they had never seen such a book and even Reeve Earl Sprackett, Madoc, in his 35th term as a councillor, admitted he had never seen one.

Reeve Morrow noted the book in his district was printed back in 1879. Reeve West said he had one dated 1900.

Warden Sprackett suggested there may be something in the by-law which needed deletion and also there may be something which should be added. He named Reeves Morrow and Ketcheson to act with the resolutions committee to deal with the matter.

Rev. S. E. Larman Guest Speaker At Lions Club

Rev. S. E. Larman, minister of the United Church, Thurlow was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Lions' Club of Belleville on Thursday evening.

The speaker, introduced by Lion John Ross chose as his topic "Advertising" and Salesmanship." Mr. Larman pointed out that the ministry had something to "sell" to mankind, in that religion offers much for the time spent. He expressed regret that the church, in general, had not been able in the past to harness the manpower which is now found in the service clubs throughout the world. The speaker pointed out, that, when we consider the religious of the world and denominations of our own country, all fences can be lowered in consideration of the biblical story of the Wise Men who professed no particular religious affiliation, and yet, who found a star in their sky that made necessary obedience to the revelation. In doing so, they found that their faith brought them to the discovery of Christ, whereby they made a sharp detour and travelled an other road.

The speaker was thanked by Lion Harvey Frid.

Harry Pound Heads Thurlow PC Association

Members of the Thurlow Progressive Conservative Association gathered at Centreton on Thursday evening for their annual meeting and social get-together.

There was a good turnout for the occasion which saw officers for 1955 elected.

Harry Pound was named president of the Association, succeeding Cecil Ketcheson. Secretary of the Ladies' Association is Mrs. Harry Farnham with Alfred Wickett, treasurer, succeeding himself.

Past-president Grant Colte opened the meeting and introduced the program over to Cecil Ketcheson, reeve of Thurlow township, who was chairman for the evening. Speakers included Hastings County warden, James H. Sprackett, Mrs. Harry Farnham, Fred G. Mitchell, executive-secretary-treasurer of Hastings East, who brought his listeners up to date on what was going on at Queen's Park, and president-elect Harry Pound.

Duke of the ladies' association served lunch to conclude the evening's program.

Retain your good health right through your later years. It may be necessary to give the body some extra care, but this is simply routine. More attention to diet and rest can be helpful — and moderate exercise is good.

But most important is regular attention by your Doctor. He will guide you in the use of necessary medicines, which should be taken only as his direction. He will prescribe only the best medicines, such as those of Parke, Davis & Company.

We invite you to bring your prescriptions here promptly, as we are prepared to serve your every pharm...cal need.

This extra care can do much toward making old age your most healthful and pleasant years.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Hold The Fort

Ho, my comrades! see the signal
Waving in the sky!
Reinforcements now appearing,
Victory is nigh.

See the mighty host advancing,
Satan leading on!
Mighty men around us falling,
Courage almost gone.

See the glorious banner waving!
Hear the trumpet blow!
In our Leader's name we triumph
Over ev'ry foe.

Fierce and long the battle rages,
But our help is near;
Onward comes our great Commander,
Cheer, my comrades, cheer!

Chorus:
"Hold the fort, for I am coming,"
Jesus signals still;
Wave the answer back to heaven,
"By Thy grace we will."

In the great revivals of the nineties, some evangelists sang the gospel message as fervently and effectively as others preached it.

Philip Bliss was one of the most popular of the singing evangelists. Fifty years ago, all America was ringing with the choruses of his gospel hymns. "Hold The Fort!" was one of his greatest successes. He was inspired to write it one day in 1870 while listening to an evangelist's description of how the message, "Hold the fort", was signalled to a besieged garrison of Union soldiers at Altoona Pass, during General Sherman's Civil War march through Georgia, and of how the little band of defenders, heartened by the message, held their fortress until relieved.

But Altoona Pass garrison, according to the evangelist's story, was surrounded by six thousand Confederate soldiers commanded by General French who called upon its 1,500 defenders, led by General Corse, to surrender. When Corse refused, there was a sharp battle and as the fighting proceeded the chances of the besieged appeared more and more hopeless. Then, one of the defending officers spied a white signal flag waving across the miles from Kenesaw Mountain. Its message was: "Hold the fort; I am coming. W.T. Sherman". Three hours later, the defenders—still holding on doggedly—were rescued.

Philip Bliss heard that story in a Sunday School meeting in Rockford, Ill. Almost at once it suggested to him the Bible passage in Revelation 2:25: "That which ye have hold fast till I come", and he wrote the hymn which, for many years, was associated with his name on both sides of the Atlantic. It became so popular, indeed, that when he died and a monument was erected to his memory those who honored him could think of no better inscription that "P.P. Bliss, Author of 'Hold The Fort!'"

For Parents Only

Children And Tempers

By NANCY CLEAVES

"Tommy is our first baby and he isn't quite two, but it upsets me to see him become so mad! Several times a day he flies into a terrible rage. Often he shouts "No! No! No! I seem to have lost my happy, contented baby and I have a small hornet in his place. Why does he get so angry?"

Many mothers of little children know exactly how Tommy's mother feels. Life was so much simpler for her when her son was a docile tiny baby. Now he has a will of his own. When his determination to show his independence is blocked, anger and resistance are the natural results.

Often a child has a temper tantrum because his play is suddenly interrupted. Mother insists that he come for a meal or go to the toilet. If he his received a warning that he is soon going to have to stop his play, often he will accept this interference more gracefully.

A little child who is very tired or very hungry, is likely to be emotionally upset. These physical conditions make adults prone to crossness, which is another way of showing irritation too! A routine which provides sufficient rest and meals spaced not too far apart may be a real help in reducing angry scenes.

BUSY EXPLORER

Around the age of two a child is very busy exploring his new and exciting world beyond the play pen. His command of language is still quite limited. Sometimes, because he cannot easily explain how he feels or what he wants, he gets mad and shouts. As he grows older it will be easier for him to express himself and he will not be so likely to have a temper tantrum.

Confusion upsets a child. It is not fair to him that a parent's rules vary from day to day. Nor can he understand why mother tells him that candy must be eaten only at the end of a meal, while father or grandmother tells him sweets at other times.

Parents find it hard to live with a small child who is in a continual state of resistance. They should try to put themselves in his place.

They will see that he gets mad when he hears frequent, "Don't do that!" They will observe that if he is a healthy, normal youngster, he is bursting with energy. If he is restricted at every turn in his natural desire to explore, wouldn't they get mad if they were in his shoes? It seem only good sense to reduce the rules he must obey to the minimum and as far as possible avoid "head-on collisions."

MOVE CHURCH ON RAILS

DETROIT (AP) — Movers have begun the formidable task of inching historic Old Mariner's church from its riverfront site to a new location in the city's planned civic centre. It will take about three weeks at the rate of 20 feet a day to move the 108-year-old landmark. Two diesel trucks with winches are pulling the 4,000,000 - pound stone structure along four sets of rails.

BAN MIDWAYS

STURGEON FALLS (CP)—Council has banned midways despite a plea by a carnival operator that people have a right to spend their money any way they like. Council voted to enforce the ban, approved by voters last year, because the midway closes took too much money out of the community and weren't worth the licence revenue received.

FREAK TRAIN CRASH

KASSEL, Germany (AP)—A freak gust of wind today shunted an empty freight car from a spur into the path of a passenger train and a sleeping-car attendant was killed in the collision. Rail officials said the freight car rolled onto the main line just as the train passed. Two cars were derailed but no passengers were injured.

A Lift For Living

Suspicion And Fear

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At some time in our lives all of us have undoubtedly been "taken in" by trusting too much. Perhaps we have put faith in the promises of a supposed friend only to find them false.

When we lift our eyes to the internal scene, we see former allies embittered disillusioned about the good faith of one another. Yes, we all know the chagrin and sorrow of being taken in by believing too much.

But how about shutting ourselves out by believing too little? I wonder if we ever do know how many opportunities we have passed up because we lacked faith. Friends have told me of the fortunes they might have made if they had believed enough in certain new products.

Think of the acquaintances of Henry Ford and Andrew Carnegie who held off in distrust when those men were starting their new developments. I would venture the assertion that in the long run more loss and misery have been caused by believing too little than by believing too much.

While, of course, there is need of guarding against over-confidence, the more immediate need is to beware of being over-suspicious.

DISTORS VISION

For one thing, suspicion distorts the vision. In these dangerous times we must keep our eyes open to the very real evils which beset us. But to kep our eyes glued on the gloomy prospects of life is about as sure a way of impairing our vision as to be always looking at the sunny pleasantries.

Surpicion is worse than pessimism. The suspicious person not only look on the dark side of things, but looks for the evil in the darkness. He infers on vague or yet unproved grounds that a situation is bad rather than good.

The word "suspect" literally means "to look under." When a person goes around stooping to look under everything to find the evil hidden beneath, he distorts his vision and misses the full truth.

The suspicious person prides himself on being realistic. He considers himself clever enough to see through the pretensions and falsehoods of others. But when we are always trying to "see through" others we do not really see them.

EXAGGERATES EVIL

Suspicion tends to give an exaggerated idea of the evils. And that is what the evil forces desire. If one opponent in a struggle can get the other afraid of him he has begun the process of conquering.

The Kremlin, for example, seeks to suggest the vastness of its atomic strength. To start fears in the minds of other peoples is regarded as an effective form of fighting. This is one of the most common ways evil has in overcoming us. It induces the feeling that goodness never can or will prevail over evil.

Worse yet is it when we become so obsessed with the fear of evil that we imagine it where it doesn't exist. During the depression of the 1930's a business man gave me a bit of doggerel which expressed the excessive worries into which we can fall. It ran like this:

"Last night, standing on the stair,
I saw a man who wasn't there.
He wasn't there again today,
Oh, how I wish he'd go away."

NOT A REALISTIC

We are not realistic but mistrustful when we suspect men's motives and imagine evil lurking behind every appearance of good. We can and do sometimes fall into the cynical state where we find it hard to understand unselfish service and think there must be some ulterior reason for almost every generous deed.

We must show a certain amount of trust before we can receive proof of trustworthiness. We could never form a friendship if we did not make some advances on faith.

Suppose that we required a prospective friend to prove that there was no poison in the food before we sat down to dine with him. Suppose that we insisted on our neighbor giving us an 'insurance policy' before we entered his car for a ride. We cannot live together as gentlemen without giving some credit to the good motives of one another.

Doctor Charles Wishart, when President of Wesnier College, told his students that if they would know God and His power they must deal with Him as gentleman deal with each other. Yes, as the Master said, "He that cometh to God must believe that He is."

A SIGNIFICANT ANNIVERSARY

This month the Cobourg Sentinel-Star celebrates a significant anniversary. It will be 125 years old.

"The first hundred years are the hardest," as often say in jest. That is what makes the Sentinel-Star's additional 25 years important. It is now well into its second century—and going strong.

The Cobourg Star was founded by R. D. Chatterton in January of 1831. The Cobourg Sentinel appeared on the scene thirty years later, in May of 1861. In November of 1878 the Sentinel and the Star were amalgamated. In 1948 the Cobourg World, established in April of 1864, was purchased.

Today's Sentinel-Star thus is a composite of three newspapers which served the community well. This service, all may rest assured, will be continued in the future.

The Ontario Intelligencer, as one of Canada's oldest daily newspapers, takes particularly qualified to extend congratulations and best wishes to its neighbor, the Cobourg Sentinel-Star, "the oldest weekly newspaper in Canada, independent of daily affiliation, published continuously."

A PLEA FOR THE PROFESSIONAL

George Bain, the Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Globe and Mail, makes a telling plea for the professional politician.

Hazen Maclnnis, the veteran C.C.F. member from Vancouver, had been warning against the shortening of the sessions of the Commons being made an end in itself when the Commons came to debate its rules.

Mr. Gardiner, Liberal member for Nipissing, replied: "There are some of us who are not professional politicians and there are some of us who do not want to sit all the time, who think because a place for those who have already made their mark in the business field and are looking for what little bit of honor may be attached to this place."

In this observation, Mr. Bain says, brought hearty approval. "This, I implied, was putting in their place any who believed MP's didn't have more to do than to linger over their expense books," writes Mr. Bain.

Then he asks: "What's so wrong with professional politicians?"

What, indeed?

If Britain is an excellent example of a land where, in the main, the politician is a professional. Many a young man is deliberately educated for a seat in parliament. This training has proved its worth. Other members become professionals after their election. If ever there was a professional politician it is Churchill. As Mr. Bain says, what's wrong with professional politicians?

Yet Mr. Garland has a point, too. A bad professional politician is much, much worse than any amateur, because he makes a career of being a bad politician.

If members of the House of Commons were to sit all the time, all would be bad politicians; for it is essential that the good politician should keep in touch with the people who elected him, that he should know their problems, their desires and their opinions. The amateur, the man who farms, or conducts a law practice, or heals or works in a factory when he is not attending a session of the Commons, provides these contacts with the people without undue difficulty. The professional politician must work at it. The good professional politician becomes very good at his work, doing a much better job by design than the amateur does by accident. But to do this job he must have time away from the House and the capital.

On one point, though, there ought to be general agreement. Mr. Garland was quite right when he said that the House of Commons is no place for people "looking for what little bit of honor may be attached to this place." The House of Commons should not be a place where the amateur seeks honor and the professional a living, but a place where every politician, be he amateur or professional, values most highly the opportunity to serve his nation and its people, where honor and a living are merely by-products of this opportunity to serve.

CONTROL OFFICER ON THE SPOT

A statement made in the House of Commons by Hon. George S. Mitchener, Minister of Transport, makes it evident that the traffic control officer at Crumlin airport, near London, was faced with a most difficult decision when two Ontario Hydro planes in which the late Robert H. Saunders was a passenger was endeavoring to land there.

The control system for the airport's lights was not designed to permit more than one set of approach lights to be turned on at one time. This was a deliberate arrangement, devised for safety purposes, because experienced local pilots are sure to become confused if approach lights were on at the same time the pilot of a landing plane might be confused by these additional lights.

The pilot of the Hydro plane asked for all runway and approach lights to be turned on.

What was the control officer to do? If he refused this request and a crash resulted, he might be blamed. If he granted the pilot's request, the pilot might be confused or, as happened, a fuse might blow out.

The control officer turned on all lights. The decision may have been wrong, but it is difficult to see how the control officer can, in all fairness, be blamed for making it.

PEACE

Peace is of the heart and mind
And not of things.
Though in possession pride may find,
No more it brings.

One can be rich and out of touch
With friendly ways.
Who is content with owning much,
Lacks praise.

Oft lonely stays.

By war no lasting peace is won;
That ends in hate.
'Tis earned by faith to journey on
With doubt seems great.

Peace is belief in all mankind
In much that's good,
And dedicating heart and mind
To brotherhood.

Tax Evasion Dishonorable

(Milwaukee Journal)

No matter how justly the government may try to write its tax laws, nor how fairly and efficiently administer them, no effort will be largely futile in a social climate that will permit one, or is indifferent to, the tax cheat.

That is what worries T. Coleman Andrews, United States commissioner of internal revenue. A public attitude that regards tax cheating as a major offence against society itself, he points out in a recent speech, is especially needed in a country like this, where the tax system is so largely founded on voluntary compliance.

The widespread indifference to the moral aspects of tax evasion has been a "shocking" revelation to Andrews during his two years in office. "I do not know of a single tax evader," he declared, "who has not contrived to enjoy the status attributed to an honorable citizen, even after being convicted and serving a prison sentence. Yet these malefactors had, in effect, robbed every other taxpayer in the country, including relatives, neighbors and friends.

"There is something seriously wrong with a society that does not impose social sanctions upon such wrongdoers. Social acceptance of the tax scofflaw is a sure road to national ruin."

Strong words, but not too strong for the case. For, as Andrews said further, not only does repentance seem exceedingly rare in tax cheats, but there is even more evidence that they enjoy, in the eyes of some citizens at least "a degree of heroic stature." Here is his challenge to the American public;

"It is part of the duty of the internal revenue service to protect the conscientious taxpayer from those of his fellows who attempt to cheat him by making him pay their taxes. It is difficult for any establishment of the government to protect the citizen who looks at those who cheat him with admiration rather than indignation and scorn."

Usual Reasons

(Summerside, P.E.I., Journal)

Most of us don't trust people for one of two reasons. First, because we don't know them, and second, because we do.

Traffic Mess Grows Worse

(Edmonton Journal)

A story has it that a motorist, bogged down at an intersection made impenetrable by traffic, saw a friend across the street. "Hey Jack," he yelled, "how did you get over there?" Replied Joe: "I was born here". This wry reflection on North America's traffic problem, although jocular, has an undertone of seriousness. The number of cars on the roads of Canada and the U.S. is multiplying at such an alarming rate that, unless drastic measures are taken, the day is threatening when most cars may be paralyzed by vehicles.

Recently, the American magazine Newsweek conducted a survey of the traffic problems suffered in the U.S.A. and published its article appropriately: "Our Traffic Mess". It illustrates clearly the trend toward paralysis of transport. It found, for example, that the vehicle population of the U.S. has leaped from 23,000,000 in 1914 to 58,000,000 in 1954, and that by 1965, an estimated 81,000,000 vehicles will be on the roads. Roads built last year would be swamped by vehicles built in the same year, lined bumper to bumper.

Despite increases in population fewer people are using public transit than they were a decade ago. The decline in transit rides in twelve U.S. metropolitan areas numbered more than two billion in the period. Tricky designs and traffic signals have failed to halt the trend away from the buses. The result is a huge drain on losses in wages, sales and other income which in 1953 alone were estimated at $1,000,000,000 in 1953, a staggering total. Parking meters have failed to help and the magazine reports that one new downtown parking garage of $3,650 to a jail term of 250 days for overparking. Throughout the country not only are downtown areas plagued by traffic but shopping centres in the suburbs are experiencing similar congestion. In Philadelphia, for example, a new shopping centre was completed in 1951 at a cost of $20,000,000 but already the court says that 40% of potential money and thousands were never served.

Various solutions to the problem are in force or are being inaugurated. They include more and more traffic signs; automatic garages which can park a car in minutes; underpasses; using both cars and public transit; and private cars and vehicles, minutes after parking terms expire. In addition, one-way streets, by-passes, through streets and one-way streets have been or are being tried.

Essentially, however, such solutions only touch the surface. It is becoming increasingly apparent that more drastic measures will be required if major ills of transport in transportation is to be avoided. Among the most practical of these methods is a complete ban on non-productive traffic in downtown areas, including a total ban on downtown on-street parking. To make this method, would be ferried by public transit to and from suburban areas and outside the business sections, where they would be parked in large, specially provided parking lots.

In Edmonton, the traffic picture is not as bad as it is in some of the larger Canadian and American cities but traffic is growing steadily worse. City authorities will have to keep a close watch on the situation here and elsewhere, and profit as much as possible from the mistakes and experience of others.

To Err Is Easy

(Peterborough Examiner)

So you think we make a lot of typographical mistakes. Well, just for your information, in a short line like "To be, or not to be" it is possible to make 2,759,022 mistakes by transposition alone, you may be surprised that we manage to be so comprehensible at all.

Famous Store Closes Doors

(New York Times)

The awnings outside what once was Wanamaker's bear the word "closing" but they are being taken up now.

Business ceases with the big building at Eighth street and Broadway. The Wanamaker story in New York is ending.

John Wanamaker was once one of the great merchants. New York's then great store names were plentiful. The first decade of the twentieth century was Wanamaker's greatest period. The store was the mainstay of the carriage trade that lived in the fashionable districts of Washington Square, Fifth avenue, Fourteenth street.

There were other reasons for the store holding besides its location. Its buildings, once models for efficiency, were still equipped to cope with the demands of today's shoppers. It maintained its air of relaxed old-fashioned atmosphere an expansive one.

To continue to give the type of service that had once been its forte, however, famous the store discovered that it had to maintain a staff proportionately larger than those of its competitors.

The building, as it aged, required more care than those of other buildings. Another handicap, a deficiency that annoyed the busy, demanding shopper, was made it difficult to lure customers above the main floor. The Wanamaker staff problem has become a tradition in an area is an unhappy one. Time after time they have lost a friend. Neighboring stores feel the pinch in the matter of traffic.

Only the people most directly affected are the employes. The Wanamaker case is particularly interesting. Many of the store workers were famed for their loyalty and high level of performance.

Relations between the store and its employes were excellent. At one time, when business lagged, the management took steps to tell the public what a fine store Wanamaker was.

The Wanamaker staff pension fund is considerable

MARMORA

William Davidson Celebrates 80th Anniversary With Family Present

MARMORA — Birthday honors were accorded Mr. William Davidson at his home in Marmora township by hundreds of members of his family on Wednesday the 80th anniversary of his birth.

The event was much enjoyed by this native son of Marmora township, a man of great build, who has been influential in various local spheres of life. He has enjoyed good health for one of his years and with his good wife presiding with him at the festive board, made a complete picture of matrimonial radiance that was striking.

FAMILY PRESENT

Present for the occasion were their four children and their families, Mr. and Mrs. George Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams (nee Ruth Davidson) and Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson, with the exception of the Williams who live in Bawdon township, all reside in Marmora township.

The honored head of the family, assisted by the strength afforded him so that he has attained unto four score years, was happy to have his pastor, Rev. W. J. Crawford, of St. Andrew's United Church, present with his family present, as well as Mr. W. J. Cotterill, friend of the family over a goodly period.

Following the delicious birthday repast the attending minister offered thanksgiving and supplication on behalf of the honoree, his wife and family, and a brief address of felicitation, in response to a request, was given by Mr. Cotterll.

Later, members of the family presented Mr. Davidson with pleasing gifts.

To fully review his life, a good biographer could write a good sized volume. The synopic record which follows must suffice, and doubtless will be interesting to the many friends who have been acquainted with Mr. Davidson over the years.

PLACE OF BIRTH

He was born in a home near the old Williams' mine, which was close to the then expanding the Moira River on the old highway extending from Marmora to Madoc. He was born not many years after the Williams' mine began operations. His father, George Davidson, who had been a miner at Newcastle, England, came to Canada with his wife (the former Isabel Dickson), to continue his mining career. His wife took a position at the Williams' mine and left the copper mine boss at the Gotling Gold Mine in the near vicinity. The latter mine operated for a short while and then closed down for a period to be later re-opened by a Mr. Beswell on behalf of Canadian Goldfields. Later, the property was known as the Deloro Mining and Reduction Company. It closed down again and then after some time it was acquired by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited, for the erection of their plant which operates to-day.

RELIGIOUS SECULAR EDUCATION

William Davidson received his schooling and religious education at what came to be known as the Jones' school house. Land for its erection had been donated by the Jones family, pioneer settlers, who came out from Wales. A certain stipulation was made that religious services be held there as well as the building be used for secular education. Thus he is one of the few who remain who got their secular and religious education under the one roof.

His first teacher, he recalled in reminiscent mood, was a Miss Gerow. Leaving school he accepted employment on the farm of Richard Campion in the 7th concession. He received the usual wages for a farm hand at that time, which was $6 a month. This he left to become, in turn, a river driver for the Gilmour Company and a shanty man for the Baldwin Company.

Then came a period in which he worked for Canadian Goldfields before returning to farming.

On June 7th, 1899, he was married in the old Methodist parsonage on Burstall Street, Marmora, by the late Rev. Robert McCullough, pastor of Marmora Methodist Church in those days, to Martha Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, of Madoc township.

In addition to farming he took up threshing, having a threshing outfit for 50 years and was much in demand locally in that season. Also while engaged in farming he took a three-years' absence in Cobalt with no original intention of so doing. His brother, John, who was residing there induced him to visit the mining town to take part with him in a drilling contest. He went to Cobalt for that purpose, but stayed to take employment, first in the Buffalo mine and later in the Chambers mine.

DRILLING CONTESTS

Three drilling contests took place while he was there, but Mr. Davidson's brother only entered two, taking second place both times, while Mr. Davidson was the winners and facing 15 pairs of rivals on the second occasion. The method of holding these contests appears to have originated in Colorado.

In 1899 shortly before his marriage, he engaged in another contest nearer home. It was a drawing card, the committee staging the 24th of May celebration in Madoc that year, added such a contest. Mr. William Davidson had for his partner Sylvester Phillips, who was shortly to marry his sister, Sarah, who was the only member of the family born in England to thus accompany her parents to the land of their adoption. Three pairs of rivals competed in this and the Davidson-Phillips team carried off the first prize of $5.

Looking back to those days as he kept his 80th anniversary, Mr. Davidson recalled: "There have been great changes since then, even to the climate. One of his brothers, George, made the supreme sacrifice in the First World War.

Besides being a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Marmora, the subject of this sketch is a member of the Standing in Marmora A.F. and A.M., 222.

He receives the congratulations and best wishes for continued life and happiness from a wide circle of relatives and friends.

Garden Notes

Buy Yourself A Garden Gift

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

"Buy something for yourself with this" is the note which accompanies many a small money gift. Don't put this amount into the depleted budget and forget it, which is what we are often tempted to do. If you have always wanted a pot of shrimp-pink cyclamen but never felt rich enough to indulge yourself this is the time to do it. Perhaps you have been working with an over-size hoe, or spade, lavest in a tool which will make garden work easier for you, if that is one of your hobbies.

A bamboo rake or a spray attachement for your hose will make gardening easier. A package of African violet seed costs a dollar and provides you with a new hobby which will last for years.

Or, you might like to experiment with lily seeds, or geraniums. For a dollar you can buy a plant and a collection if ivies, pothos, or philodendrons. Good inexpensive indoor flower arrangements are a joy forever. There are packages of arranger's material, which include wire, wire mesh, pin-point holders and directions for preparing plant material for effective arrangements.

CORNFLYLESS BOOKS

Then too there are countless books on many forms of gardening, from cacti and succulents to complete gardening books which include soil management and orchard planting.

The size of the gift might be such that you can buy that blue spruce you have always wanted for the northeast corner of the lawn, or it will put in the foundation for that little greenhouse you want to build. Do-it-yourself plans can be found to build a greenhouse, make garden furniture, bird-baths, fences and trellises. By doing the work yourself you may make the gift stretch to include one or two more of these garden items, or a fire-place and grill.

One of my friends spent a small chequn on repairing her garden tools. A man who has a small precision cleans and sharpens garden tools and for a small additional charge will add a shiny new coat of enamel to the handles and paint the blades with spreader. He charges less for lawn-mower repairs in order to induce people to send in work during the slack season.

Other reasonably priced items include planters for indoors or out, sprayers, packages of plant food and insecticides, bird feeders, garden gloves or aprons, a set of small hand tools, seeds, bulbs, or an order for shrubs to be delivered in the spring.

Last but not least in importance, a subscription to a good gardening magazine.

WINTER

Winter now his reign is holding over all our northern land,
And the fields lie cold and lifeless
'neath his heavy iron hand,
And the leafless branches shiver,
startled as his stern command
But tho' all the flowers are hiding from the tyrant's cruel blow,
They are dreaming, softly sleeping, underneath the ice and snow.

So we'll rest us by the fireside while the winds of winter blow.

Winter bends with frosty fingers o'er the lakes and running rills,
Covers them with coat of armor till their summer songs are still,
Leaves the while a snowy carpet over dale and vale and hill;
while nature shrinks in terror from King Winter's icy dart

Books and friends and cosy fireSides in our life now play a part as we keep our fires burning, burning bright within the heart.
—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — As I write, winter is bringing us bright, sunny days with a mild frost in the air — the frosty feeling accentuated by the crisp atmosphere from Lake Ontario. The town seems quiet after the holiday festivities, this being very evident in the post office and the library — both busy places for three weeks. The capable librarian, Miss Wallace, continues as faithful as ever not neglecting even the youngest reader, in spite of the slump in circulation, the library continues to attract the studious on days of adverse weather carrying the reader into far distant lands.

The members of the Women's Association of the Trinity Church met for supper on Friday at the home of Mrs. Harold Nash.

Mrs. Wilfred Hamilton Clapp, Toronto, have the sympathy of their many friends in the illness of her mother, Mrs. Letitia Fournais, at her home, 121 Gilmour Ave., Toronto, on Monday, January 14th. Mr. Vernon Clapp is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. Clapp, Hillier.

A card from Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cox of Wellington tells of a narrow escape from fire at Carolina Beach, Florida.

The occasional meeting of Wellington United Church will be held in the Sunday School room on Friday evening, the business part of the meeting being preceded by a pot-luck supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley, Mrs. Ernest Ford and Miss M. Blakely spent Saturday in Picton.

ARTHUR STRINGER, POET AND NOVELIST

From Mr. Victor Laurision, Chatham, a writer of note, I received a booklet on the life of Arthur Stringer, from which I cull the following:

Arthur Stringer, one of Canada's outstanding writers, was born in Chatham, Ontario, February 26, 1874. His mother dying when he was but four years old, he went to live with an uncle and aunt, spending the first ten years of his life in Chatham later in London, Ontario. He went west and invested in a ranch and paid for it by writing stories, The Prairie Wife and The Prairie Mother. Finally, Canada not approving of his Socialistic views, he went to New York where like Bliss Carman he lived by the pen. Here he had an continued writing and found appreciation. The following poem reveals his homesickness for his Canadian home at Christmas time.

NORTHERN PINES

I pass where the pines for Christmas
Stand thick in the crowded street
Where the groves of Dream and Silence
Are paled by feverish feet.
And far through the rain and the street-cries
My home-sick heart goes

forth
To the pine-clad hills of childhood,
To the dark and tender north.

And I see the glooming pine-lands
And I drift to the northern cold,
Where the sunset falls in silence
On the hills of gloom and gold!

And the still dusk woods close me,
And I know the waiting eyes
Of my North, as a child's are tender,
As a sorrowing mother's wise!
—Arthur Stringer.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now —and if not, make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

Shopping in Hong Kong

In Hong Kong I had a dress made in the Chinese style with the high stiff collar and a half inch behind the seams of the skirts are slit up to the knees showing an underslip or bare legs according to the wealth or poverty of the wearer, but that slit in mine was considerably more than that of the same material as the dress. As for the collar, even in this hot weather it is a thoroughly comfortable notwithstanding the one and a half inch height of the stiffness. There is a detachable stiffening inside that can be removed when the dress is cleaned. We are so used to having Chinese laundry it on our own terms that one is not surprised to find that here in Hong Kong cleaning and pressing is done by Chinese girls.

The workmanship on the dress is exquisite. Those who are obliged to buy ready made dresses, no longer can find that sense of pride and there are enough fittings to assure neatness and appearance of your dress and your dress belonging to each other. Sandal slippers were quickly made of the same material as the dress. Everything imaginable could be made to order in Hong Kong. The ladies do not wear hats and with their most lovely hair, it would be a crime to do so.

PLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Buying a dress is such an important thing in a woman's life, anonoying that it is a part of wisdom both for the buyer and the seller to make it a pleasant occasion. We cannot live without each other! No one can be rich but that the labour of brocades a delight to the feminine eye, but all of us should be more polite and quite evidently enjoying themselves.

Hong Kong is the finest of the brocades could not be imported into the U.S.A., as they are made in Communist China. Tons of these can be imported from Russia controlled China but not from China. In this way the Chinese are forced to turn their trade more into the waiting arms of our enemy. However, we are permitted to import many of the lovely things on condition that they are accompanied by a certificate of origin, acceptable by U.S. Consulates for entry into the U.S.A. Some of Hong Kong dollars is charged for each form declarinw that the article has not originated in China or North Korea.

However a number of enterprising merchants and manufacturers have moved within the area of Hong Kong since the Communist movements. We were given a list by the U.S. government which we were permitted to make our purchases. It was quite a long list and we could find all of the most lovely embroidered goods, ready to wear garments, jade, ivory, precious metals, furniture, goods manufactured locally by refugees, and there are so many many of the most unique people-pewter and tinware novelties and brass trays, the usual tourist stuff.

CHOICE MERCHANTRE

Chinese rugs, carved jade, porcelain, ivory, pearls and curios are not permitted. It is almost enough to make one sorry to have to leave behind those lovely rugs and succulent jade, but there are some governmental bits that go such a long way to add to the "attractiveness of our home and to the many money that people of quite ordinary means can afford. Many Canadians have always had the good fortune to be able to buy the Chinese rugs, the question of origin so long as it is beautiful and a satisfactory purchase. Some people prefer the cruder Japanese things it is for each individual to determine the type of thing one wants.

Perhaps friend-husband may have a wife who has asked what he has to look at when he comes home tired after the day's work. Just to show my certificate of origin of my purchases I went to the mail room of the ship the Unicorn With the initials of our Queen's most Excellent Majesty at each side and signed by the Director of the Department of Commerce and Industry. On turning over to read the conditions I note that the manufacturer's name and address are not permitted where the exporter has indicated that he does not wish the manufacturer to be disclosed. I wonder why.

It did seem as if the Chinese were not especially alluring was on the prohibited list but there was actually in the next room the most designer seemed to have caught the very spirit and essence of sunrise and of sunset to say nothing of the gold of midday, the result of long generations of knowledge and the disciplined skill. Even if one had a wife who was against one's beart choice, still with the aid of the train power of three men and a boy, this dress came over the top solemnly attired, the making required only three days.

GIVEN PROPER RESPECT

The fittings were made in a small room, with air conditioner and one's foibles carefully considered though one knew quite well that one was being gentled along to a Chinese way of thought. Now there was no use in so much talk will ever remain a mystery to me. The Chinese have a way of doing a sweeping thing and at times, to be impressive, I was strongly tempted to add, a decade or more to my already full-eyed years. Then lidicod would I be an antiquity. So prettily do the girls wait on one that one may be tempted to add a half inch height of being a discarded old woman or something of a nuisance. So it is not surprising that one so rarely sees over here a disagreeable face, wrinkled, grim, thin, nearly always, but with eyes that looked happily, contented. In other years although there was always the barrier of language there was much good fellowship between us, something that will stay until the diseased mind has put us to memory.

So the girls talked, asking their thousand questions of the horrible Canadians. In Canada never for a minute forgetting their business of selling, but the buying and selling were friendly much as one experiences in going to Arabian bazaars on the day of final reckoning. Several garments had been made, including an evening gown and asked for either because it was not the habit or because of an intuition that

The Hong Kong dollar is worth about 20 cents of ours and one wonders how much those business men had smiled, as they were asked again and again to calculate the price in Canadian money. Or, as when one's little cups of strong coffee as he sits quietly waiting for you to make up your mind, or change it, and begs you to honor his humble dwelling by drinking a cup of coffee under his roof. The Chinese bring you your coffee even the cup would be spoiled by the addition of either sugar, cream or milk. They do not hurt the coffee at all, lemon. Both especially refreshing.

DIFFERENT ATTITUDE

Sometimes I shopped among the Hindus but never felt at home with them. The men often darken their eyelids with kohl also under the impression that it has protected their beauty but I did not see why one should appear soulful over a bit of tinsel.

In Nikko in Japan I was taken to shop among the Japanese made, the simple kind used by middle-class Japanese. We left the motor at the hotel, and I walked down the village street and I was interested in the Japanese custom of sweeping sidewalks them flowed rushingly down the mountain some miles away. Every few yards there was a removable grating and they proceeded to shop owners would take a very long handled brush and dip the brush and splash a space around with this clear, clean water, a space about the size of the circle of the chicking dust.

We arrived at the little shop, which you enter directly from the street, for there is no front to the shop. Behind the counter there was a sort of table almost the size of the room and above this from the floor on which were piled lengths of silk of all materials. On it sat the little lady who seemed to own the shop. At one end of the table was a small statue reminding a darling infant. I was offered a cleared space on the table while my wishes were explained. An unknown man was sent to the mail to purchase the dress. We were then joined by the chauffeur of the car. The latter is known as one to be sacred shrines. No one was in a hurry. I had had a little girl of six. The men could not believe that we were Canadians. They decide what was right for a little girl of six in Canada. They asked us to explain where or what Canada was! So all six of us decided on what would be the proper thing and a promised for next morning. It was another matter when it came to choosing a kimona for me. By this time another man had strayed in and when my poor husband had referred as to choice it was decided . . . I don't think I really much had any choice at . . . that a delicate old rose pink with a bit of silver embroidery at each side was the right thing. The old grandmother emphatically agreed. Then the same month-old infant, which by now had been tied on to her back, gurgled approval.

It was necessary to have a white cotton underslip to go under the kimona and an embroidered one, machine embroidered, was found. Unfortunately it was very narrow it seemed quite pretty enough for a dress to have the kimona we also to be delivered next morning and it was. We had each other a friendly good-bye, bowed politely, the old grandmother bow-towing in the direction of Canada and from on floor, the baby being safely cradled on the back never seem to be a nuisance and certainly are never in the way when the girls are busy. Having a row boat or carrying loads of fruit or vegetables.

Before going to bee the shrines we stopped at a print shop to buy some prints and I had a problem on buying many a painting of the old days. That was not such a great restriction as my taste runs more to the Chinese art from whom the Japanese have borrowed the best of theirs, but many a pleasant winter's evening I am taking them out of the portfolio and looking at them again and again.

Vacation in New York Is Tops

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

For a city vacation go place Louis New York. That it's the toughest town to get a good time out of and the most expensive. The boy is still a step ahead. Plenty of amusement as that is to say vacation, it's more important in New York.

Everyone comes to New York to see the shows so tickets to the good ones are always hard to get. Hotel rooms are always at a premium, and rates are high. The night club acts are the best so the night clubs are crowded. There are probably more good restaurants than you could eat in for the rest of your life; as a result, some of them are so expensive and so exclusive they advertise people they know.

But there's no need to be discouraged. A little planning on your part beforehand can save a great deal afterwards.

Before you can probably get a satisfactory room without reservations. Always call a few days ahead to take a chance when it's so easy to write for them.

HOTEL CHOOSING

You can choose your hotel with the help of a hometown bellman who has a list of hotels where all members of the American Hotel Association, the trade association of hotels, have been. You will find so many in New York that you'll want to stay in them all.

Rates and location probably will be your prime considerations. A room's quite adequate for two convention, chances are you'll stop at one of the smaller hotels which are the most expensive (generally $15 double and up).

Shoppers, and lately vacationists, prefer the uptown or east side hotels in midtown. The Plaza, Sherry and department stores are clustered around Fifth Avenue (from 42nd Street north to 57th). Rates are a bit lower and the hotels as good. Theatres, night clubs are the traditionally popular midtown ones. The Roosevelt, Commodore, Biltmore with rooms under $10 are scattered throughout the city also.

Hotels near the Port theater tickets is to write for them well in advance. Let the hotel, Broadway or about-New-York magazine available in your city tell you the theater names and ticket prices. Non-New Yorkers can reserve seats, usually obtain tickets by writing more readily than can local people. Remember to allow a little luck, anyone can get tickets by waiting up in the box office and asking.

Be sure to specify the price you want to pay and approximately where you want to sit. You may not know how good the seats you've been allotted are, but the ticket is cheaper, but the only way you can lick that problem is to be there.

In viewing the seat diagrams in your program, Some guides to New York suggest that you avoid balconies, have diagrams for every theater.

SEATS ARE GOOD

Don't worry about where your seat is to much, however, since most New York playhouses are small compact, and well designed, so that almost any seat is satisfactory.

Even if you know how to choose your seat, you are not yet prepared to be delighted to get the first row of the balcony for a musical, only to find yourself sitting behind the person in front of the railing blocking half your view. To spend two hours leaning forward in your chair.

Ticket prices, generally range from $3.60 to $6.00, second balcony for a non-musical, to up around $8.80 in the orchestra for a musical. Ticket agencies ("specs" in local parlance) are authorized to charge a maximum of about $1 above the established price. You'll find an agent in the lobbies of most hotels and see their shops on a side street in the Broadway theater district.

WAYS AND MEANS

There are two ways to get a ringside seat at night clubs: one is to book with a large party, the other to shake hands with the headwaiter as if he were an old friend and palm over a few dollars. Your only alternative is to wait in the bar until a table in the beautiful view of the kitchen.

Don't be afraid to try food eating places, from the world's finest delicatessen, an incredible boiler room where you can eat in, to equally incredible French restaurants where a waiter pronounces it as a spoonful, that you will be pretty much on your own. Remember that you can buy on New York newsstands that will help you with listings of the best French taurants together with their price ranges.

TRAVEL FACILITIES

New York is served by three airports and two railroad stations, so it doesn't make much difference at which you arrive, but don't make the mistake of an acquaintance of mine who went to the wrong one when you were thereby missing your train by hours.

If you can avoid it, don't arrive in New York if you want to use it around the city there's no place to park it but at an expensive garage. Don't bring a car unless you're going to the country to visit friends or relatives and asking.

Radio and television show tickets are free. Your hotel undoubtedly has a travel bureau that can get them by writing to your favorite show or even through you local network affiliate station.

Your clothes are a simple matter. Dress casually and you'll never go wrong. Sport clothes are the rule by day, unless you're going to the country to visit. The only exception is when you're going to a formal affair or the "Met." Then the ladies in their wear formal clothes in night clubs.

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

What was the name of the man who went to the High Priest at Jerusalem, asking him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus? He wanted to persecute both men and women who were followers of the Way. Stephen got out threats and murder against the disciples, he was determined to capture all he could hunt down, bind them in chains and bring back to the great council and priest of the Jewish religion, Jerusalem.

But as he journeyed, he approached Damascus and suddenly a light, from heaven flashed upon him and his companions.

He fell to the ground, and with a thrilled heart heard a voice, he heard this question:

"Why do you persecute me?"

He answered:

"Who are you, Lord?"

The voice replied:

"I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. Rise and enter the city.

You will be told what to do."

He got up, but when he opened his eyes he could see nothing. His was led by the hand to Damascus.

For three days in the home of a man called Judas, in the street called Straight this former leader of the persecutions fasted and prayed with mind. During this time he neither ate nor drank anything.

You will find this man's name and this story in the first nine chapters of the ninth chapter of Acts.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER BROTHER-IN-LAW HAS A CRIMINAL RECORD

What would you do about a brother-in-law who had served two prison sentences, one in a draft dodger, the second for ignoring parking tickets and had been in other trouble with the law? Would you call him out of your life forever? Or would you accept him on the same basis as any other member of the family, give him love and understanding, make him part of your social life and suggest that your friends would be ready to treat him as they treat you?

These are the questions asked by a woman who has this problem with her husband's brother... Some years after he was discharged from prison as a draft dodger—he had an excessive fear of going to war," she says—her brother-in-law got into a fight with another man over a car parking incident.

"He was trying to park his car," she states, "when someone grabbed his parking space. He jumped over and spoke to the man, who then started to push me out of the parking spot but bumped his fender in doing so. This man then got out of his car, came up to my brother-in-law and swung at him, my brother-in-law swung back and knocked the man unconscious. As a result, the man was in the hospital for some time, and my brother-in-law was placed on probation until the hospital expenses were paid off.

"Unfortunately, before he got them paid off, he got some parking tickets, which he ignored, and, as a consequence, was sent to jail for a year. He lives in a city where it is almost impossible to avoid getting parking tickets.

"Do you think that, in view of his record, it is wrong for us to take this brother of my husband's around and to be parties? Do you think our friends would resent it if they found out we had been in his company? Our friends are educated, refined people with high principles, and we do not want to be the ones to think we are compromising with principles if we brought him around with us. Do you think, these days, that people forgive and understand things as some for which my brother-in-law got his prison sentences? Also, should we see him at other times besides parties, and should my husband go with his brothers with him? His brother has always been a hard-working man.

"Finally, what do you think most people would do if they had a brother like this?"

To my mind, the answer to all these questions is one and the same: That it depends entirely on what kind of character this man really has, and how he plans to conduct himself in future. One can not, of course, say that he had a very strong character if he allowed his fear of war to drive him to dominate him so completely that he got out of facing conditions that other men went ahead and faced. Naturally, such an act makes him look like a coward, and no one admires a coward. On the other hand, who among us is capable of judging another person? As someone has very aptly put it: "Who knows all the reasons?" And, to quote again, the Bible warns us: "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

So I think that if the friends this woman and her husband have are in truth, "educated, refined people with high principles," as she says they are, she should be able to trust them to refrain from harsh judgment of the brother and give him a chance to show that he can be accepted as a solid citizen.

If he continues to get into trouble, and fails to behave as a responsible member of society, then it is his own fault if people do not wish to make a friend of him, or introduce him in their social circle. But if they see him making a sincere effort to show that his experience have taught him something, and that he intends in future to assume the responsibilities which are rightfully his, then I think people will respond and be friendly toward him, especially if they see that his own family are loyal to him. Similarly, if he is hard-working and responsible, why should his friends or not go into business with him?

This woman has asked what most people would do if they had her problem. Will some of you write and give your ideas?

If you have a three- or four-inch shelf in a drawer resting up under your feet, attach a piece of cellophane tape to each end and to the floor and it will stay in place.

National Ballet of Canada Ready to Make Third Tour

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The third annual tour by the National Ballet of Canada Company of Canada is probably its most ambitious to date.

Mounting a lavish, full-length production of the classic "Swan Lake" and a new comedy ballet by Lois Smith, the company of 50, including 34 dancers and a touring orchestra, will invade New York for the first time, after visiting cities in eastern Canada and the United States.

The season opened in St. Catharines Jan. 17. Hamilton, Brantford, Kitchener, London, Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston are the Canadian cities to be visited. In the United States full-week engagements are booked for Chicago, Detroit and Philadelphia with shorter stops at Buffalo and Hartford.

It will play the Grand Brooklyn Academy in New York March 25 Academy in New York March 28 and 29.

YOUTHFUL COMPANY

Celia Franca, formerly a star with Sadler's Wells and other London companies, founded the National Ballet Company of Canada four years ago and trained one of the principal dancers and artistic director. She has taken the youthful company—average age of the dancers is 18—on two coast-to-coast Canadian tours. In 1953 it was the only non-U.S. company invited to perform at Jacob's Pillow at Lee, Mass.

The repertoire is based largely on the classics, with a leavening of more recent ballets.

Besides the four - act "Swan Lake," there are the full-length "Giselle," "Gala Performance," "Lilac Garden," act two of the "Nutcracker Suite," "Sylphides," two acts of "Coppelia," "Pillar of Fire," "Offenbach in the Underworld," by Tudor.

Last month the company was signed by the William Morris agency of New York, Hollywood and London in a contract effective next June, which calls for the handling of television, motion picture and stage performances outside of Canada.

It was the first time the Morris firm had signed a major ballet company and Klaus Komar, head of the concert and special attractions division of the firm, said it hoped to take the Canadian ballet company to Europe in the next year or two.

By coincidence both coasts are represented by the principal dancers. Irene Apinee and his wife Lois Smith are from Vancouver. Jury Gordienko and his wife Irene Apinee are from Halifax.

All the dancers are Canadians, many of them returning from professional careers abroad when the company was formed. David Adams had danced with the Sadler's Wells and the Metropolitan ballet. Miss Smith was with a number of touring U.S. musicals.

Lillian Jarvis of Toronto was in London musicals before joining the company, Ray Mollet of Vancouver danced with ballet companies in the U.S.

Decor and costumes for most of the ballets are by Kay Ambrose, noted British artist, designer and ballet authority who is artistic adviser to the company. Betty Oliphant, formerly of London, is ballet mistress. George Crum is musical director.

NEW BEACH TYPE BEAUTY

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The current crop of resort clothes looks very new, making last year's prized items very old now. If you don't believe it, just cast a look at what's what for sunny winter play spots. The short, boxy, boat-neck top, in bright pink cotton, has two patch pockets and below-elbow sleeves. It is worn with bloomer-type slacks of bright blue cotton that have buttoned-band legs. For a Caribbean look, load on colorful bead ropes and a native-type hat. You'll be right in style.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THOUGHTFUL GUEST AND CO-HOSTESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At several teas I have attended in homes, I have noticed that the ladies who pour tea seem to have their position most precarious. Even when they are not pouring they sit in state and apparently feel no responsibility for sociability among the guests. Yet these are the people who at other times are very chatty and sociable. Shouldn't they, as co-hostesses, help to make things pleasant for the guests? Sometimes there are periods when they are not at all busy pouring. Are we guests committing a breach of etiquette in trying to chat with them, when we happen to be sitting or standing right beside them? — D.W.

Good for you . . . an excellent question for you to ask to point to the consideration we should have. My thought is that the hostess when graciously pour at tea-parties are not so much to blame for their seeming lack of attention to us guests are for not taking enough friendly interest in them, as we try to chat with them. Unless someone stands by them or sits by them and starts a conversation they just can't do very much about chatting with the guests. I'm sure they don't want to "sit in state," but when guests arrive by the dozen they are very conscientious and conscientiously on the alert to serve them, and when they are busy at that they are anchored to their pots. And they'll be grateful to the guest who "comes to visit" a while!

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER AND HER CORSAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my daughter's wedding, I'm wearing an angle-length not a floor-length gown. Is it still proper for me to wear my corsage on the shoulder rather than on my shoulder? (I'm not too fond of wearing a corsage.) — R.M.

Entirely proper — the bride's mother should wear her corsage pinned on the most becoming, whether she's wearing a long dress or a shorter one. To many women it is definitely not becoming for them to wear their corsage on the shoulder — this sometimes looks top-heavy, so overemphasizes the bust and spoils the harmony of the costume. Some mothers prefer to wear the corsage at or near the waist. Others wear it on their neckpiece, for example, and others wear their corsage on their purse.

WHEN GROOM WEARS MORNING SUIT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son-in-law is to be an informal afternoon wedding in the chapel of our church, and we are trying to have one informal. I am planning to wear a dressmaker-type suit, street-length, for mom is to wear a dark-blue business suit. At the ceremony should the groom wear a tuxedo and would a gardenia be appropriate as his buttonniere? — Agnes A.

The groom should not wear gloves. And instead of a gardenia I suggest he wear a white carnation.

NECESSARY TO ANSWER WEDDING INVITATION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents and I have just received a formal wedding invitation with no "R.s.v.p." on it or "Please reply" or any other request for an answer. Is it necessary to answer that kind of a wedding, and I disagree about this. — X and Y

If this formal invitation is an invitation to the church ceremony it is not necessary to reply. But if it is an invitation to the house or to a hotel or club or hall, then it must be answered. Because an invitation that implies that food is to be served to a dinner or evening reception should always be answered, even if it does not request an answer.

HANDS BEAUTIFIED AT SALONS

There are times when home care just doesn't seem to get a woman anywhere in her war against good looks troubles. It can be that way with "housework hands." She applies fragrant hand lotion, and it helps some but not enough.

Let her head for a salon for the full works. A combination hand treatment and manicure will prove a good investment. She will be delighted with the improved appearance of her hands and will pick up some pointers that will come in handy in home grooming.

Beauticians say not only homemakers need revitalizing hand treatments. Career girls, who pound typewriters all day, and athletic girls, whose hands are toughened by summer sports, can benefit from such treatments, too. They say that discolorations, caused by continued exposure to the sunlight in the summer, often linger all through the winter. Excessive tanning may leave the skin coarse and leathery.

The treatment starts with a soapy washing with a brush, the hands remaining in sudsy water for several minutes to soften the flesh. A heavy lubricating cream is applied. Each finger and thumb is treated to massage with special attention given to the cuticle around the nails. From the wrist to the elbow deep stroking movements are used.

While the cream remains on, a mood meal is applied, forming a pack. Then steaming hot applications are used. The final flourish is a talcum friction.

MARRIED ATOP TOWER

TOKYO (Reuters) — A young Japanese couple were married on the 200-foot high observation platform of a television tower in Nagoya, central Japan, today. Mr. and Mrs. Tatsuta Kato swore their married life vows on the high platform as the shining glass in this observation tower" and "our love is as constant as a television wave beam."

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

What a joy your column is! I wouldn't miss it for anything. I wish it were longer though. . . .

my husband is in the Air Force and we move a good deal. We have four little girls, I enjoy the life. We have a happy family that we are trying to raise in a good Christian way of life and I enjoy caring for my home and family . . . It is such a satisfying task . . . as a rule Air Force wives seem to be exceptionally good cooks. . . . I believe it is because of their varied backgrounds and the ease with which they mingle socially . . . particularly on civilians where there are married quarters. . . . when living in lovely Annapolis valley in Nova Scotia we used to have coffee parties quite every nice day while the children played . . . some would be darning, some shelling nuts or coloring margarine—all busy. Nearly every morning I would go home with a household hint or two picked up. I suppose some people would not have appreciated our morning "get-together" but we all kept our homes clean and comfortable and didn't enjoy our visits any less on account. (1) In tonight's recipe you call for 1 cup lemon and baking ammonia. Is the first the same as lemon extract and where do I get salts? (2) I have a recipe for molasses kisses. My children do like them so much. Can you suggest any use for them? Could I melt them and use them for frosting on cookies or sweets in some way.—P.E.

ANSWER:

That is a delightful and graphic picture you have in of civilian life. Thank you for it. I am sure you contributed your full share to the good social life and its success. Oil of lemon is not lemon extract. You can get it at Watch's store. The molasses kisses will melt down in boiling water and could be used as a substitute for sugar syrup is used, if the molasses flavor is not too pronounced. For instance it could be the liquid part of a sweet sauce for steamed pudding. I am sure that you unwrapped the kisses when you melted them. Suggested use of 1 cup boiling water, and let stand over low heat until dissolved. Then help to thicken with 1½ tsp. flour and a few stirs. Mix 2 tablespoons cornstarch with ½ teaspoon each salt and nutmeg and 1-4 cup cold water. Stir this into the hot syrup and cook until clear. Pour on and 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 tablespoon butter. Let melt through. This sauce would be served over cottage or plain cake or pudding. (In blood type) I would use up a big bag of them this way) I can't think of a safe way of making them into caramels or cookies. Good luck.

QUESTION:

From your column I gather you have calorie charts . . . I'm 5' 6, 1-2 inches, weigh 145 lbs., but (1) I lose another 10 lbs. I can't resist telling you that dills can certainly be made without scum forming. (2) Take cucumbers 3 to 4 inches long, on the small side. My vinegar is 2 parts water and 1 only use salt, no spices. Pack prepared cucumbers into jars with dill. Pour boiling vinegar and salt let stand 15 minutes. Pour vinegar off, bring to boil, and pour over cucumbers again. Let stand a few minutes and then pour off. Do it a third time, bring to full boil and pour back in the jars and seal them at once. I allow about 1 quart extra liquid for boiling process to a six quart basket of cucumbers. That may sound far-fetched for pickling but my vinegar is as clear as spring water and pickles crisp . . . I usually pack my pickles in one jar, first to see how many jars I'll have and then allow 4 to 5 cups liquid for each jar. . . . the idea in this method is to get your vinegar hot enough so it keeps without scumming and yet not cook your pickles.

I think the most outstanding feature of your column is your fine sense of humor. It is both delicate and in good taste . . . a point that is neglected in these days.—Betty.

ANSWER:

Thank you Betty for explaining the "why" of your letter. Thank you for the details—as for the compliment—a humble "thank you" too—I only hope it is true.

Bulletins From Birdland

WILD OR TAME

We are apt to be confused in our uses of "wild" and "tame" birds. The ancestors of our tamest pets were wild. Our canaries' ancestors were wild birds of finches of the Canary Islands, Madeira, and the Azores. In the 15th century song birds were brought to Europe to be caged. These original birds were sometimes streaked with brown, and were only 4 or 5 inches long.

Several kinds of birds were in one time kept in cages because of their beautiful plumage including turtle doves, but this practice is now frowned upon in North America. Peacocks are natives of India and Ceylon, but have been bred in France for their feathers. In some parts of the British Isles they are to be found on large estates wandering at will. The sight of a male peacock strutting on the lawn, with his marvelous tail spread, is something to remember. At times these birds were considered table delicacy.

Pigeons of our city squares are descendants of the rock dove—and correctly speaking, should be so called. They have been bred, and allowed to go wild again. They have been raised for food, made to carry messages since the time of Solomon and are still used as carriers and for racing.

DISCOURAGE PIGEONS

Although some modern cities have attempted to discourage them by putting electrified wires on their favorite roosts on large public buildings, nevertheless, these unwanted birds seem to want our company. When prevented from perching on one building they simply move to another.

Strangely enough, ravens, which are traditionally birds of ill-omen, have frequently been used as pets. For several hundred years there always appear to be a few that are domesticated. Although mischievous, they have proved to be quite interesting, and are very good mimics. In captivity they often live to a great age. In the wild state, they are to be found in Europe, north and central Asia, and North America, and are classed among our largest perching birds.

Parrots of one kind or another are found in the tropical regions in the warmer parts of Australia and South America, but they also live in the tropical countries. The best talkers are African greys, but many others are favorites for their looks. Parakeets are small members of the family, are also very popular Budgerigars. These last, natives of Australia, are a combination of beauty and ability to imitate.

IMPROVED OUTLOOK

GUELPH (CP)—Experts at the Ontario Agricultural College here foresee a forecast an improved outlook for pork, winter wheat and oats this winter. Beef cattle are expected to remain fairly steady and strong during the top quality beef they said. Exports to the United States are expected to keep the Canadian market dependent on American prices.

FLOODS ADD TO MISERY OF STORM-CRIPPLED EUROPEANS

Battered by crippling rain, snowstorm, many European countries are now faced with threat of serious floods as masses of snow have turned small rivers into raging torrents. Such is the case of the usually tranquil Seine river which can be seen overflowing its banks above into streets in the centre of Paris. Normally the river is several feet below the top of the quay. While firemen strive with pumps to keep the water level down in Notre Dame, other workers using sandbags and concrete colatered embankments in downtown Paris.

Some Chinese Seafood Comes From Red China

PORT ERIE (CP) — United States customs officials said Friday Chinese-Americans are getting some of their seafood from Communist China via Hong Kong and Canada.

The officials said several shipments of dried Chinese fish dishes and sauces for seafood have been intercepted recently. The U.S has an embargo on all goods from Communist China.

In Toronto, comment on the case came from a man who knows the delicacies well.

Fred Seto, city and Canadian news editor of Toronto's Chinese Times, said the product is an oyster sauce made with a recipe handed down for years old. He said it would be difficult to duplicate by modern methods.

He said the fish are varieties found only in China. Over the years Chinese people have become extremely fond of them, he said.

He discounted the idea that there is a major smuggling ring in operation. Mr. Seto said U.S Chinese want Canada and take back only enough for personal needs.

GERMAINE TUCKER, CLAUDE PERRINCHIEF CURTALENE GILBERT

Student Personalities At Albert College

A weekly feature of interesting facts revealed in Interviews with those young undergraduates who hail from countries beyond the seas.

BY GEORGE H. CARVER

The flashing form of a young lady, flying across the track will likely create a new sprint record for Albert College sports reviews next spring.

She is 19-year-old Curtalene Gilbert, already a champion in her own right, who is spending her first educational year at the well-known seat of learning.

Curtalene, a demure young lady, with Germaine Tucker, another personable miss and Claude Perrinchief, a handsome young man, are Bermuda's contribution to the college student body this year.

From the Atlantic's coral hold day jewels these three cultured, soft-spoken youngsters, seeking higher education in a climate far removed from the tropical sunshine and zephyrs of their native island.

Curtalene, named after a Doctor's daughter, is a brunette with a natural athlete, and excels in various phases of athletics.

Track and field, however is her forte and she has negotiated the 100 yards dash in 11 seconds, an outstanding mark for a girl sprinter. She also specializes in the long jump and other track and field events. Last year she was the senior girls' track and field champion of her Bermudian Sandys Secondary School. She returned at Albert is going out for volleyball and basketball. Last year, this writer was informed, Curtalene narrowly missed the Bermuda contingent to the British Empire Games.

This blonder, almost shy young miss was born in Somerset, a parish of Bermuda, about 12 miles from Hamilton, the capital. She is the daughter of Thomas Gilbert, a machinist and her mother Alice Mixon and an older sister, Gleena.

Curtalene had never been away from her native Bermuda previous to coming to Albert. Her ambition is to become a secretary, and she decided to come to Canada to obtain a commercial degree. A chance conversation with a former graduate of Albert decided her course, and she is experiencing her first taste of the "outside world" in Belleville.

She likes it here. The frigid weather with its snow and ice does not bother her. With her studies and athletic activities, Curtalene is a busy young lady, but over that dim distant horizon is the consuming diploma and the opportunity to return to her native Bermuda, a full pledged secretary.

Personable 17-year-old Claude Perrinchief, a schoolmate of Curtalene's at Sandys Secondary School, a 109 student institution in Bermuda is not too worried about his ultimate sphere of activity. At the present he is concentrating his efforts on preparing for a Bachelor of Science degree. When this ambition is achieved he may become a teacher. He is undecided as yet. But, like Curtalene, will return to his native "Land of the Lilies" to pursue his lifes vocation.

Claude is another of the many Albert students from distant climes, who came to the school through the advice and recommendation of happy contented graduates. A native, a former student advised Claude to "try Albert" with the result he came to the school for the first time. He liked it so much, he said that "I am back again."

He is the son of an official at the British Dockyard in Bermuda. Canadians he feels, are a splendid friendly people. And rather strangely he likes the Canadian winter with its snow and ice—and is learning to skate.

In a charming, well modulated voice, with the soft, strange-to-Canadians rolling dialect, Germaine Tucker, almost an exact opposite to Curtalene, said a chance conversation between their mothers paved the way for her arrival at Albert.

Germaine, the daughter of Mr. W. Leroy Tucker, a Hamilton commission merchant, and a member of the Bermuda Parliament, graduated from Berkely Institute School, Pembroke, Bermuda, prior to coming to Albert this year.

Germaine is no stranger to the busy world outside of her native island, having flown several times with her father to New York. This however, is her first year in Canada where she is taking a business administration course. She hopes to become an efficient secretary and eventually become associated with her father in his business.

Germaine does not care much for athletics. She loves music, and is an accomplished pianist. She is possessed of a fine soprano voice and is a member of the Albert Glee Club.

Loyal Bermudian that she is, Germaine has not fallen in love with the Canadian winter. It frees her, she says, to tramp in the snow and ice.

Wednesday morning of this week we held the first assembly in our new auditorium. Mr. Leslie Reid, our Principal, presided as master of ceremonies.

Bruce Dobbs, Bob Elliott, Roy Gatland and George Musgrove were given small tokens of money to show their appreciation of their hard work in selling bills before the cafeteria was opened.

On behalf of the Students' Council, Bruce Dobbs presented the football team a plaque in recognition of their winning the COSSA Junior "B" championship this fall.

We are very proud of Mr. J. Simon, captain Rosemary Walmsley and the football team.

Mrs. Herrington of the Junior Red Cross came and spoke to the students on Junior Red Cross.

She announced that Mrs. Herrington suggested that we establish a Junior Red Cross Club in Quinte Secondary school.

Relatives Can Be Fun

by Anna Allison Thaler

One of the unmitigated joys of being a descendant of an old United Empire Loyalist family is that one never knows just when an hitherto unknown relative is going to pop out at you. Twice within the last decade I have had this happen to me; the first previously unknown family of relatives coming from the west coast of California, and the second such family just down the line in Morristown, New York, about across Lake Ontario from Brockville.

A letter appearing in the Picton Gazette several years ago, and more recently, an advertisement published in the same paper, brought to my attention two more leaves on the branches of our family tree. And by replying to that letter and by answering the advertisement I have brought into my life new family connections which are proving of the greatest joy to me.

The fore mentioned letter was written by a Mr. Hoover of California who requested rather specific information regarding the Hoover and Rohlh families. Through my father I am closely related to each of these families, and indeed, one of my own cousins married a Rohlh so I was named after my paternal grandmother whose maiden name was Rohlh.

PRIZED BOOK

Now, one of my most prized possessions is a copy of that very old book, Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, which relates the history of about three hundred families of United Empire descent. Rather strange, although perhaps not because as my father used to say "those paid got their names in this book, and those who didn't didn't", while the Rohlins are reputed to be the richest family in the area. However, due to my late father's interest in genealogy he collected a set of records giving a fairly complete history of the Hoovers.

So, armed with all this material I sat down at my typewriter and copied innumerable long pages of history regarding the early settlement in Prince Edward and nearby counties of the Hoover and Rohlin families, and sent them off in the next mornings mail to Mr. Hoover in California.

Naturally I waited for a quick reply but it was many a long month before I received an acknowledgement of my hard work, and then, much to my surprise, the expected letter came from the state of Iowa and not California. Cousin Hoover of California had a married sister, Mrs. Roberts residing in Iowa, and he had mailed my letter and papers on to her, and she had acknowledged everything.

There developed a very fine correspondence between Mrs. Roberts and myself in tracing our pedigrees, and I soon learned that many of my ancestors about whom I had heard my grandmother talk had been known to the flesh by Mrs. Roberts. The letter had been born in the Ashburnham area and although she was many years my senior we soon felt a very real affection for one another. So much so that, a year later, she came east to visit her sister, who has since died, in Ingersoll, Ontario, and then the two sisters came on over to Rochester, New York, where the sister married son resided with his wife and family.

And it was there that I finally met Mrs. Roberts. Taking my book, Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, with me I drove down and spent a most pleasant afternoon with the little family. We still correspond and I shall always look forward with pleasure to the letters from Mrs. Roberts, poetic and prosy, now in her late eighties.

AD AROUSES CURIOSITY

An advertisement which appeared in the Picton Gazette for several weeks last summer aroused my feminine curiosity, and of the latter I possess a considerable amount. A woman residing in Morristown, New York, wanted to buy a copy of the book Pioneer Life On the Bay of Quinte. She did not explain her unusual desire to, finally, I broke down and wrote to her, telling her that myself, I owned one it was not for sale, but I would be interested in knowing her reason for wanting this book.

Thus from a unique advertisement in the West Ad column of my home town paper I have gained another friend and acquaintance, but two, new relatives. My Morristown correspondent immediately replied saying that, as a descendant of several United Empire Loyalist families, she had seen the Pioneer books which belonged to a relative in Chicago, and deeply desired one of her own.

Before her marriage she had been a Dafoe, and was connected with the DaMilles, Eatons, Millers and Solmes of the Demorestville-Northport area of Prince Edward County, too, she had relatives around Belleville, and greatly to my surprise when comparing relatives through our letters, I learned that a cousin of her mother's and Adelaide DeMille, had been married to a cousin of my father's, the late Redmond Palen Roblin, former premier of Manitoba.

Thus, my newly-found relative told me about another woman living in Morristown who is related to both the Allisons and the Roblins.

The former Roblin homestead at Roblin's Mills, in Ameliasburg, is now used as a summer camp for boys and girls.

While I was visiting in Picton last summer I called at the camp to take a couple of little boys holidaying there, on a picnic. I had brought along their mother and their two brothers from Picton, also a well-filled hamper of food and soft drinks.

MEETS DISAPPOINTED BOY

Nearing the camp we met a group of the boys out on a hike with their leader. Among them were our two boys and available I called redhead from Belleville. The leader told me that Larry, shall we call him? who cannot walk as well as the other boys, had become tired and asked me to drive him back to the house.

When I let him out of the car at the house Larry's small, hot face was a picture of disappointment, frustration and unhappiness. But, thanks-be-to-Providence, which gave me the inspiration to invite Larry to go along on the picnic with us, and obtain the necessary permission for him to do so. Did you ever see the morning sun smiling across the faces of country fresh eggs, sunny side up? That was little Larry, tanned, smiling and happy, as he climbed back into the car.

Not knowing just where to hold our picnic we followed Larry's guidance across the Belleville bridge to the park which is fittingly made by the side of the bay near the bridge. It is a delightful spot and as the day waned and I wished to carry with me a completely lovable boys and good manners I thought what an opportunity it could be for some men's club in Belleville to interest themselves in this little lad and help him along the good life. I am sure they would never regret it.

When we returned to camp Larry threw his arms around my neck and kissed me right smack on the mouth as he breathed his appreciation of a happy afternoon. For that matter, all the little boys did, and let me tell you that if you real-

ALBERT COLLEGE

One of Canada's Oldest Co-Educational Colleges

One hundred years ago, our forebears labored and sacrificed to establish Albert College, firmly believing in the Christian democratic way of life for which the college has always stood. Since those early days, we have endeavored to provide for the youth of our country an education set in the framework of Christian truth — to develop Christian principals in the growing individual, convinced that such training produces the best citizens.

Since 1942, the student enrollment at Albert College has almost doubled. Each year owing to inadequate accommodation, many applications for admission are refused.

To remedy this situation, it is proposed to build a new residence for girls. Together with other improvements this requires a financial outlay of $300,000.

In Belleville the quota is $75,000 and the campaign dates are February 1 - 15.

Every dollar invested in Albert College is spent in Belleville.

Enforcement Of Player Non-Falling Rule Makes It Tough For Goalies

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

CLOSER 'N CLOSER!

Kingston Goodyears bounced into a third place deadlock with the Memos last night in this hectic senior "B" race by virtue of a 4 to 1 victory over the eager Brockville Magedomas. In so doing Kingston broke a slump that had seen them on the losing side in their previous six outings away from home.

A seasonal high for attendance was established in Brockville when 1848 fans turned out for this game only to see their favorites trail 2 to 1 after one period and then have the Goodies set the terrified away with two more in the third period. Highlight of the plaee was a penalty shot called against the Goodies in the second period. Marcel Legris, top sniper on the Brockville squad, was elected to take the shot, but Brooks, a newcomer to the Kingston team, and a former Port Arthur Junior "A" goaltender, who has replaced Ken Johnson in the Kingston nets, stole the show by outwitting Legris.

In other league action Clinton Comets failed to take advantage of the Brockville loss when a victory over the trailing Peterborough Petes would have sent them into a fifth place tie with the Magedomas by dropping a 4 to 1 decision to the Petes in Perdueville. The teams were tied 1 to 1 after two periods, but the Petes rammed home three in the third to take the win going away.

As a result of last night's games there is now only one point separating the four top clubs in the group. Cornwall and Whitby tied for last night's games in Ontario action, one side and the Goodyears each have 27. Brockville is 8 points back from the fourth and last playoff position in fifth place with 29 while Clinton with 27 and the Petes with 18 bring up the rear.

WHAT BASEBALL?

Nice work if you can do it—or put away with it. According to the latest Ontario Baseball Association bulletin, released by the general secretary, Tommy Rowdon, some of the teams, associations and umpires of the 1954 season, have been "holding out" on paying their rightful dues to the parent body.

Mr. Rowdon names them and we note that included are the Viadnet Baseball League, including Oakville, and the Oshawa senior baseball club. Then there's Niagara, Hamilton and so on down the line. The Viadnet "Seniors" (we presume the league itself is meant, not the individual clubs) omitted to pay the certificate tax, but unless we are wrong, and that is quite possible, we understood the league was dubbed "senior" with certain member clubs affiliating individually for OBA playdowns.

In any event, right or wrong, the OBA holds the trump card, for the bulletin says in cap letters, "No club will be eligible to vote at the convention if in arrears." Wonder what those pistol-packing clubs that tried to dominate the Viadnet League last summer, will say to that? It's a case of No Pay, No Say.

Manager Jack Carson of the Belleville Balas, says the Belleville Baseball Association's conscience is clear, financially and otherwise.

"Why shouldn't we pay the OBA?" he quipped. "We would be stepping out of character if we refused. After all we paid money out all summer to visiting clubs, whether it raised, or not."

Carson intimated that baseball movements are already under way and that preliminary negotiations with other clubs will start in the near future. In fact, he said, Brockville has put out feelers with regard to joining a league up thataway. And there is a strong possibility, as per Kingston underground informa us, of the Limestone City coming back into the organized baseball fold. It is a known fact that Peterborough would welcome a return to the old Central Ontario Baseball League, where teams are not threatened with "Pay to Play, or You Don't Get In" tactics, such as were evident in the Viadnet League last season.

The Ontario Baseball Association annual is scheduled for March 12 and 13 at Cobourg this year, so Rowdon informs us, and he asks that resolutions for officers and executive, amendments, changes, etc., be mailed to him right away, so they can be presented to a full executive meeting called by the president for Saturday, February 26th.

He also urges that a few umpires, who have been delinquent in sending in their two-buck fees (and we note one from Belleville) do so right away as registration cards for 1955 will not be issued, and no umpire will be eligible to officiate, until the dues are paid.

While we are not in a position to predict anything, we would not mind a small wager on the former Central Ontario Baseball League being re-born this season, especially after the farcical goings-on that characterized the Viadnet League last season. Without proper organized administration, hard feelings crept up between member clubs and the result was a mumbo-jumbo of events with the clubs not knowing half the time where they were in the leagues standing. It was a case of too many tails trying to wag the dog with a surplus of yapping and snapping that brought about no good.

A GOOD SHOW

Don MacKinnon, the amiable prexy o' the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protection Association, has come up with another dilly program for the annual meeting scheduled for Wednesday, January 26th at the YMCA.

He has arranged for two spectacular films, while Russell Whitfield, Department of Lands and Forests, will be the guest speaker.

One of the films is "Key to Adventure," an outboard cruise through the semi-tropical wonderland of the Florida Keys. We have seen this film and our comment is "breathtaking". A feature is a battle between giant tarpon and fisherman using light bait-casting tackle. Don't miss it.

Lumley, Worsley and Company Going to Be Very Busy Boys Behind Stand-up Defencemen

By The Canadian Press

Strict enforcement of the laws is to the benefit of society, it says here, but to at least a couple of members of the National Hockey League goaltenders society this is not the case.

Take Lorne (Gump) Worsley of New York Rangers, for instance. He's already the busiest netminder in the league, what with opposing forwards drifting through the Ranger defence to pepper as many as 50 shots at him during a game. And he figures to be even busier as a result of a recent order by referee-in-chief Carl Voss for stricter enforcement of a rule prohibiting players other than the goalie Blocking shots by falling in front of them is a specialty for Rangers' defenceman Bill Gadsby, one of the Blue Shirts' best. Now he risks a penalty anytime he's figured he fell on the puck rather than in front of it.

Thec look at Toronto Maple Leafs' Harry Lumley, last year the best in goaltending, is that he said to be letting down since the NHL shot-blocking ban—he's down on the clutch-and - grab hockey boys.

ASKED ENFORCEMENT

Says Elmer Ferguson in the Montreal Herald: "There's no questioning that Leafs have been drilled in recent years at a clutch-and-grab system of defence . . . Yet, seriously, the leaders in the game are leaders in the urge to have the rules completely enforced, which has always been the end of clutching, hooking and holding.

All of which apparently goes to say Lumley will be a busy boy tonight when Leafs play Detroit Red Wings in one of three NHL games scheduled.

Worsley, too, is likely to be active tonight when Rangers move to Boston to take on the high-flying Bruins, who have lost only three of their last 11 games.

Chicago Black Hawk goalie Ray Frederick, who is expected to fill in again tonight for ailing Al Rollins, may also look forward to much goal-tending when he collar-dwellers meet Canadiens at Montreal.

Sunday night action pits the same clubs, with the locale changed to Detroit in time for Red Wing case and to Chicago for Hawks and Canadiens. New York is at Boston both nights.

Quinte Defeats Napanee 42-24 In Basketball

Quinte Secondary School Juniors trounced Napanee Juniors in a Junior "B" COSSA game at Quinte, Wednesday, by a 42-24 score.

The game started out to be a fast-moving one, with Quinte on the offensive right from the start. Napanee fought gamely but the deceptive passing by Beeby and Gatland lured them from their defences and enabled Dickey to score effectively.

The start of the second quarter saw Napanee renewed their vigorous attacks but masterful checking by Dickey and Elliott controlled them. The score at the half-way mark stood at 21 to 12 for Quinte.

Early in the second half Napanee bolstered their score by 7 points, thereby making Quinte fighting their entrances. Treadon broke, however, as Armstrong and Dickey shot unerringly.

In the last quarter both teams resorted to a close-checking, fast moving game. Parsons and Moore of Napanee, were the sparks of their team but the sharpened activity in Quinte's defence kept them under control. The final score was 42-24 in favor of Quinte.

Teams and scores:

Quinte — Dickey 12; Armstrong 10; Elliott 8; Musgrove 3; Beeby 3; Simons 2; Phillips 2; Green 2; Gatland 2; Pearce and Hobbs.

Napanee — Moore 9; Parsons 8; Carter 2; Savage 2; Daley 3; Philpen; Rogers; Legg; Leary; Closer; Oliver.

Dutchies Extend Lead With Win Over Cataracts

By The Canadian Press

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen extended their lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league Friday night as they held on to a slim lead through a scoreless third period to beat the last-place Niagara Falls Cataracts 5-4.

In the other game, the upstart Chatham Maroons dumped the second-place Owen Sound Mercurys 6-3, handing over a three-point league lead to the Dutchies in the process.

Kitchener-Waterloo was paced by a hat-trick by George Scholes, who scored the game winner. Ken Laufman and Jim Logan fired the others.

The lowly Cataracts were down 3-1 in the first but took the lead early in the second period on goals by Eddie Mulligan and Danny Nixon. Dutchies made it 5-3 before Bob Kolanchy added the final Cataract marker. The other Niagara Falls goal came from Jim Robertson.

It was Cataracts' seventh straight loss.

The unpredictable Maroons, overcame a 3-1 first-period deficit and went ahead for their big win of the season. Eddie Busch opened the scoring with Maroons' first goal and added another in the third period for good measure.

Chatham replied in the second period for goals on singles by Paul Oliver, Dick Kolanets, Danny Hair and Jim Campbell. Mercurys' only two goals came in the first are from Jack Taylor and Buck Forslund.

Guelph Takes Over Top Spot; Whip Irish 5-1

By The Canadian Press

The hapless St. Michael's College Majors, once 19 points ahead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, surrendered their familiar first place Friday night.

And Guelph Biltmores didn't have much trouble taking over as they handed the Majors a 5-1 defeat before 4,000 Guelph fans.

In the only other game Friday night Barrie Flyers defeated St. Catharines 6-3.

John Gillis opened the scoring for Guelph in the first period but less than two minutes later defencemen John Paschi tied it up. With only one second left in the opening session Tom McCarthy put Biltmores ahead again and that's where they stayed.

Bill McCreary, Bill Graham and Ray Burmister scored for Guelph in the second.

In the other game Barrie moved up into a sixth-place tie with Galt Black Hawks by defeating the visiting TeePees at Barrie. St. Catharines are in fourth spot, one point back of St. Michael's.

Bob Barrie's two goals put Barrie ahead 3-1 in the second period after MacQueen had made it 1-0 for the Flyers in the first. Cec Hockstra netted the TeePees' marker.

In the fast third period St. Catharines tied the score on goals by Elmer Hoffman and Hank Ciesla at 2:11 and 18:20.

Then Macdonald fired the winner for Barrie two minutes later.

REMEMBER WHEN

By The Canadian Press

Frank Boucher, manager of New York Rangers, suggested four years ago today that enlarging the National Hockey League to 12 teams may be a answer to a drop in attendance at most United States league cities. Boucher proposed expanding the league to two divisions, east and west, mentioning such prospective additions as Quebec, Ottawa, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Buffalo, and St. Louis.

Conservation Problems

By John Alden Knight

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Motors)

The life of a conservation director surely can't be a very happy one, at least not while he is working at his job. No matter what happens, regardless of the circumstances, the fault is his should anything go wrong. Moreover, he is caught exactly midway between the pros and cons in any argument or controversy having to do with fish and game.

From time to time during past years I have watched the growing pains incidental to the increase in price of the Pennsylvania hunting and fishing licenses. I want to tell you that the fuss and uproar the boys make over a 50-cent increase is really something to hear. They couldn't scream louder over a 20 per cent raise in income taxes.

Here we are in the atomic age. We drive to and from our fields, woods and streams in high-speed cars with automatic transmissions, brakes and steering, super foods and high-compression engines. Our collective health is insured by modern drugs and antibiotics. We dress in synthetic fabrics.

Yet we expect our fish and game commissions to operate under horse-and-buggy methods and still keep pace with the rapidly increasing demand of rod and gun pressure on our diminishing supplies of wildlife. To operate efficiently, conservation departments need money, but they have to fight for every nickel they get.

But that is only the beginning. Almost every move they make is violently opposed by somebody. Pic arm chair and bariside experts know all the answers and they are not hesitant about expressing their opinions. Through a multitude of political connections they can, and usually do, make a conservation commissioner's life far from a merry one.

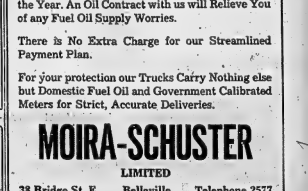
Not so very long ago the beaver of the nation were scarce. Pressure was exerted to reestablish the beaver. All right—now we have beaver, too many beaver. They dam our streams, gnaw down our trees, impede fish migrations and flood cultivated lands. All too much time is spent nowadays by the field men trapping these animals and moving them to areas where they can do a minimum of damage.

Bear, too, were scarce at one time. Now we have more bear. They do not seem to appreciate the fact that they have been pampered during past years. The bait, supplied out to farmers for bear damage each year, takes a good-healthy slice out of the budget.

The same holds true for deer. Many of the deer states have too many deer. The animals have just about exhausted their natural food and they are changing from browsing animals to grazing animals. Now it is a common sight here-abouts to see them grazing in the fields like so many cattle. The winter kill from starvation is heavy.

The conservation departments are doing all they can to reduce the herd to normal proportions is greeted by a hubbub that resounds to the high heavens.

Twenty-five or 30 years ago there was a bounty on alligators in Florida. Public opinion insisted that there were too many gators. So the professional hunters killed off the gators and had a mighty good thing of it.



Then the "rubber-shell" turtles took over. No longer were there alligators to hold their numbers in check. The bass fishing, which once had been superlative, declined almost to the vanishing point. Now, not only are the gators protected, they are being stocked, or help me, in the Big Blue Cypress area.

I think that all of us who love the outdoor sports would be wise to consider these facts. It has been rather conclusively established that the old expedients of game and fish planting—the old snake-eyes—are not effective.

Conservation, maybe, the State of Michigan. Back in 1947 the pheasant shooting was not good. The boys roared loudly for an expanded planting program. This the conservation commission wisely rejected. Instead, they concentrated on wise management methods, planting only for introductory purposes.

In 1953 more than 1,000,000 ringnecks fell to the guns of Michigan hunters—and that's not the pen-reared variety. After all, no sane person can quarrel with figures like those.

So here is a suggestion even though you don't happen to agree with their politics, have the good grace to allow your conservation commissions to do their jobs according to their best judgment, without beleaguering them with criticism and political pressure. Moreover, give them the money they need to do the job. If you follow this advice, my bet is that all of us will be better off in the long run.

WIFU Certain to Approve No-Raid Pact With National

CALGARY (CP)—A chilly conference reception was reported in reserve today for western conference proposals of import-cutting and gate-splitting. But approval of a no-raiding pact with the U.S. National Football League was considered a certainty.

The annual Western Interprovincial Football Union meeting was expected to send league commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg to the NFL with a peace plan honoring American contracts and options.

Such a move would follow the Big Four's expected "mailing" of a no-raid's agreement with NFL commissioner Bert Bell in Philadelphia Monday.

The Big Four has proposed slicing each team's imports to eight from 10, and Canadian-Americans imports who have played four consecutive years in Canada down to two from three.

Its other scheme, though affecting only the Big Four members, would give visiting clubs 15 per cent of the home team's gate receipts.

If either plan is favored by anybody in the WIFU except Saskatchewan Roughriders, and possibly Calgary Stampeders, it was being kept a dark secret Friday night.

Both teams finished the 1955 season with deficits.

Vancouver and Edmonton representatives said they are happy with the present set-up—no gate-splitting except for exhibition games and predicted after seeing representatives will take the same view.

On the import-quota question, Riders are again far removed in policy from both B.C Lions and Edmonton Eskimos.

Last year, Riders dressed a team of few top imports — the squad was still good enough to stay atop the league through most of the regular season—while the other four teams continued to splurge.

JUNIORS' SKILL AUGURS WELL FOR CANADA'S FIGURE-SKATING FUTURE

Canada's future in world figure-skating events looks rosy, judging from the stylish technique of the young blades artists competing for the Canadian junior ladies' crown at Toronto Skating club. Out of competition for two years, due to a knee injury, Toronto's Wanda Beasley, left, skated off with top honors in the school figures and won the free skating competition and the title. Other junior skaters who impressed fans were, from left: Nancy Davidson, Ottawa; Diane Williams, Calgary; Karen Dixon, Calgary; Frances Gold, Ottawa; Gaye Clark, London, and Bonnie Davis, Chatham. — Central Press Canadian.

Toronto Miss and Ottawa Youngster Win Junior Figure-Skating Titles

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—All three titles decided at the Canadian figure skating championships Friday went to the east, but the west gets its chance tonight.

Don Jackson of Ottawa and Wanda Beasley of Toronto Friday night won the Canadian junior titles and women's singles championships and Barbara Jacques and Carol Mamie of Toronto took the junior dance crown.

Today six will compete for the Canadian senior ladies' singles title and it's a good bet Sonja Currie of Calgary, last year's runner-up, will win for the west. The title was vacated by Barbara Gratton of Toronto, who retired from competition this year.

Two are entered in the senior men's singles, both from Toronto, Senior couples, senior pairs and fours and senior dance championships also will take place today.

Bob Paul, 17, of Toronto was runner-up in the junior men's with a narrow margin on Hugh Smith of Oshawa.

For Wanda it was her third try at the event and next year she enters the senior class.

She's been skating since she was two years old—17 years—but an injured knee kept her out of competition for two years.

Close behind Wanda was Dianne Williams, a 16-year-old Calgary skater.

Marg Crosland, 15, and Karen Dixon, 15, from Calgary, and Calgary's Glencoe Club, placed third and fourth.

Marie and Otto Jelinke of Oakville, and Dianne Neilson and Edwin Cossett of Hamilton had entered the junior pairs event, but Cossett withdrew after taking his fall for a wrong-way, saying he couldn't skate on an injured ankle. It had been frozen with novocaine but was too painful. He injured the ankle Thursday in practice.

Fastest of the championship, Marie, 18, and Otto, 14, brother and sister team from Hamilton's Czechoslovakia before coming to Canada five years ago, skated an exhibition described by ringside professionals as "sensational."

Tommy Bolt Leads Big Tourney, Leonard Good

By BOB MYERS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Tommy Bolt remained the man to beat today as play headed into the third round of the $15,000 San Diego Open—but Vancouver's Stan Leonard was getting in some astonishing golf.

The tall Texan from Houston, with rounds of 64 and 67 for 131, held a commanding lead of four strokes over the field as he teed off on overhaul in Sunday's final round.

One of Bolt's strong challengers is Gene Littler, former U.S. national amateur champion who fired the San Diego Open a year ago and three weeks ago was top man in the Los Angeles Open.

The other is Leonard, Canada's finest tournament player of a period of years.

30 COMING-HOME

Littler swung around the valley acres in workmanlike style Friday 32-33—65.

Leonard fashioned a 36 on the first nine and then potted an astonishing 30 for the trip home—a trip that included an eagle, five birdies and one bogey.

Looking at the spread of scores, it would appear that Littler and Leonard pose the only threat to Bolt.

Four players were tied at 138—seven strokes behind Bolt. In two rounds one or another of them might close the gap. But gaining three shots from Littler or Leonard, or Bolt, offered a real challenge.

The four were Jack Burke, Jr., Doug Ford, seasoned pros both; young Dow Finsterwald and Paul McGinley, the Wichita, Kan., youngster whose 65 was just behind Bolt's opening round 64.

Canadian, American Gridmen Will Try to Bury War Hatchet

By JACK REST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Canadian and American football officials meet here today in an effort to conclude a peace between the rival Canadian Big Four and the U.S National Football League.

Commissioner Bert Bell of the NFL expressed some optimism concerning the meeting, main subject of which is to work out a no-raiding agreement on player contracts.

"It's a step in the right direction but there are many obstacles to overcome," said Bell, who will represent the NFL in talks with Big Four players' agent Cooper of Hamilton and officials of each Big Four club.

The meeting will take place while an appeal by Toronto Argonauts' quarterback Big Four ruling to honor NFL contracts and options is still pending.

SIGNED EIGHT

The Argos say they have signed eight American players, all of them under option by NFL teams, and are negotiating for several more.

Besides Cooper, Canadian officials at the meeting will include Bob Morran of Winnipeg, Frank Ahrston of Ottawa, Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton and Leo Dandurand of Montreal.

Bell said he had met several times before with representatives of the Big Four. "Last year we sort of outlined a plan we thought would work," he added, "and when they took it back home the deal fell through somehow.

"We feel that everyone should honor their contracts and options, whether they be to the NFL or the Canadian league. Encouraging anything but this policy is hurting these young men who play football."

Bill Stewart Dean of Umpires Closes Career

CINCINNATI (AP)—Little Bill Stewart, dean of National League umpires, retired Friday, closing out a career in athletics which reads like an adventure book.

For 22 years he was a familiar figure behind the plate or working one of the bases.

Stewart always his major sport, both as a pitcher, outfielder manager and later an umpire. But he had his turn as a trackmate, a wrestler, a football player, a hockey team manager and hockey referee, and a scout. He also refereed boxing matches.

His chances for a major league berth came with Chicago White Sox of the American League in 1919, but he fell down during the winter and hurt his pitching arm.

He joined the National League in August, 1932, and has a record of having worked 715 consecutive games before being sent to hospital with appendicitis in Philadelphia a few years ago.

Meanwhile he had won a reputation as a fine hockey referee, working the job for nine years in the National Hockey League. He was a boro for a few months in 1926 when he managed Chicago Black Hawks to victory in Stanley Cup play.

Kerwin Stops Willie Jones

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Gale Kerwin, a transplanted Ottawa 19-year-old now fighting out of Valley Stream, N.Y., is a friend of William Jones of Allentown Pa. on a technical knockout Friday night in the seconds of the fifth round of a scheduled 10.

Although Kerwin, a solid left hooker, failed to drop Jones he had his opponent on the ball shape when referee Jack Millicich called a halt.

Kerwin caught Jones in a neutral corner and raked him with a two-fisted attack late in the fourth. He hailed him in the opposite neutral corner and at the bell Jones was in no condition to fight back and the fray yelled "stop it" before the referee acted.

Kerwin weighed 138 and Jones 140.

Manitoba's High School Rink Favored for Dominion Title

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's rink in the Dominion High School curling championships at Sydney, N.S., Feb. 15-19 may not be as polished or well-balanced as some of its predecessors but Barry Shearer certainly has more confidence than previous skips.

Many oldtimers think the 19-year-old, grade 12 student from Winnipeg's Gordon Bell school is inclined toward cockiness. But so far he has backed up everything he has said.

Before the opening of the Manitoba High Schools' Bonspiel which leads to the provincial championship, Shearer predicted he would win the title over the 190 other rinks entered and that he would take the Canadian championship.

A GOOD START

He's made a good half his boast.

Shearer, who has been curling for five years, startled officials at refereed bonspiel meetings when he inquired:

"Say, how am I beating today?"

The foursome has not played together as a rink before. Chris Lane, second skips a rink which leads his league at Gordon Bell.

This is the second straight year Manitoba has been represented in the Dominion final by a rink from Gordon Bell school.

CONFIDENT SKIP

Shearer, who also curls at the Valour Road and Strathcona clubs in Winnipeg, says:

"It's beyond doubt. There is no hope for the other rinks." He made the statement following his 19-3 victory over Dave Howat's Flin Flon rink in the Manitoba final.

The same Howat rink had defeated Shearer 11-6 in an earlier bonspiel in the final of the Free Press competition, major event in the Manitoba sport.

The six-shot one-inch Shearer rink has been seeking revenge for the sudden-death playoff between the two finalists from the two-group, round-robin series leading to the championship. He hit on 93 per cent of his shots. The rink showed skill at both the draw and knock-out game.

Barry, who says he likes curling, sleeping, reading and girls in that order were the Strathcona club junior championship three years ago.

ACTIVE STUDENT

He's a member of the student council at Gordon Bell as vice-president of his room, is co-chairman of the achievement awards committee at school, operator of the public address system at all school dances and student adviser to the Gordon Bell "Chimes," the school paper. He coaches the girls' basketball team and shines at badminton.

Kovats, originally from Piney, Man., plays baseball, basketball and soccer.

Purdy, sports captain of his class last time out, was a junior school rugby team, likes playing his guitar, a hobby for five years. He also dabbles in painting.

Crew-cut Johnny Borax, who also plays basketball and soccer at school, thinks the rink will do "pretty good" in the Canadian finals.

A fine scholar—he averages 75 per cent—Borax has several hobbies, including still and movie photography, radio and tropical fish.

Golden Gaels Trim Assumption

KINGSTON (CP)—Queen's Golden Gaels upset the highly-rated Assumption College Purple Hawks of Windsor, Ont., 74-66 in an intercollegiate basketball game at here Friday night.

The Gaels were ahead 40-28 at the half time and were on the long end 10 points through all of the fast-moving tussle.

Assumption had drubbed the Queen's squad 89-45 in Windsor a week ago but it was a greatly-improved team they faced Friday night.

Guard Paul Fador paced the Queen's attack with 21 points, mostly scored on long set shots.

'Stan the Man' Signs For Mere $80,000

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan (The Man) Musial joined Cincinnati Red Schoendienst in a $120,000 St. Louis Cardinal contract signing ceremony Friday to match the can equal Home Wagner's record of eight National League batting crowns.

The 34-year-old six-time National League batting champion, happy with his fifth straight $80,000 contract, said he thinks he is "capable of four more good seasons and one more batting title."

Schoendienst and Musial, probably the highest-priced roommates in baseball, have lived together on the road since 1947 but this is the first time they've signed together.

The 32-year - old Schoendienst, considered one of the best second basemen, obviously was pleased with his part calling for a reported $40,000, the same as last year.

Musial turned 34 last November 21 a step ago for a ball player, but his trim 180-pound frame belies it. Last year he hit 54 homers, batted in 126 runs and had a .330 average at the plate.

Mexican League Recognised As Class A Circuit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —The six-team Mexican League Friday won long-sought recognition by organized baseball as a class AA circuit.

George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, said the league is the first composed of all foreign teams speaking a different tongue, to be admitted to the association.

Annuar Canavati, owner of the Monterrey club and league vice-president, gained recognition for the loop as a one-man delegation to Trautmeo's office.

Canavati said he would fly home after going to New York to invite commissioner Ford Frick to attend the opening game between the Monterrey club and Mexico City Reds April 14.

The Mexican League has been in action since 1955, and has sent many stars into organized baseball, including Mike Garcia and Bobby Avila of Cleveland Indians.

Hodges Signs For $30,000

BROOKLYN (AP)—Gil Hodges, greatest slugger in Brooklyn history, today signed a contract calling for $30,000 which is a healthy increase of $7,000.

The 30-year-old first baseman had his best year last season with a .304 batting average, 42 homers, 130 runs batted in, 335 total bases, a .579 slugging percentage and 176 hits.

In addition, he led all National League first-basemen with 1,281 put-outs, 132 assists and 1,330 total chances. He finished one point behind leader Ted Kluszewski in percentage.

B.C.I.—Batchelor 12; Farnsworth 14; White; Smith 7; Craig 8; Hill; Allaire; Bradwell 6; Moore; Varcoe; Kelly.

In the junior basketball game, B.C.I. came a cropper, coasting back and walloped Albert College 47-28. McCreig and Vaughan sent A.C. into a comfortable 14-3 first quarter lead. B.C.I. narrowed the margin down to 17-15 by half time. Then the fireworks began as the last minute ring red team monopolized the ball and roared ahead 33-19 by the end of the third quarter. It was the junior's second win of the season without a defeat.

Players and points scored:

Albert College — McCraig 11; Goddard 3; Taugher 14; Johnson; B. McCraig; Safe; Petterson; Prell.

B.C.I.—Jones 2; Burleigh 12; Graham; Cornell 9; Farnsworth; Parbster 10; Hagerman 4; Jackson 18; Irwin; Stephenson; Hamilton 2.

ICE HOCKEY

The Cadet Hockey League entered its schedule when the Mohawks edged the Blackhawks 2-1 on Tuesday. Darnell set up both of Hagerman's goals for the winners. Payette and O'Connor's bottom also assisted. Cornell scored the Blackhawk's lone marker from Rowe.

The Buzzards clobbered the Canucks 6-1 in the second game of the schedule. Hayes scored the winner's attack with three and Irwin and Smith each added scored two goals and Irwin got one assist. Blizzard scored the Canucks' goal.

FLOOR HOCKEY

The Desperadoes desperately fought to overcome the one goal deficit imposed upon them by the Whigites who won the first game of the two game series to the semi-final series for the upper school championship 9-8. Kingsley and Hill each scored were in vain as the powerful Kingsley lineup crushed them 10-6.

Bukard fired five goals for the winners, while Jackson and Ron Jones each scored two goals. Vaughan scored the other goal, while White and Targon received assists. Farnsworth scored four goals and one assist for the Desperadoes. Smith and Dowson also scored. The Kingsley won the round 10-14.

In the first game of the upper school finals the Kingsley defeated the Dynamos 8-5. The game was defensively played in the first half but opened up in the final twenty minutes. The teams rushed back and forth with both Moore and Kingston making sensational saves in their respective nets. The game was played so well that it was practically impossible to pick out a star. Buchard scored four goals for the winner, Bill Jones fired two, while had a goal and an assist and Jackson a goal. Ron Jones received an assist. Adiards scored three and five for the Dynamos with Bishop and Ewing getting the others. Ireland, Bishop, McKay and Foster all got assists.

In lower school floor hockey the Bronchos defeated the Eagles 8-6. Marcile scored four goals and one assist for the winners. Brant had three goals and one assist, while O'Neil had one goal and four assists. Wannamaker fired four goals and one assist for the Eagles. Pollard had one goal and one assist while Duvall and Carmichael each managed an assist. The stars were Wannamaker and Marcile.

The Indians led the Beavers 2-2 during school days before the great hoop athletics presentation in Kampus Kapers. It's going to be better than ever, so don't miss it.

Basilo Scores Convincing Win Over Mueller

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Carmen Basilio, a convincing winner over tough Tony Mueller in many places, won't box again until he meets welterweight champion John Saxton the title bout.

Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, and Basilio's handlers talk of April 1 in Syracuse as an agreeable date and Saxton's manager, Bilsky Palermo, is balking.

In the meantime, Basilio, sliced around the eyes, will air it out, taking no chances on that No 1 spring for the 147-pound class.

Basilio proved himself a solid contender for the crown Monday with a solid body attack Friday night and then switching upstairs for a unanimous decision in 10 good rounds.

TITLE FIGHT NEXT

For a time it seemed Basilio, 1 to 5 favorite would knock out the tough Mueller. A left hook in the fifth might have done the job but Mueller hadn't been close to the ropes.

"Basilio will fight no more until he fights for the title," said Markson. "We are committed to Basilio-Saxton match is our next objective."

It was the second defeat in three U.S. starts for Mueller, a clownish fighter who once knocked out a referee in Germany. Basilio now has an unbeaten string of 11 (two draws) since he was stopped at 45-11-6. He hasn't lost since he dropped a disputed decision to Kid Gavilan in a title bout Sept. 18, 1953.

AT THE McCARTHY

DIRECTOR EXPERIMENTS WITH COLOR IN FILM

Director William A. Wellman, who directed "Track of the Cat," which opens Monday, at the McCarthy Theatre, experimented during the filming.

He made a color motion picture that is entirely in black and white, except for two objects. While WarnerColor film sped through the cameras behind a CinemaScope lens only impressions of black, white or black-and-white were recorded.

"Track of the Cat," starring Robert Mitchum and Teresa Wright, is a Warner-Fellows film for Warner Bros. with Wellman realizing an ambition he formed some years ago.

"Color certainly has its place in pictures," he says, "it's perfect for big spectacles, for musicals, but not for sheer drama. Blue walls, yellow chairs, red dresses, magenta hair, green fireplaces—the eyes of the audience are constantly being distracted by a mass or a maze of color.

"Now ,this is purely a dramatic picture. There are only eight people—a family of six and two outsiders—because that's all it takes to tell the story. There isn't even a bit player or an extra. And with the exception of Robert Mitchum's red mackinaw and Diana Lynn's yellow pongee blouse, every solitary thing in the picture is black or white or both.

"Teresa Wright, Tab Hunter, Beulah Bondi, William Hopper, Philip Tonge and Carl Switzer all wear clothes that are black and white. The farmhouse, the barn, all the animals—horses, cows, chickens—are black and white. Every bit of furniture in the house, every utensil, picture or piece of cloth is the same.

"I finally found the kind of a story that could be made this way — "Track of the Cat." And another thing, the black and white is seen by a color camera isn't at all like we had on the screen before color. Now it's vivid, alive, creates mood and carries drama, but it won't distract the attention if the audience from the players. We've got some great stars in this picture, and I want the spectators to see them—even their eyes."

By SAM GORDON
The Milliner

Somebody always bobs up to ask me: "If only 13 tricks can be taken in one deal, how can each pair have more than seven tricks?" It looks as if the figures must lie somewhere.

The answer is that 53 tricks could be counted in all four of the hands. Each player could have 13 cards in one suit. Each has 13 tricks if his own suit becomes the trump suit.

However, this is not what a player needs worry about. If he and his partner think in terms of a slam, what do they look for? First, the pair must discover 12 or more tricks combined.

They may discover 11 or more tricks by the honor tricks of Culbertson, the points of Goren, or the tricks of Gordon. But a discovery of tricks alone is not sufficient for slam safety.

There are other contributing factors. The second important item is a satisfactory trump suit. And this trump suit discovery may be made either before or after learning of enough tricks.

Culbertson says the pair needs a trump suit with not more than one loser; six honor tricks with one hand a freak; 6½ honor tricks with unbalanced hand; silton seven honor tricks with balanced hands.

Goren says the pair needs 33 or more points; ruvalued points with a sound combined trump suit if played in suit; all high card points if played at no-trump.

Accordin' to Gordon, the pair needs a count of 17 tricks and a satisfactory trump suit if played in suit; automatically, the Gordon count takes care of distributional factors.

Take the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A J 9 7 5	♠K Q 10 6 4 2
♥K Q 3	♥A 9 6 4 2
♦A 6 5 3	♦— —
♣A 3	♣8 6 5 3

In all systems the pair would discover a sound trump suit and the possibility of 12 tricks; if neither partner exaggerated. The way of a transgressor is that of any guesser.

Point Anne Swamps Picton

The Point Anne Cementmen ran wild in a southern section Trent Valley hockey league game played in Picton last night, handing the Picton McFarland Royals a 29-7 trouncing. The win was the tenth for Point Anne without a defeat and leaves them well in front of the rest of the pack.

Their next game will be played at Belleville Memorial Arena on Wednesday night with the Belleville Juniors supplying the opposition.

Your Horoscope

For Sunday, Jan. 23, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—If you are rushed, have many difficult matters to be accomplished, start with the will to be calm, truly, philosophical about it. Begin day at church for the good of all.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Commence the day with the desire to help others as well as yourself. Don't think first about what you would like to do, but about what will be most expedient for the general good. Don't argue.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—A handsome harvest doesn't come from sparsely planted seed; good and full returns come from good and generous effort, rightly applied. (A good disposition is as important as talent.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—Requisites for today—and any day: attentiveness to important matters and to others' right to voice opinions; coherence; respect for the soul's needs.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Inactivity—and overactivity are both wrong. There is a happy medium we too often forget. Today says, "think first, then act; 'count ten' before you act." Start by asking God's guidance.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Becoming anxious and inwardly excited about everyday matters can make you unfit for big important tasks which you could handle well, if calm, temperate and logical.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Do not become involved in matters you should avoid. Don't overstrain your fine energies. The true Libran is systematic, efficient.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—The motto for you as for many others, today: Calmness, inner serenity, going about all matters rationally, knowing there will always be obstacles, setbacks. Prayer and a sense of humor help.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—There may be some surprising turn or unexpected results from past efforts. Wise judgment, careful analysis important. Don't be misled by smooth talk, schemers.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Your sturdy nature, your will to go about affairs faithfully should stand by you now when there may be numerous little hazards, interruptions, stubborn "hills" to climb.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — You can do many things quietly while others don't even know you are busy. You should accomplish a great deal this year. Use today partly for thoughtful plans; enjoy some diversion.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Note these kasic rules or forget one time or another —they are vital to well-rounded success: accuracy, positive attention, true knowledge of facts, good cheer.

You born today are of Aquarius and usually reap lasting reward because you give yourself unselfishly to the general good, rather than to individual desires. Such "greats" as John Ruskin, Lord Byron, Thos. Paine, Thos. Edison, Robt. Burns, F. D. Roosevelt, Abraham Lincoln and Victor Herbert were born under this sign. Devotion and helpfulness are inherent in your nature. Take advantage of opportunities, make the most of your assets, and do not fall into lethargic ways or defeatist moods. Indulge regular healthy exercises; seek intelligent guidance; pray daily for God's guidance. Don't procrastinate.

Little Benny's Note Book

Our television stopped working today, and after dinner ma looked at it sad, saying to pop, Oh dear, William, it just would have to happen today of all days, to make me miss the Excitement Hour.

Too bad, my dear, but maybe you'll have a nice nightmare tonight, to make up for it, pop said, and ma said, Really, William, sometimes seriously, I'm quite put out about it. There's not another mistery program all week half as thrilling as the Excitement Hour, she said.

You ought to know, you don't miss any of them, pop said.

Which she does, and ma said, Oh, well, I've got the latest book in the Mercier Club series, I'll just settle down to it and forget my trubbles.

And she started to read her book and pop kept on reading the paper, and all of a sudden he said, What's all that shooting? Somebody's firing a revolver, he said, and ma said, I didn't hear anything, good and how you startled me, it must of been a car backfiring, she said.

And she started in read again, and pritty soon pop said, Who screemed?

What? For landsakes, William, ma said, and pop said, I distinctly heard a sqreem, followed by a woman's voice saying, "Take your foot off my neck, you brute," followed by a gurgle.

Are you trying to drive me out of my 8 wits? ma said, and pop said, Not at all, my dear, I'm only trying to give you a taist of the starts and terrs I get myself when I try to read my paper while you're the Excitement Hour terned on.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

Soo Bushworker Is Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — An all-male jury after almost five hours of debate on Friday night found bushworker John Lecuyer, 36, guilty of manslaughter in the beating death of a 21-year-old Indian girl.

The jury found Lecuyer not guilty of murder with which he was originally charged in the death of Helen Rivers.

Mr. Justice R. S. Aylen of the Ontario Supreme Court remanded Lecuyer until conclusion of the sittings of the spring assizes here for sentence.

Lecuyer was charged with beating Miss Rivers to death New Year's Eve in their one-room shack near Blind River, 80 miles east of here. The bushworker said he had struck her after he had cast four years.

A beautified earlier in the week-long trial that Miss Rivers died from concussion, partial asphyxiation and bleeding.

Lecuyer was the only witness called by the defence.

BELIEF AND A SMILE

Lecuyer showed signs of relief when the verdict was pronounced at 8:05 Friday night. A slight smile crept over his face.

Earlier, Mr. Justice Aylen in his charge to the jury said the only possible verdicts were guilty of murder, guilty of manslaughter or not guilty.

Following the jury's decision Mr. Justice Aylen said: "It is now for me to comment on the verdict in a formal way."

Lecuyer testified earlier that he and Miss Rivers returned to their shack after a drinking party on New Year's Eve at Blind River hotels.

He said as the girl entered the shack, she tripped, striking her head on the stove door. He said he carried her to bed and then sat down at a table and started taking notes.

Lecuyer said the girl got out of bed and came at him with a knife and then a second time with a hatchet after he wrested the knife from her hand.

"I hit her with my left hand and hit her twice with my right," he said. Later, he found she was dead.

250 Miles of New Highways, Access Roads Planned

PORT WILLIAM (CP) — Hon. Clare Mapledoram, Ontario Minister of lands and forests, said Friday about 250 miles of new highways and access roads in the province are now either under construction or being planned by the Ontario government.

Mr. Mapledoram said in an interview here that a crew is on its way to survey the proposed 95-mile highway linking Atikokan and Fort Frances. He added that construction contracts may be let this Year.

Mr. Mapledoram said the Ontario government has given conditional approval to grant the Ontario Paper Company for 30 miles of road between Hurkett and Whitesand Lake, Geco property in the Manitouwadge area.

This is the first move in clearing a right-of-way into the Manitouwadge townsite, he said. The Ontario Paper Company now charges a toll on the road, 70 miles of which belongs to the province.

Mr. Mapledoram also announced construction of a road from Seagram to Caramat which will provide highway access to more than 100 families.

Propose Return Of 10-cent Fare To Toronto Is.

TORONTO (CP)—A return to a 10-cent fare for Toronto island ferries was proposed Friday.

The proposal was made at a meeting between the city board of control, Toronto Transit Commission officials and island residents. The conference was called to discuss protests over the recent increase in the fare to 20 cents.

Alderman Alan Grossman suggested the city pay about $58,000 a year, the amount the TTC claims it would lose by charging 10 cents instead of 20.

The proposal will be put before the board of control next Wednesday.

It also was announced the Hamilton harbor commission has offered the use of the icebreaker Lady Hamilton for the TTC service to the island.

The offer to rent the Lady Hamilton to the TTC for $225 a day was made in a letter from general manager H. Cormack of the Hamilton commission to F. C. Poole, Toronto island resident.

TTC general manager W. F. Bowdon Duncan promised to consider seriously for the 1955-56 winter season the offer of the icebreaker which can transport 1,400 passengers comfortably.

He said the TTC is under contract this winter to use two ferry boats which it rents from the city of Toronto for $1,200 a day.

Labor Leaders Will Not Oppose Freight Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of Canada's top labor leaders have gone along with farm leaders in agreeing that a case existed against Crow's Nest pass freight rates for export grain moving through the west.

The agreement was reached Friday in the office of the Canadian Farmer-Labor Economic Council, a three-labor co-operating body.

The meeting was attended by Claude Jodoin, president of the Trades and Labor Congress; A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and John Schultz and J. L. Phelps, chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the Interprovincial Farm Trade Council.

Jodoin and Mosher represented 1,800,000 workers in the country.

A few days ago the farm council said the Canadian Pacific Railway had asked for a rate increase of 30 per cent. and in his Nov. 22 railway arbitration decision, Canadian Transport Commissioner Hugh Guthrie allowed the railway 21 per cent.

Columbia indicated the low rates were harmful to the best interests of unions couldn't get all they demanded of the railways, they suffered a decline in employment on the grain rates.

The council said officials also decided to:

1. Commend the government for increasing supplementary unemployment benefits, but also emphasize this is not a desired cure for unemployment.

2. Urge retention of "parity prices" for farm products.

3. Support the principle of providing marketing boards for farm products.

4. Ask the executive to study and recommend action on issues dealing with the drop in farm prices and growing unemployment.

Suggests Truce In Costa Rica; Rebels Beaten

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—Apparently writing off the Costa Rican revolt as hopeless, Nicaragua's President Anastasio Somoza said Friday night the rebels should accept a truce if the San Jose government allows its exiles to return to Costa Rica and promises free elections.

The Nicaraguan chief expressed the views on the fighting in an interview granted after the Costa Rican diplomatic staff announced in San Jose the capture of the last two rebel bases in the northwest tip of the country. The feeling in the Costa Rican capital was that the revolt was virtually over.

Somoza said the rebels appeared "in bad shape" after a difficult situation, with no defence against the fighter planes United States has turned over to (Costa Rican President Jose) Figueres."

The U.S. and four Mustang fighter planes to Costa Rica at the behest of the Organization of American States. The San Jose government asked the OAS to look into the situation, accusing Nicaragua of aiding the rebels. Somoza denied charges. He said an OAS investigating commission has found that the insurgents have received help from outside Costa Rica.

Somoza said he feels the revolutionaries "should accept" a truce if Figueres offers rebels assistance to let the exiles return and promises free elections."

The Nicaraguan president added that any insurgents crossing the Nicaraguan frontier would be disarmed and interned.

Mr. VanTassel in assuming office, thanked the committee for the honor bestowed on him and hoped he would live up to the confidence placed in him. "There is a lot of work to do," said the chairman, "but we will overcome and I know you will all enjoy it."

He asked for the co-operation of all the members. Don Thomas, president of the Quinte Players, appeared before the board requesting a grant to purchase certain equipment to be used for the presentation of the amateur theatre and the request was granted with a vote of $100. The committee previously had assisted the Theatre Guild, when it was formed.

The Recreational Director was given permission to attend the correspondence course set up by department in Toronto, the fee to be paid by the committee. The ten-day course held each fall at the University of Toronto has been transferred to the University of Western, Ontario.

Director was complimented for the budget and the annual report submitted. A meeting of council will be given each report and each item in the budget is fully explained in footnotes. The invitation of Ald. Tice to their annual dinner was accepted and many of the members will attend. Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair . . . and Guarantee It!

Demonstration To Be Held Here

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville Oddfellows Hall, ONLY, January 23.

These private individual demonstrations will be held at the Keele System Hotel on Sunday ONLY, January 23.

HALIFAX, Jan. 7—In an interview here today, Mr. H. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and Director of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists said: "There are 18 different Scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person with average IQ or one little or no skilled cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on bald heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

"Once a person avails themselves of the Keele treatment this application immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: If a man is not completely satisfied with your hair growth after a period of 30 days your money will be returned."

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin or colorless, the Keele treatment can perform wonders.

A complete, private examination is given by a trichologist to determine the cause of the hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATION

This examination is very thorough and highly technical it requires 20 to 30 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary now. Any one for examination the person is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Halifax to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities throughout Canada to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasize. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a rash appears on the head, pimples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR A LIFETIME

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observance of a few simple rules.

HOW'S YOUR HAIR

If it worries you, call Trichologist G. O. Abbott at the New Queen's Hotel in Belleville, Ont., on Sunday ONLY, January 23, 12 noon to 9 p.m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way. (Adv.)

Woman in WMS Work Nearly All Her Life

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Jean Gordon Forbes says she has been in Women's Missionary Society work "for nearly 74 years." Mrs. Forbes is 74 years old.

She explains it thus: Among her first impressions are Presbyterian Church work parties at which the society made clothing for missions in Trinidad. Her mother was a pioneer in the society, now under the wing of the United Church.

Mrs. Forbes, a key figure in society work for 54 years, has held many offices in the organization and was national president for four years.

WROTE SOCIETY'S HISTORY

She has written a history of the society; edited its monthly publication and headed a war-savings drive. Last year she was one of 30 ministers and lay workers of the United Church awarded honorary doctors of law degrees at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B.

Jean Gordon was born Dec. 14, 1880, in the manse at Grand River, Cape Breton Island, where her Scottish-born father, Rev. G. Lawson Gordon, was Presbyterian minister.

The family moved to River John, N.S., and Jean studied at nearby Pictou Academy, then Dalhousie University from which she graduated in 1902. While at Dalhousie, she met theology student G. Ernest Forbes. He was a Presbyterian minister when they married in 1906.

She shared his work in pastorates at New Glasgow and Scotsburn, N.S., and after church union in 1925, at Weston, Ont.

"QUITE BUSY"

In Ontario she served 10 years as vice-president of the Dominion board of missionary societies and was president in 1935-39.

Mrs. Forbes admitted in a recent interview that she has had "quite a busy life."

"Quite busy" includes raising three daughters and one son; twice travelling from Vancouver to Newfoundland visiting many of the society's 200,000 members; supervising mission aid to the Negro in Africa and the West Indies; writing for newspapers and the society magazine and, in 1936, touring mission centres in China, Japan and Korea.

Mr. Forbes died at West in 1939. Mrs. Forbes has lived in Calgary eight work-packed years.

New Mountain Chain is Found In Australia

By L. L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Three members of an Australian Antarctic expedition report that they discovered a 100-mile mountain chain Dec. 29 and that it has distinct mineral possibilities.

R. G. Casey, Australian minister for external affairs and external territories, says the range lies within the Australian Antarctic territory, which covers 2,500,000 square miles.

"The discovery could be one of the most significant yet made in Antarctica," said Mr. Casey. "The mountains are largely free of ice and geologists can work on them more easily than other Antarctic areas."

Robert Dovers, officer in charge of Mawson, Australia's base in the Antarctic, led the party which found the range. His companions were Dr. Robert Summers and Bruce Sitsear, a geologist. The party found the range after a 150-mile journey from Mawson with a dog team and a "weasel," a tracked snow vehicle.

On Dec. 29 they reached the peaks known as "Nonstark." From the peaks they sighted the range. The party estimated that the peaks of the range rose to about 10,000 feet above sea level.

The Australian polar ship Kista Dan has left Melbourne for Mawson. It will pick up the present expedition and land a new expedition for a year's term at the base.

Congregational Meeting

CANNIFTON UNITED CHURCH

On Wednesday evening after a banquet served to over 100 members and adherents of Cannifton United Church by the W. A. and convened by Mrs. W. J. Cole and Mrs. H. Empson, the annual congregational meeting of the church took place.

The Rev. L. Bradley, minister of the charge, presided and the meeting was opened with songs and prayer. Mr. Thorpe gave the meeting a theme for consideration in the year just beginning — "Stop and Meditate."

Reports from the different organizations and groups showed a favorable increase over last year, with a growing Sunday School, and the need of a teenage boys' group to be organized to care for the graduates of the Tyro group.

The trustees report showed much accomplished in 1954 and much proposed for '55, greatest project at present that of "Operation Build." A lively discussion took place and great interest was shown by young and old alike as plans were forward for the repairing and replacing of the church hall, absent many years from the church tower.

Votes of thanks for a year of consecration and service were tendered to the minister, the choir and organist, Mrs. Keller; church board, Mr. Ronald Putman for his many kindnesses to that great working body and the right hand of the church, the Woman's Auxiliary.

Rev. Mr. W. R. Merrick pronounced the benediction.

Indians', Eskimos' Liquor Rights Are Debated

OTTAWA (CP) — The government of Mr. Diefenbaker will soon come to grips with perhaps its most thorny problem—the long-standing question of liquor rights for Indians and Eskimos.

Preliminary discussions Friday at the eighth session of the N.W.T. council showed a split on whether the natives, who make up two-thirds of the population, should have the same liquor rights as white persons.

Of the seven expressing an opinion, four favored permitting the natives to buy liquor.

One elected member of the council, 69-year-old Frank Carmichael of Aklavik, a northern trapper for 33 years, questioned the legal right of the federal government to deny liquor rights to the 7,000 Eskimos in the north.

The 4,000 Indians among the 16,000 persons in the territories are forbidden to buy liquor under the federal Indian Act but Mr. Carmichael said he could find no comparable federal statute regarding Eskimos.

SEEKS REMOVAL

He indicated he will fight for removal of the restriction on Eskimo liquor purchases—which he said was contained in N.W.T. liquor laws at the request of federal authorities.

Another elected council member, John Parker, Yellowknife lawyer, gave notice he will propose a resolution that the question of liquor rights for Indians be put squarely before the federal cabinet. He said he wants Indians and Eskimos to enjoy the same rights as white persons in the north.

The council will take up the matter again Monday.

The Indian affairs branch, in a letter read to council, said it was felt the time had not yet come when N.W.T. Indians could be given the right to buy liquor.

50 Fishermen Taken Off Ice At Lake Simcoe

SUTTON, Ont. (CP) — Between 35 and 50 ice fishermen were rescued Friday after a 600-mile crack opened in Lake Simcoe ice and left them stranded on a huge floe.

Boats were used by rescuers. Most of the stopped men managed to reach safety over plank bridges. Three automobiles were abandoned on the ice.

Residents of the area said the crack was at least 18 miles long.

William Cooper, 50, of Jackson's Point, said that from his house overlooking the lake he saw the crack appear.

"I went down to the shore and saw the gap about two feet wide and gradually spreading. I ran to get some long planks and bridged the crack. About a dozen men were brought to safety across the planks."

Others were brought off later in boats.

The large attendance came away much edified by the information given by Miss Fensome.

Duets were rendered by Rev. and Mrs. P. L. Chase of Frankford, and by Mrs. H. P. O. Miller and Mrs. Russell Wells, of Marmora.

Store Winter Ice To Have Water During Summer

OTTAWA (CP)—Imagine chopping winter ice and storing it so that you can have drinking and laundry water in summer.

To Mrs. J. W. Goodall that is just one of the hardships of living in the north. But life in the rugged outposts can also have its pleasantries—ice parties and flourishing summer gardens.

The weeny jockey is the wife of a Northwest Territories councillor from Fort Simpson, an island at the junction of the Mackenzie and Liard rivers, about 800 miles north of Edmonton.

She has been there for the last 27 years, and has come north only four times in that period. She is in Ottawa with her husband, who is attending the annual council meeting.

ROUGH AT FIRST

Mrs. Goodall is a native of Nova Scotia who moved to Edmonton as a young girl to teach school in the outlying area. She married a school official and together they moved north.

When she first went to Fort Simpson, there were only eight white women there. Now there are 20 "and sometimes we have very nice tea parties together," she said.

Winter temperatures in the community of some 250 persons dropped in some years to 67° below.

Mrs. Goodall, who raised three children, found the housework arduous. She had no running water and no electricity. The river was muddy in the spring, so they had to chop and store water ice to be melted in the spring and summer to get clear water.

The Goodalls originally tried their hand at fur trade but that didn't work out. They switched to clearing government land and found the work too difficult. They finally found something more suitable—running a small store and the government post office.

Attempted Fraud Charge Laid

ORILLIA (CP) —Police Friday laid a charge of attempted fraud against James Norman Woodstock, 24, of Toronto, who allegedly tried to pass a bad cheque at a service station Thursday night.

Service station operator Dave Totten became suspicious when he noticed that Woodstock's cheque was the same as one cashed earlier by Woodstock's wife. He began to question the man who then fled.

Totten gave chase and was joined by Bill Mackie and Jerry Beisjac. The three caught Woodstock and held him until police arrived.

Police said the man may be part of a cheque-forging gang operating in southern Ontario. The ring apparently has a cheque-writing machine. They present their cheques, police said, make a small purchase and take the rest of the money in cash.

Sailors Poisoned At Drinking Party Slowly Recovering

Nurses and Doctors Pump Alkaline Solution into Veins

HALIFAX (CP)—Fourteen of 47 sailors poisoned in a shipboard drinking spree Friday aboard an aircraft carrier Magnificent fought for their lives today as the navy opened its investigation into the affair.

The remaining 33 sailors are still in hospital but have been taken off the seriously ill list.

Teams of naval doctors and nurses pumped a lifesaving alkaline solution into the veins of the 14 in a non-stop battle to combat the methyl alcohol consumed in a surreptitious drinking bout.

Such poisoning could cause death or blindness but it was learned that no signs of blindness had occurred during the first 48 hours, considered the most critical period. But it was stressed it was still too early to say if all would survive.

OFFICERS DECEIVED

A preliminary probe found the potent cocktails containing dehydrating-anaesthetic fluid were distributed through three of four messes to avoid detection in the frequent rounds of officers.

Sunday night the navy said the men were showing some improvement but it was "still too early to say more."

Today their condition was described as "unchanged."

The mixture that caused the poisoning was reported a combination of aircraft cider, duplicating machine fluid, ginger ale and shaving lotion.

START PROBE TODAY

Details were scarce pending an investigation today by officers of the Magnificent.

The board of inquiry opened today with Cmdr. Victor Wilgress of Ottawa, air officer aboard the carrier, as chairman, and Lt.-Cmdr. J. M. Paveraa and Lieut. Richard Ratcliffe, both of Halifax, as members.

The party is believed to have started about 10 p.m. Friday night but it was not known whether it was general throughout the ship or confined to one mess. The names said many of the sailors did not know what they were drinking.

Two petty officers were in on the spree, but the other 45 were lower ratings.

It was reported some of the men had leaves cancelled and were confined to ship.

ALKALI DEPLETED

All sailors were kept Friday night and early Saturday. After the first cases came to attention Saturday morning an appeal was broadcast over radio and followed by late afternoon all the imbibers were receiving medical attention.

Doctors say they are suffering from a condition known as "acidosis," a depletion of alkali in the nerves in blood cells and tissues.

The alkali solution, sodium bicarbonate, pouring into their veins is supposed to correct the balance. Earlier it was reported erroneously that acids, not alkalis, were being used in the treatment.

The solution is not rare, but the unusual demand soon exhausted supplies in Halifax. Some was rushed in from nearby Dartmouth in an emergency call over the nearly-completed Angus L. Macdonald bridge.

A naval spokesman said Sunday night several passengers had to give up their seats for the excess baggage load. "I guess they were pretty angry because they didn't know what was going on," he said. "But if the stuff hadn't come through the boys wouldn't be doing as well as they are now."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: There is a variety of fairly weather across Ontario today with some cloudiness, some clear skies and occasional snowflurries. Where the cold Arctic air is blowing inland from the open waters of the southern lakes, freezing snowsqualls and some drifting are reported. The weather pattern will show little change Tuesday, except that winds will be lighter, and local onshore snowsqualls will diminish.

Four persons were drowned, four died in highway accidents, two were burned to death, one died in a mine accident and one in a fall.

At Windsor, Robert Baillargeon, 25, of Belle River, died when the car in which he was riding crashed into a Hydro pole. Stephen Tutle, 36, of R.R. 2 Hutchinsonville, died in Essex when his car skidded off the road and overturned.

Ben Hargrett, 22, of Olden, Sask., was killed in an underground accident at Remhi mines, 60 miles west of Chapleau, Ont., and Arthur Sowers, 32, died in St. Mary's following a fall downstairs.

Move to Guard Quemoy Would Surprise Britain

LONDON (Reuters) —British official sources said here today they would be "surprised" if the United States were to guarantee the Chinese Nationalist held Quemoy and Matsu islands within 15 miles of the China coast.

The statement of the American 7th Fleet's protection to Quemoy and Matsu would still further relax tension in the Formosa Straits, China's agreeing to a cease-fire in the Formosan area, the sources said.

They said Britain will support any move in the Security Council to bring about an end of the fighting in the Formosa Straits. Her aim in doing so would be to make it a step towards a settlement limiting the Nationalists to Formosa and the Pescadores.

TWO BARNS DESTROYED

Some Kind of Record Established By RCAF Airman Playing Piano

NORTH BAY (CP)—The music stopped for the first time in 24 hours and the pencil pianist was carried out on a stretcher.

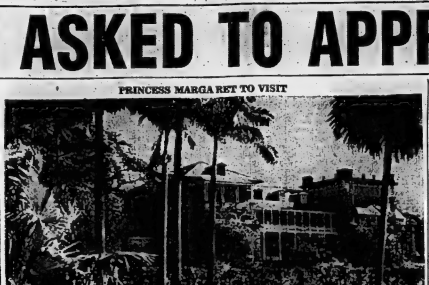
Flanged but smiling Guy Bastien, 19, an RCAF aircraftsman, had just set what he claims is a marathon world record at the keyboard.

The Buckingham, Que., marathoner was taken by ambulance to the RCAF base hospital for a check-up after he had been playing since 5:30 p.m. Saturday 24 hours and five seconds after he started.

Doggedly thumping out classical and pop tunes and some of his own compositions, Bastien broke the previous record of 21 hours, 15 minutes and 31 seconds which was set two months ago by an acquaintance, Andre Mathieu of Montreal.

At hospital Bastien was treated for exhaustion, dehydration and fatigue.

During his 24 hours on a cushioned piano stool, Bastien downed a quart of milk, two tins of grapefruit juice, spoonfuls of corn syrup, munched a chocolate bar and chewed gum.



He had slept for 17 hours before walking onto the stage of the base movie theatre dressed in white shirt, bow tie, white shoes and black sash.

Bastien, who holds a degree in music from Ottawa University and played second violin for the Ottawa symphony, said he got the idea from Chopsticks to Tchaikowsky.

At one point in the marathon, which gradually attracted some 400 fellow air force men and North Bay residents, Bastien said with determination:

"I said I was going to make it and I am."

Early Sunday he slowed down and started playing simple numbers with one hand.

Couple May Be Deported Due To Wife's Illness

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Stanley (Stanislaus) Wojtecki, 32, and his wife Krystina, residents of St. Thomas since coming to Canada from England in 1952, have been notified that proceedings are being taken to have them deported, it was reported here Sunday night.

The deportation proceedings are based on Mrs. Wojtecki's failure to disclose to immigration officials in England that she had been treated for a nervous breakdown in England. This came to light here recently when Mrs. Wojtecki suffered a minor breakdown and was treated at the Ontario Hospital in St. Thomas.

Mr. Wojtecki escaped from Poland during the Second World War and went to England where he was a fighter pilot with the Royal Air Force. His wife, who had been in a concentration camp in Siberia, came out of Russia and also escaped to England.

Father Jerome, who speaks English fairly fairly, said she didn't know what was asked by immigration officials about a mental breakdown in England and if she was she failed to understand the question.

A deputation to see Immigration Minister Pickersgill in Ottawa to halt deportation proceedings is being led by the St. Thomas Canadian legion branch, former mayor Howard Currah, a neighbor, and Fritz Burgess, chairman of the Canadian Legion Dominion council.

PAISLEY (CP)—A small plane equipped with skis made a forced landing in a farmer's field near here Sunday when caught in a snow storm. No one was hurt.

Pilot George Smith and a passenger, Brian Pittpatrick, both of Toronto, landed near this town 8 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

They were enroute from Toronto to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when forced down.

Universities May Have to Limit Enrolment Says U of T Head

TORONTO (CP) — Increasing numbers of applications may bring about university enrolment limits, says Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto.

He said in his annual report released Sunday night, that if universities become so large that staffs are smothered by weight of numbers, educational efforts are impaired. Even if staff numbers were increased, a teaching unit which had become too large lost its community of purpose.

"We must be aware of the danger of academic elephantiasis. The cultural heritage does not lend itself to assembly line transmission."

Dr. Smith suggested universities should experiment with objective aptitude tests similar to those used in the United States to provide an index of a student's capacity for advanced work.

Administered properly, it could aid in discovering potential scholars who do not now pursue their education to the full extent of their ability, he said. It would also strengthen education if used in appeals for more and better scholarships for students who have attained the standard to go to college but cannot afford to go to college.

"At present, too many university students fail in their courses," he said. "It does appear that the departmental examinations are not predicting adequately a student's capacity for further academic work and consequently we have been raised in some universities but the situation has not been thereby alleviated."

The report said:

That many failures among fresh men engineers are due to the inability of the student to cope with subjects basic to engineering such as mathematics and science; and that many of them could be better trained in post-secondary schools.

That h.s.m.a.s.t.i.c.s and social sciences still lag far behind the physical and natural sciences in financial support; that the situation is nation-wide and will have an adverse effect the future of higher education unless it is corrected.

That a comprehensive and goordinated program of scholarships and bursaries is needed to break down economic barriers against university education.

That it has become an acute problem to recruit the best teachers. Industry, government and research centres are attracting the trained men and women away from the university because they are paid more than the university can afford.

The firm pleaded guilty at a hearing last week.

Standard Paving is the third company to be fined over contract irregularities.

Chou Rejects Cease-Fire With Chiang

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai today rejected a cease-fire with Nationalist China and rejected his government's determination to "liberate" Formosa.

Chou's statement was broadcast by Peiping radio in a special broadcast just as President Eisenhower asked Congress for authority to use U.S. armed forces if necessary to assure the security of Formosa and the Pescadores. Eisenhower also suggested United Nation action for a cease-fire.

Chou said Communist China "absolutely cannot agree to a cease-fire in the present conflict with the Chinese Nationalists.

"The government of the Peoples Republic of China has repeatedly said in solemn terms declared to the world: the Chinese people are determined to liberate their own territory of Taiwan (Formosa)," he said.

Total Death Toll May Rise to 18 In Train Wreck

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England (AP)—Rescue workers dug through the twisted wreckage of the York-to-Bristol express today for more possible victims of the 60-mile-hour derailment which killed at least 16 persons Sunday and injured 50.

Police said more bodies, believed to be still in the wreckage, would be found in the badly damaged station, might raise the death toll to 18.

It was Britain's first major rail crash since August, 1952, and the worst since Oct. 8, 1952, when 112 persons died in a three-train pileup in north London.

In Sunday's crash, the train hurtled off the track just as it was passing the Sutton Coldfield station. The engine turned upside down, its coaches telescoped into each other and three of the four coaches were smashed to bits at the station building, which is not open on Sunday.

There was no immediate explanation of what caused the wreck.

The express, which was hauled by two railroad workers who leaped from the wrecked train and ran down the track to set a signal against another oncoming express. The signal speeding train pulled up 200 yards short of the wreckage.

Rescuers, some of them amputated the leg of a trapped woman so she could be taken out.

HYDRO'S CHIEF ENGINEER IS NAMED CHAIRMAN

Richard L. Hearn Succeeds Saunders

TORONTO (CP) — Richard L. Hearn, who has worked for the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario for 42 years, today became its chairman. He succeeds Robert H. Saunders, who died eight days ago in London of injuries received in a plane crash.

Premier Frost, announcing the appointment, said Dr. Hearn, 64, agreed to forego plans to retire from his Hydro work this year to take on the appointment in recognition of an obligation created by Mr. Saunders' death.

For eight years, Dr. Hearn has been Hydro's general manager and chief engineer. He gives up these jobs to take over as chairman of the three-man commission. Other members are Hon. George Challies, minister without portfolio in the Ontario cabinet, and W. Ross Strike of Bowmanville, representative of Municipal Electric Associations.

Dr. Hearn, a native of Toronto, joined Hydro shortly after he graduated in engineering from the University of Toronto in 1913. He is a doctor of engineering.

The new chairman, Mr. Frost said, has a combined high administrative capacities with the vision and comprehensive understanding of the future.

Dr. Hearn played a leading role in the negotiations of treaties with the United States on power development in the Niagara Falls and on the St. Lawrence. He is a director of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, a crown company controlling all atomic research development in Canada.

He directed the development of atomic power stations on the Ottawa and Windsor waterfronts.

The appointment was announced by the premier following a meeting of the cabinet and a meeting with the hydro commission.

First Refugees Leave Tachens

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — First civilian refugees from the besieged Tachen Islands, about 215 children including many orphans, are due to arrive in Keelung, Formosa, Tuesday.

The evacuation was arranged through Madame Chiang Kai-shek. There are 15,000 persons on the U. S. 7th Fleet units were involved in the evacuation.

Queen Takes Two Children On First Hunt

HARPLEY, England (AP) — Queen Elizabeth took her two children, Charles and Anne, on their first hunt, on their first fox hunt today.

Prince Charles, 6, and Princess Anne, 4, wore pink hunt breeches and rode a few yards. Laughing and shouting on their ponies, Charles blew hard on a hunting horn but failed to produce a note.

The children then followed the hunt of the West Norfolk foxhounds in a station wagon.

Eisenhower Wants Right To Move Chiang's Forces

U.S. 7th Fleet Stands Ready To Evacuate Tachen Forces

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Vice-Admiral Alfred M. Pride today expressed confidence his U.S. 7th Fleet could cope with any eventuality if called upon to evacuate Chinese Nationalist forces from the Tachen islands, apparent target of Red conquest.

He indicated that the fleet—standing "at the ready" for the evacuation but not under orders—might move the large carriers, the Essex, Yorktown, Kearsarge and Wasp.

The admiral, in a press conference aboard the flagship the cruiser Helena at Keelung, said a fifth carrier, the Princeton, also was assigned to the 7th Fleet but "not on this beat."

Pride said President Eisenhower was going to Congress for approval of American naval air support for the evacuation of the Tachens because "it would be a very grave risk and a very serious matter of policy."

He added that he did not know whether there be any Communist intervention.

"Only the Communists know," he said.

WOULD ASSIST

Pride said the Nationalist navy would "most decidedly" assist in evacuation of the Tachens, 200 miles north of Formosa.

The admiral expected to sail from Keelung this morning but his orders had not been received and he would be there about two days longer.

He said the 7th Fleet would be be in a position to take the Nationalists from Keelung "within a very few days" of receiving orders from Washington.

The Nationalists agreed, apparently with reluctance, to withdraw troops from the Tachens if President Eisenhower orders the fleet to help in the operation, according to sources informed of details of Pride's conferences here with Chiang.

Indications here are that if President Eisenhower orders the fleet to aid in evacuating the Tachens the operation will be executed with maximum speed. It is understood that the fleet would intervene if the Reds should try to take the Tachens before they are evacuated, and that it would go into action in a big way if the Communists should attack an evacuation after it begins.

Admits Defeat After Nine-Month Fight to Keep Modern Toilets

CHISELHURST, England (Reuters)—David Millwood today admitted defeat, at least for the present, in a nine-month fight to keep modern flush toilets he had installed in his home.

The local water board had ordered him to remove the valve-operated toilets because by day or have-his water supply cut off.

An inspector today determined that Millwood had dismantled the valves of the system and had returned to the old-fashioned cistern method of flushing.

The board contended the modern toilets wasted water.

Millwood, in the battle, Millwood had argued that since Buckingham Palace had the modern flush toilets, he felt he had a right to them.

He said he was forced to capitulate because "one of my children is ill and cannot use a chair."

However, he refused to promise that he planes would be taken off his campaign.

The modern toilets flush almost silently by means of a water pipe valve. These have been available in Britain only since 1947 although they have been the accepted equipment in Canada for 20 years or more.

The standard fixture in British homes is the full-cistern-type of toilet flushed by a chain.

'Bow to Your New Happiness'—Chinese Observe New Year's Today

If you could take a fast boat to China today and land practically anywhere in this vast land, bowing millions of people would be impressed with your own importance.

Should you meet any of your elderly Chinese friends, you would be greeted by clasped hands and a courtly bow from the waist with the Chinese spoken equivalent of "I bow to your new happiness."

You should not, however, rush to the nearest telegraph office or telephone and query home if you had become a new papa while away or that sweepstake's ticket you had had drawn the winner. Nothing of the kind.

The courteous gesture with which you were honored is merely the Chinese way of wishing you "A happy New Year."

In fact it is the typical Chinese greeting for events of major importance such as weddings, birthdays, Christmas and even, on the corpse of a departed friend at the funeral.

For today, January 24, is New Year's Day in China. It is the first day of the Chinese year 4 of the new Nationalist calendar which started following the revolution headed by Sun Yat-Sen in 1911.

The sedate Chinese do not greet the New Year after the manner of Occidentals with a cacophonous roar of celebration the night previous.

QUIET OBSERVANCE

Instead they observe the first day of the year quietly with emphasis on feasting. In the larger centres there are parades of decades, fireworks and dances, but none approach the boisterousness of the western idea of ushering in the New Year.

Older Chinese used to pay the year's debts on New Year's Day. The custom is still in vogue in some parts of China but restricted mainly to minor obligations, because gone are the days of the Chinese spokesmen.

Chinese parents observe the day emphasizing to their children the importance of paying respect to their elders.

The youngsters bow solemnly and utter the conventional greeting. They in turn are greeted and presented with two coins wrapped in a piece of red paper, symbolically, red is supposed to bring good luck.

The two coins are given because it is an ancient Chinese belief that all good things come in pairs. Thus children are supposed to be a good omen for the future happiness of the parents.

Even the New Year's dinners come in pairs. A family invites its friends to a repast which usually consists of nine dishes. Later in the day the party assembles at another home where the second banquet is held.

CHICKEN MAIN DISH

Chicken is the main Chinese dish, taking the place of western turkey, duck or goose. The chickens are cooked with their heads "on." A Chinese proverb from an old Chinese philosophy that "everyone should keep his face on New Year's Day," is also observed on other Chinese occasions that call for special banquets.

Nor do the Chinese forget their ancestors on the occasion of New Year's Day.

A family will visit the temple where a idol or statue of the ancestor done in wood or bronze is placed in a prominent spot. Food is placed on an altar in front of the statue and the family retires to feast.

The food is placed there so that the spirit of the departed ancestor can join in the New Year's Day festivities.

The Chinese are naturally a superstitious people. On New Year's Day nothing that might be done. People must not walk under ladders nor indulge in those actions that their superstitious western counterparts shun every day of the old moon.

Then, too, these descendants of ancient Cathay have something in common with the Occident. Many have their own version of the English "waits" and Canadian carol singers. The neighbors' houses on Christmas eve and sing carols.

On New Year's Day in China, groups of these singers and actors visit neighborhood homes where they perform in a house-to-house tour. Their usual reward is a few small coins.

According to the Belleville Chinese, New Year's Day observations in Red China will be vastly different from the ancient customs, because the doctrine is changed.

Two young Chinese students now resident in the city, who escaped from Communist-dominated China and who must remain anonymous, stated that they were forced to attend May Day parades in their schools. All students of 16 years and over were compelled to do this. Those of 18 years and upwards are forced to broadcast from megaphones with many being compelled to join the Party under conditions resembling life the old British "press gang."

The old Chinese educational methods have been destroyed, one of these students added: He added: then most vicious way to subjugate a nation is to destroy its educational system.

In Belleville some forty members of the Chinese community here are observing New Year number 44 today. A quiet dinner is being attended with the traditional chicken with "heads on" the main dish. Men, women and children will enjoy the repast at a communal table. There will be no ancestral observances.

However, in Toronto, Montreal and other large centres there will be typical Chinese celebrations with banquets, fireworks and dragon parades.

"We bow to your new happiness."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices surged ahead in heavy morning trade on the stock market today, but light profit-taking set in at early afternoon.

Low-priced mines churned in the fastest morning dealings in almost two years. Up to 1 p. m. EST trading totalled 1,798,000 shares, heaviest since Feb. 23, 1953, when 6,596,000 were traded in the same period.

The ticker tape was behind in reporting floor sales for the 11th straight session. At times it was 10 minutes late.

Many mines hit 1954-55 highs in the first hour but almost all eased later. Gunnar touched $13.37, easing later to $13 on 17,000 share turnover up to 1 p. m. and the stock's average climbed 35 cents to $5.70. Also strong were O'Brien Coulee which hit $1.05, Consolidated Denison, Campbell Chibougamau, Headway, Kayrand, New Marion, Newconrich and New Rouyn.

Barnat touched $2.10 among golds, easing later to $1.95.

Papers, steels and refining oils led industrial strength but there were a few losses scattered through all groups. Crown Trust and Huron and Erie were ahead $3 at 1 p. m. and Abitibi bowed to 1954-55 high. Canada Cement and Crown Zellerbach eased.

Senior base metal and western oil changes were mostly small.

Canada Does Not Depend Upon Outside Capital

NEW YORK (CP)—James Muir, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today that, contrary to popular impression, Canada does not depend on a continuing large inflow of outside capital to sustain expansion of her economy.

In an address to members of the Congressional Gas Association Inc., Mr. Muir said, "in most of the post-war years, saving within Canada has been sufficient to finance Canadian expansion and development."

Mr. Muir's remarks were contained in the text of a speech issued to the press in advance of delivery.

Canadians welcome the inflow of American capital, Mr. Muir said, but they accept its consequences with mixed feelings. He said the present premium on the Canadian dolar resulting from the inflow of capital has handicapped Canadian exporters.

'Ba-a-ad Boy' Budgie Back Home Again

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brasseur said Saturday Tippy, their pet budgie bird, talked his way home.

They said he flew away last Monday and they gave him up for lost.

However, as they discovered later, Tippy went to an apartment a few blocks away and stayed there. The occupants of the apartment next arrived in Canada, speak little English.

Friday night the apartment-dwellers had guests who know the language. The hosts showed off the bird and it obliged by chanting:

"My name is Tippy Brasseur and I live at 859 Davenport road, LA-2271."

The guests called the telephone number and the Brasseurs came right over. Home again, the unabashed budgie today talked about an occasion last summer when he vanished from his owner's summer cottage. He chirped:

"I'm a ba-a-ad boy. I got lost in the bush one day."

Agricultural Centre Building Highlights Fair Board's Year

PICTON — Highlight of the year was the erection of $25,000 Agricultural Centre building on the Fair Grounds, said President Harold E. Spencer at the annual meeting of Prince Edward Agricultural Society, sponsors of the County Fair at Picton, on Saturday. "This building has been paid for but the task of completing the interior and providing necessary services will be the society in 1955. The building will solve many problems arising from lack of space at fair time as well as providing a centre for recreation and a centre for agriculture and other meetings."

Mr. Spencer reported that government inspectors had highly praised the building and the manner in which the project was promoted. This building has been erected entirely by the society with the aid of a few donations and entirely without grants from municipalities.

Referring to other improvements, Mr. Spencer thanked the County Council and other who done under their direction.

Attendance, exhibits and wa were good last year, the president recalled, adding: "the fair is not perfect, but is greatly improved and with greater accommodation provided by the new building, should improve still further."

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

Mr. Spencer opened the meeting with a tribute to a former president, E. B. Purtelle; honorary president W. J. Webster and director Tom Faragher, who have passed on during the year. A minute of silence was observed in memory of these former members of the Society who made a lasting contribution to its growth.

Directors voted in favor of a three-day fair, believing four days too many for sustained interest. Fair dates are Thursday, Friday, Saturday, August 25, 26, 27. These are to be confirmed at Central Ontario Fairs Association convention in the Kingsway Theatre, Belleville, Friday, January 28. Delegates are the president, secretary, C. Lockyer and all others who care attend.

BUS TO CONVENTION

It was decided to charter a bus to attend the Ontario Fairs Association in Toronto on Wednesday, February 2. Directors, representatives of service clubs, and others are to be invited. Stop will be made at Whitby to visit the new Arena there, to give local persons interested in an arena here an idea of what the Agricultural Centre here, when completed, will be. Willis Sills gave a description of the Whitby arena.

FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Secretary-treasurer Phil Dodds reported receipts of $29,830.88, and expenditure of $48,715.49. With receipts of grants for capital expenditures, the Society has a balance of $3,544.18 on hand. Other main grants for the same purpose included $2530 from the Kiwanis Club and $1000 from J. Milton Cork.

The treasurer reported $4,801.55 paid out in prize money, 5,979 entries; 145 adult exhibitors, plus children and club members. Admissions at the fair totalled $4,813, and grandstand receipts, $3,825, midway paid $1436 to Society. $838 was spent on 4-H Club work, the society sponsoring seven clubs, assisted in co-operation with other groups.

It was decided on suggestion of D. O. Reynolds, who presided for election of officers, to hold a banquet in the spring.

The society also decided to hold a draw for a car in order to raise funds.

Creighton Lockyer voiced appreciation to the retiring president, secretary and other officers for their work.

Growth of Socialist Movement Outlined by C.H. Millard at Rally

Charles H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America, was the guest speaker, Friday night at a West Hastings Riding C.C.F. rally and banquet held at the Gilbert Hotel in Trenton.

Mr. Millard, who is also C.C.F. provincial candidate for the riding of York West, prefaced his remarks by saying that "We should be celebrating the recent democratic socialist victory in Jamaica. Not only was it a victory for Wellington Manley and his People's National Party but a great victory for democracy in the whole of the Caribbean area. It is less than 300 years ago since the natives were taken there as slaves to work the sugar plantations."

The world had come a long way from then he said and during the time a little over 150 years ago when women and young children were used to haul coal in the coal mines of Great Britain.

Mr. Millard enlarged on the growth of the socialist movement in the different countries of the world. He mentioned that Ernest Bevin, then British foreign secretary, had told at a C.C.L. convention in Ottawa how the trade unionists used to meet in their home section meetings in Britain in the old days and pass resolutions about national health plans without much hope of them ever being carried out. It gave him the greatest satisfaction to see their fulfilment.

The speaker said that when joining the C.C.F. movement they were joining an important movement, the movement in Canada is young but is based on the same principles that have brought success in other countries. The C.C.F. government in Saskatchewan has increased the number of hospital beds, had installed a fine hospitalization plan and a cheap automobile insurance plan.

He said that the labor movement had got going in great strides since the formation of the C.C.F. and would continue-to go ahead. Today there is a great fear of unemployment in Canada but he did not believe that the Conservative government was callous to the situation, but rather that they were impotent and had no idea how to cure it.

Mr. Millard forecast that in two or three years the labor bodies in Canada would unite because the rank and file of the unions wanted it and will insist on it. When that came about the leadership would be compelled to adopt political action as presently supported by the C.C.F.

He said that there was no democratic alternative to the old political parties except democratic socialism. Great Britain has proved it and it was interesting to note that there was not a single Communist sitting in the British House of Commons.

He advised the audience not to discount their contribution and not to take the attitude "What can I do?" He felt confident that the C.C.F. will form the official opposition after the next provincial election if not the government and stated that it was not the people who voted Conservative or Liberal last time who defeated the C.C.F. but rather the people who stayed at home.

Bill Mundrey of Belleville, who is the C.C.F. candidate for West Hastings outlined the progress in the plans for his campaign.

A WORD FOR THE WISE

H. P. Cavers, Liberal member of parliament for Lincoln, would limit private members' speeches to 20 minutes, because "a member should be able to make his thoughts clear" in that length of time.

That depends.

Some members of parliament, from their Hansard records, might be considered to have few if any thoughts at all. It is quite likely that these gentlemen could express themselves adequately in a few minutes. To them a 20-minute time limit is an invitation to loquacity.

There are other men, so filled with ideas and information on certain subjects that they become veritable treasure troves of useful information and opinion. For them a 20-minute time limit would a scandalous waste of time for all other members who, as long as these scholars discoursed, would be spending their time profitably. A well-informed man discussing his favorite subject in an intelligent fashion is one of the best laboring-saving—devices imaginable.

It is perfectly true that some of the greatest addresses in history have been among the briefest. But the business of parliament is the business of the country and not oratory. Marshalling one's facts and presenting a succinct presentation should be obligatory. Such presentations, no matter how clever and concise, could conceivably need a delivery time of several hours on major subjects.

A time limit must be imposed, of course, and no time limit can be perfect. However, any further limitation on the time available for speaking to private members is likely to end parliamentary debate once and for all.

The increasing complexity of government, the tendency to refer anything but motions of praise and confidence to committees for special report, and the almost overwhelming certainty of any government bill being passed have tended to sap the initiative of private members who might not wish to accept a personal opinion into the esteemed" parliamentary opinion. With the possible exception of Jean Francois Pouliot (L. Temiscouata) there appears to be no one with either the desire or wit to speak his mind on any subject other that had settled on pronouncements in parliament and discuss subjects with elan.

The noble art of conversation is in general decline in the English-speaking world. The Houses of Parliament of the western nations should be shrines for the protection and ennobling of the spoken word. Time limits on private members' speeches are the quietus of species, would tend to drown what little talk still exists.

Another, and greater danger, is that such a time limit would almost insure an uninterrupted flow of the sonorous pronouncements that characterize our cabinet and committee government. There is a place for individuals in government and a rather desperate need for individuals who can talk well, and lengthily if necessary.

"I, WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, GENT"

If he were to listen to his critics, (which the circulation department works overtime to make legion), a newspaperman's life would not be a happy one.

One of his principal faults is the choice of language. If he strives for purity and dignity, the journalist is in danger of being scorned as a highbrow by his readers and hidden in the depths of a dictionary when the published surveys the staff like a man looking for a new salary adjustments. If he goes colloquial, the newsman is accused of sloppy writing and is overlooked when pay envelopes are tabbed.

If he tries to solve this dilemma, the newspaperman is faced with an additional woe. It is sometimes difficult to distinguish between what is old and tried and tested and what is new and fresh and different.

William Shakespeare and the Royal Trust Company provide us with the most recent example of this fact. The Trust, in a full-page advertisement which included the opening sentences of Shakespeare's will. The Bard of Avon wrote: "I, William Shakespeare, of Stratford upon Avon in the County of Warr, gent." Gent, indeed! And here we thought that "gent" was either slang or a contraction of gentleman, with the period dropped by the lazy writer.

A LIVE FISH STORY

All hail Arne Joeker!

He has solved two of the vacationist's major problems —what to do about the goldfish in the parlor that insist on feeding during holiday time and what to do about the bass in the lake that is just as stubborn about fasting during this same fortnight.

Like most great inventions, this was discovered by accident. Mr. Joeker is a fishery expert who was busily discovering a method of expanding Denmark's export markets. He took five plaice, injected two types of narcotics into their quick-froze them. Forty-eight days later when he thawed the blocks of ice into which they had been locked he found them alive and well.

This, says, Mr. Joeker, will enable Denmark to keep fish alive for years and to export live frozen fish to any part of the world.

This, we suggest, will enable the Canadian who is camp bound to give the goldfish in the parlor a couple of shots and place them in the refrigerator with one arm, while the other arm extracts the block of ice enclosing the burly bass which, when thawed out at the appropriate moment, will provide adequate evidence of a successful holiday.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY

This week seventy-seven years old!	Said the Master: "This your care,
Here's their motto briefly told:	One another's burdens share."
"Not for self; for others live."	Faithful all at every post.
Better counsel none can give.	That they do from coast to coast.
Round the world their aid is known;	Friendly girls, with tender grace,
Friends to those who live alone;	Making earth a happier place.
Unto all they find in need	This the sum of their careers:
Doors of the gentle deed.	Seventy-seven unselfish years.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NO!

A friend mine of many years once gave me a printed motto. On it was the single word—No. He said: "Tack it on your office wall. It will save you much in the end, and be the means of increasing your strength of character." I didn't hang it up as suggested but the idea has stayed with me all these years.

I am of the opinion that it is easier, as a rule, to say Yes rather than No. No may imply a slight on our part or a privation. It comes in as a friend and counselor so often to ward us away from what may prove to be evil, or a bad investment. I have found no to be a very useful and profitable word to hang upon the walls of the mind.

We have drunkards, thieves who break into our homes, and those who try to get us into some game that is considered because they never learned to say No. A quick and decisive No travels a long way! We can say many things people ask us to do that we ought not to do, simply because we haven't the courage right on the dot, to say No!

"There are times when the course of our life may depend upon whether we say Yes or No. Saying no to a friend, for example, when you would be the word desired, may cause disappointment, but it is almost sure to turn out to be the best decision. I am certain that many a No saved me from trouble and helped to give me added spine strength! Walt Mason, the beloved poet who wrote unique verse in rhymed prose, once wrote about a man who was a big drinker and could "drink the old red booze, or let the stuff alone." Only he did he never use that he could let it alone.

There is nothing weak about deciding to say No when you feel it is the decision that your conscience has dictated. There are times when one's conscience, however, has nothing to do with saying Yes or No. Sometimes it's Love that slyly steps up and says Yes for us or one of those two words—the right one being the one you want you to be said!

Should Children Run Country?

(Maclean's Magazine)

After a month of deep reflection, the editors of Maclean's are agreed that the greatest national disaster of 1954 was Roger Bloodbank, birch dioback in Quebec or the spruce budworm in New Brunswick. Formidable though they were, none of these catastrophes carried half so dismal portent as the feud between Roger H. Blank and the CBC.

Roger H. Blank is a name we made up, but in all other respects what is set forth in the accompanying graph is the gospel truth. On the Thursday before Christmas, the man we have designated as Roger H. Blank invited eleven neighborhood children to a small Christmas party in his home in Winnipeg. Formidable though they were, none of these catastrophes carried half so dismal portent as the feud between Roger H. Blank and the CBC.

Roger H. Blank's name we made up, but in all other respects what is set forth in the accompanying graph is the gospel truth. On the Thursday before Christmas, the man we have designated as Roger H. Blank invited eleven neighborhood children to a small Christmas party in his home in Winnipeg. The children, ranged from four to seven years. They were watching television when a program from the conference came on and three writers whose ages ranged from thirty-five to forty-one years began discussing Santa Claus with a physchiatrist whose age was not given. The psychiatrist said there was no Santa Claus and at this point Roger H. Blank, whose age we have been unable to ascertain, switched off the set before the end of his television set "two of the little fellows began to cry." The little girl was only one among several hundred television viewers who contacted Winnipeg to say that they failed its owners, the tax-paying citizens of Winnipeg, Manitoba and Ottawa the same program created such an outcry from the parents of children of all ages that it made front-page headlines.

We are under no illusions in nominating this as the most lamentable happening of the Christmas month. For it was caused by no mere physical accident but by an entirely premeditated and terrifying trauma within the nation's soul. It was the result of thinking seriously wrong with a country in which it's a matter for public debate whether it's fitting, in a television program designed specifically for children, that adults should discuss matters of mutual concern in an adult way.

And in this contention we don't intend to get sidetracked by the hoary argument about the value or lack of value in Santa Claus myth itself. We're by no means certain that the Roger H. Blanks of this world do a hurtful thing when they shield their own and their neighbors' children from the shock about Santa-dom. But we ARE certain that Roger H. Blank has neither a right nor a duty to shield the entire nation from the facts about Santa Claus. This is precisely what he and the forbiddingly large army of other Roger H. Blanks propose when they propose that nothing should ever be said over the CBC which could conceivably offend little Roger H. Blank Junior, aged four.

What Roger H. Blank Senior is thinking of when he sets the broomful of four-to-seven-year-olds at the television conference and appearing at a time when most four-to-seven-year-olds are in bed — this is a question only Mr. Blank himself is competent to answer. But we're asking it. And we're asking the non-Blanks of the nation how long they intend to keep on putting up with the Blanks and their deliberately-contrived policy? It's the CBC's responsibility on the book of magazine of a paper published by the taxpayers, the state censor's responsibility to see that no prevailingly childish can four-year-old Roger H. Blank Junior's four-year-old mind is subjected to any scene, statement or observation that doesn't happen to fit his old world view of Santa Claus and child training.

The Blanks of this country have had far too much to say about how the country shall be run. Acting on the principle that they've registered and presumably backward children, they have obtained an outright suppression of more than one genuine work of art. By their pitiful, pernicious faith, they have made it difficult, indeed almost impossible, for artists, scientists and philosophers to discuss their problems in terms relevant to over our national radio network.

Which as they angst us, we offer the Roger H. Blanks a piece of valuable advice. The CBC is incapable of guiding or policing their own children's entertainment, we already urge them to sell the television set, tuck little Roger H. Blank into bed and sit with a new rattle, and leave the rest of us folks alone.

Weighing A Mountain

(BBC London Letter)

It would seem unlikely that anyone would want to weigh a mountain or, if they did, that such a project is undertaken would be possible. But in the BBC's "Radio Newsreel" it was recently reported that the Snowy Mountain Hydro-Electric Authority in Australia want to weigh a mountain for the purpose of computing the amount of water that would press above the tunnels driven inside it. The mountain, Kosciusko, is Sydney University has developed a new device to enable the measurements and its director of experimental research, Dr. Paul Georger, explained it in "Radio Newsreel."

The usual practice in making such measurements is to bore down and then weigh and measure the rock cut out. But the burden, a method which is both expensive and time-consuming, is one and much simpler method makes use of cosmic radiation, the rays which constantly rain on the earth from outer space, measuring the amount of cosmic radiation that survives inside a mountain, it can be worked back to a value for the amount of matter that the rays must have travelled through. The new method was successfully tried out recently with an arrangement of a hundred geiger counters on a road where rock drilling had already been done; the counters selected the rock above and the tunnel downwards and a comparison of the readings inside and outside the tunnel gave the answer which agreed with that already obtained by the old method. The new method is much cheaper than rock drilling and the equipment, once made, can be used many times, although only when the tunnel is being driven the mountain already exists.

Wives Same In 1500 B.C.

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

Does your wife have the habit of making memos about this and that? If she does she's no different than the little housewife of 1500 B.C.

Prof. Alan J.B. Ware of Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study says a series of clay tablets has been unearthed at Mycenae, centre of the prehistoric civilization of ancient Greece. Newly deciphered, these tablets listed spices, herbs, and other household items. This, the professor says, proves that the ability to write was common to those days.

Well, we'd like to suggest that it also show wives then were much like they are today...Ours is always making out shopping lists and mislaying them, too.

Lots of Sittings

Railway Rules Need Revising

(The Financial Post)

For over 50 years, railway freight rates on grain and grain products in Western Canada have remained unchanged. In that period costs of labor, equipment, materials and every other item the road must buy have risen enormously.

It seems almost as much to buy a single freight car today as a whole locomotive at the beginning of the century. Yet the grain that moves in exactly the same number of cents per bushel, a ton-mile. Surely the management shortly after the first transcontinental opened for business.

In a strait jacket like that, it is impossible for the President Mather pointed out in Montreal, that we can't expect our railways to operate profitably except in the biggest boom years. And surely nothing in the way economic history of the country in recent years will find that it has only been in the biggest boom years that they have been able to show a real profit at all.

The government ought to do some realistic, unemotional thinking about our railroads.

Like the railroads, we hedge them about with all sorts of regulations, restrictions and restrictions. We tie them down with what Mr. Mather correctly pilloried as "antiquated and pressed rates." Yet we expect them to maintain modern plant, equipment and to carry the great bulk of the nation's freight. Mr. Mather's policy continue to operate through great stretches of unsettled country where there is no other transportation is available, to build new branch lines into mines and new planets. Yet we raise a howl every time they abandon trackage that long since has ceased to pay the cost of axle grease.

It's going to be a tough enough job under the best of conditions for our railroads to survive in this age of more and more competition, without making that job impossible by regulations laid down in our great grandfather's time.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

ALTERNATIVE FOR HERNIA OPERATION

The last time I was kicked out of a midwest city, or maybe it was the penultimate time, I happened soon after I was all man had opinions of the outsiders in him. Some of the leading doctors in the city had assured him that I'd soon see how easy and sick I'd get if I'd have some belladonna ointment rubbed into my back.

Dee-lighted, I replied. Give me the name of one of the doctors and I'd arrange with him to come to the city and have my back anointed with anything the doctors cared to apply, so long as it didn't break the skin and I didn't fall control of my air supply during the experiment. If we got suitable physician found any evidence that anything was absorbed through my skin, I'd make due apology to the medical profession and to the world for my error.

Unfortunately, the boss man could not reveal the identity of the big shots—naturally you can't identify a figment of anyone's imagination. Not long afterward Ol' Doc Brady began to decline from day to day and presently retired out. He has done it so many times that some people were sure he was finally turned up his toes.

Noticing how I am shoved about from one place to another, friends (believe it or not I still have a few) sometimes ask why I don't avoid "controversial" questions and confine myself to medical subjects exclusively. The answer is that health, hygiene, prevention of disease is my province, and in my judgment a newspaper is not the place to discuss medical subjects.

In the textbook cited the author indicates just which types of hernia are amenable to injection treatment and which types or kinds require operation. I do not remember and haven't time to read the text again, to determine whether Dr. Watson estimates what proportion of all hernias may be successfully treated by the injection method. But no one means to imply that this office-ambulatory treatment can or will make hernia operations no longer necessary.

But what a boon it is when it happens to be applicable to your hernia. No hospitalization. No loss of time from work. No particular harm done even if the treatment fails to. It is as likely to fail as is the radical operation.

One doctor advises surgery to correct scrotal hernia in boys 1-2 years of age. A second doctor advises a suitable truss and says there is a good chance of spontaneous or natural cure if the hernia can be retained by the truss.

Most hernias in infants and young children close spontaneously in the course of a year or so, if the child stops 14 hours each night with foot of bed elevated.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If you have a cold, don't stay home on your own account. Stay home on account of everybody else. Infection from colds is spread in no less virulent than in our grandmother's day, when public health measures and doctors were far more primitive than now. It may be more virulent. We cannot be sure. But we do know that parents, because of the ease of our lives, Exercise used to be part of life's routine. The furnace had to be tended, ashes carried out, stifled. Many of our fathers and most of our grandfathers walked home from work, or walked a good part of the way. Today, we drive in the side drive, or the local garage is only a block from the house. Exercise nowadays is something we choose to take, or leave.

Despite what the doctors say about germs, fresh air, sunshine and our better public health, most of us must be a beautiful bowl of chicken broth to a good deal more common cold bug.

Whether the germ is more virulent may be a question. But the chances of a cold being more easily distributed are certainly greater than in our grandfather's day. In first place, we circulate around more in better health. Even if we have a cold, we fell it can do no harm to jump into a nice warm motor car and go visiting. Germs—since We have formed the habit of going to work, and even visiting, ill ourselves, will it do us any harm to go out. Maybe not. But it may do a lot of harm to others.

Buses, street cars and suburban crowded are more the past. During rush hours, tens of thousands of us breath down each other's necks. A wild guess would not even measure the actual spread of germs, not contact, all over the town and maybe far across the country.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A GREAT CONVERSION

Just about a hundred years ago, Charles H. Spurgeon, prince of preachers, was born in England. To the end of his life he was to preach to the English people with a consequence and power that has seldom been equalled and never surpassed. Twice every Sunday he spoke to a congregation numbering from five to six thousand, and he did this for more than thirty years.

He was converted when he was fifteen years of age. On his way to a place of worship one Sunday morning he was compelled by a snow studen to turn into a little primitive Methodist Chapel, in which about a dozen people were worshipping. A layman was in the pulpit expounding the text, "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth."

At one place in his sermon the preacher made a statement that fixed at the boy sitting under the gallery and said, "Young man, you look very miserable. And you will always be miserable, miserable in life and miserable in death—if you don't look to Jesus Christ. And if you obey now, this moment you will be saved." Then he shouted at the top of his voice, "Young man, look to Jesus Christ."

In that moment something happened to young Spurgeon. He describes it by saying that the cloud was rent away, the darkness rolled away, and that the sun had risen. He was converted. The secret of that experience never abated during the whole of his distinguished life.

CAMPBELLFORD

Rotary Club Hears Talk On 'Dry Cleaning'

CAMPBELLFORD—The Campbellford Rotary club held its regular meeting on Monday, when Gerry Grady, proprietor of the Weldrest Cleaners and Dyers gave his classification talk on the subject of cleaning.

Mr. Grady expressed his satisfaction on the manner in which he and his family had been received into the community. He had been advertising manager for the Peterborough radio station, prior to purchasing his business here.

DRY CLEANING

"Dry cleaning," the speaker explained, "is a detailed and interesting process. As a garment is received, it is immediately involved as to requirements, delivery date and any special instructions.

"The first step is to separate the dark clothes from the light ones, as these must not run together. They are then washed with varsol and after each batch is put through, the solvent is drained off and re-distilled in underground tanks for use once again.

"The garment is then put over to the steam table for finishing. Some materials are subject to more shrinkage than others, and in some cases special difficulties in removing spots are experienced. There, of course, depend on the quality of the material involved. It is one of the aims of the Dry Cleaners' Association to enlist the co-operation of the manufacturer in labelling his product as being suitable for washing or for dry cleaning, or both.

"The Dry Cleaner Institute of Ontario maintains complete laboratories for the assistance and guidance of its members."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian MacDonald, and thanked by president Bill McComb.

Buses on Schedule

Swollen Seine Starts to Drop, Moselle Rising

By GEORGE MacARTHUR

PARIS (AP)—The swollen Seine, which flooded Paris cellars during the weekend in its highest rise in years, began to fall today. The slight drop brought hope to nervous thousands in low-lying suburbs, who had feared more water.

The mud-yellow river, which had been fed by melting Alpine snows, crested a little more than an inch during the night. At 8 a. m., it stood at 32 feet, the same level as 24 hours earlier.

Experts had predicted the river, which flows in a crooked "S" through Paris, would crest today at a point just short of the 24-foot level reached 31 years ago in a far more serious flood.

On the outskirts of the capital, thousands of acres of lowland farms and factory suburbs were still under water. Experts predicted it would be several days before the water recedes.

In eastern France, the Moselle river was still rising, partly flooding about 100 towns and villages. The Garonne in southwest France was also rising, inundating areas near Toulouse, one of France's leading industrial centres.

Despite six days of rising waters in the capital area, police have not reported any flood deaths. Evacuations, which number in the thousands, have been slow and orderly.

The centre of Paris was in little danger, but some of its suburbs were under nearly two feet of water. An estimated 50,000 workers there kept away from their jobs by flooded factories or inundated roads.

The power required to make one ton of aluminum would provide electricity for our home for 15 years. Raw materials used in manufacture of aluminum are bauxite from British Guiana; cryolite from Ivigtut away up near the Arctic Circle in Greenland; fluorspar from Newfoundland, and coke from the United States. It takes seven tons of these and other raw materials to make one ton of aluminum.

TONS OF BAUXITE

Four tons of bauxite are used to make one ton of aluminum. It is interesting to know that Jamaica for some years has put its bauxite to good use, instead of producing excellent grapefruit and oranges and to raising beef and dairy cattle.

Aluminum foil is odorless, tasteless and non combustible. It is used for wrapping cheese, bacon, bars, milk bottle tops, caps. Aluminum utensils are both durable and beautiful.

Mrs. Detlor conducted to each member a copy of the booklet "The Story of Aluminum—Clay to Kitchen."

Mrs. J. Campbell gave the current events.

The cause must be found to bring up children is in their own home, if that home is a good home, but if not a good home, substitute parents are the next best. It is the duty of the Children's Aid to find the best parents possible for these children and homes where they will fit in best.

Her clear mind and her fine spirit shone in all that she said, not least in one or two personal experiences which she used as illustrations.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HERE'S A BASIC TRUTH THAT CAN'T BE REPEATED TOO OFTEN

Sometimes I think a basic truth cannot be repeated too often. For aside, from the fact that most of us have to hear a fundamental principle repeated many times before it really sinks in, there are always young folks to whom it may be something new that they are hearing for the first time.

And one of these basic truths that bears repeating is that it's a sure sign of immaturity for any one, whatever his age, to declare that because he has once been disappointed in love, he will never trust anyone again. Moreover, such immaturity consists, not only in the lack of judgment and experience that causes a person to take such a position, but in dramatizing himself as someone who will go through life forlorn, alone and forever burning incense at the shrine of a lost love.

I suspect, also, that another ingredient in this kind of immaturity is a desire to get attention. Having suffered a romantic disappointment, the immature person gets a great deal of satisfaction out of having others pity them. For a time, they get a lot of attention, if they keep up long enough their role of one whose life is ruined, the others eventually tire of it.

So my advice to anyone with a friend or relative who is "enjoying" that kind of role is not to pay too much attention to his gloomy prediction that life holds nothing more for him. Give your sympathy sincerely and warmly, and then let it go at that. Don't give it indefinitely, and don't continually try to argue him out of his mood. For the more you do these things, the longer it will take for him to stop dramatizing himself and get back to normal.

Specifically, right now, this is largely an answer to an 18-year-old girl who writes that she is in love with a young man of 23; that they "would like to get married," but that "our problem is that he was once in love with a girl who married another man.

"Now," the letter continues, "he is determined that no other girl is worth what he would have to give up. He tells me, and everyone else, that we are not going to date any more, but he still takes me out even while he says we are not dating. Just the other day, he told my gal friend that our problem is the fact that I care too much for me."

She then asks: "How can I restore his trust in women and prove my love for him?" She adds that she knows she loves him because she has "tried to take this in stride and go with other boys," but is miserable when she does.

Having said what I already have about this sort of situation, there's little I can add to it, except that unless this chap drops his adolescent attitude and grows up a little, the girl who gets him for a husband is going to have a hard time.

I might say that this particular girl shows signs of romantic immaturity herself when she insists she can't enjoy going out with other boys. Since this chap has told her that they are "not dating," it seems to me she would simply be following his foolish example if she just sat around and mourned about him.

My advice to her is to take an entirely different attitude if she wants to make any impression on the young man. In other words, she should ignore what he says about never loving any other girl again; and don't worry about restoring his faith in women; "selfpointedly, but just because she is too busy enjoying life to have time to pay attention to any lovelorn nonsense of that kind. If she will have the good sense to go out with any boy who asks her, this will undoubtedly be the quickest way to find out that such things really stand with the other chap. Because if he does really care for her, and sees there might be a chance of somebody else getting her, he'll forget he's through with girls and be after her in a hurry.

Good, Plain Meat Dishes

By Mary Moore

Beset on all sides by half-executed ideas, unmade decisions, ringing telephones, unanswered letters, invitations to speak, and pleas for money, I decided to retire to a nunnery or some place as nice warm desert island.

You know how everybody has such brilliant ideas at the beginning of the new year?—a sort of up and at 'em attitude. Well, that's how they have decided to make get up and go at things is me—just plain me—you know, two hands, one weak head, two flat feet. . . .

. . . when, by oh by sitting comes a quiet little letter like this:

". . . please let us have plain meat dishes such as fresh or leftover meat made in good dishes with mashed or uncooked potatoes, onions, a bit of celery, not much more, in order to keep it plain. . . please keep up the good work.—Constant Reader of Your Column Mrs. J. G."

"Just plain meat dishes"—right out something" simple is what this simpleton needs to keep her on the beam. I will try to combine all of Mrs. J. G's requirements in the two or three recipes I have space for.

CANADIAN MEAT PIE

These amounts will serve four adequately.

One lb. beef—round, flank or shank, 1-3 onion, 2 cups boiling water, 6 medium potatoes, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper (gray) instead of water, carrots, celery, peas are optional). Cut meat in 1-inch pieces and add sliced onion and pared sliced (1-4 inch) potatoes, boiling water (or gravy) and heat to boiling; cover and simmer until meat is tender. Mix flour and seasonings to a paste with cold water and stir into meat until thick. Turn into greased baking dish over an inverted cup. Cover with rich pie pastry rolled 1-4 inch thick and gashed at centre. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes—just until pastry is cooked through.

MEAT SCALLOP

One and one-half cups ground or diced cooked meat, 2 hard-cooked eggs thinly sliced, 1 cup finely sliced outer celery, 1 1-2 cups buttered crumbs, Sauce—2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, 1-2 teaspoon Monosodium glutamate (a optional but recommended), 2 cups milk. Make the sauce by melting the butter, stir in flour and dry ingredients, and, when blended, stir in milk until thick. Butter a baking dish and put in layer of meat, then meat, then eggs, then celery, then crumbs again and repeat. Pour white sauce over, being sure it flows to bottom. Top with remaining crumbs. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until bubbling and golden.

SUPERIOR HASH

Two cups cooked roast beef or corned beef chopped finely, 3 cups boiled potatoes chopped fine, (some hash experts say they should be cold—I think they are better hot), 1-2 cup milk or cream, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 teaspoon Worcesterhire sauce, 1 tablespoon onion juice or 1-3 cup finely chopped onion, 1 tablespoon butter or good drippings. Mix all ingredients but fat. Melt fat in pan, put hash mixture evenly over it and saute slowly over heat turned a slow as possible—bottom should be well browned and crisp—this takes about 30 minutes. Optional: (1-4 cup) milk or cream over hash during last five minutes if desired. Fold over as omelette and serve on hot platter garnished with parsley. Parsley, beets, peppers are all good and popular additions.

Watch tomorrow for meat stretching recipes designed for large hungry families.

WON BET, LOST MONEY

TORONTO (CP)—Police arrested two men Saturday and accused them of swindling a German immigrant out of his $1,500 savings. Gunther Peters, from Berlin, Germany, told police two men ran off with his savings after he produced it to wifre bet as to who had the most money. Police charged Frank Bello, 46, and John Fapella, 30, with theft.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

COMPLEXION CLEANLINESS

The best way to keep your complexion lovely is to keep it clean. Do a good soap-and-water washing job or use cream.

It is believed by some skin specialists that whiteheads are caused by sluggish circulation. The congestings of the pores have closed and, as there is no outlet for the exudations of the sebaceous glands whiteheads are formed. There is no inflammation, as sometimes happens when blackheads are present.

One should take measures as whiteheads will not break out. The special need is to stimulate the blood streams so skin will function normally.

This can be accomplished by brisk massage after the nightly face washing. Remove the lather with tepid wager. Dry the skin, then apply a heavy cream. Pat it in with brisk movements of the finger tips.

Start at the neck, work upward. Be gentle around the eyes, where tissues are delicate and fibers small. While the cream remains on have an ice friction.

The cold shower after a warm bath is also recommended. It reaction has a favorable effect on circulation.

BREAK INTO BAKERY

GALT (CP)—Thieves blew open the strong box in the Mannoy Bread Company plant overnight and escaped with $3,200, police said Saturday. The theft was discovered when an employee visited the plant.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GIVE YOUR ORDER TO YOUR HOST, NOT TO WAITER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I (we're twins) would appreciate your reaction to our discussion. She insists that when a woman is dining with a man in a restaurant, she should give her order to the man, then he gives both orders to the waiter. I think the woman should give her order directly to the waiter. Who is right about this? And why?

—Therese S.

Your sister is right. . . and most definitely. The woman who knows what's what, knows that she should give her order to the man because he is her host. The man gives both orders to the waiter, being careful to mention his guest's order first.

(Note: A courteous man deeply, and justifiably, resents the disbehest-ship. So mind your manners, Therese!)

Congregational Meetings

VICTORIA AVENUE BAPTIST

Wednesday, marked the occasion of the annual meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist church, Belleville, when about 300 members of the church family gathered in the lower auditorium of the church. A delicious dinner was served by Mr. A. G. Fox and the members of the social committee.

The business portion of the meeting was preceded by a short worship service led by the Rev. E. Keith Daniel.

The presentation of the reports showed that each organization had enjoyed a busy and successful year. Their reports were given in a most novel manner as each officer was interviewed by two capable reporters of a so-called Toronto Hurricane newspaper, Mrs. M. Lush as Miss Tellit and Mr. Bert Girling as Mr. Newsy Girling. In their interviews they did much to emphasize the highlights of the year in an amusing yet effective manner.

The evening gave much cause for thanksgiving to God for the rich blessings and progress of the church, both spiritually and materially under the consecrated leadership of the minister, the Rev. L. Keith Daniel. The life of the church was further enriched by many guest speakers during the year including five outstanding Canadian Baptist missionaries.

31 NEW MEMBERS RECEIVED

Thirty-one new members were received into the fellowship of the church during the past year.

The total offerings of the church were over $18,000 showing a substantial increase to both local and missionary work.

Under the capable leadership of Mrs. A. Reilly and with Mr. William Connor at the organ, the choir rendered faithful service. Two cantatas were presented and the Junior choir was ever-popular.

Two new organizations were formed during the year: the Dorcas Association and the Sigma C. group.

Fellowship was deepened by two joint activities this past year, between the Fairway Sunday school and Victoria Avenue Sunday school, the Sunday school picnic to Cedardale and the Sunday school concert held at Victoria Avenue Baptist church.

RENOVATION PROGRAM

An outstanding highlight of the church has been the renovation program, the labor of which being undertaken by the men of the church under the devoted leadership and supervision of Mr. Everett Bowers. The labors in this cause were gratefully acknowledged. While this arduous task has not reached completion the landscaping, renovations to both exterior and interior of the building and installation of a new lighting system throughout the church area well underway. 8,500,000 Americans Play Stock Market at Present Time

BY KERMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 8,500,000 Americans, according to the best estimates, are "in" the stock market today.

Many other Americans are asking themselves whether they should be among them. Or should they feel the market is no place for their money.

This question presented itself to a school teacher in upstate New York some years ago. The story of her experiences in the market is true. But it is not, reported here in order to prove a case either way.

It is simply one example of a big, dynamic, exciting and supremely enigmatic situation in the United States at this moment—a condition that goes beyond Wall street and Washington right into the family living room.

OPPORTUNITY PRESENTED

Miss X, the teacher, unexpectedly received $5,000 from the sale of a family farm in Indiana. At that time, she was approaching the day when she would retire.

"I knew what my income would be from my pension and some insurance that was about to mature," she said. "And I had some savings in the bank. All told, I expected to be reasonably comfortable after I retired."

Now the $5,000 windfall presented an opportunity to bolster this fixed income. She decided to put the money in stocks and this was her reasoning:

"Since I never expected that money, it was an extra. My budget had been calculated without it. So I thought, 'If I lose it in the stock market, I'll just forget I ever had it. If I make some money on it, so much better.'"

LUCK CHANGED

Some four years later her portfolio showed a net loss of $1,100. Then she changed her holdings. That was 1950. During the next four years Miss X received some dividends and profits in the same stocks. Thanks to a "split" in her biggest holding the total value rose steeply. She estimates today her holdings total nearly $20,000 at current prices. "I plan to begin taking out about $100 a month in dividends," she said.

This happens to be a success story. In a different market at another time the ending might have been radically different.

But it illustrates a number of points:

1. Miss X is one of the thousands of new investors in the market. Some analysts estimate more than 500,000 people are coming in every year.

2. They are by no means all "big" investors. Many have annual incomes under $5,000.

3. Miss X has a pension and other sure income. Hence, she could look at the $5,000 as "surplus" money, a sum she could afford to risk.

CAN'T SAY FOR CERTAIN

The U. S. economy today is bolstered by unemployment insurance, old age pensions, social security. These represent a degree of security undreamed of 25 or 30 years ago. It may be, although no one can say for certain, that this feeling of greater security is the reason so many people today are prepared to risk some money in the stock market.

Certainly another reason is the booming progress of business.

Nevertheless, at year-end, the stock market was beginning to worry a great many people. Was it too high? Was another wild orgy of speculation gathering momentum, to be followed by a crippling crash and a depression as in 1929. A Wall street veteran sometimes observes, "after every boom, a boomerang."

Plants More Accurate Than Geiger Counters in Pointing Out Uranium

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Plants can be more accurate than Geiger counters in pointing out the hiding places of uranium.

Dr. Edwin H. Kurtz, University of Arizona botanist, says this does not mean prospectors can throw away their tools and find mines by plucking twigs and leaves—although it has been done.

So far, trees and shrubs don't tell as much as drilling. But once a uranium deposit has been spotted or is suspected, plants can outline the deposit and eliminate costly drilling.

"The Geiger counter only tints the top few feet of soil," Dr. Kurtz explains. "Plant roots go down in to 40 feet and in some cases more than 100 feet. The roots carry traces of uranium to the leaves of the plant. By testing the leaves, it is possible to examine the presence, extent and depth of deposits."

COSTLY AND LENGTHY

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission has given the Arizona school a $5,200 grant. This extends until September the project Kurtz has been working on a year and a half. Kurtz says it has been known for a century that plants take up copper, gold, zinc, selenium and other inorganic minerals from the ground. Little was done with this knowledge until the demand for a domestic supply of uranium became early in the war.

"I never thought of this aspect," says Kurtz, "until a geology student, Roger Anderson, taking my botany course came up with the idea of utilizing plants in prospecting for uranium." Anderson now is a full-time associate on the project.

The U. S. geological survey used plant prospecting to find important deposits on the Colorado plateau but it missed some that were later found by drilling.

The survey uses an elaborate chemical process in making its analysis that is costly, time-consuming and difficult.

Kurtz says he and Anderson "are trying to devise a simple technique that could be put into use by lay-men with no experience in chemistry."

BLIPS TELL STORY

In tests at the university all organic material in the leaf, twig, bark or wood is burned off. The ash that remains is powdered and put in a shallow metal disc the size of a half dollar. The powder is tested for radioactivity by an alpha scintillation counter. The uranium content is revealed by the number of "blips" it makes in an hour. The more uranium, the more blips.

"We wouldn't recommend plants as a general prospecting tool," Kurtz says. "Too vast an area must be covered. It can be of great help when what appears to be a deposit is discovered. Plants can reveal the outline, depth and richness.

"Drilling a core is the most accurate method of determining the extent of deposits. Plants are next, and cheaper. Their value is between drilling and the Geiger counter."

Canadiens Regain Sole Possession Of Top With Twin Wins Over Hawks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

AND NO JOKERS!

The ole senior "B" dealer dealt a new hand over the week-end with a four-way straight in clubs that saw another change in position.

The ace of clubs, temporarily, that is, in fact all spots are temporary in this whirlwind group, is the Whitby Wrens, someone dubbed them "Dunlops," who now boast 40 points and guess who is holding down the king spot? None other than the Memos, who black-jacked the Cornwall Colts 3-2 on Sunday.

The Colts dropped down to the queen spot in this club flush one pip behind the Colts, while holding the "jack" is the Kingston Goodyears. The clubs rate 40-39-38-37 points in that order.

The feature of the week-end activities was the stepping of the Whitby Wrens' consecutive string of wins at nine. The Clinton Comets did that trick yesterday afternoon in the Amchican arena by a 5-2 count, a victory that pulled them into a fifth place tie with the Brockville Magedonas, eight points behind the Goodyears.

The game in Cornwall was a thriller with penalties hurting the Colts' chances. However, behind the scintillating work of Tony Parisi who stopped 35 shots to Cornwall's three in the nerve-wracking third period, the Memos came up with another brilliant stand after Red Doran had fired the winner before eight minutes had elapsed in third period.

According to observers, the game was a rugged rip-roaring battle with the Cornwall fans giving Referees Flanagan and Parisi a rough ride, some reaching over the boards to poke at them.

Peter Jones fired a beautiful goal in the second period when he weaved his way through three Colts to the goal-mouth and slowly and deliberately fired the puck past the goalie for the tying score.

The checking, fore and aft, of the Memos was a brilliant feature of their play, and they battled and stifled the Colts many times before they could get into scoring position.

Tomorrow night sees the battle of the season when the Memos and Whitby clash for the group lead. A sell-out crowd should be on hand for this one.

CHAMPIONS HONORED

Frank Tyndall, Queen's crew-cut coach with the carte-blanche contract, stepped into a familiar role here Saturday night. One of the best-loved coaches in the Intercollegiate Football Union, Tyndall left football duties at the Kingston campus temporarily to impart to 28 bright-eyed young gridiron champions some down-to-earth football information through the medium of colored motion pictures.

The quiet-spoken Queen's football mentor was the guest speaker at the "Blindey Dinner" tendered the Quinte Secondary School COSSA Junior "B" champions by the school board in the well-appointed school cafeteria. And if you looked closely, you would have discerned a glint of pride in the eyes of Coach Blindey Dinon who established something of a record by bringing to the school its first gridiron championship—and this in the first year of the school's operation.

The banquet proved to be more than a victory party to these keen, clean-cut youngsters. They followed closely the narration of Coach Tyndall as the colored pictures of the Queen's 28-0 victory over their traditional foemen from Toronto Varsity flashed across the screen. Professor Tyndall, for that is what he is, explained the various plays, pointing out defects, omissions, etc., of the Queen's squad in action and generously and fairly paying tribute to Varsity plays and players. He interspersed his narration with delightful flashes of humor.

The youngsters and Coach Sisson interrupted the narration at times with requests of "replays" of certain plays, all of which were carefully explained by Mr. Tyndall. Indicative of the Tyndall humor was his answer when a Varsity end trundled across the gridiron mounted on a bicycle (circa 1900). "That's me," he quipped, "I'm on my way to check the gate."

It was educational and highly informative from a football point of view, even to gridiron laymen, like some of the special guests who had in a large measure made it possible. Coach Tyndall stressed the fact that the knowledge of fundamentals, both in sport and business was vitally important.

It was a grand party. A bevy of pretty Quinte "co-eds" adopted a waitress role, giving deluxe service. The dinner was excellent. The Scarlet and gold gladiators acted like the young gentlemen they are. The speeches were brief and to the point. There were surprises, too, in the presentation of a handsome leather briefcase to Coach Sisson from his champions, and COSSA crests to the boys after Tyndall. Principal Les Reid was an excellent host while Johnny Hayman took time out to escort a few of the guests on a tour of this beautiful, well-equipped educational structure.

Habs May End Wing Dynasty; Detroit, Leafs Divide Pair

Boston, Rangers Break Even

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's an increasing suspicion around the National Hockey League that those who have been picking Montreal Canadiens to end the lengthy dynasty of Detroit Red Wings are thinking along the right lines.

Red Wings brought some second thoughts a week ago, making some wonder if they might knock over Canadiens long enough to win their seventh straight league championship.

It's still possible, of course, but Canadiens dispelled a lot of hometown fears during the weekend, whipping last-place Chicago Black Hawks twice to recapture sole possession of the league leadership from Wings, who had displaced them a week earlier.

Canadiens scored a 3-3 win over Hawks before a Montreal crowd of 14,360 Saturday, then trimmed the collarbone-high foe the same score Sunday night in Chicago.

RANGERS GOT SHUTOUT

Detroit dropped a 3-1 decision to the third-place Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday, then whipped the Leafs 4-0 in Detroit Sunday. Boston Bruins, idle Saturday, moved into Boston, the Bruins winning 3-1 Saturday night and then posting a 2-0 shutout Sunday night.

Canadiens, who have a two-point lead and a game in hand over the Wings, needed a big working marathon performance by three of a late uprising by the Hawks.

Dickie Moore scored twice for Canadiens during the game, Tom Johnson and Ken Mosdell fired singles as they rallied for a whopping 5-1 lead in the first two periods. Harry Watson counted for Hawks in the second and Eddie Litzenberger and Dave Creighton scored in the third.

Jean Beliveau paced Montreal's Sunday night win, scoring twice over the Hawks in 12 contests this season. Two games have ended in ties.

Beliveau, the league scoring leader, picked up a goal and two assists. Kenny Mosdell added two goals.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

Jackie Leclair and Moore got the other Canadiens' goals. Montreal went ahead 4-0 before Hawks counted in the third period. Dave Creighton scored twice for Chicago, Harry Watson got the first at 11:33 of the third period.

At Toronto Saturday, the first two periods were scoreless. Then Ted Lindsay and Leafs ahead with a goal at 2:24 of the third. Bob Solinger counting his first NHL goal of the season at 5:54 and linemate Fleming Mackell at 12:06. Goaltender Harry Lumley's bid for a shutout near the eight-minute mark, lifting him to nine-high blast after a solo push.

Dutch Reibel, Marty Pavelich, Gordie Howe and Marcel Bonin handed the scoring Sunday as the Wings went ahead 3-0 in the first, 3-0 in the second and wrapped it up with a goal in the third. Howe's goal was his 21st of the season.

Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley registered his first shutout of the season Sunday night at Boston, as Rangers avenged their Saturday night loss.

Pete Conacher's first period goal at 16:00 and Don Raleigh's tally at 12:24 of the second gave the Blues their 3-0 win before 4,000 fans.

Doug Mohns, Hal Laycoe and Lorne Ferguson scored for Bruins Saturday night, while Dean Prentice counted for Rangers.

The league is idle until Wednesday night when Montreal plays at Toronto.

NHL Help for Penticton V's Termed Cheap Publicity Stunt

MONTREAL (CP) — Dick Irvin, coach of Montreal Canadiens, said Saturday the National Hockey League should do something to "uphold Canada's prestige" in the world hockey championship series in Europe this winter.

"If the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association doesn't want to send the strongest team, then the NHL should. We have got to prove to the Russians in particular that we are really tops in hockey."

Irvin went as far as to suggest that two players from each of the three top NHL teams should be loaned.

They could have substitution help from the Penticton Vs, already named as Canada's representative by the CAHA.

Irvin suggested the NHL contingent be made up of Harry Lumley, goal, and Sid Smith, left wing, of Toronto Maple Leafs; Red Kelly, defence, and Gordie Howe, right wing, Detroit Red Wings; and Doug Harvey, defence and Jean Beliveau, centre, Montreal Canadiens.

"They are all clean players. They don't get many penalties in the NHL and could play the type of hockey demanded at those games, tion."

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) Doug Gismjon, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Saturday termed a "cheap publicity stunt" a suggestion that National Hockey League stars bolster Canada's world hockey cup contender.

He was commenting on a suggestion by Montreal Canadiens' coach Dick Irvin that the three top NHL teams each contribute two players to Canada's representative in the tournament in Germany next month.

"That's a wonderful idea . . . We of the CAHA would have been delighted to consider this offer—if it is official—October or even at our meeting in Port Arthur early this month. But we can't, in fairness to Penticton's players, do any-

I wouldn't suggest Rocket Richard; he might start another war." Irvin said the team wouldn't have to be amateurs, as at the Olympic Games.

NHL president Clarence Campbell had other views on eligibility, saying the players "have to be amateurs under regulations of the International Ice Hockey Federation."

Braves, Aces Improve Spots

Tullyfield Braves moved into undisputed possession of fourth place and Quebec Aces narrowed the gap between themselves and the Montreal Royals as a result of two Quebec Hockey League games Sunday.

The Braves shocked the league-leading Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 5-3 while the Aces bounced Montreal by the same score.

Shawinigan Falls has 40 points, four more than Montreal and six more than the Aces. Valleyfield's victory brought that club to 32, Chicoutimi Saguenenes, with 31 points, round the seven-team loop. Maurice Collins of the Braves broke a 3-3 tie with Shawinigan Falls when he scored what proved to be the winning tally in the second period. Bourque added the clincher in the final stanza.

Montreal Royals had a 2-0 lead early in the second period but Quebec rose wild and scored four times before the period ended. Tic teams traded goals in the final stanza.

Gary Blaine notched one in the opening period and another early in the second to account for the Royals' early lead.

Memos Oust Cornwall From Second Place With 3-2 Victory Over Colts

Doran Fires Winner in Third In Rugged Hard-Hitting Fray; Clinton Clips Whitby String

Coming up with another brilliant all-round effort, the Belleville Memos replaced the Cornwall Colts in second spot overnight, snatching a 3-2 victory after trailing 2-1 in the second period.

Peter Jonge, on a brilliant individual effort, scored the tying goal after seven minutes of the second heat, and "Red" Doran took Jones' pass after seven minutes in the fiery third chapter to register the winner.

For the balance of the game the Memos came up with an outstanding defensive effort with the brilliant Parisi stopping 15 shots to Piquette's three to stave off the desperate Cornwall bid for the tying markers.

In other league action the Clinton Comets finally stopped the surging Whitby Wrens' winning streak at nine victories, defeating the group-leaders 5-3 in the American arena.

The Memos victory gives them undisputed possession of second place with 29 points, one behind the Wrens. The Colts dropped to third, 3, and the Kingston Gardowyers are in fourth spot with 37.

RUGGED AFFAIR

The game was a rugged hard-hitting affair with penalties affecting the Cornwall offensives. They drew no less than ten all told two of them misconducts and two majors. The Memos were tabbed with five sentences two of them each for fighting.

The first period was a roughle-toughie with Colts drawing the six penalties and for a minute it looked as though Referees Flanagan and Kitchen of Kingston would lose control. The fans gave the officials a rough time, even reaching over the boards in efforts to poke the arbiters.

The Memos had a great opportunity for two minutes during this period when two Colts' two men short but the brilliant Cornwall defence threw back their forays.

Cornwall opened the scoring at 12.40 of the first period. O'Brien cut Payette in the clear out Parisi beat the winger only to have Eve home the rebound. Two minutes later Doug Hall took Doug Day's pass clear in to beat Piquette in the Cornwall net for the equalizer.

Johnny Jones got the gate for hooking at 15.08 and the Colts surged to the attack. Connolly scoring on a three-way foray with Seward and Bingley. With 34 seconds to go Belmore and Erwin Duncan started to toss fists and during the heavy Duncan suffered a three-stitch clip over the eye. He did not return until 15 minutes had gone in the second period. Memos outshot the Colts 11-9 in this heat.

Both teams were a man short starting the second period and at 4.20 Seward got the gate but again the strong Colts defence held the fort.

PRETTY GOAL

Then came the goal of the night. Peter Jones picked up a loose puck in the right corner of the Cornwall zone, stickhandled his way beautifully through the Cornwall defence to the front of the net and calmly and deliberately fired the puck past Piquette to knot the count.

Long of Cornwall got the gate at 13 minutes and the Memos Ed Duncan and "Dangerous" Dan Heinz to beat the goalie on brilliant drives. Davey Jones hit the goalpost and on the rebound Colts' Henri got in the clear but was thwarted with a terrific save by Parisi.

Two minutes had not passed by the third when the Memos took the lead for the first time. Wilson and Doran rapped a quick cold and fed the puck to Peter Jones. Peter relayed it in front to "Red" Doran who fired a low hard shot in the right hand corner to like count to 3-2.

Wilson and Long started to brawl at both penalty cases, but Doran drew a slashing penalty at 3.33 and the Memos played five to four for two minutes. Doran, Hub Macey and Jake Wade did an outstanding job of keeping hilling while Parisi was very sharp. Mackie got the gate at 6.37 and Parisi grabbed certain goals off the sticks of Savard and Connolly. The Jones goalie beat Connolly at twelve minutes after the Colt speedster had raced into the clear.

From here in the Memos put on a terrific defensive show, hotlilng up the Cornwall bids for goals. With a few seconds to go Cornwall goalie was yanked and Doran missed the open net by inches.

Peter Jones played his best game of the season, scoring one and setting up the winning goal. The whole Memos team played outstanding hockey. Piquette in goal, Payette, Connolly, Savard, Belmore and Bingley of Colts best for the Cobs.

The teams: Belleville: goal, Parisi; defence, Wilson, Macey; centre, Ed. Duncan; R.W., Doran; L.W., Degray; alternates, Goyer, Mackie, Wade, Doran, P. Jones, Duggan, D. Jones, Day, Hull.

Cornwall: goal, Piquette; defence, Bingley, Annand; centre, O'Brien; R.W., Long; L.W., Payette; alternates, Seward, Connolly, Ian Hall, Belmore, Erwin Duncan, Mackie, Henri, Morris, Belmour, Marshall.

Western Gridders Will Press for Twelve Imports

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP)—The Western Interprovincial Football Union appears confident that within a week it will have a no-raiding agreement with the U.S. National Football League. It will press later for a two-man boost in the present import quota of 10.

Officials said Sunday night following the WIFU annual meeting that league commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg will meet with NFL boss Bert Bell Saturday with an immediately-effective plan for mutual honoring of player contracts and options.

Halter was not actually vested with such authority in the resolution released to reporters following closed meetings, but spoke-men for at least two delegations said Halter could include in any agreement whatever terms and dates he considered best and that "most clubs will be happy."

NEW PHRASING

The league's plan for imports would see the elimination of the long-controversial Canadian-American. The import who has played two previous years in Canada.

The WIFU scheme would give each of its five teams 12 players "other than Canadian." This phrasing was believed designed to protect some clubs wanting certain players who were born in Canada but who have played college or professional ball in the U.S.

The present Canadian Rugby Union rule is 10 imports plus three Canadian-Americans.

The Grey Cup game, if the WIFU's proposal to the CRU is accepted, would be played alternately in the east and west, beginning with Vancouver in 1955.

Western Trims Marauders 80-65

HAMILTON (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs came up with an 80-65 triumph over the McMaster University Marauders in an intercollegiate senior basketball contest here Saturday night.

The Mustangs came from behind an early lead by McMaster and led 40-33 at halftime. It was their second win of the season.

Snow Halts British Soccer

LONDON (AP)—British soccer took another slap from the weather-man Saturday as all but a handful of scheduled league matches were postponed because of flooded grounds, ice and snow.

Clubs in the north of England and Scotland were the worst affected. It was the second straight Saturday that soccer had been hit by the weather. Last week 42 games were postponed and another 16 were halted.

Wolverhampton Wanderers retained their top spot in the English League standing with a 2-1 win over Charlton.

Squash Champion Loses Crown

HAMILTON (CP)—Ernie Howard of Toronto Badminton and Racquet Club overwhelmed defending champion William O'Malley of Toronto Carlton Club 3-0 Sunday to capture the Ontario squash singles crown for the fourth time.

The junior championship went to Arnold Massey, 18-year-old Trinity College School student who defeated B. Donald of Hart House 3-1 for the Lewis-Vickers Trophy. Defending team champion Hart House edged Scots 4-1 victory over Toronto Grasle Club to retain the Ontario tea mitts.

Quinte Secondary Football Champions Honored at School 'Victory Dinner'

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Young football champions who brought the Quinte Secondary School ig first gridiron title were feted at a "Victory Banquet" Saturday night.

Justifiable pride glowed in the eyes of these youngsters who not only won the COSSA Junior "B" football title, but made the achievement the more remarkable because it was the school's "freshman" year.

Coach Johnny Sisson, former Peterborough Pete and Queen's University football star who left new champions received tributes laughs and otherwise at the dinner held in the school's well-appointed cafeteria.

RECEIVED CRESTS

The young champions, out of football character, got their "Junior best", received championship crests from COSSA, while they in turn surprised their popular coach with the presentation of a handsome leather brief case.

And highlighting the affair was a brief address by Reg. Tyndal, Queen's University football and basketball coach and his informative narration of a 16 mm. football movie of Quinte's game shown via a colored motion-picture lens.

Present besides the team and its coach and speaker, were school principal Lee, Jack Wishart, former chairman of the Bay of Quinte Hall Association who represented that body; N. A. "Pete" Beach, COSSA secretary and coach of Albert College football squad; Johnny Hayman, Queen's football star; Bob Mc-Upper, former Queen's sports writer, now with the Ontario Intelligencer and this reporter.

The Queen's mentor who garnished a fine coaching job this fall with a dry sense of humor, congratulated the school on its effort and also on the fact "I have no speech, but brought movies along instead."

TRIBUTE TO COACH

He paid tribute to Quinte coach Sisson. "He is a real competitor, keenly interested in sport, and used boys. He is not satisfied with the way I play golf, but keeps trying to improve and improve his coaching and his team," he said.

Mr. Tyndal recalled several humorous incidents which occurred during his coaching career.

In serious vein he urged the importance of learning the fundamentals of not only football and other sports, but education as well. "Don't play," he said, "if we cannot do arithmetic we cannot do trigonometry, etc."

Reg Tyndal said he looked for a definite uptrend in athletics with the help of television and movies. The gateway to more instruction is wide open through this media. "You will see outstanding athletes perform on television, and you should try to emulate them in this way you will learn a lot. There has definitely been a tremendous impetus given football and basketball because of these facilities," he pointed out.

FINE NARRATION

Following his address Coach Tyndal showed the football film. He slowly and carefully explained important plays, frequently reshowing the action to emphasize the point, answering questions from the team as the film unfolded.

Principal Reid formally welcomed the team and guests. He added his tribute to the champions and their coach. "He not only brought home the bacon," principal Reid said, "but his philosophy of sport is having its effect on the students. We are very appreciative of his efforts."

Mr. Beach brought the congratulations of Coach Gerry Dobson of Albert College. He told the team that they were the first champions in COSSA for them, one that will honor the memory of Mr. T. Morrison, former COSSA official and teacher of Tweed.

DESERVED TO WIN

Speaking to the team, Mr. Beach, in his characteristically deserved to win, for you had the better club. I was very glad to see you take during the game.

At this point the champions were presented with the COSSA crests, the honors being done by Coach Tyndal who personally congratulated each player.

Coach Sisson was pleasantly surprised when Jim Pettitt, on behalf of the team presented him with a handsome leather brief case.

"I have choked up once tonight, so all I can say is 'thank-you'" smiled the coach. Previously he had introduced Mr. Tyndal and his movie take during the previous season.

Bob Garrison, member of the team, concluded the festivities with a brief address of appreciation to Coach Tyndal, Jack Wishart and Coach Tyndal.

Coach Sisson acted as chairman for the banquet.

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ann Johnston, 18-year-old brunette from the Toronto Skating Club who placed first in the compulsory figures, was runner-up.

Sandwiched between Bolt and Littler, in the official records will be the names of Johnny Palmer, the runner-up to Bolt; Ted Kroll and Freddie Haas Jr., who tied for third; Bo Wininger and Jack Burke, Masters champion, who ended in a sixth-place tie with E.J. (Dutch) Harrison and Bud Holscher.

Argos Throw Monkey-Wrench In Football Peace Machinery

By JACK REST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Until one objecting Big Four team is satisfied, Canada will continue to be a lucky country for the two roving United States professional football players.

Agreement was near Saturday between representatives of the National Football League and the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union on a pact that would have ended the costly bidding for the services of top players.

But Toronto Argonauts, late-comers to the big-game hunt, stalled the agreement in its tracks by refusing to sanction any pact that affects deals already completed this season.

Such an agreement would bit the Argos hard. After getting by for years with U.S. college players and NFL castoffs, they switched tactics season and announced that they have offered contracts to eight established NFL stars and are negotiating with others. A retroactive pact would nullify all these deals and force them to start from scratch.

OTHERS READY

Other Big Four clubs, well stocked with established professionals, are ready to enter a gentlemen's agreement with the NFL-IRFU executive and exchange contracts and one-year option clauses.

Despite the Toronto hitch, NFL and Big Four officials emerged from Saturday's meeting confident that they could work out their differences.

The peace proposals, as outlined by NFL commissioner Bert Bell:

1. A player under contract or option to a team in either league may not be signed by a team in the other league until notification that he is a free agent.

2. No college player can play in either league until four years after graduation or a recognized college in the United States or Canada.

3. If a player under option drops out of football temporarily he loses his contract year and his option year he will be obliged to return to the team which held his option if he wishes to play again.

4. A player who does not go to college may not sign with a club in either league for a year after he has left school.

Eartha Kitt Grossed Close To Half Million Last Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Eartha Kitt, a tawny girl with red hair dyed black, a dancer's grace and a voice like a charge of electricity, grossed close to half a million last year.

There's a strong possibility that, at 27, Miss Kitt will not make as much this year. She has become a movie star and, although the star of the Broadway hit, "Mrs. Patterson," the cash payoff isn't as magnificent as the prestige.

Although Eartha is preoccupied with such city matters as night clubs, musical revues and the theatre, her best selling records (CBS) Bi Bo, Santa Baby and I Want to Be Evil) and television have made her a subject of interest all over the continent. There are several schools of thought concerning her and her talents. Some thinkish she's no great shakes as a singer, but no one denies she's a remarkable musical style.

Eartha was born in South Carolina, the fair - skinned child of sharecropper parents. There had been lean cotton harvests for several years before the child's birth and as a sort of thanksgiving for presents received the baby Eartha. WAS FARMED OUT

Her father died when she was a small child. When her mother married again Eartha's stepfather, although accepting her younger, darker-skinned sister, refused to take over the upbringing of the six-year-old fairer-skinned one. So her mother turned her over to a woman in the village to bring her "Hit 'wat-hard." Eartha says of those years in a foster-home: "I was like Cinderella, with that fair skin and red hair. They made me do all the hard work, the nasty chores."

Then little Eartha was uprooted again. A family friend who lived in New York's teeming Harlem and it worked as a domestic and as the girl. Life in the tenements was different though scarcely better than in the southern tarpaper shacks.

CHANCE MEETING

"One night a girl friend and I went to a movie on Broadway. Suddenly in the middle of the show I didn't want to stay any longer and left. Some time later I was standing outside the theatre trying to decide how to spend the last two dimes we had, when I noticed this girl who acted as if she was lost.

Out of all that milling crowd, she came straight up to me and asked me if I could direct her to a cosmetic shop. I knew where it was, and we walked a way together. She told me she was a dancer for Katherine Dunham and that there was some openings . . .

Eartha applied for a spot, won a scholarship and left for Paris before she got into the dance troupe and eventually went to Europe with the Dunham dancers. In France she decided to strike out on her own and landed a job at a night club.

Orson Welles spotted her and cast her as Helen of Troy in his production of "Faust." Then she went to London, became a night club attraction, and moved on to Continental cities. Then the thing happened. Meanwhile, she'd picked up six languages and was ready to try her wings back home.

In a short time her price jumped from $350 a week to $5,000 and it has soared to other astronomical heights since then.

The Indians qualified for the finals in the Northern Electric Interdepartment hockey playoffs over the week-end by gaining a 5-5 tie with the Flyers. This was the fourth game of the series with the Indians winning one game while the other three ended in ties. They will now begin a best-of-three series with the Barons for the championship.

D. Barrett scored four goals for the Indians with Yorke getting the odd one. Yorke also had two assists with one each for Wright, Totten and J. Semark. Warthaugh netted four for the Flyers while Gregory got the other. Hurst had three assists and Barrett one.

Three penalties were dished out by referees J. Warthaugh and B. Hurst.

Intention Pass May Boomerang With Reduction of Catcher's Box

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—The intentional pass may boomerang with a bit or a balk this season under a new baseball rule whacking the catcher's box from 10 feet of roaming room to only 43 inches.

That change and a "stopwatch" mandate for a pitcher to deliver within 20 seconds when the bases are empty are the concept of some 49 revisions this year by baseball's official playing rules committee.

The catcher's box will be reduced in all directions by seven inches wide directly behind home plate, which is 17 inches wide. The former triangular catcher's box flared back to a 16-foot width.

A wild pitcher might soon see that a long-limbed hitter such as Ted Williams could smash for a hit.

WORLD CALL BALK

If the catcher gets outside his 43-inch box before the ball leaves the pitcher's hand, a balk will be called.

The rule prodding pitchers to turn within 20 seconds when the bases are unoccupied has been on the books for a long time, but now both the American and National leagues are being asked to enforce it by use of a stopwatch by the third-base umpire.

The revised code states that "weather and similar conditions shall take precedence in determining whether a called game shall be a suspended game."

Last year, a Milwaukee at Brooklyn night game was stopped by rain and couldn't be resumed when the curfew was reached. The umpire couldn't decide whether it should be an official game stopped by rain or a suspended contest stopped by curfew.

HORSE KILLED

BARRIE (CP)—A horse which was pulling a cutter through the snow was killed Saturday night when it bolted into the path of a truck driven by Raymond Seifer of Thornton, Ont. The cutter was being driven by Edgar Frester of Thornton, who was apparently trying to tie the horse to a post, when it bolted in front of the truck.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

The making of a small slam is very easy. All you have to do is take 12 tricks before the opponents can take two. Any good player should be able to do it if he has the right stuff.

But how does a pair know they have the right stuff for a slam? Before even attempting to get there, one partner must have learned of 12 possible tricks and a satisfactory trump suit, if any.

Having discovered tricks enough and the trump (if any) is it sound business to go to a slam? Not yet. These are only the first two needs for knowing a slam is possible.

Still to be considered is this third important factor: Can you prevent opponents from taking two tricks? In other words, have you such control of all suits that no more than one trick will be lost?

This need led to the invention of many types of conventions for the showing of controls. Some of them died in their tracks. Of those that survived, some are better than others.

Take the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ 9	♠ A K 10 5
♥ A K 9 5 3	♥ Q 8 7 4
♦ A 9 6	♦ K Q 2
♣ K 5 3	♣ 6 4 2

A good pair will soon reveal to each other a combination that expects to take 12 tricks. Also the desirability of using hearts as the trump suit. Any sound bidding system will tell that much.

Thus, a slam should be investigated. What is the purpose of any further investigation? To see if all suits are under control so that the opponents can be kept from taking two tricks.

From where south is sitting he will get sufficient information of this if he is told north has two aces or an ace and two singletons. He suspects that much in north. But he can be told for sure.

For giving such control information there are no less than half a dozen different methods now in use. Some are better than others. The best is good enough for you.

GALT RINK WINS

GALT (CP)—Curlers from Galt won the preliminary round for the Governor - General's Curling Trophy Saturday, defeating Kitchener Granite Club 29-28.

The Galt rinks advance to group playoffs at Guelph next Thursday and the winners play in the finals at Toronto Friday.

Conrad Nagel Explains Absence From Hollywood for 7 Years

By BO STROMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "After, you've been on top of the heap in Hollywood and things start going scay, that's the time to get the heck out of town."

That's how Conrad Nagel explains his seven-year absence from the movie town, where he was a matinee idol and civic leader for many years. He is back here for a film return in "All That Heaven Allows" with Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson.

Nagel, who started in pictures in 1918, was one of the pioneers of Hollywood. He helped colonize Beverly Hills when that town was no more than a string of bean fields. He was a founder of the Motion Picture Academy and its president. He headed the Motion Picture Relief Fund and was a leader in actors' unions. Why then did he turn his back on Hollywood?

"Very simple—I wasn't getting jobs," he replied.

MONEY PROBLEMS

Still mighty handsome at 57, Nagel is one of the more articulate of actors. Acutely aware of the economic problems of actors, he made this observation:

"Today's crime is time when it appeared that actors could give up their salary life and settle down in one place. They are during the best day of the movies, when a lot of those good livings here and even took part in civic affairs.

"But with the end of the movie boom, only a handful of performers were able to stay here and make good money. The rest of us had to return to the status of strolling players, as actors have been since the days of Shakespeare and before."

TRADE FAIR MAY 30

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's eighth international trade fair will be opened at Toronto May 30 by Prof. Ludwig Erhard, West Germany's economics minister, the trade department announced Friday. About 22 countries have already applied for space, and it is evident, said the department, that the fair will be larger thi year than in 1954.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Sunday walk with pop to improve his appetite for dinner. I'm wearing my new hat, and yet I'm not attracting a bit more attention that usual. It's all very discouraging. It's enough to cause a man to neglect his personal appearance. To put it breefly, what's the use? he said.

But G, pop, people dont look at you unless there's something very diffrent and unusual about you, I said, and pop said, According to your mother, He's both unusual and refreshing for me to have a new hat and your mother is a very observant woman.

I bet if you put 2 cigars in your mouth instead of just one, and smoke them both together, I bet people will look all right, I said, and pop said, Perhaps, but I'm afraid they would soon in a critical spirit, and what I crave is admiration.

Well then I'll tell you what, pop, I said. Sing Down Where the Wurtzberger Flows. You sound swell when you sing that, I bet you'd be admired all right, I said, and pop said, I haven't sung in public since I was a quire boy, I'm sure I'd get stage fritz.

Then jimminies, pop, I know, I said. Buy 2 hot dog santwiches at the hamberger place on the Avenue, and we'll both walk along eating them with delicious expressions, and everybody will look at you will be jellies, and you wont have to be nervis, because I'll be in it with you, I said.

That's the most brilliant suggestion so far, but it wouldn't be fair to the fine. Sunday dinner your mother is preparing pop said. Anyway, now that I come to think of it virtue is its own reward, so I'm I'll just be satisfied with my own admiration.

Which he probably was anyway.

Anglers, Hunters Ask Classes In Conservation

STURGEON FALLS (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters says conservation should be taught in the class room.

At its annual meeting Sunday the federation endorsed a resolution asking that a course on how to protect wildlife and natural resources be added to the province's list of school subjects.

Still with the accent on youth, the federation called for a "safe-gun-handling" test for prospective gun-owners under 18 years of age. Delegates said the test would help reduce hunting fatalities.

The meeting also called for an immediate start on a program to halt pollution of streams, rivers and lakes and said the province should establish a mobile unit to inspect suspected instances of polluted waters.

Other resolutions adopted included:

That spears and nets be banned in Grey and Bruce counties during daylight hours in April and May.

ASK UNIFORM SIZE

That the legal length for yellow pickerel be brought to a uniform 15 inches throughout the province.

That the duck season be set two weeks later because the climate is warming.

That the pheasant season open on a Saturday.

That deputy game wardens have distinctive identification, such as arm bands.

That all members assist the department during hunting seasons and that they advise the local department office where they intend to hunt.

George Hambly of the Port Arthur Anglers and Hunters Club was elected president of the provincial body. Sam Bartley, North Bay chairman for nine years of the federation, was elected vice-president. Controller Wants Conference On Unemployment

TORONTO (CP)—Controller Ernest W. Jones of Ottawa has called for an immediate federal-provincial conference on the question of relief for employable unemployed.

"The federal government is doing nothing," Mr. Jones told a meeting of the Ontario welfare council here Saturday and the "province is doing nothing. The unemployed can't eat snow until the roses bloom."

The meeting asked the Ontario welfare council to take to Ottawa a plea to advance the federal-provincial conference proposed for June so that an immediate plan of assistance for these unemployed could be worked out. It also asked council president Robert A. Willson to lead a delegation to Ontario Premier Frost.

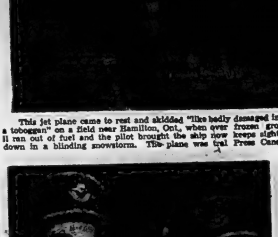
Representatives from Guelph, Hamilton, Kingston, North Bay, Kitchener, Oshawa, Owen Sound, Peterborough, Waterloo, Windsor, Ottawa and Toronto said it was beyond the ability of their cities to pay the assistance needed.

The meeting said the number of transient unemployed is a growing problem. Major Norman Buckley of the Salvation Army in Toronto said he had registered 2,300 men in the last three months.

The meeting decided to await the outcome of the Ontario council's approach to the federal and provincial governments before deciding upon further action.

South American Boys Making Soft Music

KITCHENER (CP)—Nine South American boys attending St. Jerome's high school here are making sweet music the Latin way and their fellow students love it.



The nine, who range in age from 15 to 19, are from Caracas, Venezuela, and their orchestra specializes in the mambo, samba, tango, and anything else with a hot Latin beat.

The group, which includes two sets of brothers, has been together since September and has recently played several engagements at local dances and parties.

PLANE DOWNED IN SNOWSTORM, PILOTS UNHURT

This jet plane came to rest and skidded "like badly damaged in the three-quarter of a mile skid a toboggan" on a field near Hamilton, Ont., when over frozen ground. An armed RCAF guard in an out of fuel and the pilot brought the ship over heavy sightseers at a safe distance. (Cen- down in a blinding snowstorm. The plane was tral Press Canadian Photos.)

F/O Frank Hawthorn, of Brantford, Ont., left, was pilot of the jet and F/O Reg. Russell, Toronto, the co-pilot. They said they could not find the Mount Hope airport in the storm and after making two attempts to land which were frustrated by the sight of hydro-electric wires they trusted to luck and belly-landed the plane on the field. Both stepped out of the wreckage unhurt.

Legless Hero, Douglas Bader, Visiting Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—A British oil company executive on a business tour is coming to Ottawa today to make a speech.

That in itself would scarcely cause a ripple of excitement in this city, accustomed to visitors from all parts of the world, but in this case there is a difference. The visitor is Douglas Bader, the man who flew to fame in the Second World War despite the loss of both legs.

In Montreal Sunday, when he arrived by plane from the United Kingdom, Bader said he planned to travel to Ottawa today by car.

"Flying makes me nervous," he added with a smile.

In a combat career cut short in March, 1941, when he was shot down and taken prisoner, Bader commanded the Canadian Hurricane squadron of the RAF in its fiercest battles, personally destroyed 20½ German planes. He was awarded the DSO and bar, DFC and bar, Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor. At war's end he held the rank of group captain.

He did all this despite a handicap that would keep all but the most fearless on the ground. Both his legs were amputated after a flying accident in 1931, one below, the other above the knee. Courage and perseverance put him on his feet again and he was flying with the RAF three months after the way began.

Bader is in Canada primarily on business, but he expects to meet some of his buddies of the old No. 242 Squadron which, under his command, shot down 67 German planes for the loss of only six pilots in 1940. This is his first visit to Canada since 1951.

His speech here will be a dinner address Tuesday night to the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, the national body of 36 Canadian flying clubs, which begin its 26th annual convention today.

MacArthur Convinced Asia Being Lost By Weak Policy

By RUSSELL BRINES

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur turns 75 next Wednesday, convinced that Asia is being lost through American policies he considers weak.

He also believes that Asian wars are not over, despite the present lull, and remains sure that the West lost a great chance for peace by turning down his proposals for smashing Chinese military power in Korea.

Close associates say these are some of the thoughts MacArthur discusses privately as he approaches the fourth year of his enforced retirement.

MAINTAINS ALOOFNESS

To the press and public generally, the general has been virtually unreachable since shortly after he was deposed as supreme commander in the scific by President Truman. The two men had differed on how to meet Red China's participation in the Korean fighting.

In the aloofness of retirement, MacArthur turned down my request for an interview in advance of his birthday. In two wars and in occupied Japan, I had previously obtained numerous interviews with him since 1941.

The general now spends much of his time in an apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, behind silken "security" that in some respects is tighter than that which he maintained in wartime. The elevator operator will not let a stranger off at his floor in the Waldorf tower—the 37th—without clearance from the hotel front desk.

CLINGS TO CONVICTIONS

Talking with associates and others close to the general's new "headquarters," however, one gets a picture of a man who has drawn the past, and some of his associates from the past, tightly around himself; of a general who never wanted to retire and still unrolls a call back to duty that has never come; and of a man who clings fast to his firm convictions of the past.

MacArthur remains convinced, his associates say, that the Chinese Communists were assured their Manchurian "sanctuary" would not be attacked before they entered the Korean War. He did not believe that any general would risk his major force in a peninsula like Korea if there were a chance his lines of communication and his attacking bases would be destroyed.

It would have been easy, he is described as believing, for "someone playing both sides" to transmit that information to Peiping.

ADVICE NOT SOUGHT

MacArthur, say his intimates, believes:

1. The failure to cripple Red China militarily in Korea means that the Peiping regime will continue on the march in Asia, carrying the main Communist threat, and using forces where necessary until stopped by force.

2. Indochina, divided at Geneva and facing general elections by July, 1956, already is lost to communism. The rest of Red-threatened Asia can be saved only by strong measures designed to cut down Red China's power and restore American prestige.

Two years ago, MacArthur outlined to president Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles the global peace plan he had suggested in a widely-publicized speech to the National Association of Manufacturers.

The president is reported to have rejected the plan.

The results of this meeting were never publicized. And the general's associates say that his advice has not since been sought by the administration.

SLOWS DOWN AT 107

Equipped with crash helmet and oxygen pipe, Billy Lundy, of Crestview, Fla., was about to celebrate his 107th birthday with a ride in a jet plane at a U.S. army base when he decided the machine was a bit too noisy for him. A veteran of the Civil War, Lundy observed that the plane "would have been a big help frightening the Yankees."—Central Press Canadian.

FALSE BOMB ALARM

NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb scare at the New York Herald Tribune Friday night sent police and newspaper employees' searching the building for an hour, but no explosive was found. An unidentified man had telephoned the paper, saying "a bomb is going to go off in your building in two hours."

Coal Mines Facing Crisis In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP)—The Nova Scotia coal mining industry, biggest single business in the Maritimes and supporting one-sixth of the province's population, has hit a new snag in its battle for survival.

Three mines are closed and 2,200 miners are idle. Other mines are expected to shut down as coal orders peter out.

It's been described as the worst crisis to face the coal industry since the end of the Second World War.

Union leaders have blamed the slump on the inroads of oil and the federal government. They criticized federal authorities for not introducing a national fuel policy to provide markets for their coal.

Vanwall Special Being Prepared For Big Race

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Millionaire Tony Vandervell will give his new British racing car its first competitive test in the Grand Prix de Pau, France, April 16, and on that testbed Stirling Britain's hopes of breaking the continental auto racing monopoly.

Vandervell hopes to end Britain's lean years in Grand Prix racing with his 2.5-litre Vanwall Special.

He has signed Mike Hawthorn, 25-year-old ace who turned out with the Italian Ferrari team last year, and Peter Collins, 24-year-old British star.

Vandervell is no publicity seeker. His employe no press agent at his west London works and keeps the technical performances of his car strictly to himself.

He refuses to be drawn on his chances in this year's Grand Prix racing.

Vandervell looks on Grand Prix racing as a "private affair." He is wildly enthusiastic about the sport and wants to see Britain with a chance of victory.

Desmond Scanell, secretary of the British Racing Drivers Club, recommended: "There is no doubt that the Pau circuit will be a tremendous test of the Vanwall Special. The circuit is small and twisting. The race duration is three hours."

Commented The Times' motor racing correspondent in a review of the 1954 season: "The most promising British car this year has been the Vanwall Special, which was still in the course of development and so whose construction, Mr. A. G. Vandervell, every British follower of the sport is indebted for a courageous effort is upheld national prestige."

Atom Chief Urges Industry To Develop A-Power

Expects Pilot Plant Will Be Ready Early in '58

HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Richard L. Hearn, who first joined the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission 40 years ago as a fledgling engineer, has been named as chairman. He succeeds Robert H. Saunders killed in a plane crash near London, Ont. (CP Photo).

TORONTO (CP)—Industry has been challenged by the head of Canada's atomic energy project to risk capital to help this country produce electricity by atomic power.

The challenge was issued by W. J. Bennett, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, in a speech Monday night to the Toronto Board of Trade disclosing that the design of a small experimental atomic power plant to produce electricity will be started this spring. He said the pilot plant will begin operating early in 1958.

Mr. Bennett said the prototype power plant will be developed jointly in AECL, which operates the atomic energy plant at Chalk River, Ont., 125 miles northwest of Ottawa, and private industry. Industry would be expected to bear part of the cost but the bulk of the money would come from the crown company.

MANY RESOLUTIONS

Mr. Bennett said he had read many resolutions during his years in Ottawa urging that private enterprise should be allowed the maximum freedom in developing Canada.

"A corollary of this principle must be the willingness of private enterprise to risk capital in new fields," he said. "I know of no field which is more clearly suited to this condition than the industrial application of atomic energy."

The government was justified in continuing to spend large amounts of money on atomic research because of the probability that atomic power will provide electricity in areas which have exhausted their hydro resources or where the cost of ordinary power is very expensive.

The expenditure also was justified because it would help create a new industry in Canada capable of supplying atomic power plants in Canada and abroad.

Highways Dept. Probe Resumed By Committee

TORONTO (CP)—Provincial auditor H. L. Cosgrove said today irregularities which took place in the Ontario highways department should not reflect on departmental personnel generally.

Mr. Cosgrove was the first witness called at the resumption of hearings of the Ontario legislature's committee investigating irregularities in the highways department.

Hearings were adjourned last summer until completion of court cases dealing with individuals and companies involved in irregularities.

Before Mr. Cosgrove was called, chairman Robert Macaulay (Lib.-Sarnia), Labor-Progressive member for Toronto St. Andrew, read a brief verbal battle over Mr. Salsberg's request to appear before the committee. He was told by the chairman he could speak before the legislature.

Mr. Salsberg, who requested permission to make a "suggestion" before the committee sent out its tentative, protested against the ruling refusing his request.

Mr. Cosgrove in his 17-page report said substantial and far-reaching changes have been made in the department, in most cases gradually along the line of the Nicholl of the management consultant from of J. D. Woods and Gordon, called in last year to survey the department's organization and administrative procedures.

"It is my feeling that the real benefit to the province in the investigation will be that action taken place is the assurance that they have been impartial and searching and that steps have been taken to remedy weaknesses, to prevent it's regularities and to tighten organization," said Mr. Cotnam.

He said in some of the contract cases investigated, specifications had to be changed through no fault of the department during the course of work. The department has been working under great pressure with a great backlog of work and with changing conditions.

There were a number of cases where contracts had to be changed from time to time to meet the standards of the trans-Canada highway, he said.

Inaccuracies in many of the original estimates were generally the result of inadequate planning and engineering, Mr. Cotnam said. In some cases more time should have been due to unforeseen circumstances, such as the amount of material required to fill in a muskeg area.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: An area of low pressure, over southern Michigan Tuesday morning, is moving northeastward. Ahead of it, southern Ontario will have light snow and a little milder weather today. In the wake of this disturbance, colder weather will dominate all of Ontario and quite a bit of the eastward out of the province. Northern Ontario's cold weather continues with little change.

Churchill Not Eager to Confer With Malenkov

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill said today he is not eager for a meeting on Far East between himself and Russia's Georgi Malenkov would be likely to yield favorable results at the present time.

Churchill was replying to questions in the House of Commons which resumed its session today after the long Christmas recess.

Emanuel Shinwell, a former Labor defence minister, said international tension would be lessened but seemed to be increasing, particularly in the Far East. He suggested the prime minister should give his best attention to the possibility of a meeting with Malenkov.

Churchill replied: "The Far East is not one of the topics we were likely to open had we met."

Shinwell said the present situation in the Far East was grave enough to warrant reconsideration of the matter.

Widows and Orphans of Guerrillas Among First Refugees from Tachens

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An old grey landing ship slid into the small harbor of Keelung on Formosa today with the first 193 refugees—many of them widows and orphans of Communist-menaced Tachen islands 600 miles to the north.

The dingy craft carried widows and orphans of Nationalist guerrillas who died last week in the defence of Yikiangshan island. One woman, the widow of a guerrilla chieftain, carried a 12-day-old baby.

On board also were 18 sick and wounded Nationalist soldiers and 23 children between 14 years of age from a Tachen orphanage, and 15 women of the orphanage staff.

The grieving women and solemn children walked down a gangway past Chinese sailors in the Hangchow and Loyang, formerly United States destroyers. The wounded were carried on stretchers.

Only two other ports were among Formosa's many natural harbors, the father of a guerrilla squad leader killed at Yikiangshan and the orphanage staff.

The evacuation was a National-ist operation, possibly the forerunner of a complete withdrawal from the two small Tachen islands.

But the evacuation ship on the final stage of its trip passed through waters protected by the U.S. 7th Fleet.

The fleet is in position to assist in the complete withdrawal of 20,000 Nationalist troops from the Tachens if it gets orders to do the job.

HOUSE EXPECTED TO VOTE SOON ON ARMING GERMANY

Only Few Members Still to Have Say

OTTAWA (CP)—After three days of serious and sometimes emotional debate the Commons is expected to vote today on admission of a rearmed West Germany to the North Atlantic alliance.

Only a few members still are to speak on the government's motion for ratification of the Paris agreements to make West Germany the 15th member of NATO and permit her a 500,000-man army under Western control.

Ratification by the 265-member Chamber is expected.

Every Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit member who has spoken has endorsed the proposal, though some with reservations or misgivings.

CCF Leader Coldwell has said he will vote for approval, but seven of the 24-member group have said they will vote against and another has said he will refrain from voting.

CROLL COMMENT

Some of the emotion was injected Monday by a veteran Jewish member, David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina).

He said that logic and realism had won over "my hatred and bitterness and emotions" in deciding to rearm a country where the worst Nazis had been tried, executed.

In one section of his mid-Tuesday ruling, he said, there is scarcely a home which has not suffered the bereavement of Jews.

Members could only hope and their best judgment that rearmament of West Germany would prevent another blood bath.

His decision matched that of the Commons' only other Jewish member, Leon Crestohl (L—Montreal Cartier), who said last week that the Nazis had murdered and killed more than 60 uncles, aunts and cousins in his family.

ONE FACTOR

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said one factor which influenced him in supporting West German rearmament was the deciding factor of men who advocated ratification, the late External Affairs Minister Pearson, who, he said, has worked for peace since the end of the Second World War.

Reaction Mixed To E.P. Taylor's Offer of Centre

TORONTO (CP) — Reaction was mixed today to the offer by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and associates to build a $12,000,000 sports centre for the city.

Church leaders indicated in a number of statements they were glad because the building might bear the name of the brewery company donor. City councillors seemed to the main, appeared favorable.

Stafford Foster, chairman of the board of Maple Leaf Gardens, called the project "just magnificent" and added: "It said the auditorium couldn't possibly break even and would end up as a charge on the taxpayers.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said he will ask city council next week for a go-ahead to negotiate with the Taylor group for the setting up of an auditorium started this year.

NASSER GREETS NEW AMBASSADOR

Federation of Agriculture Wants Better Price Supports

EDMONTON (CP)—The 430,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture wants improvement in the federal government's price support program.

H. H. Hannam of Ottawa, CFA president, said today in a speech prepared for the establishment and maintenance of support prices will be presented Wednesday to the federation convention. He did not outline the proposals.

He said the farm price-support program has already done much to save agriculture from a protracted depression.

But the act which set up the program provided no specific formula to explain under what circumstances and in what manner support will be applied.

Mr. Hannam said the lack of formula leaves producers in the "unenviable position of special pleaders on each commodity as they go into difficulty."

It left open a situation whereby uninformed taxpayers might compel political considerations to take precedence over economic safeguards to agriculture and general welfare.

It also left government members in a position where the guiding principle of their decisions might be "as little support as they can safely get away with."

Mr. Hannam's remarks were contained in a copy of his presidential address released to the press before delivery.

Misunderstanding and misconception had clouded the price-support picture.

"If the Canadian people could understand that farm price supports are designated primarily to prevent farm prices from collapsing to distress levels, I am confident the attitude of the public mind would change to one of sympathy and acquiescence, if not of positive support."

The 1954 crop season had been one of the most rewarding in the years from the weather standpoint. He estimated the drop in net farm income for 1954 was at least $200,000,000, three-quarters of which was due to the declining in the agricultural sector.

Farmers had been caught in a cost-price squeeze. Prices of farm products had reached their peak in 1951 and then started to fall. But farm costs for production and living had not declined.

"The result has been a cost-price squeeze which today represents a decline in the purchasing power of farm products of about 20 per cent since 1951."

Farmers were hopeful 1955 would be a better year, although some aspects of the outlook were uncertain.

It appeared the bottom of the cycle for Canadian agriculture would be reached in the period from about the middle of 1954 to the middle of 1955. From then on, the prospect is for some improvement but there were no indications how much.

Prime Minister of Pakistan Urges UN Settle Formosa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan, ranking wide over topics at a press conference, has called for United Nations settlement of the Formosa crisis and suggested that Queen Elizabeth, as head of the Canadian constitution, is a "fiction."

The 5-year-old Moslem leader flew here Monday from New York for a three-day visit, his first since he left this capital three years ago at his country's high commissioner. Today he will call on Prime Minister St. Laurent and later will lunch with the Canadian Cabinet ministers at Mr. St. Laurent's residence, 24 Sussex street.

Mr. Mohammed Ali told reporters Monday the Queen "is the symbolic head of Canada, but she has no say in the affairs of this country."

"Canada is fully sovereign. The Queen cannot do anything against the wishes of Canada. She does not rule, she reigns.

"Her position here is symbolic. It is not real, it is a fiction."

He also said he does not believe the present fighting of the Chinese Nationalists on the Tachen islands shooting war—unless Red China attempts a direct invasion of Chiang Kai-shek's stronghold.

"The matter of Formosa and the other islands near it will have to be settled. It should be left to the United Nations. There should be no difficulties in a settlement through peaceful means."

Mr. Mohammed Ali, who met reporters not long after President Eisenhower in Washington had proclaimed United States "readiness to fight," said he did not want to be drawn too deeply into a discussion of the current Formosan crisis.

Pakistan did not recognize China's government because it claimed to be the government of Chiang Kai-shek when the "fact" was that the mainland is ruled by the Communists.

The leader of more than 90,000,000 Pakistanis offered his explanation of the Queen's role in Commonwealth affairs in answering a question on the position once it becomes a republic later this year, a decision he was certain will be discussed at the prime ministers' conference in London at the end of this month.

Under the republic, Mr. Mohammed Ali said, the governor-general will be replaced by a president appointed by Parliament. The president will represent, not the Queen, but the people, he said, but "our relationship with the Commonwealth will be as close as it is today—if not closer."

Paris Flood Threat Eases

PARIS (Reuters) — The flood threat in Paris eased off today as the Seine river started to drop after rising 19 feet, and was now above normal, while all along the courses of flooded French rivers waters was contained in billets of 6 francs.

The Seine at Paris almost reached the level of the disastrous 1924 flood but was short by 18 inches. Damage was reported light in the centre of the city, although the suburbs were under water.

The French Red Cross announced that nine reception centres have been opened in hard-hit towns around Paris. The worst areas lie on the banks of the Marne, which flows into the Seine, where thousands of persons were turned out of their homes by the rising waters.

TRADE MINISTER OF SOVIET UNION GIVES UP JOB

Shift to Place Emphasis On Heavy Industry

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP)—Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan, high priest of the Mikoyan, 60-year-old expert peanuter goods, gave up his job as trade minister Monday night, and foreign observers view the shift as evidence of a Soviet trend back to prime emphasis on heavy industry.

Mikoyan, 60-year-old expert negotiator of foreign trade agreements, held on to his other chief posts, including one of the three Soviet deputy premierships and membership on the policy-making central committee of the Soviet Communist party.

An announcement by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet said the deputy premier had been relieved of the trade ministry at his own request and that Dmitri Pavlovich Pavlov, 55 and later Dmitri Pavlovich Pavlov, 55 and later in the continued buildup of the heavy industries which furnish the Soviet war planes.

Mikoyan's surrender of his trade job coincided with an editorial in Pravda, the Communist party organ, calling for the Soviet Union to concentrate on heavy industry instead of consumer goods.

Significantly Mikoyan's successor Pavlov, 55 and later Dmitri Pavlovich, was a former Communist party, put stress in the continued buildup of the heavy industries which furnish the Soviet war planes.

Retail Credit Assoc. Explained To Underwriters

The January meeting of the Quinte Life Underwriters was held in Lattimer's Town Room.

Mr. Graham Biddell, of the Retail Credit Association, Cobourg office, was the guest speaker.

Mr. Biddell gave an outline of the history of the Retail Credit Association, since its beginning in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1896. The company was formed to provide credit reports for the retailers, but as their first report to an insurance company in 1900 was to complete the insurance companies began to use their facilities to such an extent that now 90 per cent of their business is from the insurance companies.

They now have 157 branches with approximately 4,000 personnel giving 180 different types of reports.

In their work as insurance inspectors they must use care in selecting their source of information and find that employees and business people give the best reports. No adverse report is accepted until at least two inspectors have given reports and all information checked.

Mr. Biddell was thanked by Bob Fogan and presented with a Belleville cheese as a memento of his visit.

City police learned of the search and a few minutes later apprehended Thain at the rear of Bishop's Seed Store on Front St.

Thain, who was sentenced for shop breaking, was held for escort back to the Industrial farm.

There was a good attendance of members at the meeting presided over by President Don Thomas. Plans for next year's operation of the Kinsmen's Community Swimming Pool, together with other projects, were the main items of business discussion for the night.

Govt. Says No Contracts Given to Entertainment Firm

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government says it has given no contracts to an unnamed construction firm since the company purchased and refurbished a luxurious country home for entertaining public officials before contract talks.

The information, tabled Monday in the Commons for Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre), said nothing of another deal between the government and Whether or not federal officials will be entertained there.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has said he will try to ascertain when any federal officials have been at the retreat, on which the taxpayers ought to declare $27,789 from 1951 taxable income for renovations.

The statement Monday said Revenue Minister McCann checked whether federal contracts "of any kind" were let to the company or the subsidiary which purchased the property, believed in Quebec's Laurentian hills.

It was found that during this period the federal government had not awarded any contract whatever to the said appellant company or to its subsidiary.

The information made it apparent that the federal government knows the company's identity.

Six Families Homeless In $100,000 Blaze

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—Firemen fought for six hours Monday to control a $100,000 blaze that left six families homeless damaged five stores and threatened to destroy the entire business section of this St. Thomas district town.

It took the combined efforts of more than 40 firemen from the nearby RCAF station, Malahide Township, Imperial and Aylmer to curb the outbreak.

The blaze broke out when a furnace in the basement of a downtown building exploded. Firefighters kept the flames from spreading to adjacent buildings.

Potato Growers Should Organize

TORONTO (CP)—A recommendation that potato growers across Canada organize to improve and standardize their marketing was made today by E. K. Hampson of Hamilton, former president and manager of the American Potash Institute.

He told the potato section of the Ontario Field Crop and Soil Improvement Association the setting of proper grade standards, packaging, problems of imports and exports, production practices and many other matters are of "direct" interest to the grower.

"They could be dealt with more effectively by an organization of their own than by remaining as a less significant fraction of a larger group having widely varied interests," he said.

Peace Commission Flies to Report On Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The inter-American peace commission scheduled an all-night flight back to Washington today for new talks with the Organization of American States council on the graves" Costa Rican-Nicaraguan situation.

Chairman Luis Quintanilla of Mexico said he will place before the council a new request from Costa Rica and also "various suggestions" to solve the problem with which we are presented."

Quintanilla refused to give any clue to the nature of Costa Rica's request, but there is speculation that President Jose Figueres is seeking more military aid to counter the superior air force Nicaragua President Anastasio Somoza is assembling in Managua.

The Costa Rican request and the commission's action followed Somoza's statement that abolition of the neutral zone at the west end of the Costa Rican-Nicaraguan border, ordered for today, raises the threat of war between his forces and Costa Rica's.

TROOPS AT BORDER

Semoza said he will rush reinforcements to the border and the shedding of "any drop of Nicaraguans' blood will mean war."

Extra Treatment For Indigent Patients Cut

PORT STANLEY (CP)—Controversy flared here today, sparked by the village reeve, Mrs. Mercer Knight, who has objected to prolonging the lives of aged incurables.

She advocated allowing them to die quickly and comfortably under sedation.

She made the statement at Elgin county council meeting Monday discussing heavy indigent hospital costs. Since then the council has cut payments to county hospitals for extra treatment and drugs for indigent patients.

Reeve McCarthy brought up a case of $108 in extras, including drugs, for a 90-year-old man "whose family was running around in cars."

The family used as an example by Mrs. Knight for its "useless" medical care was shocked by the quick death theory.

"That's downright," said Mrs. James Hillman, the widow.

"God didn't want the man but to listen to her, I suppose I should have locked the door and said, 'All right dad, you can die'."

"Jesus many times prolonged life but he never shortened it," and Rev. Morley J. Clarke, of Port Stanley United Church. Rev. H. Bobechy-Thomas, of Christ church of England in Port Stanley was not so certain.

"If we have no right to hasten death, then have we any right to prolong life?" he asked.

5 Rubber Firms Are Granted Leave to Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Five rubber companies, charging that federal anti-combines injunctions law is an invasion by Parliament of a provincial field, today were granted leave to appeal their combines conviction before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court, which has been studying the appeal application for months, gave no reason for its decision. The appeal likely will be heard at the next court session, to begin in the latter part of April.

The companies launched their motion for leave to appeal months ago. The court has been pondering the application because of the gravity of the case and its possible impact on federal criminal laws affecting combines operations.

The five companies, among 19 rubber firms found guilty of operating an illegal price-fixing combine, charge Parliament has invaded territory that belongs to the provinces under the constitution.

GRANTED INJUNCTION

A Toronto court, in addition to assessing fines totalling $250,000, granted an injunction prohibiting the companies from carrying on operations that might lead to a repetition of the combines offences.

The case is the last appeal opportunity for the five companies — Dominion Tire and Rubber Co., Dominion Rubber Co. Ltd., Dunlop Tire and Rubber Co., Ltd., Gutta Percha and Rubber Ltd., and B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd. Lower courts have rejected their appeals.

The companies argued that under federal law on injunctions and prohibition orders, Parliament has no authority to delegate the guise of enacting legislation in relation to criminal law, to reach out and control individuals and industries in the province which is the legislative jurisdiction of the province under Section 92 of the British North America Act."

Court injunctions have been granted in combine cases involving companies other than the rubber firms. This has led to complaints by companies that their operations are being unreasonably restrained. All major industry in the country has been watching the test issue closely.

Yugoslav Court Convicts Pair, Then Frees Them

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP) — Communist Yugoslavia's freed former vice-president Milovan Djilas and Vladimir Dedijer early today, but clamped what appears to be a judicial gag on the two critics of President Tito's regime.

In a 15-hour closed-door trial ending shortly after midnight, a court found Djilas, who was the former Red bigwigs of conspiring against Tito's government by printing hostile propaganda in the foreign press. They were given suspended sentences and were released on probation.

The terms of their probation were not disclosed, but it is assumed they are required to remain silent during the probationary period.

Trading was comparatively light. Volume to 3 p.m. was 4,310,000 shares compared with 5,786,000 to the same point Monday.

Lower-priced and many of which have been climbing steadily for a week or more suffered most. At 1 p. m. Lorado was off 30 cents to 53.45. Issues off 10 cents or more included Faraday, Chimo, Cassiar, Barnet and Consolidated Denison.

McIntyre dropped $1.50 to $67.50 and Preston, Palo and Teck-Hughes were also down.

Western oils eased but most groups were less than 25 cents.

Steels and motors led industrials lower. International Paper was off $1.50 but General Dynamics jumped $4 to $85.

Jane Pickens Thinks Radio Gives Stars Better Build-Up

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Pretty Jane Pickens says she thinks radio in the heyday gave its stars a better buildup than television does now.

Looking forward to the Reunion of the Pickens sisters in a professional performance on the air in 15 years, Jane recalls the time when the networks had a stable of people, and they built them up.

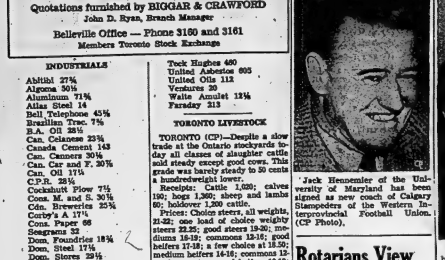
Jane, who now has cut her broadcasting activities to a weekly Jane Pickens show on NBC radio, says:

"They tried to nurture talent in those days. Now all try to get all the talent."

Jane and sisters Patti and Helen will sing together again on Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town on CBS-TV Jan. 30 in a tribute to radio based on a book by Ben Gross, radio-TV editor of the New York News.

Jane calls it a testimonial to radio's support of its stars that the Pickens sisters have become a legend, although they were on as a trio only from 1932 through 1937.

"One of the reasons NBC built me up," she says, "was because CBS had the Boswell sisters who already were well established before we came along. They had every single night and on commercials all around the clock. You could hardly turn on the radio without hearing us."



The Pickens sisters broke up in late 1937. Helen now is Mrs. Thomas Acheson of New York and Patti is Mrs. Robert Simmons of Bucks county, Pa. And Jane became a Mrs. for the second time last March when she married William C. Langley, New York investment banker.

Jane has had a TV show of her own for 10 months and may come back later, is no detractor of video.

"More people may see me on TV than ever heard us at one time on radio," she declares, "and more will see us than the total of all who saw all our personal appearances."

NBC is jubilant that two of its color specticulars are on the "top 10" of the latest Nielsen TV audience popularity ratings. Max Liebman's Babes in Toyland was listed as first with 50.5 per cent of TV homes tuned in, nosing out Lucy by 4-10 of 1 per cent. And Producers Showcase with its daytime presentation came in tenth with 40.3 per cent. It indicates NBC finally is learning how to produce color shows that also are good in black and white, which is the way they are seen by all but a few thousand viewers.

Rotarians View Film of Mexican Bullfight

Thousands of vacationing North Americans shoot a lot of friendly bull about the cruelties of Mexico, in particular its charming senoritas and gay caballeros. Lots of not-so-friendly bull also is dished to death in Mexico itself and this possibly is the greatest tourist attraction of the country—the bullfight.

At least so it should appear after watching the filmed record of a bullfight in Mexico City shown at the weekly luncheon of the Belleville Club, last Monday.

The film was presented by Phil Dodds, Picton newspaper editor and Sam Carvill, Belleville business man and deputy reeve of the town. Shot on vacation in Mexico last year, the film, in color, showed many typical Mexican scenes from life in the grimy Indian villages to deep-sea fishing in the Pacific off luxurious Acapulco.

Highlight of the show however was the bullfight in Mexico City.

A colorful, exciting affair, the bullfight is the national recreation of Mexico and is just about as blood-curdling as a Grey Owl game played from stock cars.

Following a parade around the arena by the picadors, banderilleros and matadors the ring is cleared, and the bull let loose. By his appearance a mounted picador attempts to drive a spear into the animal's powerful neck muscle, weakening it and causing him to lower his head. Then the ultimate process of the bull's death commences. Head down, he is increasingly infuriated by the minor cloak-waving matadors and banderos, who at regular intervals pepper the bull with feathered darts. After the bull is just about fit to be tied and wants to rope everyone in on the fun, the matador finds himself faced only with one man — the matador himself, who, concealed behind his cloak, prepares to finish off ol' toro.

PROCESS REVERSED

Sometimes, of course, the process is reversed, but happily not in this instance. Lithe and fleet of foot to escape the rare ramping bull of Toro, the matador glided round the animal watching for the split-second opportunity to drive his sword between the bull's shoulders.

A quick thrust home and the bull had had it. All that remained was to drive the sword through the animal's arteries. In this the bull unwittingly aids the matador. Swinging from side to side the matador keeps the bull dizzily turning in circles, the gyrations working the sword deeper until it pierces the vital spot.

Although only amateurs, both Mr. Dodds and Mr. Carville have a great deal to be proud of in this film-record of their vacation.

They were introduced to the club by Jack Yanover.

Five Members Parks Board Send Resignation to Council

TRENTON, (Special.)— Charging that council is obstructing efforts of the Parks' Board, secretary O. G. "Buster" Alyea resigned at a meeting of the board yesterday. His action was followed by the four other board members including Dr. J. W. Farley, ex-Mayor K. J. Couch, S. A. Fougnet and Mrs. Erva Wilkins.

Dick Whitley appointed to the board of parks' management by the council is the sole remaining member of the board. Mayor Ross Burtt sits ex-officio on the board.

Recent council appointments to the parks' board caused concern among board officers. Dr. J. W. Farley, and O. G. Alyea who had completed their three-year terms were up for re-appointment. Miss Helen Sutcliffe, who resigned, had completed one year of her three-year appointment.

Subsequently council members opposed a suggestion by Mayor Ross Burtt that Dr. Farley and Mr. Alyea be given three-year re-appointments and Dick Whitley a two-year term. Dick Whitley and Dr. Farley were recommended for the longer terms and Mr. Alyea was given the shorter appointment.

Announcing his resignation Dr. Farley said: "Everything most of the council with the exception of His Worship the Mayor has done has been destructive and hampering." Dr. Farley claimed that there would be no parks in Trenton if it hadn't been for Mr. Alyea's interest and energy.

Member Kenneth Couch remarked: "I want to register my disapproval of the unwarranted and premeditated action of council and I will forward my resignation also."

Mr. Couch moved a letter be sent to Senator W. A. Fraser to thank him for his co-operation and assistance over the years.

Mayor Ross Burtt commented: "No one with any common sense could do anything but appreciate what the Senator and the Parks Board have done by way of parks in town."

Mr. Couch put in a terse remark before the meeting closed. "When personal animosity is taken out of this thing my services are available," he said.

Lloyd Nolan Comes into Own In Splendid Broadway Play

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Captain Queeg has returned in triumph to Hollywood.

This Queeg is Lloyd Nolan, long known as a quietly competent performer in the films. Hollywood now takes a different view of him since his dramatic pyrotechnics on Broadway in "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." His finely shaded study of the neurotic captain drew raves in theatre critics and audiences alike.

It was a great satisfaction for Nolan, who has been one of the movies' most underrated performers. With some exceptions—notably "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"—he has usually been cast as a suave hoodlum or as a lean-jawed police hero. Broadway hit, he has been sought for a variety of roles.

"But don't get me wrong," he told me. "I'm not knocking type casting. It has done me well by me."

Nolan won't be able to accept the attractive offers for a while. Having just wound up the New York run in the play, he goes shortly in Chicago. Then he'll come here with the play and show the home-towners what he can do.

The actor has already played Queeg 500 times, never missing a performance. It's a tense role, requiring a breakdown on the witness stand. I asked if it didn't take a lot out of him emotionally.

"It was pretty tough at first, when I didn't know where I was going with the character," he admitted. "But after I got it all worked out, it wasn't too bad. Once in a while, when I'm not at my best physically, I allow myself to get carried away in the role. Then I can feel myself actually break down.

"But most of the time I'm under control. The actual breakdown is left to the audience when I write the rest of the scene."

Nolan said that his performance varied with the physical condition. In long runs such as this one, the acting is also governed by the attitude of the rest of the company. When one actor starts to let down, the audience runs like wildfire through the cast. But Caine Mutiny has been fortunate in having few such incidents.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has made no payment for relief or rehabilitation of Ontario residents who suffered damage in last October's hurricane and floods it was reported in a return tabled Monday in the Commons.

WATER DIET CURES ALL

For 30 days each year since 1948 Louis Solomon of Montreal, has gone on a water diet and when this picture was taken he was on the 23rd day of this year's fast. He says he not only loses about 50 pounds but the diet cures all his ills. Breakfast, lunch and dinner total six cups of hot water. For mid-morning and afternoon snacks he has three glasses of cool water, not ice cold. Medical checkups throughout the dieting show him in top physical condition. (CP Photo).

35,749,200 lbs. Cheese Imported House Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada imported 35,749,200 pounds of cheese from New Zealand, France, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and the United Kingdom from Jan. 1, 1950, to Oct. 31, 1954.

The imports were worth $14,891,-950, half the value of cheese exports in the same period. Exports totalling 104,143,500 pounds all went to the United Kingdom, except for 1,500 pounds sent to Italy in 1950.

None of the six other countries listed in a parliamentary return tabled Monday in the Commons for Maurice Bolvert (L—Nicolet Yamaska) purchased Canadian cheese in the period.

New Zealand was the major cheese exporter to Canada, sending about 20,000,000 pounds in 1950-52. No further sales were reported to Oct. 31, 1954. Canada received the least cheese from the United Kingdom—30,300 pounds.

Importation of cheese from New Zealand came up several times in the Commons this session. Opposition members have criticized the government for approving recently the importation of 2,250,000 pounds of New Zealand cheese when Canadian producers have heavy stocks in storage.

Appeals Decision

SIMCOE (CP) — An application by Jerry Simmons, 41, of Syracuse, N.Y., to appeal a murder conviction and death sentence for the carving of a Simcoe area service station operator will be heard before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Decision to grant Simmons leave to appeal would mean a stay of execution.

Simmons is under sentence to be hanged in Norfolk county jail Feb. 2, exactly one year from the night Bruce Beatty and his wife were fatally attacked in the living quarters of their nearby Renfrew filling station.

A previous appeal before the Ontario Court of Appeal was dismissed last week.

Stay Away From Crowds Best Way To Avoid Polio

EDMONTON (CP)—"Stay away from crowds" still seems to be the best advice on how to avoid polio.

This was among the findings of an Alberta health department research team which went into data on transmission of polio.

The research group was appointed by the health department to survey polio cases in Alberta between April 1, 1953, and March 31, 1954.

A total of 1,437 cases, or nearly 90 per cent of all persons stricken in the province in the 1953-54 outbreak, were studied.

Transmission through the air was given as the most probable explanation for 53.5 per cent of the cases investigated.

Restrictions On Granting Loans Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—Restrictions on the granting of loans by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which serve the vicinity of large airports were announced Monday by Public Works Minister Winters.

He told the Commons they have been imposed to protect the mortgage value of properties on which loans are approved by the government, Speaking privately, Mr. Winters added:

"After a study of all the aspects of the problem it was been decided that a new runway, and 1,000 feet from either side of a line that is a projection of the centre line of the runway. Loans also will not be approved within 1,000 feet from either side of a runway."

NOW TO SMALL ONES

The restrictions would apply to many commercial airports and some military airfields. They would not apply to small or secondary airports unlikely to develop any great extent.

Mr. Winters said a list of airports to which the restrictions will apply is being compiled by CMHC and the transport department. That would help towns which would be no misunderstanding about airports to which the restrictions will apply.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS

There are some advantages to living in a big city—If that big city happens to be Toronto and if you happen to earn your bread by writing editorials or a newspaper column.

Gentlemen who are elected to the position of mayor of the Queen City of Toronto do share one thing in common —an uncanny ability to arouse controversy.

The editorial writer in a city a hundred miles distant from Ontario's metropolis envies the busy hitch his Toronto colleagues are enabled to pitch and toss in the sunlight of public opinion. He is, however, restrained from joining in most of the activity by the feeling that he should reserve his efforts for a similar opportunity in his own home fields. Unfortunately, such similar opportunities seldom present themselves.

Occasionally, however, the current Toronto controversy is so clearly concerned with a principle universally applicable that comment by outsiders may be pardoned. Such a case, it seems to us, is the latest public issue, regarding anonymous letters and what a mayor should do with them.

It appears that Mayor Phillips received an unsigned letter containing a charge against Herbert Moore, the city's purchasing agent. He publicly aired its contents at a board of control meeting and Mr. Moore was able to show that the accusations which the letter contained were false.

"To pursue publicly the statements of the anonymous letter writer is to violate every rule of equity," objects Frank Tumpane, columnist in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

One must agree. Unless a letter is signed its contents should certainly not be made public unless, and until, the statements in it are verified.

There, however, we must part company with Mr. Tumpane. Controller Ford Brand said that anonymous letters should be the most valuable waste paper in the basket. Mayor Phillips said he had no intention of following this policy. "If something is wrong, I want to know about it."

On this point Mayor Phillips is on sound ground. An understandable and admirable dislike for anonymous letters—and those who write them—is general and is shared by almost everybody. There are, however, times when the informer, for good and sufficient reasons, desires to conceal his identity. A quick perusal of the letters will almost invariably serve to eliminate immediately those epistles written by cranks or by persons acting from vindicative motives. However, where the general tone of the letter is reasonable, the fact that the letter does not bear a signature is not sufficient reason to relieve the recipient of the responsibility of investigating the allegations made. Most emphatically this investigation should be conducted in complete privacy—nobody should be exposed to unfavorable publicity on charges the source of which is not known. But there is always the possibility that the charges made in an anonymous letter are true—just as there is the possibility that the charges made in a signed letter are false.

"Unless a letter has both a name and an address on it, I consider it the fastest waste basket without reading it," writes Mr. Tumpane. "Never once in my experience, has anything valid or worthwhile ever come out of an anonymous letter."

Mr. Tumpane must admit, however, that his experience with anonymous letters is somewhat limited by reason of his summary method of dealing with them.

Given a letter which carries a legible signature would have scant chance of producing something "valid or worthwhile" if it were tossed unread into a waste paper basket.

WHY WE NEED A NAVY

One may have the deepest sympathy for the plight of Canadian operators of ocean-going vessels and still be at sharp variance with the views endorsed by the Canadian Shipowners Association.

The shipowners are urging that a subsidy should be paid by the Federal government to permit Canadian merchant ships to compete successfully with foreign vessels. Canadian shipowners have to pay wages which are considerably higher than those paid to sailors on foreign-owned vessels. They are thus being priced out of the market.

The question of whether a subsidy is advisable is highly involved. It is not on this point that we wish to quarrel with the Shipowners' Association. Rather it is concerning a reference to the Canadian Navy.

M. G. Angus, president of the association, made a statement which was approved by the Association. He said: "why Canadians must be asking what purpose is served in spending many hundreds of millions of dollars per year in building and maintaining an escort navy if its chief purpose is to protect foreign shipping, why Canada does not need its own merchant shipping, why does it need a navy?"

Canada needs a navy for the same reason that it needs an army and an air force—to protect this country in case of war. The air force will provide this protection in the air, the army on land and the navy on the seas. Whether the ships it protects are owned by Canada or by another power is immaterial. These ships will be carrying goods and men the safe transit of which is essential to the safety of Canada, to the safety of its allies, on whose safety the safety of Canada, in turn, depends.

The shipowners have a good case. They should not weaken it by an illogical reference to the Canadian Navy.

REPORTED MISSING

Where is that fellow so pleasant to know?
We met everywhere just a few days ago.
His name should be Christmas.

He seems to appear
Just like the glad season but once every year.

He was friendly and gracious.
His laughter was gay.
He had nothing but good of his fellows to say.

He never complained; with this to learn
All rejoiced when he came and were sad when he went.

He seemed like a stranger just passing through town,
On his face none remembers beholding a frown.

He was cheered as he strolled but, just as I feared,
With the spirit of Christmas, he, too, disappeared.

Six Months On Icecap

Colin Bull, geophysicist on the recent British expedition to North Greenland, spent six winter months at Northice, a tiny station eight degrees from the top on the Arctic icecap. In a BBC talk describing this cold, confined existence he said that they were left there in mid-October the day after the last supply plane had dropped over the horizon for the last time. "The winter had definitely arrived" he said. "The temperature had dropped to minus fifty and the powerful sun had brought us up to our winter home headed east. They were leaving three hundred miles of food dumps in the snow as our only physical contact with our nearest neighbors".

The three men were Chief Petty Officer Cook, radio operator; Hal Lister, a glaciologist from Cambridge and Bull, also from Cambridge, but younger than the others.

"Now our home for the winter was a wooden hut, a fourteen-feet square without the size of a normal living room—completely buried under the snow except for the ends of the ventilator pipe and chimney from the kitchen stove. In this place we worked, slept, ate, talked—everything" he said.

The hut was entered by a shaft of world went down fourteen steps and into a tunnel without frost precautions. Then the tunnel ended as a refrigerator, and another tunnel led into the snow walls held large supplies of food. Two doors led into the crowded room, with facilities and shirts hanging from the rafters, a kitchen table piled with odd pots, a diesel stove and a little gas stove brewing up tea, and bunks crammed into the impediments. There was a little bench for the scientific work, a workbench, and in what little space remained, odd boots, gear and personal kit. There is a jerrican of paraffin that had been brought in that way.

It was warm enough inside this room to work with only a sweater, despite the depths of incredible congestion they managed to live in. It was not uncomfortable. Privacy was completely unknown for the three men for a period of a year.

During their first four months they never saw the sun. Then it did not dip below twilight around noon and moonlight. It's was made for the first time in history for one day Dean was completely lost in a sudden thunderstorm. It was within fifteen hundred yards of home, and if Bull had not gone out and fired a gun with a storm lantern he would have been lost. Before anyone ventured from the hut again we rigged an electric light at the top of the forty-foot aerial mast-and-hut. "and made it a point that Bull's gun always be kept in sight. So, although we had thousands of square miles in which to lose ourselves we were restricted to a beat half-a-mile each way.

If they had not had a great deal of work to do they would have got on each other's nerves more than they did. Their small area was quite enough; they knew each other's jokes and cliches backwards. "By the end of the time there was knew exactly how each sentence would end" he said, "after just hearing a few words" said Bull. It was therefore an enormous relief to every man to talk to people with amateur radio transmitters. The return of the sun was the event they looked forward to most eagerly, even more than the arrival of the relief team in May, and Bull never did a more momentous day when he was able to read the thermometer at noon without a torch.

When the time came he was, on the whole, sorry to leave Northice. Life had been narrow and of a cramping monotony but

Other Side To Bargain

(Winnipeg Free Press)

In fact, the Crow's Nest rates are not unprofitable for the railways nor, all things considered, are they out of date. But if they were, as Mr. Mather insists, inevitably follows that the other part of the agreement with which they are tied up is equally outdated, in return for building the line through the Crow's Nest Pass and for making rate reductions on grain, the C.P.R. got a subsidy of $3,404,730, and, in addition, was granted 250,000 acres of land. Much of the subsequent wealth of the CPR had its roots in this seemingly untidy and land grant. In view of Mr. Mather's continuing program's against the Crow's Nest Pass rates one wonders whether he considers the other side of the agreement outdated also. It would be interesting to have the CPR's views on what, if the bargain were abrogated, should be done about the assets that the company has accumulated from the property it received in consideration for fixing the Crow's Nest rates.

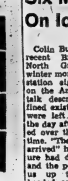
Muskeg Is Miserable

(Ottawa Journal)



None whose work or play has taken him to the land of the muskeg will envy Professor Norman Radford of McMaster University, who has spent six years making an intensive study of the flat, fly-infested type of terrain in Northern Canada.

Muskeg is swampy, virtually treeless land, occuring from Ungava to British Columbia and the Northwest Territories. It is somewhat different from the swamps and bogs of Southern Canada inasmuch as muskeg is not necessarily low-lying land but is sometimes found on a water shed or divide. Its vegetation is chiefly thick moss, Labrador Tea, coarse grass, flycatching pitcher plants and stunted spruce. Examination of one of these muskeg spruce only four feet high indicated it to be more than 150 years old.

Muskegs have every degree of sogginess. Some are so saturated with water that crossing parties of teachers are impossible.

No, You're wrong this time. I couldn't afford to take the job. I'm too busy always wished and I wish now that I could have such a job.

I'm not facetious about it. I believe neglect of this field of education — that is, physiology, hygiene, personal health and prevention of disease, all belong just a few infectious diseases — in America is a great sin.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

REMEMBER WHO INVENTED THIS DEGREE

As an avowed quack I hereby serve notice on all concerned that I intend to confer the degree P.H.D. before any university or other institution ever thought of it, mostly less grant and it to any one.

So I alone know what P.H. D. denotes, although many readers have guessed correctly about it since I first mentioned it here last Monday. P.H.D. stands for doctor of personal health.

As I have already stated, no university is authorized to grant the degree, but it wouldn't be difficult to persuade me to accept the first honorary P.H.D. degree from an accredited school, provided the school first sets up an honest course or department of personal health, hygiene and prevention of disease under a professor who has had not less than forty years of teaching experience.

No, You're wrong this time. I couldn't afford to take the job. I'm too busy always wished and I wish now that I could have such a job.

I'm not facetious about it. I believe neglect of this field of education — that is, physiology, hygiene, personal health and prevention of disease, all belong just a few infectious diseases — in America is a great sin.

For instance consider how pathetically ignorant and unfit most high-school and college graduates are for marriage, heredity, paternity, childbirth, infant care and feeding.

Another instance is the abdomen. Intellectual snobs do not use the word in conversation, there are uncertain about the pronunciation. Many persons who pretend to be educated resort to facetiousness when they don't know whether it is abdomen, abdomen, phimen, stomach, belly or epigastrium. They say "tummy", which, like "definitely," gives the snob away every time.

All this nonsensical talk about a degree for the teacher (doctor) of personal health, hygiene and prevention of disease (all disease, not just infectious or epidemic diseases) leads nowhere. This column or department represents probably the nearest approach to the practice of personal health that we are likely to see in America.

As far as I know my memory goes and right up to yesterday noon service club speakers have been telling about bum's rushes, for is it the Outer Mongolian custom of paying the check doctor only when he keeps you well and withholding payment if you are sick.

The letter part of that arrangement would be fine and dandy and can't imagine a Yankee paying the doctor real money when not in need of medical treatment.

What Else To Call It?

(Montreal Star)

Experts in different fields are sometimes criticized for the jaw-breaking long words they borrow from the Greek. Sometimes, they sometimes they seem to go out of their way to invent some-thing unpronounceably difficult and technical. But sometimes, there seems no other word or alternative.

Take, for a story, not documented, that when Adam questioned Eve's name for the blood-curdling new reptile with perfect logic, "But what else could you call it, my dear, but dippopotamus!" It came to mind when confronted with "glottochronology."

Glottochronology is an archaeological technique for measuring the length of time two groups of people of the same original stock have been living apart by checking the common content of their languages.

Faced with the necessity of choosing a term for such a yardstick, what could you have called it but glottochronology?

Stately Cage Now Discarded

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

A Correspondent writing to The London Times says that he recently attended a public event wearing a cape, and his appearance created a great deal of interest and curiosity. He asks why this "stately, elegant and dignified" garment is not worn nowadays.

It is a very long time since we saw a man wearing a cape, and it appears to belong to the museum exhibit of things in the well-dressed man wore in the Victorian and Edwardian era. The cape was a detachable garment which covered the neck and shoulders, and it could be buttoned or hooked on or off when desired. It was generally made of waterproof material, and was specially handy in wet or gusty weather. Men could carry small packages in his hands and protect them from getting wet. Several correspondents spoke up in support of the cape, saying it was a most admirable thing for walking or riding, and gave a man a certain amount of poise. The clergy of bygone days were much addicted to wearing capes, and a well-made cape would last a lifetime. The now obsolete hansom cab driver smiled on the cape.

Whatever its advantages, the cape is not likely to ever be worn again.

MOTTOES

How well I recall the mottoes we had that were so common in homes when I was a youngster. "God bless our home" "Home sweet home" "A dog is a dog young boy" Anyway they made a deep impression upon me. Many years later, when I grew old appropriately, I would say, for the benefit of my children, or anyone else there was that simply designed "Welcome." Then in the living room there was the motto, "God Bless Our Home."

Recently the son of the late Elbert Hubbard I loved to visit his East Aurora inn and book printing plant. Elbert Hubbard was the author of the motto

Fire in Quinte Machine Company Plant Causes $75,000 Damage

TRENTON (Special) — Charred ruins costed with ice mark the place today where one of Trenton's busiest industries operated its No. 2 workshop on Front street.

Fire swept through the Quinte Machine Company's Front street shop in the downtown section last night leaving $75,000 destruction in its path.

At times the flames, which were first noticed at 8.30 p.m., threatened homes and buildings adjacent to the workshop but stubborn firemen prevented further outbreaks.

Housewife Mrs. Bernice Rowe became hysterical and needed comforting by her husband and neighbors when she returned from a visit in the country to see long tongues of fire licking at the side of her neat home standing within 10 feet on the burning building.

Spectators found a small, choking smoke unpleasant as a great black column rolled skyward and covered a half a city block at times. The roof on the rambling structure collapsed in two places. The second time a falling brick hit fireman Bob Mitts on the top of the head but the regulation helmet he was wearing saved him from injury.

STARTED IN SHED

Believed to have started in a shed at the rear of the premises the fire was first discovered by two young boys, Andy Dillon and Richard Winsell, who happened along when the flames burst out through the slides of the shed. They ran to tell Art Moran, a garage operator nearby, who hurried in the alarm after investigation.

Firefighting was directed by Clarence Orser who takes over Chief Harry Fillon's post on February 1. Chief Fillon retiring the end of this month was ill at home and unable to lend his men. Firemen employed two pumpers and five lines of hose during the five hour battle.

The workshop housed heavy hydraulic equipment and elaborate stock rooms. It provided employment for 12 men. It was covered adequately by insurance according to Walter Wrigley, a principal of the company, who said the shops will be replaced on a new site, the work to begin immediately.

Orders New Trial

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Appeal Court Monday ordered a new trial for Frank Latta of Hamilton, convicted last September in Port Colborne for breaking and entering. Latta and another youth were sentenced to four years in prison.

Latta said he had been arrested and kept in jail overnight without being told the reason for his arrest. He said he was then questioned by Port Colborne police before they told his statement would be used against him at the trial.

In ordering a new trial, Chief Justice J. W. Pickup said the procedure of the police was shocking.

4 Generations In Hospital At Same Time

TRENTON (CP)—Four generations of one family are in Trenton Memorial Hospital here. William Wesilake was admitted for treatment of a circulatory disturbance at the same time as his son, Kenneth, entered hospital for an operation. They were joined later by Kenneth's daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Blight, who gave birth to a baby girl.

IVANHOE

Contents Saved As House Burns

IVANHOE — Overheated pipes and fire in the chimney caused a fire that completely destroyed a frame house on the 9th concession of Huntingdon on Friday morning. The occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook and family, escaped unharmed. Most of the contents were saved.

The house, in the possession of Mr. Wallace Fleming, was formerly owned by the late George Wallace. Mr. Fleming stated the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Bader Finds Old Comrades Are Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Douglas Bader met some old Canadian flying companions Monday night for the first time in years and decided they haven't changed much.

"A couple have grown a bit balder," said the famed legless British air ace, "but they were bald in the first place."

The reunion was with four members of the Canadian squadron Bader led over Dunkerque.

The Canadians from 42 squadron, who came to meet their former squadron leader are W. H. Diheak and Noel Stansfeld of Vancouver; Bob Granick of London, Ont., and Wing Cmdr. Don Miller, commanding officer at RCAF station Uplands here. Bader hadn't seen any of them since 1944, and 1940 was the last time he saw Stansfeld.

Earlier Monday, Bader told reporters his big danger today is that the fun is being taken out of flying.

ENCOURAGE EFFORT

"We want to encourage the pleasure, not destroy it, in the small planes," he said as he walked around his hotel room talking on his favorite subject. "That's how to get pilots for the air force and commercial fliers."

MADOC

Missionaries Tell Of World's Need

MADOC—The Sunday evening service in Trinity United church marked the closing of two weeks' special services sponsored by the Madoc and Elsevir Sunday School Association. These services were conducted by the Rev. Carrie Hazzard and the Rev. Lois Richardson, missioners, who, since their last visit to Madoc have been privileged to travel around the world having visited 21 countries including Korea, Formosa, India, Ceylon, Egypt and the Holy Land.

In their messages, they brought home some vivid pictures of the destitution and need in these lands, noting that 78 per cent of the population of the world is hungry and starving. The need of food and the gospel message is so much needed in these countries. The speakers gave two nights of showing and using their messages. In the message of song, the soloists in the several churches in the village and district rendered special music, and Lt. William Hazzard, of the Salvation Army of Tweed, gave his contribution to both services with several beautiful vocal numbers.

Madoc Band also gave one evening of musical numbers.

The services have been well attended. Many nights the church was packed to the doors. Misses Hazzard and Richardson will always be welcome visitors to Madoc, especially in their messages of Christian living and service to their Master.

PICTON

Hiring of County Assessor Shelved by Council Members

PICTON — Proposal to engage a county assessor was shelved at Prince Edward County Council January session. A motion by Reeve H. A. Colliver that no action be taken on tenders for the position, was endorsed.

Some reeves expressed fear that such an assessor would mean heavy expenditure

Warden M. Parks named a committee to consider equalization of assessments for the county, a report to be given in February. Members are James Clemison, Calvin Hughes, Sam Gentle, J. K. Welsh, Bruce Hyatt, H. S. Colliver and the Warden.

Discussion followed claims that some townships are over-assessed and favoritism to others. Municipal and County figures vary greatly and there has been no revision of the County's equalized assessment in twenty years.

Though there was some opposition to the move, council voted to increase the indemnities from $5 to $10 per day, committee meetings to remain at $5.

Council passed a resolution asking the Province to take over Outlet Beach as a Provincial Park.

PICTON

Town, District Buried Under 18 Inches Snow

PICTON — This town and district within a 15-mile radius lies under 18 or more inches of snow. Beginning Saturday, the fall increased Sunday and fell all day yesterday. Fortunately there was little wind and drifts did not form.

Earlier Saturday, mild weather caused melting and bottoms of roads are slippery.

The freak storm left but a light blanket in Belleville and for 12 miles south toward Picton, at Mountain View, but from there on snow fell continually yesterday and cars travelled with lights on.

Snow plows and sanding trucks were out in force and except for some less used roads, all are passable.

The snow created a fairyland as roofs, porches, car tops and fence posts were given white cape a foot high. Evergreens were turned from green to great masses of white, fluffy snow.

C.W. League Plans Future Events

The regular meeting of the C. W. L. was held in Holy Rosary Hall, Donald street, with the Vice presiding. There were 20 members present.

Father Michael opened the meeting and gave a short talk on "Baptism."

The various convenors gave the monthly report. Correspondence was read and dealt with.

One family needed social welfare in the district.

Father Michael advised a social evening of cards and dancing would be held sometime in February and that the C.W.L. would be in charge of refreshments. This is to be a free parish affair.

Twenty Catholic patients were in the hospital over the Christmas season and baskets were jointly distributed by the three C.W.L. organizations in the city.

The altar society report for the year was read and approved.

Councillors will collect the annual fees.

Plans were made to hold a St. Patrick's tea in the church hall with Mrs. Eves, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Schrieder and Mrs. Smith in charge.

Plans were also discussed on a quilting bee and pot-luck supper later this month.

A social time followed and refreshments were served by the committee.

St. Michael's C.W.L. Holds Party

St. Michael's sub-division of the Catholic Women's League entertained the new Canadians of the parish to an enjoyable party arranged by Mrs. Harris, immigration convener.

Under the direction of Mr. James M. T. Watters three films were shown. One covered the four seasons in the Gatineau Valley north of Ottawa, and to see the loggers in operation during the winter months was quite interesting. The "Song of The Ski" showed skiers in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta enjoying their favorite sport.

The round out the program the children, as well as the adults, laughed at the antics of a chimpanzee in a recreational park.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames F. Fitzpatrick, P. Cleary, J. Whalen and J. Watters.

At the close of the evening, Mrs. Ed. Logan, president of the sub-division, extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Watters and especially to Mr. W. Harris, who so ably assisted his wife in arranging the entertainment.

Mrs. H.G. Horning Pays Unofficial Visit to City

Mrs. H. G. Horning of Woodstock, Ont., president of the Provincial Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, paid an unofficial visit to Belleville over the week-end. She was a guest of Mrs. J. E. Buchan, 143 Bridge Street East, a past president of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary.

Mrs. Horning is most enthusiastic over the growth of the Provincial Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. She told of being in Cornwall where she has spoken at the annual meeting of the General Hospital Auxiliary and at a luncheon meeting of the Auxiliary of Hotel Dieu, Kingston. This was followed by a visit to Brockville to attend an invitation to the auxiliaries of the Brockville General and St. Vincent de Paul Hospital Auxiliaries with the Provincial Association.

On leaving here she will go to Trenton, where she has been invited to speak at the annual meeting of the Trenton Auxiliary. Guests are expected from the neighboring auxiliaries.

PROVINCIAL ASSOCIATION

The idea of a provincial association originated in 1950 when delegates from five or five interested women in Western Ontario. The main purpose in this association is to bring the individual presidents together to pool ideas and to discuss problems pertaining to the work with hospitals.

The convention last year was the largest in the history of the association, with over 350 delegates present, representing over 35,000 women, who are working in the Hospital Auxiliaries Association.

The formation of regions is now underway. This enables auxiliaries to meet in small groups to discuss minor problems which, owing to lack of time, cannot be brought up at the convention. It also facilitates the president's task of visiting the auxiliaries between conventions. Instead of speaking to each auxiliary separately, she can now address from six to ten auxiliaries at a regional meeting.

"I think the most wonderful women in the province belong to the hospital auxiliaries," said Mrs. Horning. "I feel very definitely that next to church work comes our auxiliary work. If we wish to do good work it should be with our hospitals, as that is where life begins and life ends."

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Bridge Party

The executive meeting of St. Joseph's subdivision, Catholic Women's League, was held recently in the school hall. Final plans for the communion breakfast to be held February 6th were discussed. A bridge party, the fourth Thursday of each month, was decided upon, the first one to be held this week. Euchre will still be held every second Thursday.

The general monthly meeting was held on Sunday evening. There were 26 members present. Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf, president, was in the chair. Minutes were read by Mrs. J. M. Lawn, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. P. F. Hallinan; corresponding secretary's report was read by Mrs. Lawn in the absence of the corresponding secretary.

The first vice-president, Mrs. R. Lynch, reported on membership. Mrs. W. Sweet was appointed refreshments convener for the February meeting.

Mrs. J. D. McKenzie, spiritual convenor, reported on the three study clubs now formed in the parish, also plans for the communion breakfast Sunday, February 6th.

The parish library is functioning well and the books are much in demand. Final plans for the tea and home bake sale, Wednesday, February 9th, were discussed.

A resume of the year's activities was given by Mrs. Lawn, as this was the first anniversary of installation.

Radio, television and films convener, Mrs. E. Cooper, reported on the TV and radio guides in the Register each week, which should help in the selection of entertainment. She asked the ladies to be on the alert for any demoralizing programs or films and to call attention to them.

Rev. Father Beechey congratulated the ladies on the ending of a successful year. He also explained the work of the Altar Society and how the members should grow closer to the Blessed Sacrament by attending to the needs of the altar.

After the meeting was adjourned games were enjoyed by the ladies and prizes distributed.

The main attraction at refreshment time was a delicious, large, appropriately decorated anniversary cake, which was donated by Mrs. Al. Bonar. Assisting with refreshments was Mrs. C. O'Neill.

Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. Holds Annual Bridge

The Officers' Mess, Belleville Armouries was the scene of a delightful gathering on Saturday evening, when friends were welcomed by members of the Argyll Chapter for an evening of bridge.

Last year the proceeds of the bridge were donated to the Belleville General Hospital Building Fund. This year they will be used to replace the donation sent to the Flood Relief Fund in Toronto.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Mr., Mrs. E. Weese Mark 50 Years of Married Life

Wedding bells rang again today (Tuesday) for Mr. and Mrs. Earle Weese of Carrying Place, R.R. 1, in memory of that January day, fifty years ago in Somerville parsonage, when the Rev. G. Pope united in marriage Beatrice Mildred Onderdonk to Earle Weese.

Following their marriage, the young couple settled in the Carrying Place area where they homesteaded which had been farmed for seven generations by the Weese family, and which was the first place to become settled in the Bay of Quinte District, Pre seven years Mr. Weese was engaged in government fruit farming, and later, worked for the Canadian Tire Corporation of Belleville for a period of ten years, and for ten years as manager of the Picton Cold Storage.

Fraternally, Mr. Weese is a member of Trent Lodge, A.F. & A. M. Trenton, the Odd Fellows, and the Orange Lodge of Rednersville.

For 31 years he served on the school board, and is still active on the church board of trustees of the United Church at Carrying Place.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Weese are charter members of Quinte Chapter 59 of the Order of the Eastern Star.

For 15 years Mrs. Weese has been treasurer of the Alberta Ladies' Aid, and a life member of the Women's Institute in which she was a most active member.

Mr. and Mrs. Weese have two sons, Allan and Lyle, both of Carrying Place, and four grandchildren, Robert Allin, Charles Allin, Mildred Ann and William Dudley.

Their comment on a happy marriage is to "never hold a grudge", and "keep up with the times" which have brought the new machines, cars and the speeding up of production and travel, to the added conveniences of hydro and television.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FAMILY WELFARE ORGANIZATION WILL HELP YOU

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am the mother of four children and expecting another soon, and I need money desperately to pay my doctor and so forth. We are terribly in debt and can't make ends meet. I want very much to get a home, job, such as light assembly work, but I don't know where to look for it.

Do you know of any firm or wholesale clothier where I could find such a job? — Mrs. D.

Dear Mrs. D.:

I am very sorry, but I am not familiar with any specific opportunities for home work in the city where you live.

What you should do is to get in touch with one or more of the family welfare agencies in your city, tell them exactly what your problem is and ask their help in working it out. I doubt if they would think you should attempt any kind of work, either at home or elsewhere, in view of your heavy responsibilities as the mother of four, with a fifth child coming. But they would certainly find a way to help you if you are as desperately in need.

Look in your telephone book for the addresses of your local family welfare agencies, or ask your minister or priest where they may be found. Your local newspaper should also be able to give you this information if you would telephone there. The sooner you set about making a contact of this kind, the better.

THEIR GIRL FRIEND CAN'T DATE—HOW CAN THEY HELP?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are a group of girls who all date but have a girl friend whose father will not allow her to date. We would like to help her.

She is 16 now, and he says he will not allow her to date until she is 18. He says the reason is, he is afraid she will get married too soon. She tells us that if her father won't let her date, she will get married the first chance she gets, but that if he will let her date, she wouldn't even think about getting married. There is a boy of 18 who likes very much, and who likes her, and she keeps coming to us to help her find out and see him on the sly. We do the best we can, but would like your advice. Patty G.

Dear Patty:

Your girl friend is certainly in a very unhappy and unfair situation, and I surely think she needs help. But, even so, my first advice to you is that you stop trying to cooperate with her in doing something her father has forbidden. While you mean to be kind, you might easily get her into real trouble if her father were to find out what is going on, for that would probably result in his laying down even stricter rules for her.

Instead, I should like to follow the ideas which might help solve the problem.

I suggest that the next time there's some specific event coming up that several young couples could attend together, two or three of you girls get together and ask your friend's father and ask him if he will not permit her to go along with you with one of the boys. If you ask him in a tactful and respectful way, he might actually listen to you, especially if it was to be a group date, and the girl would not be going out alone with the boy.

Or you might suggest to the girl's boy friend that he ask her father himself, in a polite and manly way, if he can't take his daughter out, telling her father exactly where he would like to be and why and promising to have her home at any time he says. If the boy does this just as respectfully as he can, he might well be successful. And even though the father were to insist on his daughter coming home at an earlier hour than the other girls have to be home, it would be a start in the right direction and, little by little, she would probably get more and more freedom.

I think you young people can do something to help this girl if you try. In all over together, plan out carefully how you would go about it, and carry out your well-laid plans wisely. What do you think about it?

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NO NEED TO TAKE EVEN ONE DRINK "FOR SOCIABILITY"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been invited to a cocktail party to be given by a couple we don't know particularly well. My husband and I do not drink cocktails or any other alcoholic drinks, but we find it awkward to refuse. However, we would be willing to take only one drink for the sake of sociability. Right? D.D.

No . . . definitely not right. If, for any reason whatever, you and your husband prefer not to take an alcoholic drink, there is no reason whatever why you should take even one drink "for sociability." Certainly you wouldn't want to admit, would you, that you can't be "sociable" without one drink?

Can you any intelligent hostess or host or guest expects you to be guided by your personal preferences. And today, in practically all situations, no one notices or cares if a person does not take a drink. But, if you refuse a drink, do it in a quiet, dignified manner. "No, thank you." And no reason to "make a production" of your refusal. There are so many non-drinkers today that today's hostess, if she has any hostess-sense, provides non-alcoholic drinks, such as tomato juice, or a fruit juice, or a cola gingerale, and so forth. When one or more of these non-alcoholic drinks are in sight . . . as they usually are . . . you can say (in refusing an alcoholic drink), "No, thank you . . . but may I have some tomato juice, please?"

SENDING ANNOUNCEMENTS OF THE MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I live here in Connecticut, but my parents live in Florida. Three weeks ago Bill and I were married and sent word to my parents and his parents present. Now I would like to have announcements of our marriage sent out, in the names of my parents, who are most enthusiastic about our doing this. Now we are wondering if these announcements must be mailed from my parents' home city, or may they be postmarked from this city where we live? — Bride

The important procedure is that their marriage announcements are to be issued in the names of your parents . . . the postmark is not important.

THE GIFT HANDED TO YOU SHOULD BE OPENED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently we invited a couple to come to see our new apartment and to have a drink with us. We know this man and his wife very slightly, met them through mutual friends. When they arrived, the wife, a most charming woman, handed me a gaily-tied package and said, "I do hope you can use them in your new home." I thanked her very enthusiastically, put the package on the entrance-hall table, and didn't open it.

After they left, my husband said I was very rude and awkward not to have opened the package (it contained two perfectly beautiful linen fingertip towels) and not to have expressed appreciation of such a generous thought. I maintain that it was enough for me to have thanked for the present when it was handed to me.

Who is right? I liked these guests so much that I certainly wouldn't want to offend them. — Madelin I.

I entirely agree with your husband that you were socially awkward not to open the package and, so far as well "express special appreciation of such a generous thought." If I had been the woman guest, I wouldn't have admired your manners, and would have been somewhat hurt and mystified by your lack of grace and of appreciation. I imagine these guests are followers of the charming tradition of taking a gift when one goes on the first visit to a new home.

My suggestion: write immediately the warm and friendly note of thanks that will show these guests that you really are a person of appreciation of gracious thought. Don't mention not having opened the gift at the time. . . just write your deep thanks for the fine and generous thought, and express full appreciation of the charm of the gift itself.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FATIGUE IS A GOOD LOOKS MENACE

Hurry and worry form a partnership that can spell a woman's youthful appearance. If you are inclined to rush through the day, regret grievances when you should be sleeping, you are making a mistake. All the cosmetics in the world will not rejuvenate you.

Some women drive themselves as they would never drive anybody else. Time is ever at their heels. Many expend energy unnecessarily. Some women of leisure, who don't have to tear out of the door every morning to bring home the pay check, keep on the gallop nevertheless. They go from one social event to another. Having a grand time can be as exhausting as eight hours on the job.

Life should not be breathless. There is bound to be nervous tension if one is hurried, if one falls into bed in the wee small hours, gets up tired in the morning, eyes dull, head heavy. One must have rest and quiet moments if one's energy motors are to have a chance to recharge.

Look around you. How many women appear serene? Most of them are hurrying through the crowds, shoulders humped, faces tense. What's it all about anyhow?

No woman who is always tired is capable of her best efforts if she has work to do, nor is she likely to be a restful, inspiring companion. The human machine, and a wonderful one it is, has its limitations. The nervous system, which plays an important part in this marvelous mechanism, is under strain when fatigue bags are present, when the day offers no opportunity for relaxation.

Over-tiredness can bring irregular action of the heart, shortness of breath, even neuritis with all its agonizing pains and twinges. Take it easy, lady! You'll live longer, be happier.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Casey Ketcheson was hostess to the ladies of White's Woman's Association on Thursday with a good attendance of members and eight visitors present.

The new president, Mrs. Casey Ketcheson, opened the meeting.

Eleven members paid dues. There was one new member.

Clifton Rush, the devotional leader, chose "Will the Anchor Hold in the Storm of Life?" as her topic. Mrs. Rush referred to the damage done in the heavy wind storm and flood of last fall. "In our spiritual life we must stand firm and have our anchor on the love of God." All joined in singing "Will Your Anchor Hold?" Mrs. Rush and Mrs. E. Curtis read an article entitled "Love," which told of the mother love of Naomi for her daughter-in-law, Ruth, and the protective love of Ruth for her mother-in-law. All mankind would be better if each practised "Love Thy Neighbor."

The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton offered a fitting prayer.

RECEIPTS - EXPENDITURES

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, treasurer, gave a report of receipts and expenditures for the past year. Mrs. Harold Hockaday was the popular choice for 1st vice-president. Mrs. Everett Nicolson was named as card and flower convener.

Mrs. C. Rush and Mrs. Ketcheson reported on their work in 1954.

It was decided to have an auction sale in May, and a pie social on March 17th, with Mrs. Hockaday convener for a program put on by the men.

Mrs. G. Gibson closed her home with a social evening in February with each member bringing a friend. The program committee is to prepare the program. Each member will donate one or more articles for a penny sale. All members are asked to begin knitting for the basket to be held on November 17th.

An invitation to meet at Wesley Church was accepted. It was moved that the treasurer pay Miss Shaver for the refrigerator for the parsonage.

The programs for the year were made out.

The travelling apron started in 1954 was passed along. Each member makes a donation and sews on a patch with her name thereon.

After the meeting closed, the hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Waldron and Mrs. Westover.

Mr. Middleton moved a vote of thanks for Mrs. Ketcheson's hospitality.

Meat Stretchers

By Mary Moore

Scrapple is a dish that a well-known and commonly served in Southern United States. I met up with it in Missouri.

When we were going to school there our best friends were Garny's family. Doc Grow, her dad, was country doctor who travelled mud roads far and wide to bring babies into the world near the Mississippi flats. His name was Oliver Peter Grow and there wasn't a home for a hundred miles around where you could not find a little Ollie or Pete if there was a boy in the family.

These folks often paid Doc in produce and every winter kept his family in bacon and pork.

Mrs. Elma, his devoted housekeeper used to make scrapple, to my delight. It was so different from northern cooking, and what follows is Mrs. Elms' recipe for

MISSOURI SCRAPPLE

Select 3 lbs. bony pieces of pork, (Mrs. Elma would use neck or backbone or even the head—but it had to be half meat.) Simmer in 12 cups water—do not boil—covered until meat drops from bones. Strain off broth, remove all bones with great care and chop meat and any fat or rind very finely. You should now have about 8 cups of broth—if not add water to make it up to this amount. Bring to boiling point and slowly stir in 2 cups of cornmeal (in some sections of the States this would be 3 cups of coarse cracked wheat), and cook for about 5 minutes stirring frequently. Add the chopped meat and at least 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon pepper, and other seasonings such as sage, thyme or marjoram as desired, but in very small quantities. Taste for salt and pepper. Pour the hot scrapple into moistened loaf pans. Let cool in refrigerator until cold and firm. Slice about 1-2 inch thick and brown slowly in shallow fat—but if scrapple is rich with fat none need be added to pan.

NOTE:

One-half of the meat must be bony to make the scrapple jell.

This recipe is given to you today because I purchased yesterday to give you some meat stretchers. When you serve scrapple think of it as taking the place of bacon or pork chops and then plan the hostess serve refreshments, food to accompany it. Of course scrambled eggs are delicious with it but defeat our economy program. Since it contains both protein and carbohydrate serve two vegetables with it. In Missouri these would be cabbage or "greens" or green beans or "roastin' ears" (corn on the cob to you) or could be candied sweet potatoes. If the cabbage was not one of the hot vegetables it would appear on the table in the form of very finely cut slaw.

SUPERIOR MEAT LOAF

(Serves six generously.)

In large bowl, soak 1 1-2 cups bread or cracker crumbs in 1-2 cup each milk and catsup. Add 2 medium onions chopped or grated fine, 2 stalks celery and leaves chopped fine, 1 clove garlic chopped extra fine, 1 egg, 1 lb. ground beef, 1-4 lb. bulk sausage meat, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-3 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Mix all well and press into greased loaf pan or shape into oval loaf and place on greased pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. If desired, pour 1 cup tomato juice over and bake 15 minutes longer. Wonderful with baked potatoes. Slices well when cold.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

ATOM CHIEF

"Because of this, I believe the time has come when industry and the utilities should accept some share of the responsibility for the power reactor program. In so doing it, the future role of Chalk River will be to maintain a research and development centre which will permit Canada to hold her position in this new field.

It would be the role of industry and the utilities to apply the results of the research and development program. While Chalk River for the present may concentrate on the small reactor project, "we will co-operate fully with any company which is interested in pursuing a different line of approach."

Mr. Bennett said he suggested in this connection that industry might consider the design of a small package reactor for use in the power-deficient Arctic North."

(The annual report of AECL, tabled in the Commons Monday, said more than half the operation of the new 240,000,000 NRU research reactor, now under construction at Chalk River, will form a pool from which future operators of power reactors can be drawn).

FINEST IN WORLD

Mr. Bennett said the NRU reactor, formally opened on November 3, 1954, will give Canada the finest atomic research facility in the free world. It also would enable Canada to increase her output of plutonium shipped to the United States for use in that country's atomic bomb program.

Mr. Bennett said the annual gross income from uranium production would reach $300,000,000 by the end of 1957, ranking it fourth in dollar value behind nickel, copper and gold. He also said that atomic power plants can assist southern Canada's future needs for electricity.

Cost of the pilot project has not been estimated and no decision has been made on the size. However, officials said the plant will involve an expenditure of many millions of dollars and may be built at Chalk River or somewhere in southern Ontario. Estimated cost will not be known until the detailed design is completed later this year.

The experimental plant, Mr. Bennett said, is not expected to compete economically with electric power generated by hydro or coal. However, it will provide that kind of cost experience which will make possible a scale-up to a large and economic power reactor."

POWER GENERATED

Final specifications had not been determined but it was possible the prototype reactor would be designed to produce steam sufficient to generate 20,000 kilowatts of electricity.

(A conventional steam plant operated by the Ontario hydro-electric power commission has an output of about 100,000 kilowatts at Ontario Hydro's Sir Adam Beck plant at Niagara Falls produces more than 1,500,000.)

Objective of the program was to produce electricity by atomic power at a cost of between five and seven mills per kilowatt. To achieve this the cost of the plant and uranium fuel must not be excessive. Plant costs could be lowered only by the development of cheap materials for their construction, one of the major problems still to be solved.

RESEARCH PROGRAM

The design of the experimental plant would be coupled with an expanded research program at Chalk River designed to permit preliminary design study of a large power reactor capable of producing 100,000 kilowatts of electric power.

Mr. Bennett said a group of power companies has been invited to submit proposals on the construction of a power reactor.

(Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Jan. 19 that six or eight companies have been invited to make proposals and that AECL expects to receive them early in February.)

General reaction of those in Mr. Bennett's audience seemed to be that a number of leading industries would be ready to put up money to ensure a stake in future developments and to gain know-how in the new field.

HOUSE EXPECTED

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said he is not critical of members who oppose rearmament if their views are based on reason. However, it was bad if their personal convictions were based on emotionalism.

The argument that rearmament might antagonize Russia irrevocably was not valid. The West had to negotiate from strength since the people it dealt with had "the outlook and mentality of bandits."

Four CCF members gave their reasons why West Germany should be rearmed. They were H. W. Herridge (Kootenay West), Owen L. Jones (Okanagan-Boundary), A. M. Nicholson (Mackenzie) and G. H. Castleden (Moose Jaw).

Mr. Herridge said he fears what a rearmed Germany might do in future. The menace was irrevocable, widening the East-West breach.

Mr. Jones said he favors admission of Germany to the family of nations but as an armed state it would not bring Europe peace and security. West Germany would be happier and a stronger bulwark against communism. If armament money were spent on improving its prosperity.

Mr. Nicholson said the United Nations should be asked to settle the German problem and that West Germany be given more time to demonstrate that democracy could survive there over a long period.

Mr. Castleden said the Paris agreements would force arms on a country whose rank and file are opposed to militarism. He feared that former Nazis would command the 12-division West German army.

Members of other parties among them the 23 who have spoken in the three days of debate—differed. Their chief argument has been that communism poses a stronger threat than a rearmed, West Germany.

Hastings County Farm Forum

A discussion on "Bringing Up the Farm Family" was held in each of five forums, River Valley (13), Melrose (7), Harrowsmith (20), Foxboro (13) and Brookdale (7).

The reports were all good with just a little different angle. For the first question as to the changes in farm family living during the last 25 years they will be reported as follows:

River Valley: "More money in circulation, greater opportunities for music and health education, more farm machines take drudgery out of chores. Rural conveniences now equal to town or city. Transportation greatly improved."

Melrose—Easier now for the young people to find opportunities elsewhere, Junior Farmers, 4-H Clubs and high school buses that give families an education which was not obtainable 25 years ago. Cash is now handed out more freely to children. Automobiles take young people farther from home for entertainment.

Hazzard's — "Basically the principles of bringing up a farm family are the same today as 25 years ago. Love is the basic foundation of a home today, just as it has always been. Without that the problems are many. The things that interfere with farm family homes keep changing and 25 years ago the theory was still "spare the rod and spoil the child." Not so today. At that time the farm family had to bear much larger share of cost of education than today. Costs are higher today and money is more plentiful. There is more assistance with education costs and family allowances are a help.

Foxboro: — "(1) Educational changes and advantages of modern school system along with opportunities of travel; (2) change in modern living and working methods; (3) World War II.

Brookdale: — "Entertainment was home-made 25 years ago. People had more time, not so much rush. Tension ill greater today, more heart conditions and nervous disorders. Cost of living was less; less spread between producer and consumer."

IMPORTANT PROBLEMS

(a) Important problems to be faced in bringing up the farm family today: Automobiles (fast driving and far distances), and drinking; lack of leisure time on farm; low farm incomes, which have to meet the obligations of modern society; how to keep young people on the farm and interested in the land; to teach children where to draw the line between right and wrong; how to get them to avail themselves of their present day opportunities; lack of time of parents to teach them; relations between members of family.

Co-operation and sharing in work and responsibility, show they are wanted and needed; teach them contentment by being an example; discuss the farm business with them; perhaps a partnership agreement.

REMEDIES IN COMMUNITY

GAME OF THE YEAR!

The orphans of the senior "B" storm, the Whitby Wrens, currently riding the roost of the loop, will be in town tonight to do battle with the Memos who are closer to them in the standing then their underwear.

The Memos who have no telsies allergiar to their flying skates are fortified in a top-spot mood and the clash this evening should be one of the top-notch battles of the season. The Wrens, who have forsaken backadenical Oshawa as their home, were hailed Sunday as the peak of a flaming crusade through the loop in which they won nine straight games. The Clinton Comets caught the Wrens with their feathers down and administered a 5-3 setback in the Whitby crew, stopping their point-parade but not until they had displaced the Cornwall Colts at the head of the order.

And if ever the Memos were worthy of fan support, it is tonight in this battle of the green giants. They have proven beyond a shadow of a doubt, especially in Cornwall on Sunday that they are one of the most-feared clubs in harness, and their clash with the powerful Wrens should be preceded with a mass clustered with fans. It is the least the public can do to show its appreciation of a hard-playing, hard-fighting crew that has slowly but surely surged to the top in one of the most gruelling hockey seasons in the puck history of the city.

The Memos as well as the Wrens realize that tonight's joust is not only a battle for the top position but a victory is but another needed for survival in the playoffs. No team in the group has "clinched a berth," to use a sports cliche, and despite the fact the playoff sun is warming the horizon, anything can happen.

Neither the Wrens nor the Memos are selling any of the opposition short. A slump of even brief duration at this point can mean the difference between first and fifth until the end of the schedule, set for February 27, every game will be a battle for victory, even to the lowly Peter whose fighting qualities in the face of adversity and the fiercest of Thomas Perlane, have drawn the admiration of the entire group.

The Wrens, last year's Oshawa Truckmen, champions of Ontario, hit a fantastic stride in their last ten outings. They pulled out of the hole of trouble and in a surge of power propped past the opposition to land in the marshal's spot, a position they have no intention of relinquishing if power and ability can hold it.

The Memos, too, have been flirting with the top position for some time, flirtedating between the three and four place spots but of late coming up with consistently hot performances that have brought out their real potential.

So tonight's battle between these two topnotch clubs should bring out the best in both, and produce some of the best, if not the best puck-chasing seen here this season.

GET OUT AND SUPPORT THEM.

FOOTBALL HUMOR

Coach Frank Tindal (we were informed we had the name spelled incorrectly in yesterday's edition for which we hope Mr. Tindal will accept our apologies) of Queen's University, has a rather droll sense of humor, but his quick mind is alert to the humorous situations that crop up at times, even to football coaches.

Coach Tindal related one or two funny happenings at the Quinte Secondary School banquet Saturday night. He told of one "Bobo" Penner, a player who never failed to see humor in sometimes serious situations.

It seems "Bobo" was used in "sleeper" plays quite often but he passes were coming his way. He complained to his coach that he was held the situation would be remedied. Eventually the quarterback threw a long pass in "Bobo's" direction. The ball sailed over his head into the stands.

"Why didn't you catch that toss?" the coach asked later.

"Gee, coach," grinned Bobo, "it landed in the fourth row of the stands and I was caught without a ticket."

The same "Bobo" in a game against Varsity brought down a potential pass receiver with a resounding tackle. He sprawled across the prostrate body of the Blue foreman. "Hey," yelled the fallen one, "Let me up. The play's down the other end of the field."

"Stay where you are, buh," grinned the irrepressible "Bobo." "It will be back this way shortly."

Colorful Canadiens Produce Almost Two Helpers Per Goal; Beliveau Is Top Pointgetter

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, highest scoring team in the National Hockey League, collect more assists per goal than any other club.

The league's official statistics, released today, show Canadiens have scored 157 goals and have amassed 265 assists in the process. The figures out at 1.69 assists per goal for the league leaders.

The next highest average is 1.59 for the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs. They have bagged only 109 goals and have 173 assists. New York Rangers, fifth in the league standing, have an average of 1.56 of 102 goals and 160 assists.

The fourth-place Boston Bruins follow with 1.53 on 102 goals and 156 assists. Last-place Detroit Red Wings, who surrendered the league leadership last week. Their goal production is 101 and they have gathered in 157 assists for a 1.51 average.

CHICAGO LOW

The last-place Chicago Black Hawks, with 100 goals and 149 assists, average 1.49.

Canadiens regained their top position in the loop last night by being the only club with a perfect mark. They won all three games played and have 62 points against 41 for Detroit Red Wings. The Wings got their lone win over second Toronto Maple Leafs, in third place with 54 points, had a win and a tie in four games.

Boston Bruins and New York Rangers got two wins apiece and one loss and the Bruins held their six-point margin over the Rangers for fourth place in the standings—last playoff spot. The tail-end Chicago Black Hawks could salvage only a tie in three games.

The high-flying Montrealers continued to provide leadership in the individual scoring records. Earnie Dixon Boom Boom Geoffrion goals and a surprising slump and failed to collect a point. Big Jean Beliveau went to the top with four goals and three assists, giving him 53 points to Geoffrion's 50. They are joint leaders on goals, each with 27.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard was the high scorer for the week, with three goals and four assists, and is crowding his younger teammates with 42 points.

Jean Moudell, a qualifier for Team's production in the last game and his two assists moved him to sixth place into a four-place tie with Gordie Howe of Detroit. Zach has 42 points but Howe gets preferred rating because he has scored 21 goals to Moudell's 18. Montreal's Bert Olmstead, whose 34 assists lead the league in that department, is in sixth place with 41 points. Howe had one goal and two assists last week.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit cut a sizeable slice into Harry Lumley's record for goal-tending honors. Sawchuk was scored on eight times in four games and has a goal-against average of 1.92. The Toronto netminder gave up 11 goals in four games and his average now is 1.83 compared with 1.68 a week ago.

Kingston Girl Wins Regional Bowling Title

Doris Dunphy, of Kingston, setting a torrid pace throughout, went on to win the Ontario championship bowling qualifying round for the Kingston entry on Saturday in Toronto. Doris paced 50 district leaders in the zone finals with a 2,217 pinfall for the 10 game zone marathon, topping her closest opponent by 125 pins.

The victory gave Doris the right to represent Kingston district at the Sportsmen's Show for the women's singles championship of Ontario. The possibility now arises that husband Joe, one of the top bowlers in the Kingston district, and finalist two years ago for the men's singles title, might combine with her to give the classic its first husband and wife pit in the single. Joe, as well as the other 49 who qualified for the men's regional finals, will bid their luck for the position of high marshals opening Saturday's (Feb. 5) Princess Bowl and Circle Bowl will be the site of the regional men's finals.

The all-star team for the Kingston district will be made up of the following ladies, with their scores in brackets: Madeleine Cunningham, (2,092); Doris Cendy, Kingston, (2,073); Bernice Johnston, Picton, (2,007); Minnie Welsh, Tweed, (1,958); and Carmen Nelson, Kingston, (1,832).

Gwynn Belles of Belleville (1,913) and Madeleine Cunningham led with 1,103 total, with Doris Dunphy in second spot with 1,085. Doris picked up in the last five to gain the lead. Her ten game scores were 250, 190, 195, 231, 229, 183, 253, 210, 251, 235 — 2,217.

High single for the day went to Kay Malnes of Belleville, with a 279 score for her ninth game.

Fifteen of the original 50 who were eligible for the tournament were from Kingston, with others from Brockville, Napanee, Deseronto, Belleville and Tweed.

Lewicki of Rangers Playing Up to Form of Junior Days

By JACK BENT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Danny Lewicki is beginning to play up to the form that made him one of the most talked - about junior hockey prospects of his time.

The 23-year-old forward whose entry into the National Hockey League four years ago attracted so much publicity is the top scorer for New York Rangers right now in the club's defensive star.

Lewicki was named as left wing on the NHL's second all star team when mid-season choices were announced.

Danny's defensive achievements have surprised many hockey fans, who attributed Toronto Maple Leafs' willingness to sell the Fort William native to his alleged failure as a two-way player.

Lewicki was named after that in the first 42 games Lewicki was on the ice when only 33 goals were scored against his club, fewer than any other member of the Blueshirts.

On the other hand he was in action when 61 of the fifth-place Rangers' goals were scored, 20 of which he netted himself. His 20 goals and 13 assists place him high in the league scoring race and ranks him as the Rangers' leader until have his best season since 1950-51 when he broke in with Toronto and scored 24 points.

Ranger coach Muzz Patrick attributes Lewicki's defensive success to his talent for getting under way quickly. "I wouldn't say he is the fastest player on the team," Muzz explains, "but he is the fastest at getting away. The way he gets back on his wing, the other team loses many chances to get plays started."

The five-foot-nine, 180 - pound father of two small boys has played most this year as right-winger on a line centred by Bones Raleigh and Blue Murray on left. They are the Rangers' highest scoring line with 76 points among them.

Danny, himself is happy about this year's shift to New York, which netted him, as reported $15,000. He credits the "different style of play" with the fact he is having his best NHL season.

"I have more of a free hand in moving goals," he says. "New Rangers do not stress the defensive game to the extent that Toronto does. With the Leafs you could check, check, check and just wait for that one break."

Outside of Montreal's Jean Beliveau, Lewicki was perhaps the NHL's most touted junior recruit to be broke in with the Leafs four years ago. His debut was widely publicited not only because of his great amateur record but also because of the famous "pro" controversy which preceded it.

Two seasons before, Lewicki had played junior hockey with Stratford. He wished to remain with them the next season, however the Leafs had Danny's C-form contract under which they could control his hockey movements when he became 18. That was near the end of the 1942-43 season.

Leafs general manager Conn Smythe insisted Lewicki play that next year with Toronto Marlboro Juniors, a Leaf farm club, and Lewicki reluctantly agreed.

Looking back, Danny says: "I never did like the way I got started as soon see a kid not sign a C form . . . it's unnecessary rejections on him."

Ciesla Extends Lead in Junior Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—Hank Ciesla of St. Catharines TeePees has moved ahead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League's individual scoring race.

Statistics released Monday show Ciesla has 74 points: 16 more than his nearest rival, Hec Lalande of Gal. Black Hawks. There is a parcel of only 12 points between Lalande and Bill Graham of Guelph Biltmores who is in 10th place.

Ciesla has scored 44 goals and collected 30 assists in 35 games for his record. Lalande scored 28 goals and 33 assists in 36 games for his 58 points.

Although Bob Dodds of Toronto Marlboros has the best goalkeepers' record, he's played only four games with an average of 3.0 points. Johnny Albani of Marlboros leads the regular goalies with an average of 1.67 for 36 games and Gerry McNamara of Toronto St. Michael's is second No. 3.21 for 34 games.

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Marlboros and Quebec Frontenacs continue to lead the Ontario and Quebec sections respectively in junior hockey play for the Sir Wilfrid Laurier Trophy.

Trois-Rivieres Flambeaux meet St. Catharines TeePees today in the Ontario city. The Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Roger Bannister, first man to break through the one-mile 4-minute barrier, retired from competition in a manner which completely filled a great athlete and a gentleman in his best British tradition. He said, as he announced his retirement: "I could not get that satisfaction now from a second-rate performance, and it would be wrong to produce a second-rate performance when representing my country."

So Bannister passes from the scene, but his memory will live long in athletic annals. Strangely enough, Bannister's Miracle Mile record of 3:59.4, the first ever run under four minutes, didn't last long enough to get printed in the record books before it was cut at the first try. Nevertheless, that one effort is great in athletic competition, as in other things. For hardly had the amazed cheering which greeted Bannister's mighty feat died off than the echoes began to echoes, than Australia's John Landy further reduced the mark.

And so, in the matter of cold figures and stern pointer's fact, the best Roger gets in these centuries of records is a place in the list of those who, over the years, carved another link in the chain of the 4:10-1 set as amateur record by Jack Lovelock of New Zealand at the Olympics as at him, but in the minds and memories of those who know their athletics, he will be recalled with awe for all time as the man who first cracked the barrier.

There are those earnest students of athletics who insist it was not necessarily due to any physical limitations that the four mile was impossible to every generation of man before Bannister. These pundits say what balked them all was a mental barrier, and that limited down was the weight of doubt that a mile in four minutes was humanly possible. We wouldn't know.

But we do know that, once Bannister removed the doubts, the achievement became possible for other men. Some of us, at least, shall live to see many men accomplish what was impossible less than a year ago. And Bannister is the man who made it possible. He fought through both the mental and physical barriers that may have blocked great athletes before him.

And so, although cold figures in the record book will put his feat in second place, he'll never be forgotten as the man who did it first. And also, we hope, as the man who retired definitely and sportingly rather than dabble in second-rate performances which would bring no credit either to himself or to his country.

Pro Football Schedules Ease ORFU Out Of Grid Picture; Nobody Wants' Em, It Seems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Rugby Football Union, which once claimed some of Canada's greatest athletes, appears to be washed up in big-time football.

The two top professional leagues, apparently have nudged the ORFU out of the Grey Cup picture, 21 years after the Ontario league last won the classic.

This became apparent when the Big Four Union and the Western Interprovincial Football Union released their 1955 schedules, which carry the season to within a week of the Grey Cup game and virtually rule out any chance of a professional final with an ORFU team.

Although there is nothing official The Canadian Press sounded out club officials across the country and generally got this answer: Nobody except the ORFU, wants the ORFU mixing in the Grey Cup picture.

"DYING TO GET RID OF IT"

In the words of Jack Howard of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats:

"The West is dying to get rid of the Grey Cup semi-final, just as the East was trying to get rid of it in former years.

"The East has had it for years and it's really their baby. We would do anything if we could get rid of it."

Said Vic Obeck, vice-president of the Big Four Montreal Alouettes:

"The Big Four didn't want to play them (the ORFU champions) and neither did the western league. We hope something can be worked out at the next Canadian Rugby Union meeting. If it can't, we definitely won't want to play off with the ORFU. No one thinks the semi-final game should be played."

The main reason is that the ORFU, which once thrilled fans with such big-name players as Abie Bain, Bernie Faloney and Norm Perry, has been turned into a farm system for the WFU and Big Four and has lost its crowd appeal.

Also high up on the objection list is the feeling that there isn't much point in risking injury to key players by playing an underdog team before a handful of fans.

Prior to 1953, the ORFU winners met the Big Four champions for the eastern title and a berth into the Grey Cup against the western representatives. In 1953, the ORFU winners were invited west to meet the WIFU champions.

The Big Four and WIFU then agreed to alternate the semi-final and try to boost interest in the playoff.

WAS A SUCCESS

The 1953 semi-final proved such a financial success that the West took it over again in 1954. The alternating agreement, Big Four officials say, called for the West to handle it again this year with the Big Four taking it in '56.

Last November Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Edmonton Eskimos played to only about 8,000 customers at Edmonton, with Esks winning 38-4. There were hard feelings because the clubs, although Dutchmen were Eskimo farmhands, fights broke out. Star halfback Rollie Miles of Edmonton was injured.

Moe Lieberman, president of Eskimos, said Monday night that the WIFU is not anxious to play the ORFU this year.

Dr. Beattie Martin, president of Saskatchewan Roughriders, said his club doesn't want to play the ORFU champs this year—if Riders win the western title. As far as Riders are concerned, he said, they're handing it back to the Big Four.

EAST RESPONSIBILITY

At Winnipeg, Karl Slocomb, past president of the Bombers and now vice-president of the WIFU, said "we now feel that it is the responsibility of the East to look after that playoff."

Ralph Cooper, Big Four president, said "it's up to the West. I haven't heard a thing from the WIFU yet. I'm not going to do anything until I do."

Cooper said the agreement calls for the West to take the semi-final this season.

Jack Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, figured the "whole thing should be worked out by the team executives.".

NOT PRACTICAL

Obeck felt that "too many of the ORFU teams have been, and will continue to be, pretty well farm teams for the other leagues. On that basis it doesn't look very practical."

Harold Bailey, secretary of the ORFU, declined comment. He said ORFU team officials will meet in "about a week" to talk things over.

Howard said the WIFU is not considering asking for an amendment to the CRU constitution that the West be relieved of playing the ORFU in alternate years.

Since 1937 and excluding war years, ORFU teams have been in the Grey Cup five times and won four of them, although one was by default. An ORFU team last won the cup in 1934, when Sarnia Imperials defeated Regina 30-12. The Imps took it by default in 1936. Since the war, however, ORFU clubs have been clobbered in the semi-finals.

Arsenal Star Clicks With New Technique

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Tommy Lawton, the well-travelled centre smoothie with the deftest noggin in the game, is scoring his goals from the ground these days.

But they still count that way.

The former England leader, who once used his head to dominate opposing goalmouths from the air, now specializes in a "swivel shot" putting the emphasis on footwork. Basically, the idea is to pivot and shoot in the same motion.

In three recent games, Lawton has clicked in every match with new technique—and all three times the goal has given his club, Arsenal, a 1-0 victory.

Victims were Chelsea, Cardiff City and Tottenham, which lost to the Gunners on the days of the big freeze. A lot slower these days, the 35-year-old Lawton got one chance in the match, took a pass, pivoted and fired to leave the opposition goalie in the snow.

"It's not the running about, it's what you do in possession of the ball that counts," he said after the match, which aboved Arsenal further out of the relegation zone of the first division.

His bank account is reported to testify to the fact that he uses his brain to propel things other than soccer balls. He is supposed to be one of the wealthiest players in a game that isn't too profitable for players by North American standards.

Football wanderings have piled up club transfer fees of more than $50,000.

Most of his big-money transfers, excepting the move to Arsenal, were announced after the fashion of a Hollywood premiere. Lawton drew 10,000 extra spectators in his first game for Notts County and led them into the second division in two years.

Tony Percy New Canadian Welter Champ

MONTREAL (CP)—A 20-year-old scrapper from Drummondville, Que., is the new Canadian welterweight boxing champion.

Hugged Tony Percy overrode 23-year-old Reg Chartrand of Montreal for rounds Monday night to take an upset unanimous decision and the vacant welterweight crown.

The Canadian Boxing Federation had sanctioned the bout after former champ Claude Fortin of Montreal failed toi defend the title within a specified time.

Although both fighters weighed in at 47 pounds, Percy seemed in better shape as he hammered away at the Montreler. Chartrand came back with crowd-pleasing rebounds, but he didn't have the stamina and aggressiveness that won him two of his previous three encounters with the new champ.

The fight drew about 2,000 fans to the Mont St. Louis gymnasium.

When it ended, Chartrand's left eye was swollen shut and he had a cut over his right eye. Percy collected a couple of face bruises and a bloody nose. There were no knockdowns.

Pakistan P.M. Likes Curling

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan carried his curling club bonnet and jacket halfway around the world for a game with old friends.

The prime minister, who arrived Monday for a three-day state visit, took time out Monday night for a visit to the Rideau Curling Club. He learned the game when he was here as high commissioner for Pakistan from 949 to 95.

He played lead on a rink skipped by Col. L. P. Sherwood in a friendly game against former clubmates. Col. Sherwood's rink won 8-7.

Boxing Brass Thinks Sugar Ray 'Has Had It'

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Abe Greene of the National Boxing Association says he thinks Sugar Ray Robinson ought to quit thinking of a comeback.

"That was one retirement I thought would stick. I would have bet you anything that Ray would never come back."

Discussing Sugar Ray's dismal showing and defeat by Ralph (Tiger) Jones last week, he said:

"As soon as the fight was over I served his manager George Gainford saying: 'Don't let Sugar tarnish a glorious past. Hang 'em up please.'

"I hope he does. He's had it."

Stan Musial Won't Quit Under 3,000 Hits

NEW YORK (AP)—Stan Musial, 34, who can't quite comprehend why Ted Williams wants to quit while he's still one of baseball's top stars, plans to retire himself—but not until he achieves one great ambition.

The National League's top hitter has a burning desire to wind up his brilliant career with 3,000 major league hits. That is an achievement attained only by the elite—seven to be exact.

The St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder and slugger estimates it will take him three years to join the 3,000-hit club of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Hans Wagner, Eddie Collins, Napoleon Lajoie, Adrian Anson and Paul Waner. He'll begin his 4th active big league season next April with 2,816 hits, 282 shy of the coveted 3,090. That means he must average 194 hits for the next three years. He collected 185 last year.

Printers Play To 1-1 Tie

The outstanding play of Myles Morion, the Harry Lumley of The Ontario Intelligencer hockey team, allowed the boys from the local press to come up with a 1-1 deadlock in a rough and tumble game against Dick Ellis' crew at Memorial Arena last night.

Morion kicked out drive after drive, many of them off the stick of Jerry Desjardin, as the two teams went at it hammer and tongs. Desjardins tallied the lone goal for Ellis, a long shot that was partly blocked but just trickled over the line, in the first period. Art Culloden fired the tying marker early in the third session, a blast from centre ice that bounced past Anderson, in the twine for the visitors. The intell six missed a great scoring opportunity in the opening minutes of the game when Alexander stole the puck in the Ellis defence zone passed to Fred Soules, situated all alone in front of Anderson but the disc bounced off Soules' skate.

Several fights broke out near the end of the game with Bob McCann tangling with Russ Soules, while Skelly and Bruce Elmy started a battle that involved nearly all the players from both teams. Art Culloden was the lead man of the night with six penalties.

Don Woods was the referee.

Defiant Argonauts Stand Pat, Sign Two American Players

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, reiterating their stand as one of the Big Four Football Union's official stand on the signing of National Football League players, today announced that tackle Gil Mains of Detroit Lions and guard Bill Albright of New York Giants have been signed for the 1955 season.

The announcement by team manager Harry Sonshine that the two players had jumped their NFL teams to play with Argos came a few days after Big Four commissioner Bert Bell met in Philadelphia in an attempt to work out a no-raiding pact.

The Argos blocked an agreement by refusing to approve any pact that would prevent them from signing eight of the NFL players with whom they have been negotiating.

FIRST SIGNED

Mains and Albright are the first United States players signed by the Toronto team, but previously it had been reported unofficially that they were two of the players approached by Argos in their campaign to sign established NFL stars.

Their plans led to the Big Four deciding at its annual meeting, with Argonauts dissenting, to respect player options and contracts of NFL teams. The Toronto club agrees in principle to a no-raiding agreement but opposes any move to make it retroactive in the case of the players they have signed or entered contracts.

Neither Mains nor Albright had signed 1955 contracts with their NFL teams but both were under option for another year. Both said they did not consider they were committed to sign for next season.

The six-foot-three, 35 - pound Mains, who starred as a defensive tackle with Detroit, and Albright, a 200-pound veteran with the Giants, told Toronto newspaper men they signed with Argos because they could make more money playing in Canada. They said also Argos promised them a chance to make money in other fields.

PARKER SIGNS FOR ESKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Jackie Parker, 22-year-old halfback named Sunday as most valuable player in the Western Conference has signed his 1955 contract with Edmonton Eskimos, club president Hugh Sherman announced Monday. The former Mississippi State star helped Eskimos' winning touchdown against Montreal Alouettes in the 1954 Grey Cup. The Eskimos had been reported dickering with Parker into the National Football League.

In the bridge books of the great masters is a chapter on the slam. Bidding known as the direct method; a beautiful thing. But only a few can learn it and less can apply it successfully.

Also in their books are conventions of conventions that show aces and kings in some manner. Of these, the Blackwood convention has a wide following because of publicity given to it.

This is a bid of four no-trump asks partner how many aces he has. The reply to it is always a bid of five in something. This tells the quantity of aces only.

It goes like this: Five clubs denies holding any aces; five in diamonds shows one ace; five hearts shows two aces; five spades is a promise of three aces.

A bid of five no-trump asks partner how many kings he holds. The reply six clubs shows no kings; six diamonds, one king; six hearts, two kings, six spades, three kings.

Take the pair of partnership hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠Q 9 4 2	♠A Q 7 5 3
♥A K Q 8 5 2	♥7 4 3
♦K 10	♦A Q J 7
♣A K	♣9 5

By the time he gets a couple of replies from north, south is in the mood for a slam. Using the Blackwood convention his bid at five no-trump asks north to show how many aces he holds.

The north reply would be five diamonds, which is his one ace. If north also has a king the small slam has a good chance of succeeding. If he has two kings with the ace there is a grand slam.

So, north bids five no-trump to ask about kings. Six clubs says partner has only his ace and denies any kings. South could still stop at five hearts.

You should like that better.

Brian Kilrea and Bill McNeill were the Hamilton marksmen.

TeePee coach Rody Pilous was ordered from the St. Catharines bench in the first period by referee Jack Shropshire who claimed Pilous called him a "homer." Pilous said the remark was made by someone in the stands behind our bench.

The TeePees outshot the Cubs 36-20.

Will Request Dismissal Of Football Suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Lawyers for the National Football League and nine NFL clubs sued by the defunct Liberty Broadcasting System for $1,000,000 filed notice Monday that they will ask U.S. District Court Dec. 5 to dismiss the suit.

Cornelius C. O'Brien, Jr., who filed the motion, said the football clubs were "not engaged in trade or commerce within the meaning of the anti-trust laws and that professional football is a sport and not trade or commerce and broadcasting and telecasting of the football games played by the defendants was merely incidental thereto."

The suit, filed last Sept. 27, alleges that the, NFL "has illegally adopted, and enforced, throughout the United States of America. . . a system of submitting the broadcasting of professional football games in such manner as to restrain trade unlawfully in broadcasting and to maintain a monopoly of the broadcasting" in the home territories of NFL clubs.

Western Football Union Gets New-Style 16-Game Schedule

CALGARY (CP)—With an eye to helping the average fan and at the same time boosting home attendance, the Western Interprovincial Football Union has adopted a new-style 16-game schedule for the 1955 season.

The schedule, which won the approval of all five teams Sunday, will eliminate back-to-back doubleheaders at home but will assure every centre of a game every weekend.

The 1955 schedule had the same number of games, but most of the home games were played Saturday and the following Monday. Labor Day doubleheaders will benefit most from the new schedule with six Saturday home games and two Monday dates. Calgary Stampeders will have five Saturday and three Monday home games; Edmonton Eskimos and Vancouver Lions, four Saturday and four Monday games; Winnipeg Blue Bombers three Saturday and five Monday home contests.

The 3-week schedule starts Aug. 20, and closes Oct. 29. The playoffs, if they go limit, will finish Nov. 19, one week before the Grey Cup final.

Sport in Brief

HIGHEST IN BASEBALL

CLEVELAND (AP)—Pitcher Bob Lemon, who says "I got just what I asked for," signed a new contract with the Cleveland Indians Monday for about $60,000.

That makes him the American League's highest-paid player, if Ted Williams sticks to his retirement from the Boston Red Sox. (The Sox said Monday they have formally mailed Williams a contract.)

Lemon, a 3-time 20-victories against seven losses last season and general manager Hank Greenberg thinks he can do even better which probably amounts to about $5,000.

Hockey Is Hockey Talk Is English

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Canadians or Americans attending an ice hockey game in Italy feel they never left home.

Players speak to one another in English and their play is North American. This is not surprising, however, when you look at the roster of the Italian national hockey team.

Sixteen of the stars are North Americans.

Under Italian sports regulations, anyone of Italian descent is considered Italian even if his parents emigrated. Most of the players are Canadians, just there are a couple of Americans.

LEAGUE PLAY

Bill Thompson of Pittsburgh, who is studying law here after playing three years on the Olimpico college team, says he likes the Italian game. "It's less violent," he observes.

The team shouts its signals in English. Italian fans are sometimes mystified to hear their national players shouting "Quick, quick," or "Go, go," as the game progresses. Italian reporters find they have to learn English to cover the team.

All this came about when Italy decided to recruit some North Americans after placing last in the 1952 Winter Olympic competition. In 1952, Italy had such a weak team it didn't even enter.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Wednesday, January 26, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Indications accelerated over yesterday's. Day should yield in goodly share in proportion to effort, verve you put into activities. Don't overrule others but be wisely progressive.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Today has incentive and ambition for all worth while and interesting activities and matters. You can have a happy, constructive AND productive day if you desire and work for it.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Better to contain enthusiasm and desire for attainment within sensible and reasonable bounds. You will gain more than anticipated if you do your best and abide by common sense.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Yours innate kindliness and thoughtfulness will keep you on a happy, constructive path IF you employ this best self. No need to worry, and don't argue needlessly; it injures good progress.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Speed, acquisitiveness, ambition spurs birthights with you normally gay folks, and they could be propellers to great gains, but they must be supported by reason and a sense pace. Regard others' rights!

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Pick up some of today's impetus and enthusiasm for new benefits available. Matters requiring ingenuity, mental alertness and sound imagination are first sponsored. Good day generally.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Whole day requires evenness, smoothing out for best results. This does not mean, however, to refuse rightful gain earned by you, your company, in any sound enterprise you can. Pleasant influences.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Plenty of exhilaration, go-getiveness in the air. Take advantage of his stimulus but don't overdo or go to extremes. Could prove unprofitable several ways. Keep sane, even tempo.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Should be interesting, challenging period for you, by same token, plan and allocate schedule wisely, unperturbed, to obtain desired results. Profits available.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — May find tendency all around to rush into things, to make hasty decisions or quick changes: DON'T! A few minutes of planning and forethought could well save time, money, errors.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Prearrangements for all action now can mutually returns. Insure more dependable security for later. It usually pays well to study all angles of procedure and to know WHERE you are heading.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Knit together your splendid capabilities and talents and make them work in unison for honorable goals, which we hope you will realize. Today invites ingenuity, cleverness, FAITH!

YOU BORN TODAY are genial, fond of people and willing to aid enterprises for the betterment of mankind. You have much talent but may tend to waste time and energy on unimportant details or projects, or tasks not pertinent to your success. Know thyself! Recognize your failings and set to work at once (unless you've already done so) to correct them, and finally. Don't let progress pass you by or permit wasters of time to hinder your fine intentions. Lucrative, good associates, clean living for health and attainment. Birthdate: Gen'l Douglas MacArthur, U.S.A.; Charles XIV John, King of Sweden, Norway; Joan Leslie, actress.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking comfortable to himself, and she said, Pop, you know, William, that little Mrs. Rippler is such a nice little person, I'd like to do her a favor for her own good, she said, and pop said, You want to give her some advice?

Well yes, in a way, I meen yes, ma said. The way she parts her hair in the middle just seems to slice her face in half and makes it look even broader than it is, which of course is the very opposite effect from what she needs to appear to the best advantage, not to mention the fact that it hasn't been fashionable for years to part your hair in the middle, she said, and pop said, She probably likes it that way.

Well naturelly, she's so used to she just has no idea what it's doing to her face, that's the sad site of the picture, ma said. So do you think I ought to tell her in a friendly, impersonel way, William? she said, and pop said, I'll reserve my opinion until I've asked you 2 questions. First, do you think she will follow your advice?

Well, it's not easy to pry a woman from an old fashioned habit, ma said, and pop said, Second, do you actually give a tinker's fiddledeedee how she fixes her hair?

If you mens does it really matter to me personsly, I must say I couldn't be more concerned ole miles north of here.

way or the other, ma said, and pop said, Well, if she wouldn't listen to you, and you dont give a hang anyway, my advice would be, lay off.

In that case, William, I'm glad I asked you, ma said, and you said, in that ease I'm glad I told you.

Being the happy end of the subject.

Wait for Seamen To Improve Before Probe

HALIFAX (CP)—A navy board of inquiry is awaiting improvement in the condition of nine severely-ill survivors before questioning them about a near-fatal party aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent.

The nine were among 47 sailors being treated in hospital here for methyl alcohol poisoning. All joined in a Friday night drinking-spree aboard the carrier, during which the lethal drink was served.

A probe into events surrounding the impromptu party was launched Monday. Results are expected to be withheld until all 47 men have been questioned, but one naval source said it was possible the board's findings would be made known today.

FROM FLUID

The drinks were made from duplicating machine fluid mixed with ginger ale, apple cider and water and distributed through several ships messes in soup bowls and mugs.

The navy said the drinking was done undercover and escaped the eyes of officers on regular rounds. The poisonous duplicating fluid, kept locked and labelled "poison", is believed to have been taken by a sailor with a key to a locker.

Capt. J. C. Littler, chief of staff at the Stadacona naval base, said: "This stuff isn't just left lying around."

Mother Declares She Followed Doctor's Orders

BROCKVILLE (CP)—A decision in the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elliott, charged with failing to provide the necessities of life in connection with the death of their two youngest children, will be handed down Wednesday.

The defence rested its case Monday after Mrs. Elliott, 30, testified she had followed to the letter a doctor's instructions on feeding the children. Charges against the parents arose after the death in hospital here of Donna Marie, 1 months and David, 3½.

The crown had rested its case earlier and magistrate Gordon H. Jermyn announced Monday that decision has been reserved.

Medical evidence showed that "malnutrition due to an inadequate diet, mainly a vitamin C deficiency," was a contributing factor in the pneumonia deaths of both children last December.

HAD SCURVY

Dr. William Douglas Hay of Kingston, a provincial pathologist, said both children had infantile scurvy, "a disease which causes children to die suddenly for no apparent reason or else succumb to chest infection."

Mrs. Elliott testified that Donna and David were the only children of five not breast fed. She was aware that they were "thin, pale and bony" but did not think their condition warranted medical attention.

She said feeding instructions given by a physician had been followed daily.

Boxing events of the 1956 Olympic Games were to have been held in the 41-year-old stadium.

The stadium had been fully booked tonight and Tuesday for an appearance by crooner Frank Sinatra.

Creates Interest

LONDON (CP)—The newspaper News Of The World says the exhibition of Canadian art now on display in London has created "wide interest."

"I found that the majority of the pictures possessed a virility and independence of thought typical of the great Dominion," says a columnist writing under the name "White Friar."

The exhibition, opened to the public since Friday, is sponsored by the Ontario government. It covers about 100 years of Canadian painting.

Distemper Kills Labrador's Dogs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — An epidemic is ravaging animals in Labrador, striking hardest at the working dogs the scattered population depends on for winter transportation.

Outside new mineral development areas and military bases Labrador is populated by Indians, Eskimos and whites who live mainly by trapping, hunting and fishing. All depend on dogs for transportation and for hauling their sleds.

Resources Minister Rowe said Sunday "we don't know how many have died from the disease. It is up in the hundreds . . . maybe in the thousands."

He said a description of the disease, which is also hitting foxes and rabbits, leads him to believe it is distemper and not rabies.

REPORT UNDERSEA RANGE

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio said today a Russian survey has discovered a pre-Pacific mountain chain" underwater "mountain chain" in the northwest Pacific. It said the chain extends from the Hawaiian ridge, previously thought to end at the 45th parallel, to Kamchatka on the Soviet Union's eastern shore. One peak in the ridge rises three miles, it said.

Accident Victim Would Have Been Witness at Trial

CHAPLEAU (CP) — Authorities said Mon. a man killed Saturday in a mining accident 60 miles west of here had been scheduled to testify at a murder trial due to start Wednesday in Sudbury.

John Naegel, 22, formerly of Olden, Sask., was listed as a crown witness at the trial of Robert Bruce Ducharme, also 22, of Hamilton, accused of murder in the shooting last month of school teacher Steve Klapouschak, 21.

Naegel was crushed under two tons of rock when he fell down a shaft at the Renabie mine.

Klapouschak, whose home was in Timmins, was found dead beside a schoolhouse at Dalton, 45 miles west of Chapleau. Police said he had been shot five times and apparently robbed.

Japanese Vote Set for February

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama's government dissolved the Diet (parliament) last night and prepared to face the voters at a general election next month, possibly Feb. 27.

Hatoyama, a Conservative, dissolved the Diet in accordance with an agreement he made with the Socialist parties when he took office just six weeks ago.

He had agreed to the early elections in return for Socialist support on forcing the resignation of former prime minister Shigeru Yoshida.

The 72-year-old crippled prime minister has called for stronger ties with Red China and Russia and still retain friendship with the United States.

Yoshida's supporters, also conservative, accused Hatoyama of trying to woo the voters with false hope of a China trade boom.

BURNS, ALLEN HONORED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedians George Burns and Gracie Allen were given a testimonial Sunday night at a gala show-business banquet. A spokesman said approximately 1,000 attending subscribed an average of $100 be given to their favorite charities.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown

She saved three lives

It was early in the morning. Seeping coal gas fumes had all but overcome a little girl and two women in a suburban Toronto home. One of the women, Mrs. Mary Hague, struggled to the telephone and barely managed to dial "Operator" before collapsing.

Unable to get any response, the night operator, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, immediately notified the police. Within minutes the victims were reached and revived. Through her prompt action three lives were spared. Quick thinking in an emergency has made a heroine of many a Bell operator, for most people turn to the telephone for help in all kinds of trouble — often rely on the operator for assistance.

There may never come a time when you need the fire department, police, or a doctor in a frantic hurry — but isn't it a comfort to know that behind your telephone are people on wide-awake duty 24 hours a day?

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both— Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only $1.10 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly. ®Trade Mark

Insurance Agent Found Slain In Toronto Park

Police Say Man Shot In Neck With Own Gun

TORONTO (CP)—The body of a 34-year-old collection agent for an insurance company was discovered early today sprawled face-up beside a car in the east-central Regent Park area of Toronto.

Police said Zygmunt Zalewski had been shot in the neck with his own gun.

The gun, a beretta .380, was found under Zalewski's hat, police said. They are making tests to determine if the death was murder or suicide.

Time of death was tentatively fixed at 9 p. m. Tuesday. Police said Mrs. Jane Zalewski told them her husband said he might be late because he had several calls to make. She said he never arrived home.

The body was discovered today by Toronto police.

Dr. Ward Smith, medico-legal expert of the attorney-general's crime laboratory, was assigned to the case late this morning.

Police said Mr. Zalewski often carried large amounts of money with him. About $12 in cash was found scattered near the body.

Detective Sergeant Bernard Simmons said Zalewski's pockets had been turned out. There were only a few pennies in his pockets.

Police said normally Zalewski would have been carrying upwards of $200.

Zalewski, his wife and parents came to Canada from Poland 3½ years ago. The Zalewski's have a two-year-old son.

Rebels Give Up, Ending Threat Of Border Strife

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The threat of bloodshed between neighboring Costa Rica and Nicaragua subsided today after 300 Costa Rican rebels surrendered for internment in Nicaragua. An inter-American peace commission postponed a planned Wednesday trip to finish its conciliation job.

The retreat of the insurgent remnants across the Nicaraguan frontier apparently marked the definite end of the Costa Rican revolution which started two weeks ago. The end came after San Jose government ordered its troops into the now-abolished neutral zone along the border with Nicaragua to hunt rebel holdouts.

Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza said earlier that any insurgents crossing his border would be jailed in Managua. Their internment ended the possibility of any advance by Costa Rican troops to the frontier, risking a clash with Nicaraguan border guards.

"GOOD NEWS"

Jose Mora of Uruguay, president of the council of the Organization of American States, said the rebels' retreat was "good news since it means the end of a threat of fighting between Costa Rican and Nicaraguan forces."

But in Managua, Teodoro Picado, exiled ex-president of Costa Rica, called the rebels' cease-fire "necessary to oust the government of President Jose Figueres, Picado said his son, Teodoro, Jr., United States-trained field commander of the rebel force, "won't give up."

The younger Picado's where-abouts were not known here today.

Luis Quintanilla of Mexico, chairman of the peace commission sent by the OAS, said the sudden end of the rebel threat made unnecessary the commission's planned flight Thursday to Costa Rica. The group had scheduled the trip to present to the OAS council its report on the Figueres-for more observers along the border.

Trusted Worker Held for Theft Of $100,000

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A trusted employee today was charged with the theft of $100,000 from the Worcester Bus Co., which reported a profit of only $41,000 for the first three-quarters of last year.

Walter E. Hoyle, 44, father of two, was ordered held Tuesday in $100,000 bail on a charge of larceny said, taking the money during the last 22 months.

Authorities said Hoyle had access to money boxes turned in by drivers in his capacity as a day-to-a-year revenue agent. He had been employed by the bus company for 18 years.

Police quoted Hoyle as saying he took "at least $300 to $500 a week" but didn't know the exact total.

TO SHOW DUTCH ART

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. A. B. de Vreej, director of The Hague's Mauritshuis museum, said Monday Holland's gratitude to the Canadian soldiers who liberated the country during the Second World War had a part to do with arrangements for a showing of $20,000,000 worth of 17th century Dutch paintings here this winter. The 96 paintings will go on display at the Art Gallery of Toronto for five weeks starting Feb. 12.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Winter has a firm grip on all Canada today, with early morning temperatures above freezing this morning are reported along the B.C. coast, while readings of 20 to 30 below are common on the Prairies. White River touched 36 below. Cold weather will continue in all forecast regions today, with still lower temperatures expected Thursday as the frigid Prairie air descends upon Ontario.

CONSERVATIVES WILL SUPPORT GOVT. MEASURE

Will Vote as Party To Rearm Germany

OTTAWA(CP) — Full Progressive Conservative support has been pledged in today's Commons vote on admission of a rearmed West Germany to NATO.

Hon. Earl Rowe, acting Opposition leader, said in the Commons Tuesday night the Conservatives, faced with the government motion for ratification of the Paris agreements, will vote as a party "confident there is no other common sense or sensible alternative."

External Affairs Minister Pearson planned to speak just before this afternoon's vote closes out a serious but subdued four-day debate in which 49 of the Chamber's 265 members have spoken.

Parliament by the Commons was not in doubt as the debate neared the Tuesday night vote.

THOSE SUPPORTING

Besides support of the 51-member Progressive Conservative party, all members of the 172-member Liberal party and the 14-member Social Credit group have spoken have endorsed the action.

Ten of the 24-member CCF group have said they will vote against ratification. They are Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg, Leader Lewis, and Angus MacInnis, Vancouver Kingsway, who have said they will support it. One other party member has said he will vote against it, but the member has indicated opposition to the proposed action is lasting whether or how he will vote.

Mr. Rowe, acting in the absence of Opposition Leader Drew, said if the Commons supports ratification the West may be able to avoid a third world war and assure a lasting peace.

"Our faith in humanity must overlay our traditional prejudices" he said. Previously he expressed fears of rearming Canada's enemy of two world wars.

WOULD BE FORFEITED

If the Commons were to agree with CCF opponents, "we would be withdrawing from out of NATO and the West's right to control the use of her armed forces would be forfeited. The defence responsibilities of Canada and NATO would be lessened but "our influence would be embarrassingly impaired by such utter unreasons."

West Germany Says Reds' 'Peace' Is Meaningless

BONN (Reuters) — The West German cabinet asserted today that Russia's declaration ending a state of war with Germany will only have real meaning when Russia "takes all measures necessary" to provide genuinely free elections in all Germany and signed a "peace treaty negotiated in full freedom" with an all-German government.

The cabinet at the same time said it hopes that as an initial consequence of its declaration" Russia will release all German prisoners-of-war and civilian internees it still holds.

The cabinet's routine meeting under vice-chancellor Franz Blucher also noted that the Western powers ended their state of war with Germany in 1951 and that Soviet counterpart have followed suit.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is expected to draft the official reply to the Russian declaration himself. He returns Thursday from vacation.

Early Risers Given Frigid Reception in West

EDMONTON (CP)—Clear skies and Arctic winds gave early risers in Saskatchewan a frigid reception today. Warmest temperature in the province's urban centres was 26 below zero.

Prince Albert in the north recorded 41 below zero at dawn, one degree higher than the overnight low. Morning readings were 27 below at Regina, 31 below at Moose Jaw and Swift Current, 35 below at Moose Jaw and Saskatoon.

Alberta temperatures held to the single-digit mark. It was 15 at Edmonton, 24 at Red Deer, 15 at Calgary and 13 at Lethbridge.

Chasing Hot Atoms With Airplanes Helps U.S. Experts Predict Weather

NEW YORK (AP) — Hot atoms and dust loosed by A-bomb tests in Nevada have been helpful in improving weather forecasting, Dr. Lester Machta of the United States weather bureau says.

The floating particles gave a clock on predictions of low fast air masses move, and something about how they move or mix. The radioactivity also gave some clues about how clouds grow.

The atomic debris can be a helpful tool for studying air movements and distribution of water vapor than are clusters of balloons, Machta said in a paper prepared for the American Meteorological Society.

The faint line of atomic particles was detected and tracked by airplanes.

Chiang Kai-Shek's Forces Will Abandon Tachen Islands

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Although Nationalist Chinese officials won't say so, there is no question but that Chiang Kai-shek's forces will abandon the Tachen Islands.

Reliable sources said today that the many problems involved have been worked out at conferences between Nationalist and American officers, and that planning has reached the stage where the operation can begin whenever the signal is given.

Formal announcement appeared to await only congressional approval in Washington of President Eisenhower's recommendations.

The sources said the evaluation would be a joint operation, under over-all command of Vice-Admiral Alfred M. Pride, commander of the United States 7th Fleet. His flagship, the cruiser Rochester, is at the north Formosa port of Keelung.

There never has been any serious question about the Nationalists' acceptance of the plan to evacuate the Tachens, 200 miles north of the port of Taipeh and the Red mainland. Two of the islands are within artillery range of Yikiangshan, Red-held island off the Communist.

But Nationalist officials don't want to give the impression that they are eager to abandon any of the island outposts.

Although the evacuation is all set, including withdrawal of a powerful 7th Fleet force "at the ready," certain formal steps must be taken before the move can begin. These include final congressional approval of Eisenhower's request for authority to use "the armed forces of the United States as he deems necessary for the security of Formosa and the Pescadores," a formal request by Chiang and naval forces to assist Chiang in the redeployment of his forces; and Chiang's request—which is certain to be acceptance.

About 15,000 regulars and guerrillas will be evacuated. The 15,000 civilian inhabitants will be given their choice, and most are expected to ask for evacuation.

Will the Reds try to interfere with the withdrawal at the expense of an armed clash with the United States?

Opinion in Taipeh is divided. Everyone here recognizes the risk. On one thing, however, the Nationalists are agreed: The Reds will come out second best if they should attempt to "eat off the Reds."

There was no immediate comment from the 7th Fleet.

Nationalist four-engined bombers attacked Yikiangshan island—lost to the Reds three days ago—through a curtain of anti-aircraft fire in the pre-dawn darkness today and caused extensive damage, Chiang's report said.

Other bombers operating in the area announced that a large 3,200-ton Red Chinese warship, the repeated.

The official Central news agency says the total lack of Communist air opposition "might make the Reds are preparing for a large-scale attack on one more of the Nationalists' island outposts.

In Long Beach, Calif., the U.S. Navy announced that three heavy cruisers and eight destroyers are being sent to the Far East. The Far East. Rear-Admiral Roland M. Smoot said "this is not necessarily connected with any incident in anything that has occurred recently. It is a routine rotation planned and scheduled for months."

Loses Sight of Eye

TORONTO (CP) — Police say Gordon Price, 9, found a detonator cap, attached it to the transfer of an electric train he got as a Christmas present, and threw the detonator switch.

The cap blew up in his face, destroying the sight of his right eye and severing all several fingers.

Police said the accident occurred five days ago but they kept it secret until Tuesday because of an investigation. They say in a statement in the case. They said they believe the cap was loose away at the rear of a record market by a safehower being chised by police.

Parents Acquitted

BROCKVILLE (CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elliott today were acquitted on charges of failing to provide the necessities of life in connection with the Christmas time death of their two youngest children.

The children, Donna Marie, 11 months, and David, 2½, died in Kingston General Hospital after six other children in the family.

Magistrate Gordon H. Jermyn handed down the acquittal verdict at court opening today.

Manufacturers Acting to Reduce Unemployment

TORONTO (CP)—The executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said today the association aims at showing by solid example what can be done to relieve seasonal unemployment.

In line with this, the press release stated, CMA is making all efforts to obtain concrete data on results achieved by individual industrial firms in their efforts to maintain steady work throughout the year.

Similar information was being sought from other trade associations, and all such information would be made available to associated members.

CMA was also maintaining close liaison with the interdepartmental committee on seasonal unemployment, set up to disseminate information on the subject.

The council reiterated its hope that the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, now being discussed at Geneva, will continue beyond the present expiry date so that certain adjustments will be made in tariff schedules which have been existing unemployment in some segments of Canada's industry.

Offer New City Hall

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto will be offered a new city hall, financed entirely from private Canadian funds.

James McCollickin of McCollickin, Lumb Co. Ltd., a Toronto realty firm, said the proposal will be put before the city this week.

He said under the Trans-Canadian financing, the proposition will be essentially the same as a Hamilton group offered a year ago to build a $1-storey, $15,000,000 building. That offer was rejected.

OPPOSITION MEMBERS QUIT HIGHWAYS PROBE

'Whitewashing' Charge Is Voiced by Oliver

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of the Ontario legislature committee investigating highways irregularities said today he will seriously consider whether he should sign warrants for payment of three committee members who walked out on Tuesday's meeting.

A. Kelso Roberts, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Patrick, said a member who refuses from a committee meeting is liable to a penalty through loss of pay.

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, Albert Wren (Lib-Lab — Keoora) and W. J. Grummett (CCF—Cochrane South) left the meeting over a dispute on a proposal to call 11 witnesses before the committee.

As today's meeting started Mr. Riberis said he couldn't express any strong views immediately as the indiscriminate use of the word "whitewashing" by some, if not all of the three members who left the meeting was "unfair."

The walkout was started by Mr. Oliver after the committee refused his request to call several witnesses before the committee.

MOTION DEFEATED

A motion by Mr. Oliver to have a long list of witnesses called by the committee was defeated when the committee adopted an amendment by W. H. Collings, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Beaches, that the witnesses be asked whether they wished to appear.

"If you want to whitewash this thing, then go ahead and whitewash it," Mr. Grummett said. "As far as I'm concerned I'm relieved that I no longer have to sit on this committee. It's serving no useful purpose."

Mr. Oliver said the witnesses he wanted the committee to call included former highways department employees and officials of companies found guilty of fraud in connection with irregularities in highways department contracts.

"I think these witnesses would give information valuable to the committee in report to the legislature," he added.

WILL CONTINUE

Mr. Kelso Roberts, committee chairman, said after the three-man exodus that the committee will continue to sit. He also commented:

"No attempt to whitewash has been made and none will be made."

The remaining members of the 11-man committee agreed any witnesses called by the committee appear before the committee if they wanted; that it would be unfair for the committee to demand that those who were involved in charges be questioned by the committee.

The committee resumed sessions Tuesday after an adjournment since last summer to allow time for completion of court cases resulting from highways probe.

Three highways contracting firms were fined a total of $215,000 and seven civil servants and department employees were sentenced to short jail terms.

Admits Ownership

TORONTO (CP)—A 48-year-old Toronto man was arrested Tuesday while walking with his wife and charged with manslaughter in the traffic death of Clifford Gordon Bell, 13, last Dec. 3.

John William Gill was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence causing death following a description to police throughout the city.

Police said Gill at first denied any knowledge of the accident in which the car didn't stop but later admitted being the owner of the vehicle.

Senate Groups Endorse Request By Eisenhower

House Has Already Given War Powers to President

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate foreign relations and armed services committees today approved 26 to 2 a resolution giving President Eisenhower full war powers to defend Formosa and its outposts.

Senators William Langer (Rep., N. D.) and Wayne Morse (Ind. Ore.) voted against the resolution when it was reported out to the Senate in exactly the form it passed the House of Representatives Tuesday by a vote of 409 to 3.

Senator Walter George (Dem., Ga.), who presided at the closed door meeting, announced no effort would be made to call up the resolution for Senate action before next Monday morning.

CONSENT NEEDED

Unless there is unanimous consent for immediate consideration, any measure must under Senate rules "lay over" for one day after it is reported by a committee.

Earlier Defence Secretary Wilson told Congress Eisenhower that he sees no need for any "important changes" in U. S. armed forces "for the present."

Wilson, appearing before the House and Senate armed services committees to report on American military strength, made the statement in connection with the mounting tension over Red China's threat to invade Nationalist Formosa situation loomed large in the background. Also scheduled to brief the committee was Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The House Tuesday approved, 409 to 3, a resolution endorsing acts of war, should the president think them necessary, to defend the Chinese Nationalist island stronghold from the Reds. President Eisenhower asked Congress for the authority in a special message Monday.

AIMS UNCHANGED

Wilson said he does not expect Russia "to take action during the next few years that would destabilize politically or precipitate another world conflict." Both Communist aims and techniques, he said, "certainly might arise through miscalculation on their part."

Eisenhower at this time foresees any important reduction in the military establishment. He said the annual military expenditures of the department of defense for the present levels, nor do I see any need for any important increases ahead of us."

The defence secretary discussed in general terms a plan that would put American armed forces in a "qualitatively improved state of readiness to meet indefinite period of time." Continental defence and "effective retaliatory power" have been given "high priority."

Next year's program lays particular stress on the development of nuclear energy in military operations . . . and (in) the development of operational guided missiles to meet the urgent requirements of our defence and retaliatory forces."

DEFENCES IMPROVED

The continental defence program was being "pushed with all practical speed" and he predicted early development of "effective pilotless and pilotless planes of all ranges and better anti-submarine devices."

Meanwhile, Tuesday's all but unanimous House approval strengthened the Senate today toward completion of congressional endorsement of a continental defence policy under which the president could order the use of force.

In the Senate, approval of the resolution by the armed forces and armed services committees was required before it could act officially.

'Stop Fighting' Britain's First Concern in East

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden said today the first concern of the British government in the Formosa crisis "is to stop the fighting."

He told the House of Commons:

"Force is no solution to this delicate and difficult problem. A settlement, can only be arrived at by the peaceful process of negotiations."

IN CLOSE TOUCH

Eden stressed that Britain was in close and constant touch with the United States on the problem.

Referring to President Eisenhower's request to Congress to authorize him to use American armed forces to defend Formosa the Pescadores and "related locations" Eden said:

"The British government are convinced that the object of the United States administration has also been to reduce the risks of any extension of the fighting."

Eden pointed out that President Eisenhower had announced that:

"Congress "has been careful to say that he is not suggesting that the United States should enlarge its defensive obligations beyond Formosa and the Pescadores as provided by the mutual defence treaty with (Chinese Nationalist) Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek."

TRUST PRESIDENT

"The president has again emphasized that the defensive character of the arrangement with the Chinese Nationalists.

"We in this country respect President Eisenhower and know he will not take us into war with U. S. forces only with the greatest reluctance and when, in his view, the situation constituted an immediate and serious threat to the security of Canada and the Pescadores."

Eden said Britain was "convinced that the problem of the coastal islands is susceptible of a peaceful solution if only all those concerned are prepared to work for it."

HURT BY STORM

BRANTFORD (CP)—An Atlantic storm was responsible for the spread of a major fire here last week. A break in a new 36-inch water main caused a water cutoff and hampered firemen just as they had the blaze in the basement of a boot shop under control. R. H. Cotton, waterworks manager, said the pipes were damaged in a storm as far back as they were being brought from England. The weakened pipes broke under high water pressure.

40th Anniversary Of Kiwanis Club Is Observed

Belleville Kiwanis yesterday hailed the 40th anniversary of the international service organization's birth at its regular weekly luncheon in the club centre.

Highlight of the meeting was the showing of the film "Sincere Of Service," a documentary on the aims of Kiwanis.

Lt.-Governor McDougall introduced the film, backgrounding the organization to members. Kiwanis is (an Indian word meaning "to make oneself known") was founded in Detroit in 1914, and received its charter from the State of Michigan on January 21, 1916. The first Canadian club was organized in Hamilton shortly afterward. Today the international set-up of the organization numbers 3,900 clubs counting 233,000 members in Canada and the United States. Mr. McDougall told members the objective for 1955 is to increase the membership to 240,000 and raise $50,000.

The film stressed all the objectives of the organization laying particular emphasis on the maintenance and fostering of friendship between Canada and the United States, world peace and strengthening of the United Nations.

It also called upon Kiwanis to elect, support and recognize worthy public citizens, and to "sponsor" community activities, strengthen homes, combat delinquency and guide our boys and girls to strong maturity.

The program was introduced by Ev Fairman and the chairman of the luncheon was president Stan McKenna. Bert Harold, carrothers and Phil Huddleston led the song-fest.

Perfect attendance tabs also were awarded to 17 members of the club. Topping the list was Bruce Latimer with 15 years' perfect attendance and Clif Baragar with 17 years.

Cutting Costs Job of Foreman Says Speaker

"Cutting costs is the most important responsibility the foreman has to shoulder," said G. B. Bailey in an address to more than 100 members of the Quinte District Foremen's Club at a meeting in the YMCA Tuesday evening.

Mr. Bailey, director of J. D. Woods and Gordon, management consultants was speaking on "Work Simplification from the Foreman's Viewpoint."

"One method of cutting costs is to apply work simplification to each job," he said. He explained that a too formal presentation of these principles would confuse a foreman. However, time and motion study, time study, the foreman can prove or disprove readily his ideas on cutting costs and would no longer have to rely entirely on the opinion of a consultant-study expert.

Such estimates by the foreman would eliminate delays which are discouraging and fatal on short run jobs.

The five principles of work simplification, as outlined by Mr. Bailey are: 1. pick a job to improve; 2. break down the job into its component parts; 3. question details; 4. develop a better method; 5. apply the new method.

Five new members joined the club at Tuesday's meeting.

Ald. Bruce Smith Re-Elected Chairman Moira R. Authority

Alderman Bruce Smith, of Belleville, was re-elected chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the annual meeting held Tuesday afternoon at Shire Hall. Mr. Ralph Deroo named to the position a year ago.

Earl Seger, reeve of Madoc township, was named vice-chairman.

A total budget of $10,000 was approved by the Authority members for the year, this being placed $1,300 over that of last year. Fifty per cent of the above amount is raised through levy on the various municipalities within the watershed. Owing to a deficit of slightly over $800 last year, this year's allowable budget will be reduced to $9,487.36, it was noted by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, secretary-treasurer.

Following a review of last year's expenditures Mayor John Both, of Belleville, congratulated the Authority on its financial record stating that the $10,000 tax dollars went as far as Belleville could hope to better.

Herb Crown, representative of the department of planning and development, brought greetings from A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer. He said he was particularly pleased with the growth of the Moira Authority. "Growth of the Authority represents a solid and steady growth," he said.

Reports on the various Authority projects will be heard, it being noted that the old O'Hara's Mill in Madoc township, which is the second oldest in Hastings Co. ilc had been dismantled and plans were being made for its restoration. A brief was being prepared by the department and there would be a request for donations to assist in the restoration of the mill.

REPORTS ON PROPERTIES

Zone Forester W. E. Edwards, of Napanee, reported on various properties which had been recommended for purchase for reforestation purposes. Twelve were mostly in the Hungerford township area but only one lot on the 4th concession of Rawdon, according to Mr. Edwards.

He noted that cutting of cedar posts in the Hungerford township area owned by the Authority was continuing this winter. The area had been flooded by beaver dams and the cedar had been killed.

There was a brief discussion on the availability of the Authority tree planter. Field Officer Don Bell noted that from the ex-

Knights Hear Ald. B. Stafford Of Kingston

At a regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus in their clubrooms on Front Street, Tuesday night, the members were entertained by an address by Ald. Barry J. Stafford of Kingston at the close of the business session. The entertainment committee, headed by lecturer Frank Donnelly, was in charge of that part of the program and the thanks of the members were expressed to the lecturer by Eddie Lyons after A. B. Collins, Q.C. had introduced the guest speaker.

Ald. Stafford spoke in a humorous vein but in a serious mood as chairman of the building fund for the Diocese, thanked the members for the material help given in conducting so successful a campaign.

The attendance prize was won by Michael Hughes, Jr., the lucky ticket which the members enjoyed a buffet lunch served in the banquet room and then a social hour completed a most enjoyable evening. Grand Knight Henry Gulick and he was in charge of the business session of the Council.

$15,000 Damage To 2 Transports In Collision

William Young, 38, of 3182 St. Clair Ave. East, Toronto, is in Belleville General Hospital with a possible fractured skull suffered early today, when the Smith Transport he was driving collided with another transport at Marysville.

Driver of the other transport, Harold Murney of Cobourg, escaped with shaking up and a cut on the nose. Tractors of both transports were completely demolished with damage estimated at $15,000.

The accident occurred about 1.30 this morning 200 feet north of Canadian National Railways level crossing. The eastbound Smith Transport and the westbound Direct Winters vehicle smashed together with the left front of both tractors receiving the brunt of the impact.

"It's a miracle that the driver of the Smith transport is still alive," stated Provincial Constable Graves. "The cab was badly crushed in and was twisted around facing the trailer."

Traffic on No. 2 highway was re-routed through the McAuley service station for over two hours until wrecking crews were able to clear the roadway of the wreckage of the two heavy vehicles. Provincial Police Constables Graves and Cameron help route traffic at the scene of the mishap from 1.30 until 6 o'clock this morning.

The injured man was treated at the scene by Dr. D. C. McVicar of Deseronto and was then taken to Belleville hospital by Bush's Ambulance. Twenty-six stitches were required to close cuts in his head.

A slippery highway surface was given as a possible contributing cause of the accident.

Says Potatoes Not Fattening

TORONTO (CP)—A potato expert says spuds never turned a curves into fatpes.

E. K Hampson of Hamilton, recently - retired manager of the Dominion Potato Board, said he reports that the potato is fattening are propaganda.

Mr. Hampson, at meeting of the potato section of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association Tuesday, he said:

"Those who are fighting the battle of the bulge should be advised to grasp the south end of a hay mower and switch it, rather than a firm grip on the far end of a hoe."

He suggested growers across Canada form an organization that might be called the Potato Institute of Canada. One of its functions would be to set curve-conscious people know that potatoes are not fattening.

TUGS FREE FREIGHTER

BREMERHAVEN (AP) — The American freighter Marion Lykes ran aground in the Weser river estuary off Bremerhaven Tuesday but was freed by three German tugs after a few hours. The 8,700-ton vessel proceeded on her voyage to the United States.

The Rev. W. J. Robinson spoke of his pleasant life serving as rector of St. Thomas' Church and referred to the fine work which had been done during the year by the church wardens and other leaders, and of the splendid feeling of co-operation and harmony which exists in the parish. Further gifts to the church were received namely: a balcony railing; new lights over the balcony, and a public address system.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was barely steady on large grades and firm on mediums. Offerings were more than adequate for a quiet demand.

Quotations provided by the Dominion department of agriculture:

Eggs, graded, in fibre cases: A large 35; A medium 33; A small 27-28; B 32; C 24. Wholesale to retail: A large, 40; A medium 38; A small 32-33; B 33; C 29.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials surged ahead on the stock market today but many uranium issues fell off sharply.

Steels were particularly strong, moving up to a solid line.

Papers, utilities, liquors, refining oils and manufacturers also gained. Chemical Dynamics touched a 1956-55 high of $82 and was ahead $6 at $81 at 1 p.m. Ahead $1 or more were International Paper, Steleo, Westons and Hinde and Dauch.

Senior base metals climbed smartly with Nickel selling up 75 cents at $58 and Hudson Bay also strong.

Uraniums went into a second day of price losses after a government official said it was uncertain whether demand for uranium would remain high after the present contract expired March 31, 1962.

Off sharply among low-priced mines were Headway, New Thurbois and Coulee. Consolidated Sudbury countered the lower trend with a 23-cent climb to $2.39.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Trade on all classes of slaughter cattle was very slow today at the Ontario stockyards. The bulk of the offering was graded medium and good. A few sales of picked lots sold steadily.

Receipts: Cattle 800; calves 75; hogs 345; sheep and lambs 35; holdover 3,050 cattle.

Prices: Good weighty steers 19-20; a few choice to 21; mediums 16-18; common and plain good heifers 17-18; mediums 14-16; commons 12-14; good cows generally 11; an odd top sale for 11.50; canners and cutters down to 6; medium light bulls 11-12.50.

Calves were 26-28 with an odd top of 29 for good and choice vealers; mediums 18-22; commons 15-17.

Hogs were 27.50 for grade A with 800 selling on Tuesday at 27.75 and 31 at 28; sows 19.50.

Lambs were slow 23 for good ewes and wethers; bucks were discounted $1 a hundredweight; common and medium lambs were slow at prices ranging from 12 to 22. Good light sheep 8-10; common down to 2.

SENATE GROUPS

Chairman Walter George (Dem., Ga.) of the foreign relations committee predicted the resolution would clear the group during the day. He expected overwhelming Senate approval this week.

There were signs of uneasiness on the part of some senators, however, over aspects of the closed-door testimony by members of the joint chiefs of staff.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.), for example, said that as he interpreted the military secretary Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway approved of the objectives of the president's request "but he apparently doesn't want Quemoy included" in any Formosa defensive ring.

"He doesn't want to put manpower on the continent of Asia," Sparkman said in reference to Ridgway's position, adding: "He regards Quemoy as the same thing." Quemoy is about three miles from the mainland.

Steel Industry Now Producing At Higher Rate

NEW YORK (AP)—The American steel industry now is producing at an annual rate of 107,000,000 tons compared with actual 1954 production of 72,300,000 tons, Iron Age, the national metal-working weekly, says.

The magazine adds that with operations scheduled at 84 per cent of rated capacity this week, up one point from last week's revised rate, it is expected the rate will pass 85 per cent within the next few weeks.

Meanwhile, evidence of "grey market" activity continued to pile up. In Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago "fast buck" brokers were trying to capitalize on the tight market for flat-rolled steel.

From Detroit came reports that auto manufacturers are planning still higher production schedules for the second quarter, and this would put even greater pressure on the market for flat-rolled steel products during the next few months.

Grimsby Police Chief Facing Dozen Charges

GRIMSBY (CP) — Police chief William J. Johnston has been summoned to appear at a public hearing of 12 charges under the Police Act following a Grimsby council police committee recommendation.

Charges against chief Johnston include activity on members of the public, making false, misleading and inaccurate statements relating to duty; improperly using his position for private advantage and acting in a manner likely to bring disrespect on Grimsby police force.

The hearing was set for Jan. 31 when council met Monday. The chief was previously asked if he wanted to resign but said no.

Deacon Bros. Grenfell Parkas Make Hit With British Royalty

Grenfell cloth parkas, made by Deacon Brothers Ltd., of Belleville, have made a hit with British Royalty.

During the brief visit of the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada last summer he was presented with a Deacon-made parka by the Grenfell Association, while he was at Vancouver. The Duke wore the parka jacket during his trip through the Canadian mainland and he apparently took a liking to it.

At any rate Mr. John Deacon later received a brief letter from Michael Parker, aide to the Duke, who noted he had been requested by the Duke of Edinburgh to express his thanks for the "excellently made Eskimo parka" which had been forwarded on behalf of the Grenfell Association.

Last request by Queen Elizabeth also took a liking to the Duke's jacket on his return home to England, so much so in fact, that she wanted one like it.

Last Friday Deacon Brothers received a telegram from London requesting that another "Eskimo parka" a duplicate of the one presented to the Duke on his Canadian visit, be forwarded as soon as possible along with a smaller one, which would fit Queen Elizabeth.

In compliance with the order the two parkas were packed by Deacon Brothers Ltd., Tuesday afternoon and were shipped overseas by T.C.A. air express.

Formosa Developments Deal Blow To Hopes for Airmen's Release

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—This week's developments regarding Formosa have dealt a blow to hopes at the United Nations for the early release of 21 Americans held in Red China.

They also have lessened the chance that the United Nations can act effectively to bring about a cease-fire order in the Formosa area or halt the fighting if actions by both sides of the controversy become the United States and Red China.

These actions were mentioned as including President Eisenhower's Monday message, Tuesday's congressional action and Premier Chou En-lai's unyielding Peiping statement Monday in relation to Formosa.

At the direction of the UN Assembly, Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold flew to Peiping in an effort to obtain release of the prisoners taken in the Korean War. On his return he reported a successful first step toward freeing the men. Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. delegate to the UN, expressed confidence they would be released.

As of today, however, the view here is that the situation has hardened considerably. Two days ago President Eisenhower asked congress for authority to use American forces to defend Formosa, the adjacent islands and related areas from Communist attack. He also expressed hope that the UN might arrange a cease-fire.

The same day, Chou broadcast that Peiping would not accept a cease-fire proposal. The Formosa strait, Chou reiterated his regime's plan to subdue Formosa.

(Also, Reuters news agency reported in a Washington dispatch Tuesday night that the possibility of inviting a Red Chinese representative to the UN Security Council to discuss a Formosa cease-fire is being weighed in the U.S. capital. The dispatch, quoting informed diplomatic sources, said it was emphasized that the appearance of a representative would not imply that UN membership for Red China was in the offing, or that the U.S. was softening its attitude towards recognition.)

Drew Expected Back in House In Mid-February

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew is expected to resume his parliamentary duties between Feb. 11 and 20, it was learned here Tuesday.

Earlier, he was expected to be back in the Commons Feb. 1.

A spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party said the Opposition leader has recovered fully from the attack of meningitis he suffered Nov. 11. However, Mr. Drew's doctor had ordered him to prolong his period of rest to ensure he will get over after effects.

Mr. Drew now is resting at Ste. Adele, Que. The 60-year-old leader has been away from Ottawa since late December.

Britain, France Deny Charges Treaties Broken

MOSCOW (AP) — Britain and France today delivered a note to the Soviet Union denying USSR charges that the rearming of West Germany would break their treaty obligations to Russia.

The Soviet Union notified France Dec. 16 and Britain Dec. 20 that it would cancel its wartime mutual aid treaties with those countries if the Paris agreements for West German rearmament in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization were ratified.

Today's notes from Britain and France denied that the Paris agreements violated the earlier pacts with the Soviet Union in any way.

Car License Key Tags Prepared By 'War Amps'

In the next few weeks, from a little upstairs workshop in Toronto will go 1,320,700 miniature car licence key tags to the car owners of Ontario.

Nineteen "War Amps," all of them minus at least one limb, have made the key tags. In the past nine years 10,500,000 miniature key tags have been made for Canadian car owners by War Amps.

All the profit from the sale of the miniature key tags goes to the War Amputations Distribution and Benevolent Committees.

In nine years the net earnings of the War Amps Key Tag Service has been $207,844. Nearly 200,000 man hours' employment has been given to an average of 19 "War Amps", full-time.

Every 36 minutes in the nine years the War Amps office has returned one set of lost car keys to its owner.

That's the whole idea of the key tag service. The owner fastens the miniature key tag to his car keys. If he loses them, they are mailed to the War Amps Office. There a record is kept of every car owner's name and address and car licence number.

In addition to restoring lost car keys to their owners, the Key Tag Service also keeps "War Amps" busy manufacturing, and all the profits said "War Amps" groups across Canada.

In 1953, the Key Tag Service transferred to the Benevolent Committees $19,000. In 1954, $38,-104.

This year over two million key tags will be distributed.

Lt. Col. The Rev. S. E. Lambert, O.B.E., a Dominion president of the War Amps Association, Hubert Baxter is honorary secretary, A. J. Parsons is manager of the Key Tag Service. Headquarters are at 740 Bay St., Toronto.

WOULD SPUR RESEARCH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national advisory committee for aeronautics today urged "unceasing effort" toward development of atomic power plants for airplanes. The reward would be "soon-and-supersonic flight to any point on the face of the earth still return," said the committee, highest federal air research agency.

Would Not Care To Move Back To East Canada

The majestic scenery of the Rocky Mountains in Northern British Columbia has taken a tol on Mrs. William Moult of the Alaska Highway district, who would not care to move back to Eastern Canada.

Mrs. Moult was in Belleville for the past week-end visiting with her sister, Mrs. George H. Elliott, 144A Front street. Mrs. Moult came east to be with her sister on her 50th wedding anniversary. She had not seen her sister in 35 years.

"I wouldn't have missed it for anything," she said But after a visit with relatives in Ontario she will be ready to return to British Columbia.

"We've really learned to love that mountain scenery," she said.

She has been in Northern British Columbia for the past 18 years and her home is roughly 500 miles north of Dawson Creek, the starting point of the Alaska Highway. By motor it is 3,300 miles from Belleville.

A SPLENDID ROAD

She describes the Alaska highway as a splendid road with magnificent scenery as it winds through passes in the lofty mountain ranges. Originally the highway traversed desolate country but overnight lodges and gas stations are now spotted along the road.

The Moults operate a guiding service for hunters and prospectors. Pack horse or canoe is the only method of surface transportation and the Moults have about 15 pack horses, which they rent out to prospectors and geologists.

In the winter Mr. Moult does some trapping. As an anniversary gift to her sister, Mrs. Moult brought two marten skins south with her. Mrs. Elliott will have the two skins made into a stole.

Find Footprints In Area Where Boy, Age 6, Lost

YARMOUTH, N. S. (CP) — Small footprints, partly covered by wisps of snow, have been found in the area where six-year-old Rowland Newell has been missing since Saturday and the boy's father said Tuesday night he is convinced they were left by his son.

"I'm positive, I'm sure that Rowland will be found alive," said Stanley Newell. But police said the prints could have been made by other youngsters tramping through the district. They were discovered Tuesday about two miles from where the boy disappeared while walking in the woods with his uncle and a group of children.

HYDRO GETS A NEW CHAIRMAN

Richard L. Hearn is the new chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

He steps into a big pair of shoes. But he has two major assets: thorough technical training and knowledge acquired in many years serving Hydro and secondly the memory of the closest kind of association with the man he succeeds, the late Robert H. Saunders.

All will wish Mr. Hearn well in his effort to discharge his new responsibilities, which he has assumed at no little sacrifice to himself, since he had planned to retire this year.

There are certain to be some who will feel that, in selecting Hydro's general manager and chief engineer as the chairman for the commission, Premier Leslie Frost and his cabinet have made a mistake.

Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, the president of the powerful Ontario Municipal Electric Association, has suggested that the OMEA would expect that W. Ross Strike, a member of the commission, be appointed chairman. Lt.-Col. Kennedy is well and favorably known in this district, having been commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment during the war years, and he has a wide knowledge and an intense interest in municipal Hydro. The OMEA is an association composed of municipal commissioners and as such has at its disposal a vast storehouse of knowledge of the needs of Hydro's ultimate consumers. The wishes of such a body cannot be lightly disregarded. Yet, when this is said, it is still true that there appear to be powerful reasons why its recommendation that Mr. Strike succeed Mr. Saunders should be disregarded.

Hydro is launched into a project which dwarfs most of its previous enterprises, big though they have been. The St. Lawrence power development is an undertaking of paramount importance. Its directing head will be of paramount importance. Its directing head will be of paramount importance. Its directing head will be

Big Increase in Court Cases Seen in Chief Taylor's Report

TRENTON (Special) — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor's annual report showed the Trenton Police Department experienced an active year ending December 31. There were 2,720 cases prosecuted to the court as an increase of 1,106 cases over 1953.

The most noticeable jump in law breaking came under the Highway Traffic Act. Total violations numbered 1,516 against 673 listed in the last report. Since the new speed zoo device and the motorcycle patrol was put into use in 1954, 1,094 speeders paid fines compared to 216 contributors in 1953.

Since the Canadian Radio Act was abandoned last year local police had to deal with 108 liquor cases under the breach of various acts. Minister's permits (adults three and children 54) were all located.

228 ACCIDENTS

Under the heading "accidents" the report listed the same figure as last year, 228. Of the 228 property damaged in auto accidents was down approximately $10,000.

During the year the report shows that 72 persons had their drivers' licenses and motor vehicles suspended by the department of Highways until proof of financial responsibility was filed.

The department's financial statement revealed total fines and fees turned over to the magistrate amounted to $21,700.21. In the preceding year the fines and fees received by the magistrate totaled to $12,744.03.

Department expenditures listed as $60,231.06 were $1824.94 under the budget appropriation for 1954.

The chief's report, in part, follows:

"As shown in the report, a special effort was made to enforce the hawkers and peddlers by-law. This by-law is for the protection of local merchants, who pay local taxes, and to the home owner.

Home owners are requested to ask persons selling merchandise from door to door for their local licence.

"Liquor prosecutions increased slightly from 204 to 222. Prosecutions under the Criminal Code revealed an increase from 186 to 210.

ONLY ONE FATALITY

"In spite of the increase in population, resulting in heavier traffic, the accident rate remained almost the same (421 as against 506 in 1953). Property damage was considerably less. Only one fatality was recorded. This was a child running into the road into the side of a truck.

"There is no question that the increased confidence by the officers in this field, the use of a speed control unit and the addition of a motorcycle, resulted in this good record being maintained. Constable Bruce E. Westfall covered 9,330 miles of motorcycle patrol and especially concentrated on the residential areas where children were at play or on their way to and from school. Many favorable comments were received from citizens on his work, Sergeant Gordon Steenburg continued his safety lectures to the various schools and youth groups and his efforts in no doubt, made children conscious of the need for keen observance and obeyance of traffic rules on their part.

GUARDS DO FINE WORK

"The school guards did splendid work in looking after the safety of the public school children at the street crossings. No serious accidents resulted.

"Traffic parking control has caused considerable concern. The traffic committee, composed of Councillor James MacDonald (chairman); James H. Armstrong, D. C. McGregor, Engineer Reg Field Clarke and myself, held several lengthy meetings during the year. Many recommendations were discussed and made and the minutes of meeting passed on to Council for consideration. The majority of these recommendations were accepted and immediate action then taken by engineer J. Reid Clarke.

PRESSING PROBLEM

"The lack of off the street parking facilities has created a traffic problem which is most difficult to control and has caused ever increasing demands on the police department. Definite action must be taken immediately to explore all possible solutions to this problem. The economy of the town depends, to a large extent, on the business life in the downtown area and all effort should be made to provide to shoppers parking facilities. The solution of this problem rests with the retail merchants, Chamber of Commerce, as well as Council.

"A great part of the traffic confusion is due to people driving around the business area in circles endeavoring to find a parking space. The issuing of parking infraction tags is not the solution but only prevents traffic from coming to a complete standstill and offers protection to the pedestrian. I cannot stress this too strongly and urge authorities to take definite steps to assist in a solution. I recommend that a special committee be appointed by council to explore all possibilities in acquiring new parking

"An independent survey on traffic conditions was made by representatives of a company this year and they, in turn, met with the traffic committee. The recommendations could be made to solve the traffic congestion. It was suggested by the survey that a solution could be brought about by the construction of a bridge across the Trent River in the vicinity of the CNR footbridge. Traffic from east side to the west and of Trenton could then by-pass the downtown area. This would, of course, be an expensive proposition. If the municipality continues to expand, this may well have to be seriously considered and should now be given thought by the council.

SPLENDID CO-OPERATION

"The Department has been favored with splendid co-operation from the citizens and Council in matters concerning the protection of the public as a whole. Co-operation is necessary to the life of the Community and enables us to give the fullest protection to the citizens.

"Juvenile offenders appeared before the juvenile court on serious offences of breaking and entering and theft. We were also assisted in the home investigations by correspondents Bruce Kerr and Miss B. Corbett of the Children's Aid Society and further contacts made as a follow-up. The municipality is fortunate in having the fullest co-operation of the Children's Aid Society.

"Again to the members of the staff, I extend sincere thanks for their loyal support and for the splendid manner in which they have carried out their arduous duties. The success of the year's work is due to their efforts.

"I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the members of the Police Commission, Mayor J. C. Anderson, Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Mayor Ross Burtt for their time and assistance in the administration of the department. The members of Council were most co-operative during the year and matters of importance to the department were considered in utmost fairness.

"To Mr. J. Nolan Sisson and the staff of the Courier Advocate, a special word of thanks. They have also co-operated fully and fairly with news items and have never hesitated to publish articles that were in the best interest of the public. Through the medium of the press, it is advantageous to have an informed public.

"I would like to extend my sincere thanks to the heads and staff of the various departments in the town Hall, the Chief Dillon and members of the fire department, the service clubs, radio station CHQ, the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer, the district police department, the commanding officers of RCAF Station, Trenton, and No. 8 Repair Depot and the secret police for their ready co-operation and assistance. Without their co-operation the department would not be able to function efficiently."

W.A. Holds Most Successful 'At Home'

The Johnstown, W. A. started the 1955 season with an "at home", at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle. Each member was asked to bring friends to make it a real festivities. It was quite a success, with over 70 people attending and bringing in a total of over $53.

A program with the Rev. G. A. Puttenham as chairman, started with a sing-song of well-known hymns. The chairman spoke briefly and then Miss Thelma Stickle favored with a piano solo, Master Jimmy Connors, a boy of ten or eleven, literally brought down the roof, with his violin. He played one or five selections which all enjoyed.

Miss Gail Lohnes sang "It is no Secret," and in the last chorus all were asked to join in.

Mrs. Evelyn Harry and Miss Rosemary Bush gave a piano duet, and Mrs. Puttenham rendered it off with one of her fine readings, "Rushed for Bushed", which meant in essence "each go to your own church but still be good neighbors."

At the close of the program, Mrs. president conv W.A., asked the people to take a look at the different tables, one of candy; one of home cooking, one of fancy work and a fish pond for the young folks which took well, if their mothers didn't shell out for them the men sitting around did and it was most popular.

Folks ad-around and visited and all enjoyed themselves.

Stock Market Crash of '29 Laid Chilling Hand on All

By REUMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market crash of 1929 killed some people. Men committed suicide or died of heart attacks beside the tickers. It struck down the hopes of many others. And ultimately, through the great depression that swiftly followed, it had a chilling hand on the life of all, young or old.

Those were the days of breadlines and able-bodied men selling apples on the street corner. One of the popular songs of the day was, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

Nobody ever will be able wholly to assess the effects of those tragic years. How much did they set back economic growth? How deep is the sense of insecurity, still vaguely stirring behind the conscious thoughts of millions? No one can say.

1954 TURNING POINT

Harry D. Gunnar, partner-analyst in a major New York brokerage firm, recently wrote:

"1954 may well be considered by future generations as a turning point in our history . . . similarly, it will long be remembered as the year when America conquered the depression psychosis."

What happened in 1929? Rader Winner, veteran statistician and financial writer, wrote this:

"The climactic day of the panic was Tuesday, Oct. 29. On that day, 16,410,030 shares were traded on the New York stock exchange, the peak of all time. . . .

"In hundreds of brokerage offices men clustered about tickers watching the prices of their stocks plummet. Most were there when their sleepless eyes rimmed with red. A shrug of the shoulders, and one by one they walked away—wiped out.

"Some men wept silently, some hysterical women screamed."

And some killed themselves.

Long books have analyzed the 1929 catastrophe. They show speculation, rigging, age-other sharp practices.

RULES IN FORCE TODAY

Things are different today because of regulations that did not exist then.

Did the stock market crash cause the great depression of the "30s"?

Conser prefers to say it "triggered" the slump. Other factors existed. It dramatized and aggravated them.

Moreover, it set in motion a chain — reaction of contraction. People cut back on buying and spending. They were scared. Sales dropped. Production slowed. Unemployment set in. The banks were scared, too. Some in the U. S. had failed. They called in notes. Everybody got confidence.

IN EXPANSION PERIOD

Today, the economy is expanding rapidly. The population is rising. That means more people needing more of everything, wanting more, producing more, earning more and saving more.

And today, the stock market is near peak points in simple statistical comparisons with 1929 figures. Some observers believe it is too high. Others say it bears little resemblance to the situation of that era.

In 1929, the credit in the market was equal to about 10 per cent of the total value of all the stocks. Today, it works out to about 1.134 per cent.

DOLLAR WORTH HALF

Moreover, the dollar in 1929 was probably worth double what it is today. Adjust today's stock prices and credit total to that fact, the analysts say, and today's market is nowhere near the 1929 levels.

They say, also, that the market now is an "investor's market," not speculative, and that it is backed by billions of dollars of holdings bought by huge trusts, pension funds and insurance companies which are not likely to disturb the value of their holdings by suddenly putting giant blocks of stock on the market.

Apart from statistical differences, G. Keith Funston, president of the New York stock exchange, said:

". . . The stock exchange, the financial community and America in can industry itself all share today a depth of responsibility to the public virtually unknown 25 years ago."

Still, the haunting fear of 1929 persists.

Powell Praises Wife for Power Of Scoring Punch

QUEBEC (CP)—The power behind the scoring punch of Ray Powell, leading scorer in the Quebec Hockey League, is his wife Cecilia.

Mrs. Powell, tall blonde from Goodeve, Sask., supplies the menu and more than her share. Ace's centre says have helped him precocrate opponents' goals more often than any other player in the five-team league this winter.

First line lots of steak, including a mid-afternoon one the day of the game; fresh fruit and vegetables at each meal; pastries and about six eggnogs a day.

STADIUM ALLEY

Before Ray leaves home for a game Cecilia makes a thorough search to make certain no hat has been left on the bed—a bad luck omen. Ray never puts on a sweater before a game—not for a victory or at least an extra goal.

"There's nothing to wear out a man like working yourself silly during a game and then having to go," says Cecilia. When this happens she will sit late at night cheering her husband.

During games played in Quebec Cecilia keeps track of other hockey players in a box behind the players' bench.

The Powells met and were married in 1946 in Sudbury, Ont., Ray's home town. Cecilia was a nurse before nursing. They have three children, Larry, 5, and Terry, 4, "who talk hockey like pros," and seven-year-old Peggy "who wants to become a skater like Barbara Ann Scott."

Sweets in Diet Waste of Money Says Dietitian

TORONTO (CP)—Nutritionist Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson says sweets in the diet are a waste of money.

"They spoil the appetite for the food our body requires, increase tooth decay and are completely lacking in vitamins," she told a parent - teachers association. She recommended attractive fruits instead.

Dr. Robertson exploded a popular myth that vitamin content of citrus fruits is destroyed if it is allowed to stand for some time before using.

If juices are stored in the refrigerator the vitamin content remains relatively unchanged up to three days, she said.

BREAKFAST MENUS

Outlining diet suitable for children and adults alike, she said good sources of vitamin C are cabbages and other members of the cabbage family, orange raw or properly cooked, field-grown tomatoes, and new potatoes cooked in their skins.

Vitamin A, found in the yellow, orange and green vegetables, is also essential.

She stressed the importance to both adults and children of adequate milk and cheese for calcium and vitamin B2. Adults should obtain a habit of drinking at least 16 ounces of milk a day, she said, or at least eating some cheese.

Eggs should be eaten often and vitamin D, derived from fish oil, is a necessary part of the diet especially in winter.

Malcolm E. Bradden Addresses U.W.C. on Hydro Power Project

The January meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district was held at the Manor, Albert College, where Mrs. Gillis and Mrs. Sharp were co-hostesses.

Mrs. Don MacKinnon, the president, called upon Mrs. MacKenzie for the treasurer's report and Miss Muriel Gibson for the secretary's report. Mrs. MacArthur, the corresponding secretary reminded the club about the centennial conference being held in Edmonton during August.

The lovely water scene, painted by Miss Marineau and donated to the club, was on display.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. VanSteenburg introduced Mr. Bradden, the guest speaker for the evening.

Mr. Malcolm E. Bradden was born in a rural community near Belleville. He moved to this city as a boy and has lived in and served in this area of the province.

In Belleville he attended St. Michael's Academy, and after serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Engineers returned to school under the Department of Veterans Affairs to take Engineering in Brockville and the University of Toronto.

Mr. Bradden is the father of a son and daughter, he has worked with the Hydro since 1946 and in 1948, when he joined the Commission's Promotion Department. His ultimate training in a number of fields and supervisory capacities with this division, during which time required him to keep constantly abreast of the progress being made in Hydro's power development program, he has for the past two years served as Hydro's liaison officer to affairs dealing with the St. Lawrence Power developpment.

The ultimate training for this project particularly qualifies him to speak on this highly important subject.

ST. LAWRENCE DEVELOPMENT

A graphic and detailed description of one of the most important projects in the engineering projects ever undertaken on this continent—the 2,200,000-horsepower St. Lawrence Power Project—was given by Malcolm E. Bradden, Ontario Hydro representative.

Tracing the history of the development from the beginning, Mr. Bradden told how Ontario and New York commissioned a joint survey in 1951 which resulted in the signing of the treaty 40 years of struggle which was successfully climaxed August 10, 1954, when the officials start of construction of the joint dam and seaway-lock-ing ceremonies were held on Cornwall, Ontario, and Massena, New York, by Hydro and its partner, the Power Authority of the State of New York.

CONSTRUCTION WORK

"Already," said the speaker, "the impact of construction work at the power site has been considerable as Hydro and its U.S. partner work towards the goal of getting the first generating unit in service in 1958 and the substantial completion of the entire project in the following years." The 2,200,000-horsepower project will be shared equally by two partners that is, each will benefit from 1,100,000 horsepower of electric energy.

Quoting the late Hydro Chairman, Robert H. Saunders, as saying that of the 2,200,000 development was "a proud moment in the history of the Canadian people," Mr. Bradden emphasized that the continuing prosperity mentioned the club depends to a great extend upon the production of power from the St. Lawrence River, which he described as "one of Canada's greatest primary resources," and added that it represented a lasting monument to the genius and forceful leadership of one of Canada's greatest public servants, Robert Hood Saunders.

Pointing out that Hydro's great expansion program involving 16 new generating units during the year is the reason for a corresponding demand for power, Mr. Bradden said that the economic outlook, Mr. Bradden quoting figures showing from 1945 to 1953 United States production increased by 22 per cent; the population by 14 per cent; employment by 20 per cent, and the agricultural products by 45 per cent, while in Canada between 1945 and 1956 479 new industries had located in the province and many established industries had greatly increased or had expanded." Hydro's continuing construction during the nine year period was the greatest in its history, requiring the expenditure of more than 145 million dollars.

POWER HOUSE—TWO DAMS

While outlining the St. Lawrence Power Project, it was explained that the power house will have a maximum height of 162 feet above the foundation, 470 feet in length and 230 feet and power will be produced by 16 generating units, 16 in each half of the plant. The Long Sault Dam will be located upstream from the power house and its main its function will be to control the water level in the forebay headpond, allowing, as necessary, any excess amounts of water to pass through the dam. The dam will be 2,250 feet long with a maximum height of 145 feet above the foundation, and the spillway section will have thirty 50-foot wide vertical lift gates.

Mrs. Arthur May expressed the appreciation of the club to Mr. Bradden for his highly illuminating address.

Membership exceeds some 80 members and the following newcomers were welcomed, Helen Cameron, Trenton; Mrs. Ferguson, Picton; Mrs. Weese, Carrying Place and Betty Daniels, Madoc.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Y's Menettes Sponsor Cooking School at BCI

An auditorium filled with food conscious housewives, soft organ music by Linton Reid at the console of the Hammond organ; a stage lined with attractive food adjuncts interspersed with shopping bags filled with groceries and beyond the immaculate kitchen with its gleaming stoves, and attractive cooking combination ushered in the first cooking school of the season in the city, by Canada Packers, under the auspices of the Y's Menettes Club, last evening in the Collegiate auditorium.

Mrs. Robert Clarke, president of the Y's Men's Club, introduced the director, Miss Nina Bazill, and her assistant, Mrs. Scott Denton, both of whom were natilly attired for the occasion, the former in pale yellow, with mauve corsage, and the latter in white, and Mrs. Vernon Weir, president of the Y's Menettes Club. Mr. Clarke also extended a cordial welcome to the assembled housewives, and voiced appreciation to the local firms who had assisted in the various appliances and kitchen units required, and for the decorative effect achieved by the simulated evergreen bows which added a most pleasing note to the general layout.

AIMS OF COOKING SCHOOL

Miss Bazill in a most vivacious and charming manner stated the aims of the cooking school which were to give new ideas and short cuts in the preparation of meals as well as obtaining ideas from the audience, and helping the Menettes in their projects.

"All right," she said Miss Bazill, "are tested by skilled technicians in the N.Y. Food Clinic, before being given out for public use, and new ways devised for ease in preparation, making "cooking for fun," a pleasure. She suggested successful baking required good ingredients, which she demonstrated.

The first demonstration was the making of a golden ginger cake, with Mr. Clarke as the demonstrator, a task which he manipulated to perfection, the result of which he proudly carried home. No one wished, nor was he believe that 'operation kitchen was not altogether an unknown quantity to him.

UPSIDE DOWN APPLE PIE

Following the making of the delicious ginger cake, with its meringue frosting, topped with nuts, Miss Bazill prepared a most tempting upside down apple pie, the ingredients of which, are as follows: ¼ tablespoon margarine, ½ cup walnut or pecan halves, ½ cup cherry halves, ½ cup brown sugar, packed, cheese pastry made by adding grated Cheddar cheese, 2 or 3 cups of sliced apples, juice of 1 lemon, 1/3 cup brown sugar, packed, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg, and ½ teaspoon salt. The method: spread shortening evenly over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Make a design in the bottom with the nuts and cherry halves, keeping the round-ed side of cherries down, pressing firmly in place. Sprinkle brown sugar evenly over the nuts and cherries so as not to disturb the design. Cover with the cheese pastry leaving ¼ inch overhanging. Add sliced apples which have been dipped in lemon juice to retain color. Add mixed remaining ingredients mixing with apples which are piled slightly in center, add over crust and trim with first crust, fluting the edges. Prick the crust slightly to allow escape of steam. Bake for ten minutes at 450 degrees, then reduce heat to 350, continue baking for 35-45 minutes or until apples are tender. Cool for five minutes, and place serving plate over pie, and invert. Nice served either hot or cold.

OTHER TEMPTING DISHES

Other tempting dishes made include muffins, which could be varied in several ways: by adding

Mr. and Mrs. George Elliot Happily Married 50 Years

Slitting amid the chatter of lifelong friends, relatives and members of their family, congratulatory messages and gifts, Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott, 144A Front street, Monday hailed 50 years of married life together.

The bustling, cheery atmosphere of their apartment was in strict contrast to the day, a half-century ago, when they became husband and wife.

Mrs. Elliott recalls it as "a quiet affair."

"There was five feet of snow on the ground at the time," the husband said.

One evening in January 1903, at Methodist parsonage in Kingston, paid for a licence and married there and then, Neither river required the building of a giant powerhouse and two dams, the Long Sault archway, they plan the powerhouse bisected by the international boundary, the respective color slides and charts, the speaker illustrated the powerhouse, which will consist of 16 generating units of the project.

The 2,200,000 horsepower powerhouse will have a maximum height of 162 feet above the foundation, 470 feet in length and 230 feet and power will be produced by 16 generating units, 16 in each half of the plant. The Long Sault Dam will be located upstream from the powerhouse and its main its function will be to control the water level in the forebay headpond, allowing, as necessary, any excess amounts of water to pass through the dam. The dam will be 2,250 feet long with a maximum height of 145 feet above the foundation, and the spillway section will have thirty 50-foot wide vertical lift gates.

Mrs. Arthur May expressed the appreciation of the club to Mr. Bradden for his highly illuminating address.

Membership exceeds some 80 members and the following newcomers were welcomed, Helen Cameron, Trenton; Mrs. Ferguson, Picton; Mrs. Weese, Carrying Place and Betty Daniels, Madoc.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Stuart L. Thompson Gives Glimpses of Canada's Bird Life

Quinte naturalists last night were conducted on one of the most comfortable and satisfying nature rambles ever held here when Stuart L. Thompson of Toronto addressed members of the Quinte Field Naturalists' club on bird life at the Queen Elizabeth school.

One of the nation's leading naturalists, Mr. Thompson, with the aid of colored slides, guided his audience through thicket and marsh and from change of seasons to snatch glimpses of Canada's feathered inhabitants.

Authenticity was lent the lecture by Mr. Thompson's limitations of various bird calls.

CONSERVATIONIST ADVOCATE

In a brief speech before starting on the text of the lecture, Mr. Thompson stressed that the club should pay particular attention to conservation.

"What good are all the birds and flowers if we do not have the out-of-doors to have them in?" he asked, "if you want to be a naturalist you must have the out-of-doors."

Such a diffusive variety in bird life was well demonstrated in his lecture. Birds differ not only physically in size and shape but in habits. Mr. Thompson pointed out that a flicker plover will lay its eggs anywhere it thinks convenient, while in contrast, the chickadee will go to the extent of two to three weeks carefully constructing a pouch nest for its young.

NATURE'S PROTECTION

Nature's camouflage protection gives the birds a wide variety as shown in the egg of the gull, common to Lake Ontario. The egg is shaped and spotted like a pebble to deceive parasitic marauders. Crows' is dappled and blue, also aided in survival by nature, is the woodcock, whose dull brown plumage makes him indistinguishable from his surroundings. The Wilson's snipe, camouflaged with green stripes.

A "low form of bird life," but one with an ingenious protective device, is the pied-bill grebe. The demonstrated by the swallow which when threatened by danger merges itself beneath water, leaving the tip of his bill on the surface, allowing him to breathe while submerged.

Many Rarities

Varying nesting habits, even within the same species, are best shown, which rarely strays from family. While the barn swallow will build inside a barn, the cliff swallow builds outside it. The tree swallow spends little effort over his nest while the wood species burrows a tunnel like an engineer, building his nest at the end of it.

A proud-looking bird but now extinct, was the passenger pigeon. Once common to this continent, the species was practically exterminated through the enthusiasm of hunters until "today it is pretty well certain that there is not a single passenger" left on this continent," Mr. Thompson said.

Attractive Art by Collegiate Students Shown at McCarthy

An exceptionally fine display of school art by the students of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational school is on exhibition during the next few days in the lounge of the McCarthy theatre. It is clear, crisp, and sparklingly colorful, showing a wide range of subjects executed with care and sensitivity.

There are seascapes, landscapes, underwater scenery, and fine pen and ink drawings, as well as fantasy pictures, such as the "Trip to the Moon" on the rocket ship. Here one can vision the towering, deep-colored peaks, stand amazed at the dark canyons, and view the outer space the world with its North American continent.

UNDERWATER SCENES

The underwater scenes are most attractive with their brilliant colorings, and give a most realistic representation of what is found in the depths of the sea; how while feeding fish dart and attack the deep sea diver; the blue crowned fish; the inky squid with his satanic gaze, and the lovely, ethereal flora with their rich nuances of green and tint.

Another picture which drew the attention was that of the speed boat race. The flowing wake of the waves and the billowing spray brought the feeling of movement one gets in viewing this May day sport. "Wrecked in the Desert," was the "Broken Wheel," aroused the feeling of sympathy for the owner of the covered wagon, his left front wheel broken on the boulders; the driver standing, wondering if they can succeed in getting the wagon lifted, and the distance getting and more going down in a red and golden glow bringing into sharp relief the tall cacti and the expanse of sand, adding a note of hopelessness to the scene.

THE SEA BATTLE

"The Sea Battle" depicted the "Bismarck" and her convoy battling it out with the enemy aircraft, recalled to memory those lines from Tennyson, which commenced the invention of the airplane. And there rained a ghastly rain from the nations airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Still another picture showed a trail ranger on his pinto, looking over the surrounding rolling green-covered hills, the setting sun like a fiery ball seen through the silhouette of the hills, and the slow moving river. A picture of the open spaces.

The pen and ink drawings were most outstanding both in their delicacy of outline, and in their charming detail, and included the head and shoulders of the band conductor scanning the score sheet; one of hills and rocks; a quiet mountain scene with placid lake; angry waters churning against the bordering cliffs; and the charging buffalo.

STYLE DESIGNS

There were also several sketches of style designs, presumably for ladies' dresses and suits, in two-piece styles, showing a pronounced cocktail dresses, and brief swim suits as well as street clothes suitable to the business woman.

Another collection which captivated the eye was that of the flag designs which might be used for the long-talked-about Canadian flag. These were clear in colors of red, white and blue, showing the many ideas denoting the Dominion with its provinces. One flag was diagonally divided, one part being red with a beaver superimposed upon the red ground, denoting the English speaking portion, and the other blue with the fleur-de-lis superimposed upon the white portion. Another had the Union Jack in the upper left hand corner, with the maple leaf about the red field, or blue as the case might be, denoting a province or a province; while others had a red and white maple leaf together on a blue field. One woman made a compelling border about the various water color paintings within the quadrangle thus formed.

BALLET DANCERS

Other pictures included those of motion "The Ballet Dancers," "Flamenco" and her castanet batting it out with the enemy aircraft, recalled to memory those lines from Tennyson, which commenced the invention of the airplane. And there rained a ghastly rain from the nations airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Still another picture showed a trail ranger on his pinto, looking over the surrounding rolling green-covered hills, the setting sun like a fiery ball seen through the silhouette of the hills, and the slow moving river. A picture of the open spaces.

Offer Equal Pay For First Time To British Women

LONDON (Reuters)—More than 1,500,000 women in government service today were offered pay equal to men's in the same kind of jobs for the first time in British history.

The offer, announced by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, in the House of Commons, is expected to produce a wave of similar demands from millions of women in private industry.

Butler said that, if the civil servants' organizations agree to his plan, he will bring women's pay up gradually by means of seven annual increases until it equals men's wages in 1961.

The plan applies only to non-industrial employees. The extra cost is estimated at about $36,000,000 a year.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE HAS A HOME MONEY PROBLEM, TOO

"I read with much interest your recent article on the husband who tries to control the money," writes a woman who tells me she has a similar problem, and goes on to say:

"I have been married for 13 years to a fine man who provides a good living. He will buy me anything he can afford, and he always all the groceries, but he will not let me have much cash. He does cut one, two, sometimes five dollars if I am going to the beauty parlor, for instance—but enough for my immediate expenses without anything left over.

"I have had a responsible position since before I was married, and it was extremely hard to start steady over since. Semi-annually, our company declares a bonus over and big to earnings. The last one I received, I thought it would be nice for me to keep it, so that I could have a little spending money. But no; it had to be put in the bank account. My husband carries quite a lot of money with him at all times, and it gives him a great deal of satisfaction to buy things for me.

"Now of course this woman made her bed when she married, and, as I said, I have steadily ever since. Semi-annually, our company declares a bonus over and big to earnings. The last one I received, I thought it would be nice for me to keep it, so that I could have a little spending money. But no; it had to be put in the bank account. My husband carries quite a lot of money with him at all times, and it gives him a great deal of satisfaction to buy things for me.

Princess Margaret to Make First Major Official Trip

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—The gay princess really comes of age this month.

Princess Margaret leaves Jan. 31 on her first major official journey abroad—a tour of the British Caribbean islands.

The tour was chosen to fit the lively temperament of a 24-year-old younger sister of the Queen and Margaret has been well trained for her role as an ambassador.

She's pretty, she's vivacious and, though she sometimes shocks "the old guard" in her off-duty line, she never lets her royal hair down.

DIPLOMATICALLY ADEPT

She has a presence which enables her, with equal ease, to relax those about her or to draw a curtain of royal formality.

Once at a reception she was asked about the health of her "sister." She replied politely but pointedly, "I suppose you mean Her Majesty, the Queen."

Being a royal princess and third in line to the throne can be trying for a young girl. The position is bound up with traditions and restrictions.

Margaret thrives on being a princess, however. When a close friend once suggested that she sometimes must long to be someone else, she replied:

"I cannot imagine anything more wonderful than to be who I am."

ORTHODOX BEHAVIOR

The princess — affectionately known to the Cockney in the pubs as "Maggie"—usually behaves in an orthodox way, while looking as if she might not at any minute.

She has a poise inbred from birth and carefully cultivated since. She is accomplished in the royal art of saying "thank you" very often for very little.

She never looks bored and is used to staring crowds. She never fusses, flurries or fidgets.

She has outgrown the mischievousness that was one of her characteristics as a child, but retains a quick wit and gift of mimicry and isn't beyond a smile at her own expense.

BUSY PRINCESS!

Rumors of romance that swirl around the princess only seem to amuse her. She switches male escorts with a speed that is usually a step ahead of the Mayfair gossip.

The young princess is one of the busiest members of the Royal Family and has taken much of the burden off her sister in representing the Queen at official functions, averaging three a week.

There's a close attachment between the two.

Margaret lives with her mother at Clarence House and often drops in at Buckingham Palace only 100 yards away for a quiet social call on the Queen.

Margaret enjoys a night out with young friends—the theatre with dinner in an intimate west end cafe afterwards, or a visit to a night club where she can be seen sipping pink champagne and capering to perfection the latest dance steps.

OCCASIONAL CRITICISM

She always goes with a party, usually of six. Her friends are carefully chosen and there's never been a whisper of scandal connected with any of them.

Sometimes, however, her many activities draw criticism. Only a few months ago the tabloid Sunday Pictorial described as "lamentable and unnecessary" her role as associate producer of a play put on by Mayfair friends for charity.

She once told a friend, "I believe some people imagine I lie on a sofa all day long waiting for the evening to come and the next party to begin."

The pretty princess is a leader of the fashion parade. She has always had more of a flair for clothes than her sister, the Queen.

ACCOMPLISHED PIANIST

A special wardrobe is being designed out of her annual stipend of £6,000 for the month-long Caribbean tour.

Margaret, a devotee of popular music and an accomplished pianist in her own right, is already well versed in the calypso music she can expect to hear on her tour.

The princess will fly to Trinidad to begin the four-week visit packed with a few attractive additions to the usual round of official engagements.

Listed on the program are a visit to a Jamaica race meeting, a barbecue supper, a musical evening in an exotic garden and a 90-minute journey on a raft down the Rio Grande for a picnic.

The young princess is bound to like that ride on a raft. She likes to be different and set royal precedent.

Man Who Wins Hopeless Cases Is Toronto Criminal Lawyer

By JACK GEARIN

TORONTO (CP)—A 41-year-old Toronto criminal lawyer has built up an enviable reputation as "the man who wins hopeless cases."

He is Goldwin Arthur Martin, KC, a quiet amiable man who frequently mistaken for a dignified banker or chartered accountant. Yet he has a notable record for saving clients from the hangman's noose.

Since his graduation from Osgoode Hall law school as gold medallist in 1936, Martin has defended 30 persons accused of murder and none has suffered the death penalty. His record is outstanding because of his comparatives youth.

WINS 30TH CASE

Recently the Ontario court of appeal quashed a murder conviction against Joseph Glen Lothary, a 23-year-old Detroit negro charged in connection with the death of a western Ontario man last February. Lothary was Martin's 30th client to escape the death penalty.

Martin is one of Canada's leastknown public figures today. Canadian newspapers frequently report his clients' cases at length but make only casual reference to the man who defended them.

Part of this springs from Martin's natural reticence—he likes to leave court rooms by side doors—but it is also a calculated plan on his part. He says it would be a handicap to be recognized too often by jurymen. He prefers the jury to sit back relaxed to hear what he has to say.

Lawyers frequently refer to him as "a lawyer's lawyer." He is frequently retained by other lawyers to handle complex appeal court cases.

AUSPICIOUS DEBUT

Martin made an auspicious debut before the Ontario appeal court in 1939. That's when he defended Donald (Mickey) McDonald, a notorious underworld figure who had been found guilty of the murder of a Toronto bookmaker and sentenced to be hanged.

An appeal for McDonald appeared to many legal observers a futile project. Five eye-witnesses positively identified him as the trigger-man.

TORONTO LAWYER

Goldwin Arthur Martin, 41-year-old Toronto criminal lawyer, has defended 30 persons accused of murder since his graduation from law school in 1936. None has suffered the death penalty. Martin, a sturdy, thick-set man of medium height, is frequently referred to as a "lawyer's lawyer."

The five appeal court judges regarded Martin with kindly tolerance at first but soon they were listening to a brilliant argument.

McDonald was given a new trial and subsequently acquitted.

CLEVER PLEADER

Martin is also a skilful pleader before such tribunals as the Supreme Court of Canada. He has an almost inexhaustive knowledge of English and Canadian law.

In the sensational Dick torso case at Hamilton in 1946 Martin defended William Bobonski, one of three charged with murdering Mrs. Evelyn Dick's husband and her baby. Bobonski was acquitted after two trials and after being in custody for more than a year.

PAINSTAKING WORKER

Martin, a sturdy, thick-set man of medium height, made his debut in the big-time legal world as assistant to the late Frank Regan, one of Canada's outstanding criminal lawyers with whom he was associated for more than two years.

Editor of at least two criminal law journals and a frequent lecturer at Osgoode Hall, Martin contends many of his cases are won outside the courtroom in painstaking preparation. Sometimes he spends considerable money and works for weeks to investigate a single crown witness in a forthcoming case.

He loves to address a jury without notes and his feats of memory are legendary. In selecting a jury he likes to exclude the entire managerial class.

"They're too self-assured and opinionated," he explains.

SAUNDERS' PILOT

Asked by coroner Dr. Donald Warren of Hamilton whether exposure in the cold could have contributed to Mr. Saunders' death, Dr. Fisher replied:

"There is no doubt that exposure in the cold would contribute to shock. But the injuries alone, even if there had been good (medical) facilities at the scene would have been enough to cause death."

John Frank Schwella, 40, of Van Nuys, Calif., and Ottawa, and Dennis Dack, 32, assistant public relations officer at Hydro, both passengers in the plane, still are in hospital here. Schwella's condition has remained critical. Rogers was released after treatment.

Dr. Fisher said Mr. Saunders' blood pressure was down to 50 when admitted to hospital. Normal blood pressure for a man of his age was around 145. Medical attention raised it to 100 "but it was impossible to maintain the pressure any higher than above 86 for an extensive period."

WILL CALL 30

Eric Silk, senior solicitor in the attorney-general's department said he will call about 30 witnesses and expects the hearing to last at least until Wednesday night.

Mr. Silk said in his opening address that two "very positive" investigations have been proceeding since the crash. He referred to one conducted by provincial police inspectors and one by inspectors from the transport department.

He said the attorney-general's department has received full cooperation from the department of transport and that the full facts uncovered by both investigations will be presented at the inquest.

STEAL $10,000

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Theft of $10,000 in cash and cheques from the office safe at the Stouffville Co-operative Store was discovered by an employee early Monday. Ross Wideman found the empty safe, which had been blown with nitroglycerine some time after the store closed Saturday.

RECIEW TRADE FACT

HELSINKI (AP)—A new Finnish-Russian trade agreement was signed in Moscow Monday, it was announced Monday night. The main provisions of the agreement are identical with last year's pact, the only change being curtailment of the Finnish export of prefabricated wooden houses to the U.S.S.R. by one-third.

CONSERVATIVES

"I'm amazed and shocked at such folly in reason."

He said he does not doubt the sincerity of CCF opponents, but their only consolation in voting against the proposal is that "they never hope to have the responsibility" for what their actions may bring.

There was no assurance that West Germany, refused admittance to NATO, would stand alone. She would have only one other choice and it would not be with the West.

Tuesday night's debate also saw Mr. MacInnis become the first CCF member to announce support of Mr. Coldwell on the side of ratification.

A side issue during the debate was the position taken by CCF members opposing ratification.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said it is a course also sought by Premier Malenkov of Russia and Aneurin Bevan, leader of the British Labor party's left wing. He criticized some CCF arguments as "that formidable array of decoys which the Communists and those who have been listening to them have been offering to the Canadian public."

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) said he would not call members who oppose the Paris agreements Communists.

"I am concerned about the men who follow the Communist line," he said. It was dangerous to voice opposition to communism "and then turn around and do the very things that the Communists want them to do."

In reply, Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said he regretted that a few members "have cast aspersion such as fellow travellers, followers of the commie line and commie stooges, upon those who do not agree with them."

E. G. McCullough (CCF—Moose Mountain) said:

"The essence of parliamentary democracy in Canada is that any member can rise to his feet and express his opinion without fear of vilification."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1955

Federal Officials See New Attempt by Duplessis For Onslaught on Central Treasury

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal authorities say they fear Premier Duplessis is preparing a new onslaught on the central treasury.

The premier said in a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent, tabled Tuesday in the Commons and in the Quebec legislature, that Quebec should enjoy revenues equivalent to those she would have received under a federal-provincial tax rental agreement.

Quebec has consistently refused to sign such a pact.

The premier is expected to reveal sometime today the stand his government will take on taxation at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa later this year. Mr. Duplessis said he plans to propose second reading today of a bill eliminating Quebec's claim to priority in direct taxation.

Officials here say they feel Mr. Duplessis is preparing a drive to get an additional $25,000,000-a-year share of federal tax revenue in Quebec by other means, perhaps through some bargaining at the federal-provincial tax conference.

WAS IN REPLY

Mr. Duplessis' letter, dated Jan. 19, was in reply to one written by Mr. St. Laurent Jan. 14, outlining the federal unilateral decision to reduce the federal income tax in all Quebec by 10 per cent for 1952 and 1953. The cut is retroactive to 1954 for those in Quebec who actually paid the provincial income tax during the year. In fact, nearly all taxpayers in Quebec did pay the provincial tax dispute with Mr. Duplessis in which the premier demanded that the entire federal tax, amounting to 15 per cent of the federal levy, be entirely declared payable from federal assessments in the province. The existing rebate was deducted as five per cent of the federal levy for those who pay a provincial income tax.

The provincial tax allows for exemptions about 50 per cent higher than those permitted by Ottawa.

Mr. Duplessis, in a Nov. 1 letter to Mr. St. Laurent, estimated the provincial levy would amount to no more than 10 per cent of the federal income tax revenues in Quebec which total about $28,500,000 a year.

RINTED LOWER EXEMPTIONS

Mr. St. Laurent agreed on the 10-per-cent rate but hinted in his Jan. 14 letter that he would like to see Quebec exemptions lowered to the federal level to eliminate the double taxation in the province and still give Mr. Duplessis his requested revenue.

This federal decision represents a retreat from the government's 1954 position when former finance minister Abbott declared in his final budget speech that the central government could not meet Quebec demands.

But the feeling among some federal officials is that increasing the tax cut in Quebec to about $28,500,000 a year, the central treasury would lose under the existing five-per-cent abatement was a cheap price to pay for tax peace in Quebec.

CRITICIZED DECISION

But apparently there is to be no peace. Mr. Duplessis in his Jan. 19 letter criticized the federal decision on the grounds that it did not give Quebec all that he had claimed in the past and gave no indication whether he will scale down provincial exemptions.

Instead, he asked:

1. The federal decision was far from "meeting with the essential rights of the province." The province's rights included the power to levy taxes as it saw fit.

2. Quebec should enjoy revenues equivalent to the amount collected by the federal government in exchange for taxation rights "which we wish to safeguard."

3. The federal tax cuts did not take into account the fact since 1947 Quebec had not levied any provincial personal income tax. Mr. Duplessis said this restraint was "an obvious attempt to co-operate with the federal authorities" and was of "great benefit to Ottawa."

The federal decision was conditioned on Quebec's agreement to eliminate wording in the provincial tax law which says Quebec has a priority over Ottawa in the direct taxation field. The federal view was that Ottawa and the provinces had concurrent rights.

Mr. Duplessis initiated action in the Quebec legislature Tuesday to remove the objectionable words "prior right" and replace them with the words "definite rights."

But while agreeing to replace the words, he said he was not abandoning his original views. That may mean Mr. Duplessis still believes Quebec has a prior right over Ottawa in the direct tax field.

Officials Ask Frost to Halt Negotiations

CORNWALL (CP) —The contentious compensation issue flared again Tuesday night in Seaway valley when it was disclosed civic officials of six valley communities have asked Premier Frost to halt a property negotiations between Ontario Hydro and residents who will be dispossessed by the St. Lawrence power project.

Municipal authorities here disclosed they had sent a letter to the premier asking him to stop at least acquisition "until satisfactory basis of compensation has been established by legislation or otherwise."

A copy of the letter also has been forwarded to Attorney-General Porter. The letter requests an early meeting between valley civic representatives and the minister, or attorney-general, to discuss compensation problems.

The suggested dates are Jan. 31 or Feb. 1.

Signed by five reeves and one deputy-reeve, the letter charges that Hydro is using "coercive tactics" in land deals despite repeated promises by Mr. Frost and Hydro officials that all property owners will be treated fairly and generously. It also charges expropriation offered is "completely out of line" with rehabilitation costs faced by property owners.

It is also charged that "small blocks of land are being left without ready access to the water."

Those who framed and signed the letter are all members of Seaway Property Owners Protection committee to deal with St. Lawrence power project rehabilitation and compensation problems.

They are: Reeves Theroid Lane of Osnabruck township; Dr. Elmer Emard, Cornwall township; George Bowers, Maxville; Lloyd Van Davis, Iroquois; Donald Kyle, Williamsburg township and Allen Purfinger, deputy - reeve of Williamsburg.

Ohio Support Sought To Destroy Eels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration made overtures Tuesday to line up Ohio support behind the U.S.-Canadian treaty to destroy sea lampreys in the Great Lakes.

William C. Herrington, special assistant to the secretary of state for fisheries and wildlife, told Representative Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio) that Ohio is the only Great Lakes state containing strong anti-treaty sentiment.

Sea Lampreys have killed millions of dollars worth of fish in the Great Lakes, but have not been active in Lake Erie, which is adjacent to northern Ontario.

In a conference in Baumhart's office, Herrington assured the congressman that nothing in the treaty would involve federal or state regulation over U.S. commercial fishing. He handed Baumhart a proposed legislation to go along with the treaty spelling this out.

Baumhart has opposed the treaty because he says fishermen in this area fear federal control.

"However," he told a reporter after the meeting, "I will study the proposed legislation and discuss it with fishermen in Ohio this weekend."

Monday, Senator John Bricker (Rep., Ohio) announced he would support the treaty—if it is confined to lamprey destruction—when the administration submits it to the Senate next month for ratification.

Ford Workers Given Increase In Strike Pay

TORONTO (CP)—More contract talks were planned today in the walk-out Ford of Canada wage strike.

As the walkout entered its 108th day, negotiators were ready to sit down in continued efforts to end the strike of nearly 9,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America (CCL).

Meanwhile, it was reported that the union had increased strike pay to its members, without regular pay cheques since last October.

A striker with five or more children now gets a maximum food voucher of $24.40 a week, $9 in cash, and about $10 a week for fuel. A single worker gets a $6 food voucher and a $9 cash bonus each week.

USUAL POLICY

There was some speculation that the slight increase meant that the UAW was strengthening members for an even longer strike. However, it was reported that it is generally UAW policy to increase strike pay as a strike grows longer.

The walkout, which began in Ford's Windsor plant last October, already has cost the union $1,000,000. The strike has shut company plants in Windsor, Oakville and suburban Etobicoke.

Ontario Wood May Be Used

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Government is considering the use of Ontario wood in construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

This was disclosed Tuesday by C. R Mills, secretary-manager of the Ontario Forest Industries Association, in a report to the association's annual meeting.

He said the provincial government has been asked to make greater use than in the past of Ontario forest products. He added that when considering seaway commercial fishing. He handed Baumhart a proposed legislation to go along with the treaty spelling this out.

Baumhart has opposed the treaty because he says fishermen in this area fear federal control.

"However," he told a reporter after the meeting, "I will study the proposed legislation and discuss it with fishermen in Ohio this weekend."

Monday, Senator John Bricker (Rep., Ohio) announced he would support the treaty—if it is confined to lamprey destruction—when the administration submits it to the Senate next month for ratification.

Bus Drivers Agree to Go Back to Work

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Port Arthur's bus drivers agreed Tuesday night to go back to work despite failure to get a wage increase from the public utilities commission.

The wage dispute, which tied up the city's publicly-owned bus service twice in the last four days, was settled Tuesday.

An announcement following a meeting of the drivers and the commission said the operators had agreed to abide by all the terms of their current contract until April, 1955. The commission agreed to open bargaining on a new contract arising out of these meetings to in March allowing any differences arising out of these meetings to go to an arbitration board.

The drivers had asked for a wage increase of 3.4 cents an hour. The commission offered 1.4 cents. The basic wage is $1.54 an hour.

Canada Not Involved in U.S. Pledges Along China Coast —Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government would like to see the explosive Formosa situation settled by international negotiation with the Chinese Nationalist stronghold neutralized in the meantime.

External Affairs Minister Pearson, putting these views before the Commons Tuesday, also said Canada is not involved in United States commitments along the China coast.

He declined, under questioning to express an opinion as to whether the Canadian government regards Formosa as in the front line of defence for Canada's west coast.

Nor would he comment on a suggestion that Canada recognize the Red administration of the China mainland as a de facto government, as a means of facilitating its (Red China's) acceptance of an invitation to an armistice conference on Formosa.

Mr. Pearson made his statement before an expectant Commons almost simultaneously with the U.S. House of Representatives' speedy acceptance of President Eisenhower's request for power to make war if necessary to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores islands from Communist invasion.

"Although we are not involved in U.S. commitments in this area," he said, "we are deeply concerned over the dangerous situation existing there."

The government held to its 1951 view that Formosa, pending its final disposition, should be neutralized as that neither it would be invaded by the Reds nor would it be used as a base for invasion of the mainland China.

Eventual settlement, he said, should be dealt with by international negotiation, perhaps at a conference on general far eastern problems.

In any decision on the future of Formosa, Mr. Pearson added, the wishes of the Formosan residents should be a primary consideration. They must not be forgotten in discussions on the issue.()

He interpreted the basis for a cease fire should be that neither side need be asked to give up its claims on territory held by the other. This should be a matter for later negotiation.

Mr. Pearson said this negotiation might be through the United Nations or otherwise. The government was watching the possibility of a reference to the UN Security Council, of which Canada is not a member at present.

Government Will Sell Butter At Cut Prices to Institutions

EDMONTON (CP)—The federal government plans to unload some of its surplus butter by selling it to Canadian institutions at a price "considerably less" than it paid for the commodity.

This was revealed Tuesday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who told the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture that he hopes to find the plan in operation when he returns to Ottawa Thursday.

He did not elaborate. But Robert Fleming, federation president, said to Mr. Gardiner, said it Ottawa it is expected civilian institutions and hospitals will be the chief types of institutions to benefit from the cheaper butter.

The selling price of the surplus butter will be low enough to be sold have not been announced. The government bought the butter at the floor price of 58 cents a pound.

Mr. Gardiner said the government now has about 70,000,000 pounds of butter in storage, 30,000,000 pounds more than "we think necessary."

The surplus resulted from a four-per-cent increase in butter production last year. Mr. Gardiner said there was not enough surplus cheese or milk powder to make up one." He also noted tat price supports were not perfect and could be improved but they have done a good job.

The CFA convention will deal today with resolutions, hear an address by W. B. Back, chairman of the Saskatchewan commission on agriculture and rural life, and attend a panel discussion on a formula for establishing price-support levels.

The federation, representing 450,000 farmers across Canada, has prepared a statement it says would improve the federal government's program of farm-price supports.

It was learned that the federation wants support prices based on a formula which uses 1925-1929 prices as a guide, in calculating a general formula level of agricultural prices, the index of farm prices in the base period would be adjusted in accordance with an index of farm costs taking into account farm costs of living.

All Poisoned Sailors Taken Off Critical List

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — All sailors poisoned Friday night by drinking duplicating machine fluid aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent have been scratched from severely-ill list, but the navy has not reported the release of any of the 47 from hospital.

It is believed some are still receiving intravenous alkaline treatment for the acidosis condition that results from methyl alcohol poisoning.

Rear - Admiral Roger Bidwell, chief of the navy's Atlantic Command, announced Tuesday the removal of the last nine sailors from the critical list.

FEARED MEDICAL FOLK

He thanked the staff again for "the achievement of this most gratifying result." He said earlier the men owed their lives to the efforts of the doctors and nurses who worked around the clock most of the critical 48 hours after the sailors' admission.

The navy has reported no cases of blindness.

It is continuing its official investigation into the clandestine party on board the ship, HMCS Huron Maggie, pride of the fleet.

A board of inquiry will report to the admiral, who will then recommend further action.

Supplying more than a daily lot of rum and the occasional beer aboard ship is prohibited by the navy.

ACTION EXPECTED

Drinking of the poison is believed to have been a case of temporary action. However the navy said most of the men were unaware of the poisonous nature of the alcohol, which also contained apple cider, ginger ale and lemon.

They said there was no obvious reason for the party, and that the duplicating machine fluid was kept locked away. It was believed one of the sailors had a key to the locker.

The fluid was in cans marked poison. Even small quantities of methyl alcohol have been known to cause blindness or death.

The drinks were believed passed about in several messes and about 10 messes and soup bowls to escape detection by officers who make frequent and regular rounds.

A special antidote was flown in from Montreal by commercial airline after local supplies ran out.

Seaway Project Contracts Will Soon Be Awarded

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Contracts for the St. Lawrence seaway project will be let within the next two weeks, Richard L. Hearn, chairman of the hydro electric power commission of Ontario, told 100 members of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association here Tuesday.

Mr. Hearn was making his first public appearance following the appointment Monday succeeding Robert H. Saunders who died following a plane crash in Florida.

Power house contracts will be let within two months and "construction will start as soon as we can find steam," in the spring, Mr. Hearn said.

CARRY OUT WORK

Hydro's 1955 program is to carry out the work started by Mr. Saunders on the Niagara project and the St. Lawrence seaway. A second aim is to consolidate Ontario's interests in the "most economical position," Mr. Hearn said.

The Mid-North St. Lawrence power is expected to be fully used. Hydro has 50 per cent interest and will know whether nuclear or thermal (coal, oil) generated power will be used.

J. Stewart Killingsworth, vice-chairman of the London public utilities commission was elected president of district 6. He succeeds H.R Henderson of Woodstock.

Snowsuit Keeps Child Afloat

PETERBOROUGH (CP) A snowsuit kept a four-year-old girl afloat until help arrived Tuesday after he fell through ice into the Otonabee river.

Ian Smoke was bobbing on the ice floe he had been on when his mother edged out on the ice to rescue him. She had walked along the river bank when Ian did not return home from play.

As Mrs. Smoke got near the boy the ice broke and she swam to his side.

A fire department rescue crew took mother and son to hospital where they were treated for exposure. Ian's condition was described as fair. His mother was suffering shock.

Canadian Consumers May Find Meat Prices Lower This Year In Wake of Rising Production

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal authorities estimate Canadian consumers may find meat prices lower this year in the wake of a sharp production rise and a jump in surpluses available for export.

They say hog and cattle production is increasing so much that Canada may have about 220,000,000 pounds of meat for export this year, almost twice the amount shipped in 1954.

Canada's biggest market is the United States. The U.S. has a lot of meat of its own and some weak-ening in prices there is anticipated in 1955. Officials say price drops may be only slight on cattle but more pronounced on hogs.

LINKED WITH US

Thus, loaded with heavy exportable surpluses, Canada will find its meat prices linked closely with those in the U.S.

Officials estimate Canada's output this year may rise about five per cent in cattle and between 15 and 19 per cent in hogs.

In the 12 months ending next Sept. 30 farmers likely will market about 5,800,000 hogs, some 900,000 more than in the previous 12-month period, the agriculture department estimates.

MAY BOOST PORK SALES

This marketing rise, coupled with lower prices, is expected to boost Canadian pork consumption. Some of the rise may be due to increased production, the remainder due to a consumer switch from higher-priced beef.

In the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1954, Canadians consumed about 562,000,000 pounds of pork and this consumption may rise by another 112,000,000 pounds in the following 12 months.

But Canadians won't be able to eat that way through all of the anticipated production increase. Therefore surpluses available for export are estimated to rise in 1955 to about 220,000,000 pounds, more than double the 86,000,000 shipped in 1954.

As for cattle, their numbers have risen continuously since 1950 and the agriculture department says a peak in the production cycle may be near.

If thus officials feel the increase in 1954-55 will be small but that there will still be some rise, since the 10,600,000 head on Canadian farms on June 1, 1954.

Cattle marketings in the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1954, rose by 187,000 head to 1,700,000. In the next 12 months, says the department, marketings may rise by another 100,000 to 1,800,000 head.

TO EXCEED DEMAND

All through the 12-month period —Oct. 1, 1954 to Sept. 30, 1955— supplies are likely to exceed Canadian demand.

The poultry meat may remain firm but lower-quality cuts may drop, reducing average prices.

Egg supplies will remain small price declines for beef consumption may drop. The department estimates consumption will drop to about 780,000,000 pounds in 1955, a decline of about five per cent from 1954.

The department estimates exportable surpluses in 1955 could rise to 190,000 head of cattle, about 140,000 head more than was exported in 1954.

That total, Canada will have available for export about 120,000,000 pounds of pork, 100,000,000 pounds of beef and 3,000,000 pounds of veal.

Bader Says Small Flying Clubs Must Be Kept Alive

OTTAWA (CP)—Airliners may get bigger and jets become faster, but Douglas Bader says he hopes the pleasure of flying small planes will never disappear.

To ensure that, said the legless British air ace of the Second World War, the small flying clubs must be kept alive.

Mr. Bader, who commanded the RAF's 242 Canadian Squadron during the Battle of Britain, told Tuesday night's annual dinner of the Royal Flying Clubs Association that older flyers retain nostalgia for the old days of open cockpit airplanes made of wood and wire.

WOULD RETAIN THE FUN

"It is . . . essential that the fun of flying be kept alive and it is only through flying clubs that this can be done.

"We must keep the airplane the pleasure for an aristocracy. But, which does not need two or three thousand yards of runway, control towers and controls and all the paper work that makes life so intolerable these days for the private aviator."

Among the difficulties facing flying clubs, he said, is that the age of commercial air travel has made flying no less an adventure. But sitting as a passenger in one of the "flying buses of the air" was not flying. There was not "that feeling of exhilaration."

Mr. Bader said the so-called jet age of the future, the small aircraft will continue with its propeller and its piece of elastic and be driven by a tiny squirt. "It will be a long time before a little airplane using a little field."

TROPHY AWARDED

Defence Minister Campney also spoke at the association's meeting Tuesday.

He said the countries to survive a full-scale thermonuclear war would be those with the most efficient defence and the greatest human striking power.

An 18-year-old Welland, Ont., air cadet, Ernest Rhoden, was presented the Tudhope Trophy as the most proficient air cadet in 1954.

'Terrible Ted' Assessed 10-Day Suspension For Striking Customer

A BAD ONE!

No Madam, don't say they got a bad game off their chests. It ain't so. Besides the clichés stink.

And the Maroon almost reached that stale of aroma. They fell down badly. You cannot take away the brilliant performance of Wren Blair's Wrens. They played superlative hockey and gave simple demonstration of how they surged to the top with nine straight victories.

We're not deprecating the brilliant performance of the Wrens. Rather we place the blame on the Maroons' defensive tactics. Shucks, fellas, you can do better than that. And Master Patrick of times could have had his mind on some of these Italian signacies. . .

All right, all right, supposing your club did come up with a stinkaroo. They still, in our opinion, are one of the better clubs in the league and young guys and gals, if you can forget the score, may have seen a dress rehearsal of the finals last night.

They could not do a thing right. Their passing plays didn't click, the defence was terrible. But don't hang too much criticism on them. Watch 'em next Friday night against Kingston. What they missed last night they will pick up against the Limestoners. We hope.

A FAIR DEAL!

Well-informed sources in Brockville and Belleville reveal that unless there is some revision of rules in the Mahood Hockey Classic this region's playdowns will resolve itself into a one-city event.

The regional playoffs in men's classes are being held in Kingston each year. And Kingston teams, partly through solid familiarity with the home-town alleys have been grabbing the majority of the honors.

Brockville and Belleville bowling representatives claim, and rightly so, that the regional playoffs should be distributed among the cities and centres which compete in the annual classic. The old cliche that Kingston is the central point does not hold water. Both Brockville and Belleville, and it is assumed the rest, say they have no objections to travel.

This is not a case of "sour grapes" the bowling laddies from the outside centres infogn us, just an equal and fair distribution of venue.

They are sincere about the matter. A prominent Belleville member of the city bowling brass stated today that he doubts if this centre will enter the classic next year unless other arrangements are made as to where the competition will be held. The same goes for Brockville.

And an underground statement says the same situation is apparent in Peterborough region. Trenton bowlers were far from being satisfied with the treatment they received at the 1954 regional tourney held in Perthsville.

Why not be fair about the thing?

"LOTTA BULL"

Hunters and fishermen who, on the whole, are not averse to "shooting the bull" regarding their prowess with rod and gun will get a chance to see the real thing tonight at the Fish and Game Association's annual meeting.

These doughty bull-hunting warriors from "Little Spain" (Picton to yonse guys), Phil Dodds, newspaperman, and Sam Gentile, business man, safari'd down Mexico way last year and brought back some colorful action-filled movies. The feature is the actual filming of a Mexican bull-fight, while another is something like a travelogue. It will be grand entertainment and members should not miss it.

Then, too, there is the election of officers besides other business and President Don McKinnon urges all members to be on hand.

NEAT RECORD

Bowlers, like turkeys, apparently improve with age. At least the record established by grey-thatched veterans of the Belleville Bowl-O-Drome team playing against the Trenton Athletes the other night seems to bear out this fact.

The ancient ones who have been bowling since they chucked their first pablum bottle at "Ma" for a perfect strike racked up an aggregate score of 4004 points, nothing to be sneezed at in any man's league.

Wally Dingman topped the Big Van Winkles with a neat triple of 945. Tom Greenfield piled out of a wheelchair to chalk up an 818; Jack Fitzgerald laid down the crutches to heave a 764, while Jack Bennett put aside his insurance papers to register a 743. Cec Hardwick whittled out a 727 between whiffs of oxygen. Walter Moore, who also ran, puffed his way to a 666, but was ruled ineligible because of his non-voting age.

There is no truth in the rumor the team will represent Canada at the British Empire Games of 1960.

Wings' Lindsay Gets Gate For Poking Pugnacious Fan; Will Be Out for Four Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Theodore Lindsay, who has hockey's second-worst temper, can not stand grabby fans. And the National Hockey League says it can't stand players who fight with the customers.

Thus it was that Terrible Ted was given a 10-day suspension for a rinkside scuffle with a fan.

The 23-year-old leftwinger with Detroit Red Wings, who is having one of the poorest seasons of his big-league career, was suspended Tuesday night by league president Clarence Campbell. Action four days after Lindsay struck a spectator with his stick.

INJURY WINGS

The blow also hurt the second-place Wings. They are fighting to regain the league leadership from Montreal Canadiens and need Ted's services badly. Lindsay will be out for four games. Meanwhile New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Campbell ordered the sentence after a full investigation of the officials, players and officials who handled the game in Toronto last Saturday. Rinkside altercations between players and fans are not unusual, Campbell said, but there was involved in "two similar incidents on previous occasions this season."

He added that the Red Wings penalized by a disciplinary action against Lindsay after the first two incidents, but "drastic steps taken by the club did not produce the desired results."

GRABBED FAN

Lindsay got into the fracas after the fan, sitting in a rail seat, grabbed at the stick of Detroit's Marcel Pronovost. Lindsay's linemate. The fan, Campbell said, told game officials he touched the stick to prevent it from striking his small son.

The fan and Howe jostled briefly. Lindsay skated across the ice to assist his fellow player.

It was the latest of many incidents in Lindsay's 11 years with Detroit. He is one of the most penalized players in the business. Since 1944, he has run up more than 900 minutes in the penalty box. That's more than the total for the same period registered by Montreal's Maurice Richard, a fellow with probably the worst temper in the NHL.

The Wings won't have to worry about anything tonight. Only one game is scheduled, with Canadiens taking on the third-place Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Whitby Wrens Extend Top Spot Lead With 12-5 Victory Over Memos

Raring Wrens Take Advantage Of Poor Defensive Tactics; Increase Top Spot Margin

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

There is no use quibbling about it. The Whitby Wrens had plenty and thereby hangs the tale of the 12-5 defeat the former Oshawa "birds" hung on the Belleville club last night.

They deserved it. The Wrens gave ample demonstration of the form that carried them through nine straight wins before bowing to the Clinton Comets last Sunday. Any arena that was noticeable in the arena contained fans from the Memos' defence.

We had ten three-three in the first period. They conked us 5-1 in the second heat and gave us a similar dose in the final chapter. That was it. The Memos were vastly superior on the night's play. They bowled to a team that was

The win pushed the Wrens three points ahead of the Memos with a count of 48. It was their tenth victory in eleven starts.

The score does not indicate the play albeit the Memos could not get their game going. The Wrens took advantage of every break that came their way and usually it was big in a score. The Memos' defence was pitiful at times and at others was simply brilliancy.

Bob Attersly, one of the group's leading scorers, paced the Whitby offensive with four goals with Freddy Jones and Doug Richardson fattening their averages with three goals each. Williams boosted his point score with three assists. Harry Sinden was good for one as was Edwards.

Peter Jones was the shining light in a dim spotlight effort on the part of the Memos, accounting for two of the five goals and drawing an assist. Bill Macey, Red Dorosh and Dougie Hill scored the rest of the Memos' quintet of markers.

The game was a comparatively quiet affair as games go. Referees "Moon" Flanagan and Kenny Parris of Kingston doling out 10 penalties, nine of them to the Wrens. Trens was the bad boy for the visitors, drawing four minors.

Over 1200 fans were on hand to cheer the Memos' but a 3-1 savage attack on the part of the Wrens in the early part of the first period cast a gloom over the igloo. It quickened into cheers as the Memos struck back scoring two goals in eight seconds to knot the count.

The period ended that way, 3-3 all.

But the Wrens took over in the second period as the Memos foundered more or less hopelessly in an effort to steam the Whitby tide. They overwhelmed our side with a three-one count and just to show they were worthy leaders of the group plastered the feat in the third chapter.

In all fairness to the losers it must be said that Marse Circle in the Whitby nets, played an outstanding game. Several times he tossed aside shots that were labelled sure.

The Wrens made it 9-4 after a minute of play in the second period and they coasted from there in. Etcher fired the goal, assisted by Samandl and Williams, and Doug Hull scored the lone Memo marker of the period four minutes later when he came across the Wrens' goalmouth and flipped by Dave Jones' pass.

Bob Wilson and Wally Samandzki went off for 'jousting with the mitts, but a minute later Bob Attersly scored his third goal from a pass from the busy Ken Cagnon.

Attersly caught Parisi flat-footed with a long drive from the blueline that the Memos' goalie never saw. Cahawa drew two more penalties before the gong rang and the weak Memo defence halves starved off fourman offensives.

The teams:

Whitby—Goal, Cirka; defence, Sinden, McBeth; centre, Bang; assist; right wing, Williams; left wing, Etcher; alternates, Attersley, Gagnon, Edwards, Trimm, Copeland, Air, Treen.

Underdog Whips Cesar Brion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Cesar Brion, a tough Argentine boxer who has never been knocked out, was so thoroughly whipped by underdog John Holman Tuesday night that the referee stopped the heavyweight bout in the fourth round.

Holman, of Chicago, knocked Brion down in 2:37 of the fourth round and the referee ruled the boss halted the match without a count when Brion grabbed Holman's ankles.

Some 2,480 persons at Miami Beach Auditorium saw the Chicagoan, who at 205½ outweighed Brion by 21½ pounds, nail Brion repeatedly with chopping short rights. Brion took a five-count in the first round.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—For a number of years the men who run American amateur tennis on the west coast have been demanding that the entrenched eastern group, which has ruled the game since its beginning, realize that times have changed.

Their complaint was that California now has for several decades been supplying most of the top players and contributing heavily in dues while the East has continued to hog the big summer tournaments.

Repeatedly at the annual meeting the western delegates have tried to induce the eastern boys to hold the national championships at Forest Hills at an earlier date so the winner could enter the tournament at Los Angeles would not conflict with the start of the coast's football season.

Just as repeatedly the westerners were told, in effect, to leave quietly. This caused the men from the West to do a little behind-the-scenes planning. When the annual meeting again came to order Saturday, they were ready and loaded with enough proxy votes to choke a horse.

WEST'S TURN TO VETO

The eastern dudes, all unsuspecting, had set the dates for the next national championships from Sept. 2 through 11. The Davis Cup challenge round, if they had ordained, would be played Aug. 26-28. The Westerners of a sudden saw the national championships Aug. 27. In the ensuing showdown they won 2,000 to 90,Sit for the opposition.

The eastern delegates claimed they had been stabbed from behind. All they got from the western boo was a collective sneer.

So the next challenge round is scheduled to start the day before the championships begin, and on the same green courts. It is a prize mess for which no one has yet offered a very sensible solution.

LIEN AGAINST JOE

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. government filed a tax lien against former heavyweight champion Joe Louis Tuesday for $33,619.70 it claims is due in income taxes for 1951. The director of internal revenue filed the lien in the county court of Cook county where Louis owns property.

ORFU Team Will Fight For Rights

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Sarnia Imperials said Tuesday they will fight for the right of the Ontario Rugby Football Union to challenge for the Grey Cup.

Spike Kearns, president of the Dutchmen, said "it's in the constitution and it's a right, not a privilege."

Norm Perry, president of the Imperials, said "Sarnia will challenge for the Grey Cup every time the Imperials win the right."

They were commenting on reports that neither the Western Interprovincial Football Union nor the Big Four want to meet the ORFU in the Cup semi-final stay more.

Perry said he is not particularly interested in a semi-final in western Canada, but his club sees no reason why the ORFU right to compete in the semi-finals should be cancelled.

"The way things are going—and may very well have Ottawa and Hamilton asking to come into our league in a couple of years."

PERMANENT RIGHT

Perry said the union is given a right in the new CRU constitution and to keep the ORFU out it would first be necessary to alter a constitution.

Beyond that the deed of gift of the Grey Cup stipulates that both the Ontario and Intercollegiate unions have the permanent right to play for it.

"If they keep us out they will have to get a new trophy," he said.

In recent years the college winners haven't challenged in the cup payoffs, but Tuesday ORFU clubs expressed a hope they might reconsider and come back to play the ORFU winner in a quarter-final.

Since 1927 ORFU teams have been in the Grey Cup five times and won four of them, although one was by default. Since the war ORFU clubs have been cut off in toe semi-finals.

Here's Something for Snooker Fans, British Player Pots Maximum Score

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A doubt has emerged as to whether a 147 snooker break by Britain's sharp-shooting Joe Davis will be recognized as a world record.

Davis, the addick - haired "Ace Snooker," who held the unofficial world title for 20 long years before finally gave it up voluntarily in 1946, potted the maximum score Saturday in a match against Willie Smith, also of Britain. The 39-year-old Davis sank 15 reds, 15 blacks and all the colors in one run—something he has been trying to do for 35 years.

QUESTION UNRESOLVED

But today the Billiards Association and Control Council, governing body of the sport, left unresolved the question of whether the new mark will be official. Chairman Phil Fisher said: "If Mr. Davis makes an application, it will be considered."

Davis and his manager, Ted Lowe, said there is no question about it. "The break was made on a table recognized by the association and passed by them as being standard," said Davis. "As far as I am concerned it is a record on which I am very proud."

A snooker expert said the maximum score of 147 has been registered 175 times before—by Clark McConachy of New Zealand and by a Canadian amateur, Lou Levesit. Both were achieved on "non-standard" tables and therefore were not recognized.

CANUCK ALMOST DID

George Chenier of Montreal, a professional, made a 144 break on Feb. 3, 1950 on the same Leicester square table where Davis made his maximum score. For a time Chenier's figure stood as a record. The break was a fair for ice-cool concentration. His 147 score Saturday was his 373th century break.

It was the greatest moment in my life," he said, recalling the shattering time Saturday when his bid for the record seemed doomed. With 13 reds and 14 blacks potted, the cue ball stopped behind a red, confronting him with a difficult table-leaving shot.

After a long pause Davis sank it, with a stroke he called the best in his 35-year career. The rest was easy.

IN BRITISH OPEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Furgol, three-time winner of the open golf championship, announced Tuesday he plans to compete in the British open golf championship at St. Andrews July 7.

Underdog Bruins Trims Orphans 13-5

MARMORA — The meeting of Bancroft Pontiacs with Marmora Orphans in the Mineral Area here on Monday was Bancroft's first visit here in search of Hastings-Addington senior points and they were not disappointed as they amassed thirteen goals to their opponent's five.

The game played on good ice was cleanly fought with the visitors showing superiority of play throughout. Shalla opened the scoring for the northern team on Severn's assist for the latter quickly added another on an assist from Ramsbottom. The brothers Brough added the third in the next minute, E. Brough being the scorer.

Marmora, now asserting themselves more, scored through R. Courtney, Severn and E. Brough added further goals unassisted but Deering raised the hopes of his team again in scoring on E. Courtney's assist.

Opening the second Shannon scored in quick time for the homesters assisted by W. O'Neill. E. Brough on the rush from the face off beat Williams on his brother's assist. Drummond added to Courtney's pass at the other end but Severn scored twice before the period was half over through first through Shalla's assist and next from Ramsbottom's pass. The visitors added five goals in the third in this order: Shalla, (Severn); Courtney, Geo. N. Brough, Connerie, E. Brough); and Ramsbottom.

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Vic Seixas, the U.S. champion from Philadelphia, was eliminated from the Australian National tennis championships today, losing Tony Trabert of Cincinnati as the lone U.S. survivor.

Trabert advanced to Saturday's Mervyn Rose, defending title-Mervyn Rose, thedefending title-holder, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Seixas went down before the Aussies' Lew Hoad 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Trabert will meet Ken Rosewall and Hoad will tangle with his countryman, Rex Hartwig, in the round of four Saturday.

Hall-of-Fame Likely for 'Joe'

NEW YORK (AP)—The annual baseball Hall of Fame election will be held today with Joe Dimaggio a likely candidate to join the ranks of the greats at Cooperstown, N.Y.

The mid-January ballot by members of the Baseball Writers Association has been mailing their sealed ballots to be placed under lock and key in the office of commissioner Ford Frick. Today the ballots will be opened and counted, an all-day job.

Dimaggio missed by only 14 last year when Rabbit Maranville, Bill Terry and Bill Dickey were elected. The former New York Yankee centre fielder received support on 175 of the 253 ballots, just short of the required three-fourths vote.

Press Officer At Buckingham Palace in Huff

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Buckingham Palace Tuesday sharply rebuked employees of the royal household who take advantage of their privileged position to write inside stories of life at court.

The complaint came from Cmdr. Richard Colville, the Queen's press secretary. In a letter made public by the General Council of the Press, Colville said it had long been understood that persons working for the royal family "do not profit by making their experiences the subject of books or articles."

"That a small number have chosen to break the trust imposed in them does not change the fact that such a trust exists," said Colville.

RIDDERSES

The Press Council, holding its quarterly meeting, strongly endorsed Colville's statement, saying the last thing it wished to do was "encourage any breach of trust."

The statement is the first public reflection of the extreme irritation felt by court officials over the rash of articles written by former household staff, purporting to disclose inside stuff about the Royal Family.

Colville, 47-year-old chief press officer at Buckingham Palace, said it has recently become practice to insert a condition in the terms of employment of household staff. It reads:

"You are not permitted to publish any matter or conversation which may be within your knowledge by reason of your employment in the royal service, nor may you give to any person, either verbally or in writing, any information regarding Her Majesty or any member of the Royal Family which might be communicated to the press."

Royal views on news have always been tight. Colville and his assistant, Diana Lytteton, sister of jazz player Humphrey Lyttelton, are the "official channels" and every press enquiry is automatically referred to them. The unsolicited newspaper clipping that comes from Canada champing at the bit for an exclusive interview with Princess Anne or a 1 son learns that members of the Royal Family, even those less sensationally newsworthy than Margaret simply do not give interviews.

Myrna Hansen Only Contest Winner to Have Movie Contract

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Myrna Hansen is the only Miss Universe contest winner who still has a movie contract, and anyone can see why.

She's a little 125 pounds, five feet seven, with measurements (reading downward) of 37, 25 and 35 inches. She's got brown eyes that could melt a mortgage holder's heart, a straight nose with a cute uptilt, a broad forehead, peaches-and-cream complexion and silky brown hair highlighted with blonde.

Naturally, I had to do research on such an attraction as this, so I arranged a rendezvous. Among the things I learned:

1. She doesn't date. Too busy with studies. Stays home at night with her tape recorder, practising dialogue. Love comes later, she says.

2. She doesn't dig the Stanislavsky method of acting. Never heard of Dostievsky and probably thinks "The Brothers Karamazov" are independent producers. Her studio will be glad to hear this.

3. She's 20. Lives alone. Likes it.

4. She almost made a career of animal husbandry.

Yes, Myrna might have gone in for horse raising instead of horse operas. Born and reared in Chicago, she developed a fondness for horses and rode whenever possible.

"I decided after I graduated from high school I would like to take two years of dramatics in college, she said. "If that didn't pan out, I was going to study animal husbandry."

FATE INTERVENES

But fate came between her and the veterinary life. She had her picture in the papers for a high school honor and someone suggested entering her in the contest for Miss Pittsburgh of 1953, chosen by the Chicago press photographers. She won.

The prizes included being shipped to Hollywood for an appearance in "The All American" with Tony Curtis. She did her brief stint and returned home.

Then judges chose her to represent Illinois in the 1953 Miss Universe contest. Back she went to California, expecting a 10-day vacation. She's still there.

She aims to make it up to the top, too. Her guiding light is Barbara Stanwyck.

Hastings Hockey Player Stars On Italian Hockey League Team

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Italy, a perennial doormat in international competition, has turned to Canada for talent to bolster its flagging hockey prestige.

As a result, Canadian-born players virtually dominate the scoring columns of important games.

When the Italian All-Stars defeated the French champion Chamonix team 13-4 at Turin recently, seven of their goals were scored by Canadians.

Included in the Italian lineup were Carlo Monemurro of Rouyn, Que.; Flavio Guardia of Timmins, Ont., and Cesare Tucci, Riccardo Gricia, Ernesto Zorzo and Bernardo Tromei, all of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

When the Bolzano Athletic Club defeated the high-flouted Mannheim team of Germany 7-3, Canadians scored all seven of Bolzano's goals. Murray W. Ede of Hastings, Ont., netted four; Tomei two and Garnet Vasey of Midland, Ont., one.

A game between the Italian All-Stars and the touring United States national team Feb. 15 will be virtually a case of Sault Ste. Marie versus the U.S. Six of the all-stars with be Canadians, of whom four are from the Soo.

How the Canadians came to cross the Atlantic and play for Italian teams is a question they do not discuss for publication. Privately, they explain that they were given scholarships or easy jobs which allow plenty of time for hockey.

Under Italian sports regulations, anyone of Italian descent is considered Italian even if his parents emigrated. None of the Italo-Canadians on the national team is yet 21. Before their 21st birthday the players can choose between Italian or Canadian citizenship. If they choose to be Canadians, they may continue to play in Italy but not on the national team.

Italy turned to Canada for play ers after finishing a miserable last in the 1948 winter Olympics hockey competition. Since then, the Canadians, in 1952 Italy had such a weak team it didn't even enter.

The Canadians find the Italian game easier than that played at home. Ossie, who plays with the Corlina team, says the game as played in Canada is "harder and faster."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

One of the little-known facts is that I invented the first of the wholesome ace-showing convention. This was as far back as 1928; when suction bridge was turning into contract.

Since then have come and gone several wholesome ace-showing signals, including Culbertson's. The Gordon convention is known as the Kibitzer's, Oregon, Portland, Coast or California.

Nearest to mine is the Blackwood. But if you called it fruit they are as different as a peach and a quince. We are as alike as a P and a Q that are called two peas.

In answer to four no-trump, Blackwood shows only aces in answers of five. To learn of kings he must bid five no-trump and get answers of six, by which time it is too late to turn back.

Mine shows the number of kings as well as an ace when answers are five. It makes a big difference in the result. If there are not enough kings a player may still stop at a bid of five.

Furthermore, mine is not an independent convention used at the whim of a player. It is a correlate of my system. It is the ellmax to a well-knit set of standard build-ups. Here's an example:

"My rule is: To bid four notrump, a player must first discover 12 tricks in the pair, know what will be trump (if any) and hold in his own hand two aces and a king or better.

Take the next hand you hold here:

♠A K Q 7
♥9 7
♦K J 4 3
♣A 10 6 5

In the course of bidding, south and north each learn they have 12 tricks and spades can be trumps. But south does not invite a slam with four no-trump. He does not have two aces and a king (or better).

If north has two aces and a king he can bid the four no-trump. If he does not have that much there is no slam anyway.

It is better to be safer than sorrier.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was cutting a picture of a clown out of a magazine to paint up in my room, and I said, I wish I knew where I could study to be a clown. Oh boy, poy, G. ma, I'd quit my kickin for the circus and you could come and laff at me for nothing. I said.

A life of foolishness for land sakes, is that your highest ambition? ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, just making people laff and getting payed for it, what could be better?

The boy has a good sharp point there, mother, pop said. But as a matter of fact, Benny, do you know the real reason why clowns smear their faces with so much greece paint? he said, and I said, Sure, to make them look even funnier.

Not at all, it's to hide their natural and expressionless pop said. The most famous clown that ever lived was Pullpatchy, and he was so sad that an opera was written about him, and he cries all through the opera. And if even a grate clown like Pullpatchy was sad, you can imagine how ordinery clowns must feel, he said, and I said, But heck, why do they have to be sad?
